HOGS BRING GREAT PRICE

Mr. T. M. Hunter Receives $121.27 for Seven Bacon Hogs—Lot Weighed 1470 Pounds.

Mr. T. M. Hunter brought to Peterborough to-day, from his farm in North Monaghan, seven hogs fresh from the stubble. These seven hogs weighed 1470 lbs., for which he received 8¼c. per lbs. or $121.27 for the seven hogs. This is not only a good price for bacon, but it shows that the farmer receives a good price for his hogs when he produces the right kind of stock.

COMET NOT VISIBLE TO THE NAKED EYE

The figures given a few month ago to the Examiner by Rev. Dr. Marsh as to the relative position of the comet were correct. In answer to questions, Dr. Mash stated to-day that the comet was not visible to the naked eye. It can be seen with a telescope with a fifteen inch in diameter. It is directly overhead and can best be seen between two or three o'clock in the morning.

Two boys were each fined two dollars in the police court this morning for throwing stones. One pleaded guilty, but seevral witnesses had to be called before the guilt of the other one was proven. These boys were throwing stones at fruit trees on the property of a Lock St. resident on Sunday morning. The boys did not have the money with which to pay their fines and had to go to gaol until the money was paid.

WEDDING BELLS

DORMER—STEVENSON

A very pretty, though quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at four o'clock at the bride's home in Campbellford, when Miss Isabella Florence Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stevenson, of Campbellford, became the bride of Mr. Evelyn J. Dormer, one of Peterborough's popular young men. The young couple was unattended. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, while her sister, Miss Bertha played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Brown of St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, and was witnessed by a number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was becomingly dressed in a gown of amethyst travers cloth and carried a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses. After the ceremony the bridal party partook of a dainty wedding supper, following which Mr. and Mrs. Dormer left on the 7:30 train for their future home in Peterborough, to which place they carry the good wishes of a host of friends.

The bride was the recipient of a great many beautiful and useful gifts.

Upon arrival at their new home, 563 Gilmour street, Mr. and Mrs. Dormer were received by a number of friends and a reception was tendered by Mrs. P. Fuller, sister of the groom. After refreshments an hour or so was very pleasantly spent by the guests present.

BALFOUR ON THE BUDGET

Former Premier Says Offers of Colonial Governments Are Not Met Quarter Way by Budget—Choice, He Declares, Now Lies Between Socialism and Tariff Reform—Joe Chamberlain's Letter.

London, Sept. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Mr. Balfour, speaking at Birmingham last night, said that the old fiscal system had broken down, and the choice now lay between socialism and tariff reform.

It was intolerable that, while other empires were forging weapons by which they were going to withdraw from our sphere of commercial influence, our own colonies, we should sit by with folded arms and hiding ourselves under some antiquated formulae, refuse to look the facts in the face.

He complained strenuously because the budget did not meet half way, or even quarter way, the offers of the colonies to make with Britain a commercial and industrial system which should not be hostile to, but which should, in some respects, counterbalance the other great commercial systems which were growing up before our eyes.

Joseph Chamberlain wrote hoping that the Lords would see their way to force a general election. He did not doubt what the answer of the country would be.

While the Ministerial press points out that Balfour answered Asquith's challenge to say whether he would tax food, and failed to follow the House of Lords lead, the Unionist press expresses great delight over what is generally described as a great fighting speech. The Mail says it marks the turning point in the tariff reform campaign, and that upon Balfour has descended the mantle of Chamberlain.

Chamberlain, who heard it by electro phone, declared after Balfour's speech that the Lords were sure to act.

Must House Militia.

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 23.—Colonel Fages, the officer commanding the troops here, has sent a communication to the town authorities advising them that unless the town takes steps to at once furnish winter quarters for the militia, he will proceed himself to build same, and in the latter event it will likely cost the town considerably more than if the town authorities did the work.

The Coal company has made an offer to the town to erect buildings at net cost of labor and material. The estimated cost is $7,900. The company also offers to supply a site without charging rent if the land selected belongs to the company, and will also give as many of its houses as the soldiers need without charging rent for these dwellings.

"Insanity" Saved Him From Chair.

Utica, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Peter Grimalgi, 21 years old, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and received an indeterminate sentence of 20 years. After a row with a street car conductor over change, he stabbed to death a passenger on the car. Grimalgi's defence was insanity, but he dropped all pretence of insanity after sentence.

NASAL CATARRH

Responsible for Much Deafness, Hoarseness, Bronchitis and Stomach Trouble.

Medicated Air Will Cure.

These are common diseases, but not less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE.

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that air will carry into the minutest air cells, into the finest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS.

Doctors say only "Catarrhozone" can cure—you inhale it along with the air you breath—it goes where the living disease germs are gnawing into your system—it kills these germs—it heals, soothes. It CURES.

CATARRHOZONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhozone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhozone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhozone works in bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills no person can afford to do without Catarrhozone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself 25c., 50c, $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Walter presided and was supported at the head of the table by Sir William White, Sir Augustin Baker, Col. Walker, Dr. Bovey, Dean Adams, Col. George Starke, Prof. Porter, R. C. Holden, E. F. Howard, Senator Dandurand, R. W. Reford, and R. C. Fairley.

Sir William said: "I have always preached, and shall always preach the doctrine that the British Empire shall remain supreme at sea, and you can understand how happy one feels in the knowledge that throughout the Empire there is a determination that that supremacy shall never disappear."

170,000 Cadet Soldiers.

London, Sept. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—According to a Times' despatch regarding the Australian defence scheme, cadet training begins in 1911 and citizen training in 1912. When the scheme is in full working order it is estimated that it will provide 40,000 junior cadets, 75,000 senior cadets, and 55,000 citizen soldiers under 21. The militia, 25,000 strong, will henceforth be recruited only from the fully-trained men. It is hoped that after 1916 Australia will have a first line of 50,000 men ready to go anywhere, a second line of 50,000 ready to act as garrisons, and a third line of 170,000 composed partly of men who have had citizen training and partly of older-trained reservists.

Dan McDougall In Court.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Dan McDougall of the U.M.W.A., who is charged with libelling the Dominion Coal Co., in an advertisement in La Patrie, warning miners against taking employment from the company, was in court yesterday. John Lestrange swore that it was he who had translated the advertisement, and to the best of his knowledge McDougall had never seen it. Mr. Greenshield asked for an adjournment so as to get some papers from Sydney, and although Mr. Madden, M.P., objected to so many delays, the motion was granted, and the case will be resumed to-day.

Council In Camera.

Quebec, Sept. 23.—Close secrecy surrounds the business now being transacted by the Plenary Council of the Roman Catholic Church. Those in attendance have been strictly enjoined to maintain silence.

The deliberations of the council will last for a month. Then a certain number of decrees will be drawn up to be submitted to Rome to be sanctioned by the Pope. When that is done some idea of what the council has been doing will be gained. It will be a very meagre idea, however.

Carpenter Breaks Neck.

Toronto, Sept. 23.—While working on a building on Linwood avenue yesterday morning, Charles Everson, 65 years, 75 1-2 Wickson avenue, fell four feet from a scaffolding to a roof, and falling to the edge of this dropped over and struck upon his head upon the sidewalk, breaking his neck. The owner of the building, who was with him, also fell, but struck upon the turf instead of upon the boards, and beyond a slight shaking up was uninjured.

Car-Tapper Fatally Hurt.

Brantford, Sept. 23.—Clarence Bridge, this city, wheel-tappper at the Grand Trunk, was fatally hurt in the railway yards at five o'clock yesterday morning. In walking in a sleepy condition from the fifth to the first track, he was struck by a shunting yard engine.

Hard Labour For The Suffragettes

Ringleaders in Birmingham Rioting Get as Much as Three Months With Hard Labour.

AMAZONS IN TROUBLE

Suffragettes Given Hard Labor.

London, Sept. 23.—Ordinary imprisonment having failed to check rioting on the part of the suffragettes, a magistrate at Birmingham, yesterday afternoon sentenced Mary Leigh and Charlotte Marsh, two of the ringleaders in the outbreak at the meeting in Birmingham the night of Sept. 17, when Premier Asquith delivered an address upon the budget, to two and three months respectively at hard labor. Another woman was given one month at hard labor and others various terms of simple imprisonment.

When the sentences were announced, a number of suffragettes in court picked up whatever they could lay their hands on in the form of missiles and broke the windows of the court room.

Chamberlain Improves.

New York, Sept. 23.—The Herald's Liverpool correspondent cables that Mrs. Endicott, the mother-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain, who left Liverpool yesterday for Boston after her visit to Highbury, said that Mr. Chamberlain had greatly improved in health lately, though he is physically weak, which has been understood for a long time.

He is mentally quite clear, added Mrs. Endicott, taking an intense interest in political matters, and he follows the budget controversy every day very keenly, and the progress of the campaign for tariff reform gives him great pleasure.

Alberta Board of Licenses.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 23.—By an order-in-council of the Alberta Government, an innovation has been made in the method by which liquor licenses are to be granted in the province.

A central license board, composed of three commissioners will adjudicate on applicants for liquor licenses throughout the province. The commissioners are: Dr. C. F. Strong, dentist, Edmonton; David C. Bayne, general merchant, Bankhead, and Ald. Thomas McKercher, a lumber dealer and merchant of Okis. There have been twelve boards of commissioners.

Motor Military Corps.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Ottawa is to have a motor car military corps. It will be attached to the 43rd Rifles and will consist of owners of cars who agree to their use in the event of an emergency. The corps probably will be the Motor Association and the officers will be: Hon. president, the Prince of Wales; hon. vice-president, Major-Gen. Sir Percy Lake; president, Lieut.-Col. Rogers, 43rd; vice-president, Capt. Harry Ketchum; lieutenant and adjutant, Percy Harris.

Can See Over Phone Wire.

Mexico City, Sept. 23.—Alberto Sanches, an electrical engineer at present an inmate of Belem Prison, claims to have invented an apparatus whereby vision as well as voice may be transmitted over an ordinary telephone wire.

It is said the contrivance resembles short opera glasses attached to a battery.

Kingston License Reduction.

Kingston, Sept. 23.—The Civic Reform League will ask the City Council to have the ratepayers vote Jan. 1 on the reduction of tavern licenses from 28 to 20, or to one for every thousand of the population. This will mean a loss of revenue of $4,000, of which half goes to the city. Two years ago three licenses were cut off.

Made Big Profit?

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Some weeks ago M. J. O'Brien, contractor, and owner of the famous Cobalt property, made a new purchase from amongst the Gillies' limits for $10,000, and it has been known ever since as the Young and O'Brien mine.

It is reported here that they have sold out for $400,000.

Worth Seeing.

New York, Sept. 23.—A flight by the Glen Curtis from Governors' Island, across the lower bay and around the Statue of Liberty probably will be the first aviation during the Hudson-Fulton celebration.

SCHEDULE FOR SENIOR SERIES OF THE O. R. F. U. DRAWN UP

Peterborough Grouped With Toronto A. A. C. and the Parkdale Canoe Club--There Will be Two Home Games and Two Away for the Local Club.

Toronto, September 23. — Not since its old time palmy days has the O. R. F. U. been in the splendid shape that it is in this season. This was convincingly demonstrated at the schedule meeting of the senior and junior clubs, which followed the executive meeting of the Union at the King Edward Hotel last night. Represented were Parkdale, T.A.A.C., Peterborough, all three of whom are playing senior, the two former junior as well, St. Michael's, I.A.A.A., Toronto Canoe Club, Aura Lee, Beach Canoe Club and Y.M.C.A. The first named trio will compose the senior series, while the local junior teams have been grouped into two districts of four clubs each. This makes with the two western and one eastern groups, five junior districts, a healthy condition of affairs.

The senior schedule and that of group two junior were drawn up, the former subject to revision. Group 1, junior, and the other three junior schedules will be drawn up before the end of the week.

Rev. Father Carr of St. Michael's College, was elected to the recently created office of second Vice-President.

The applications of the various new clubs were accepted.

It was decided that the Cagitals' request to be allowed to play in the junior series be denied.

Junior District No. 1, comprising St. Michael's, T.C.C., P.C.C. and I. A.A., will meet Friday night to draw up their list of games. District clubs are reminded to turn in their schedules not later than Oct. 2. The schedules:—

Senior.

Oct. 9.—T. A. C., at Parkdale C C.
Oct. 16.—Parkdale at Peterborough.
Oct. 23.—Peterborough at T.A.C.
Nov. 6.—T. A. C. at Peterborough.
Nov. 13.—Peterborough at Parkdale

Roller Hockey Match At The Brock Street Rink

The roller hockey season will be ushered in to-night when the Brock street team will play a seven representing the Auditorium Rink. The game will be played between 7 and 8 o'clock at the Brock street rink and promises to be very interesting inasmuch as both teams are in good shape and confident of winning. The Brock street management has announced the following team:

Goal—B. Clute.
Point—K. Halpany.
Cover—N. Thompson.
Rover—P. Parrington.
Centre—Rolly Smith.
Right Wing—Mark Kenneally.
There will be skating afterwards.

May Be Only One Game In Junior League On Saturday

There will likely be only one game in the Junior City Rugby League on Saturday owing to the fact that the Y.M.C.A. and T.A.S. teams are not ready to play and it is likely that the two old rivals, the Collegiate Institute and the Rough Riders will be stacked up against each other. If they are, the fans will see a game that they will not soon forget as the teams who have practically the same line-ups as last year are very evenly matched. Both have been practising hard every day for the past two weeks and will be in tip top shape for the battle on Saturday which will be played at Riverside Park, commencing at 2.30 o'clock sharp. The opening of the Rugby season should be greeted by a big crowd as it will be a game that will be well worth seeing.

PAT McDONOUGH'S TEAM WINS OUT

One Time Peterborough Player Makes Good With Shamrocks.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept 22.—Four thousand lacrosse fans saw the Shamrock Athletic Club of Chicago defeat the local lacrosse team here Sunday for the championship of the National Association. The game was fiercely contested. At full time the score stood four all, but in the ten minutes overtime the Shamrocks ran away from the St. Paul team, netting three goals, making the final score 7 to 4. The Shamrocks also won the championship of Chicago a week ago, when they defeated the Illinois Athletic Club team by the score of 8 to 5. The line up of the winners Sunday was as follows: Gilligan, Marshall, Pickering, McIntyre, Irwin, Hill, Hunter, Masterson, Knapp, Nesbitt, McDonough and Shaver.

Pat McDonough played one season with Peterborough several years ago and will probably be remembered by the local fans. Bill Cavanah and Percy Rubidge were on the line up of the Illinois Athletic Club team and have always been among the strongest players on the team.

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved five cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

Kathleen Cliffoord in her presentment of "Little Dorrit," found much favour with the audience.—Toronto Globe.

Nervous People
SALT OF THE EARTH
But when overstrained their highly strung systems give way and depression and suffering is intense.

Money is made these days at the expense of brain and nerve rather than muscular tissues.

The successful men and women are often of the highest strung nervous type—keen and active—but with two little reserve force.

A little extra worry and anxiety and snap goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigour are regained.

Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise but the blood must also be made rich and red by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Much as they may disagree on some points the best physicians are unanimous in claiming that an abundance of rich, red, life-sustaining nerve invigorating blood is positively necessary for the restoration of the exhausted nervous system.

There is too often little sympathy for the nervous sufferer. When as a matter of fact his sufferings are most intense, being of mind as well as body.

Headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability, pains and cramps are often the lesser felt because of the depressed spirits and discouragements which come with loss of memory and gloomy forebodings of the future.

The sufferer from nervous exhaustion and prostration can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with positive assurance that the benefits derived therefrom will be both thorough and lasting.

There is no reaction from this great nerve-builder because it is not a stimulant but a restorative and reconstructor of the wasted nervous system. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THREW AWAY HER CHANCE FOR LIBERTY

Though husband an wife were arrested for a drunken spree, the woman threw away her chance of liberty to save her mate.

William Richards had just risen to his feet holding one hand behind a deaf ear.

"Guilty or not guilty?"

Richards shook his head.

Suddenly a fat and re-faced lady sitting with the other prisoners, leaped to her feet. "That man isn't guilty," she said. "He's deaf, and being in this court is very hard on him."

"What is he to you?"

"My husband."

It was getting melodramatic.

"Didn't you get off twice to bury your husband?"

"No, Sir, I never did."

The woman was find $1 and costs or 30 days, while her husband was ordered to return home. As they passed one another in the dock, going in opposite directions, Mrs. Richards kissed her spouse on the forehead, and yelled into his ear: "One and coste—get it."—Toronto Star.

THE TRANSCONTINENTAL

The steel has been put down for 40 miles west of Cochrane on the Transcontinental Railway and will be extended twenty miles further within the next thirty days.

Two temporary bridges had to be built, the permanent steel structure will be put in place during the winter. The grade is practically completed for 198 miles West of Cochrane.

East of Cochrane contractors have had some trouble with a coffer dam at the Abitibi where the high bridge is to be built.

Because there is no temporary structure here the contractors Foley, Welsh and Stuart are now engaged cutting out a tote-road sixty-five miles long through the forest northeast of Abitibi. Across this Lake and over this new made trail they will carry supplies during the winter. These supplies will be cached at intervals along the line for use when spring opens again. About sixty miles of the first 100 miles of grade has been completed. The steel is down and the track is being ballasted for the first eight miles east of Cochrane to the Abitibi River.

Makes the Glassware Fairly Sparkle

Mirrors and glassware are hard to clean with ordinary soap. The oily matter often leaves streaks and spots that are hard to remove.

But with Taylor's Borax Soap the result is wonderful. The surface is left without a single streak—it glitters and sparkles as though it were diamond.

And your work is only half as hard. For this soap reduces rubbing to a minimum—it works almost like magic.

Taylor's Soap

Borax is the most powerful cleanser in the world. It does wonders that are almost unbelievable until you once see the results for yourself. When you spend an hour cleaning the bath room, the tub, the wash bowl and the mirrors, you have wasted just half an hour. You would have done less than half the rubbing and finished in half the time with Taylor's Borax Soap.

For this soap does more than any other soap you have ever known. It loosens every bit of dirt instantly, it destroys every possible germ and leaves everything both clean and sweet. Hard water often hardens the hands—it leaves them red and rough. But this delightful borax soap softens the water and so softens the hands—it leaves them whiter and daintier than ever before.

We use only the finest of cocoanut oil in this soap. We go more than 12,000 miles to the isle of Ceylon just to be sure this oil is pure and fresh. Then we boil it doubly long and run thousands of gallons of pure water through it to remove every impurity. It is the cleanest and purest of soaps.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed.

Yet this soap costs no more than the ordinary. We make millions and millions of cakes every year and are thus able to buy at the lowest of prices.

Why use the ordinary soap any longer when this wonderful soap costs no more?

Try a bar this very day—learn for yourself its real merits.

ROYAL THEATRE

"THE EVIL THAT MEN DO"
This is one of the strongest as well as one of the latest Dramas produced by the Vitagraph Co. It tells the story of the love of a maiden for a young man, and how her father wishes her to marry someone else, and the many troubles, trials and tribulations encountered, but the story ends very happily for all concerned.

"SHOW YOUR LICENSE"
This is one of Pathe's funny pictures and one of the latest and best for fun. A hunter is shooting game when an officer appears on the scene and demands to see his license. You should come to the Royal to see the fun he saw before he saw that license.

This is an educational picture of great interest to everybody. Every country in the world is identified by its own particular form of dancing and in this picture you will see all the Countries of the world in their different dances.

C. N. R. May Yet Touch Peterboro'

Delegation of Peterborough Business Men Waited on Proprietors Yesterday—No Decision Yet Arrived At.

The deputation of Peterborough business men who waited on Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, proprietors of the Canadian Northern Railway in their offices, Toronto, yesterday morning, returned home last night, and while they presented the many advantages Peterborough affords, they did not receive any assurance that the proposed line of the C. N. R. would pass through this city.

The deputation was composed of Mayor Rush, Ald. Morrow, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Gillespie, president of the Board of Trade; Messrs. W. H. Denham, and Mr. Richardson of Chicago, representing the Quaker Oats Co., Mr. J. H. Larmonth, Mr. Jas. Kendry, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, and Messrs. F. Linton and John Thompson, of the Peterborough Lumber Co.

Mayor Rush, who introduced the deputation, pointed out the many advantages of Peterborough as a distributing point and the fact that cheap electrical power was going to make this city one of the largest manufacturing centres in Canada.

Messrs. Richardson, Linton and Ackerman all spoke of the large amount of shipping done by the factories here and pointed out the great field for the cimpany to draw business from.

The C. N. R. magnates expressed themselves as impressed by the arguments the delegates presented. They showed the visitors the map of the proposed route, which is along the lake front. They did not say that the road would not come through Peterborough. It is stated that the objection to going up into the country is the rocky formations encountered east of Peterborough.

It is possible, however, that at some future time this firm will run a grain and freight route from Midland through Peterborough to tap their main line east of here. This statement was made by one of the owners and it may be accepted as a fact.

The general impression gained by the delegation was that the Company have not yet determined upon their route. There is a possibility that Peterborough may be touched, although the present plans do not show it.

Cremated By Auto Tank Exploding

Frightful Accident in Seattle—Eight Occupants Were More or Less Severely Burned.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 24.—Three women were killed and three men and a woman seriously injured when an automobile containing eight persons jumped off a trestle at Fourth and Weller streets, a short distance from the Union Station here, yesterday.

As soon as the car landed on the tide flats, 25 feet below, the gasoline tank exploded and flames shot up thirty feet.

When firemen arrived, two women were dead, with all the clothing burned from their bodies. They had been killed instantly. The other woman, horribly burned, died on the way to the hospital. All the men were bruised and burned, and one suffered a broken leg.

GOVERN PORT ARTHUR BY PAID EXPERTS

Council is Considering a Radical Change in Municipal Government.

Port Arthur, Sept. 24.—Council will probably take definite action soon on a matter that has been under discussion among the people for a long time—that of a new system of municipal government.

Talk is of a paid commission of experts to act instead of mayor and council. The members would be railway, light, power and telephone experts, and, with another as chairman, would act as board of directors taking in charge all business created by the various franchises in which the city has practically half a million dollars invested.

The committee will be appointed to prepare a report, so that a plebiscite may be submitted, and they will likely attend the convention of heads of civic governments to be held shortly at St. Louis for the purpose of getting information on the subject.

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION ADJOURNED UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Fred and Harry Jopling Appeared This Morning Before County Police Magistrate Edmison—Three Witnesses Were Called, But There Was Little or no New Evidence.

There were no new features involved in the preliminary examination of Fred and Harry Jopling of Bridgenorth, the two brothers who are charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Arthur Bollard at Chemong Park on August 23rd. The evidence given followed very closely that given at the Coroner's inquest, and there was no new testimony that was of much importance. Only three witnesses were examined. Dr. Scott, who performed the post mortem examination, assisted by Dr. Greer, and Blake Cullen, and Gordon Long, who were spectators of the fight.

The preliminary hearing was taken before County Police Magistrate Edmison, in the county police court, this morning. There was not the same large crowd of spectators as attended the inquest proceedings, but as the morning wore on the attendance perceptibly increased, indicating that there is considerable interest being taken in the now famous case. The Jopling brothers, who have been out on bail since their arrest a week ago, were on hand when the court was opened and their father, G. T. Jopling and older brother, James Jopling, were also present. The accused were represented by Mr. D. O'Connell, while Crown Attorney R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown.

When the Crown was opened Crown Attorney Wood announced that as the court had no jurisdiction to try the case it was not necessary for the accused to elect or plead, and threfore that it was possible to go ahead with the taking of evidence.

Dr. Scott was the first witness called. His testimony was practically the same as at the inquest. He told of being called to attend Arthur Bollard on Thursday, Aug. 26; of the condition he found the patient in, and of his death on the following day. He testified to the findings at the post mortem, and again gave it as his opinion that the struggle and the injury received were contributary to the death of Bollard.

The witness was cross-examined at considerable length by Mr. O'Connell, who elicited the opinion from Dr. Scott that irregularity of habits, and other causes might leave the body in the condition described without being discovered by the physicians in making the post mortem examination. He stated that he did not find sufficient in the stomach and bowels to account for death, unless that the fact that the constitution was otherwise weakened were taken into consideration.

Blake Cullen, of Bridgenorth, told the same story of the affair that he has given on his several examinations before. He was closely examined by the Crown Attorney, who objected that he was not accurate in his statements.

"You will not be accurate," said Mr. Wood to the witness. "You are here on your oath and you are a friend of the accused. Those young men are here on trial and you are not helping them very much by the way in which you are giving your evidence."

Cullen told of being informed that Bollard was going to give Harry Jopling a thrashing, of telling Fred about it, and of Fred and Harry going down into the park after Bollard. He described the fight and the wrestling that ensued, and denied hearing Bollard say "Dirty!" or "Let go!"

Gordon Long testified to being present at the fight and of hearing Bollard cry out "Dirty!" twice ,and "Let go" three times. His evidence was in every essential detail the same as given at the inquest.

The examination was then adjourned until Wednesday next, Aug. 29. Crown Attorney Wood informed the Examiner this afternoon that he did not think that he would call any more witnesses.

Young Man Was Scalded While Making Repairs To A Boiler

While making repairs to a boiler at the Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon, the plug blew out and Ernie Hensley, a plumber in the employ of Adam Hall, and who resides at 420 George street was scalded about the left arm and left leg. The accident occurred shortly after 4 o'clock, and so quickly that the workman hadn't time to get out of the way. He was hurriedly taken into the hospital where Dr. Morgan was speedily summoned. His left arm and all down the side of his left leg was burned by boiling water. However his injuries are not of a serious nature and the doctor stated this morning that Hensley would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Gold Said To Have Been Discovered In The Township Of Cavendish

It is believed that gold has been discovered in Peterborough county. While working on a piece of land on the Peterborough Lumber Company's limits in Cavendish Township, a short while ago, Elias Windover, whose home is in that vicinity struck rock that upon examination showed the presence of something that looked very much like gold. Mr. Windover brought samples to Peterborough and was advised by local gentlemen to send them to Toronto to the assayers.

Mr. Windover is now awaiting a report from Toronto.

Dead On Trolley Is Asked For Fare

Conductor, Thinking Passenger Is Asleep, Shakes Him Several Times Before Discovering Truth.

St. Louis, Sept. 24.—R. S. Bartle, 50 years old, of 6904 Magnolia Avenue, Maplewood, died suddenly on a Manchester car while riding at night from Maplewood to St. Louis. He boarded the car apparently in good health. A few minutes later when Conductor F. G. Bonebrake, asked him for his fare, Bartle was found to be dead.

The conductor thought Bartle was asleep when he first called to him, and shook him several times. Thinking he had possibly only fainted, the car was run to the car sheds and a physician was summoned, but the passenger was past help.

Bartle was a carpenter. His son, who became worried about his absence, had been searching for him more than an hour when he learned of the body at the car sheds and went there and identified it.

PREPARING TO PROVIDE WATER FRONT WHARFAGE

GIRL'S WILD RIDE ON WAGGON TONGUE

Caught up by Runaway Horses and Clung to Pole Displaying Remarkable Grit.

Examiner Special.

Amherstburg, Sept. 24. — While Pearl Ward, the eleven-year-old daughter of Thomas Ward, was driving along the river road, a runaway team attached to a waggon attracted her attention. She kept her horse on the side of the road so as to give the animals a chance to pass her. Instead, the team split, and the pole of the waggon struck her rig, the force of which threw her into the air, and when she alighted she was astride the waggon tongue. She clung to her perilous position by grasping each of the inside tugs, and in this position was caried nearly a mile before the team was stopped.

When she was taken from the pole it was found that she had sustained a broken thigh.

COURT OF APPEAL REFUSES REQUEST

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Toronto, Ont., Sept 24.—The Court of Appeal has refused to grant an order directing Justice Riddell to state a case for the Court in the matter of the King against Walter Blythe under sentence to be hung on October 1st, for the murder of his wife at Agincourt, Ont. The application was made by Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., on Wednesday morning, relying entirely on the ground Blythe was so intoxicated at the time that he did not realize the probable consequences of his act. To the prisoner's counsel however, is left the opportunity of making application to Mr. Justice Riddell himself to state a case upon this point.

BUILDING OPERATIONS

"Construction" gives statistics of building operations in the cities of the Dominion for the month of August, which shows a general increase of 34.93 per cent. in the figures of August 1909 over those of the same month of 1908. Peterborough still steadily maintains its lead over last year; the permits issued for August 1908, were $36,195, as against $42,500 for August of this year, a gain of 21.01 per cent. Practically all the cities in Canada report that the amount of work on hand is such as to tax to the utmost the capacities of both architects and contractors and that there are no signs of a lull for some time to come. The general opinion, says "Construction", is that in the next two months a far greater number of buildings will be undertaken than in any corresponding period of the past.

CANADIAN GRAIN EXPORTS.

A comparative statement, showing the quantities of wheat, oats, and barley exported from Canada for the harvest years of 1907, 1905, and 1908, has been issued by the Trade and Commerce Department. From the harvest of 1907 Canada exported 9,359,640 bushels of wheat, from the 1905 harvest 41,905,937 bushels, and of last year's harvest 45,870,098 bushels. Of oats the exports for the first period totalled 8,106,680 bushels; for the second period, 3,889,303 bushels, and for the third 4,998,085 bushels. Exports of barley for the three years were, respectively, 2,412,972 bushels, 998,738 bushels and 2,702,154 bushels. Exports of last year's harvest included also ten million bushels of wheat in the shape of flour, making the total for the year about fifty-six million bushels, or about eighteen million bushels less than the total quantity of wheat inspected for sale in the three prairie provinces.

BOUND TO FIND FAULT.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk Railway, is credited with having complained of "the slow progress made in the construction of the Government section of the National Transcontinental Railway." Much emphasis is placed upon this, of course by enemies of the Government, and of the railway; but Sir Charles may have been misunderstood, for his statement, as reported, is too sweeping to be made by a man in Sir Charles' position, and with his knowledge of the weight that naturally is attached to anything he would say upon a subject upon which he is an authority. Sir Charles evidently did not, as stated, mean the section from Winnipeg to Superior Junction, for the contractor, Mr. J. D. McArthur, in an interview, points out that the contract for this section of 245 miles, was let on May 5th, 1906, three years and four months ago, and declares that "considering the magnitude of the work and the character of the country through which the line has been built, never in the history of the Dominion has railway construction work been carried on more expeditiously and thoroughly." Some enemy hath done this—that is, some newspaper correspondent has attributed to Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson something he did not say, probably through imperfectly understanding the real import of his remarks in reference to the progress of work on the Transcontinental. The political enemies of this great work grasp at any straw to keep them afloat in the turbid stream of detractive pessimism. They are bound to find fault anyway.

NORTH POLE POLICIES

The question of national authority over the North Pole and adjacent regions on this side of the earth is, as a matter of material moment, of, perhaps, little account, but it is well to have a correct idea of the situation, especially in the face of flamboyant claims recently made. The Montreal Witness puts the matter in a clearer light. It reminds us that when the question of jurisdiction arose from the incursions of United States poachers and whiskey traders, the British Government, in response to representations by the Dominion Government, formally ceded to Canada all the islands and territories north of Canada proper lying between the west coast of Greenland and the meridian dividing Alaska from Canada. This, as The Witness points out, practically includes the whole American Arctic archipelago, there being no islands north of Alaska, so far as known.

The United States had an eye on Greenland. The Canadian Government objected and by reason of British influence in Denmark, which owns Greenland, the deal fell through. Since then the Dominion Government has established its authority throughout the whole region, outside of Greenland and a contiguous island. United States traders, whalers and fishers, who were in the habit of visiting our northern coasts and establishing summer posts for trading thereon, were required by the Northwest Mounted Police, and fisheries cruisers, to submit to Canadian law, and on behalf of the Canadian Government, Captain Bernier, under a sufficiently valid Canadian credential, has been asserting Canadian authority in the Arctic Hinterland of Canada. This is satisfactory enough, the possession of a walrus tusk has more practical value than a dubious claim to sovereignity over the apex of the earth, beating out its precarious life against the oars of the Stars and Stripes.

OUR CLIMATE.

Peterborough and vicinity seem to have been highly favoured; the equinoctial storms of September have assumed a very mild form. This is a matter of congratulation, especially in view of the disastrous character of equinoctial visitations in other parts of the continent and of the world. In the southern of the United States, cyclone, hurricane, and flood have wrought immense destruction of property and produced great destruction of human and other life. In southern France, severe storms have prevailed, and in other parts of the world the equinoctial disturbances have been very severe. Canada is very highly favoured in the matter of climate. True, we have some rather sharp, cold in the winter season, but we escape very largely the disastrous storms that sweep other countries. While our long and, as we some times unthinkingly think, tedious winters, are a frigid fact, we have a healthy climate. We are visited with no loathsome and decimating plagues; and as compensation for our long winter we have an all-too-brief summer, but glorious enough to furnish ample compensation for a long stretch of cold, especially when, the unwearied summer projects its mildness and beauty, as it is doing this year, far into autumn, with the glorious weather in which Canada is at present revelling. We Canadians are a blessed people; we have a splendidly endowed country, in every way; we have the best form of Government in the world; the best all-round climate and generally the most favourable all-round conditions of happiness and prosperity, of any country, bar none, on the face of the Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, in the course of an interview given the New York World, before sailing for home, said: "And Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada, I saw him a few days ago. Of course, one of the great characters of this nobility, one of my definitions of nobility?"

Students of strikes and lockouts will find some instructive figures in the annual report issued by the Labour department of the British Board of Trade. The results for the year under review show that in the disputes which arose on questions of wages only two per cent. of the work people involved were successful, whereas when a dispute arose in connection with trade union principles the great majority of strikers attained the end they had in view. Compromise was resorted to in sixty-five per cent. of the disputes.

For the practical application of the principles of the Christian religion the Salvation Army is preeminently distinguished. They make considerable noise; but this is only a cover for a great deal of quiet unostentatious, but effective philanthropic work. The other day the Army in Toronto celebrated the eightieth birthday of General Booth, by a banquet. This was not one of the gorgeously dreary affairs, like, as we know it, the usual complimentary banquet, whose chief ingredients are gobble, guzzle and gush; but a reinforced form of the ordinary noonday meal served to the aged inmates of the House of Industry. This is a good deal after the methods of our Blessed Lord, who, when He met the hungry multitude, did not feed them with the chaff of fine-chopped mutilation of the Mosaic record, but had the bread broken and the fish put in broil—the only theological broil with which He was ever connected.

Under the Liberal Government admission to the Canadian outside civil service depends upon qualification and promotion, or merit. Examinations, sufficiently rigid to meet the requirements must be successfully submitted to by applicants for positions to insure success. The Canada Gazette announces that the regular civil service examinations, preliminary and qualifying, for the outside division of the civil service of Canada, will be held under the direction of the civil service commission on Tuesday, Nov. 9, and following days at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Regina, Vancouver and Victoria, and if found necessary, at Yarmouth, Sydney, Fredericton, Moncton, Windsor, Sault Ste Marie, Port Arthur, Brandon, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Prince Albert, and Nelson. Application forms may be obtained from the secretary of the civil service commission, Ottawa, and must be filled on or before Oct. 16.

ANOTHER IRISH LAND BILL

(Brantford Expositor)

The Irish Land Bill has passed its final stage in the British House of Commons by a vote of 173 to 51. The bill is merely an extension of the existing land purchase act, under the operations of which about half the agricultural land in Ireland has passed or is passing from landlord to tenant. Under the terms of the act the British Government loans to tenants at three per cent. money to buy their holdings on a rental basis, covering a period of about seventeen or eighteen years. The money becomes an addition to the national debt, but is secured by land, so there is really no cost to the taxpayers. The purpose is gradually to abolish the landlord system, which is looked upon as a fundamental cause of Irish discontent. In introducing the new bill, Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, said he found that the estimate of $500,000,000 made by one of his predecessors, George Wyndham, as the amount necessary to satisfy the land hunger of the tenants was totally inadequate; $900,000,000 would be required. The completed transfers of land represented $125,000,000, which had practically exhausted the amount realized from the issues of land stock. Pending transactions represented $280,000,000. The Government intended to raise the money necessary to complete these transactions, leaving about $500,000,000 to be dealt with later. The secretary proposed an issue of new three per cent. stock. He recognized that he was engaged in an extensive policy, but he declared that land purchase had worked such marvels in Ireland that the Government did not hesitate to ask the House of Commons to add materially to the burdens of the Imperial exchequer, which he proposed shoould assume liability for the entire loss caused by the issue of the stock below par. This loss would total $3,300,000 a year.

POST MORTEM TO BE MADE IN SPRINGVILLE AFFAIR

Inquest Was Resumed Before Coroner Gray Last Night---Only One Witness Was Heard---Drs. Greer and Eastwood Will Conduct the Autopsy.

Little was done at the inquest on the body found near Kendry siding a week ago Sunday, which was resumed by Dr. Gray at Springville yesterday, acting under the instructions of Inspector Miller of the Attorney-General's department. The jury passed a motion asking that a post mortem examination be performed and that will be done at once.

Coroner Gray called the jury together last evening at five o'clock in Mr. Wilson's store at Springville. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood and Detective Miller were present and the coroner ordered a post mortem examination to be held over the remains and appointed Dr. T. N. Greer to perform the examination. The jury, upon request, granted Dr. Greer an assistant and named Dr. Eastwood. The autopsy will be performed at once and a report prepared for the jury at next meeting of the inquest on Thursday night, Sept. 30th.

Only one witness was examined Mr. George Bidgood, who with his wife, discovered the skeleton in Mr Campbell's woods. He told of the discovery but he could give no information which would lead to the identity of the man.

Since the discovery over a week ago a thorough search of the woods has been made. A suit of clothes was found in a post hole, but there were no marks on it to show who the owner was.

A razor case, presumably the one belonging to the razor found in the man's hand, was also picked up in the vicinity as was also a hat. On none of the articles was found anything by which the identity of the owner could be established.

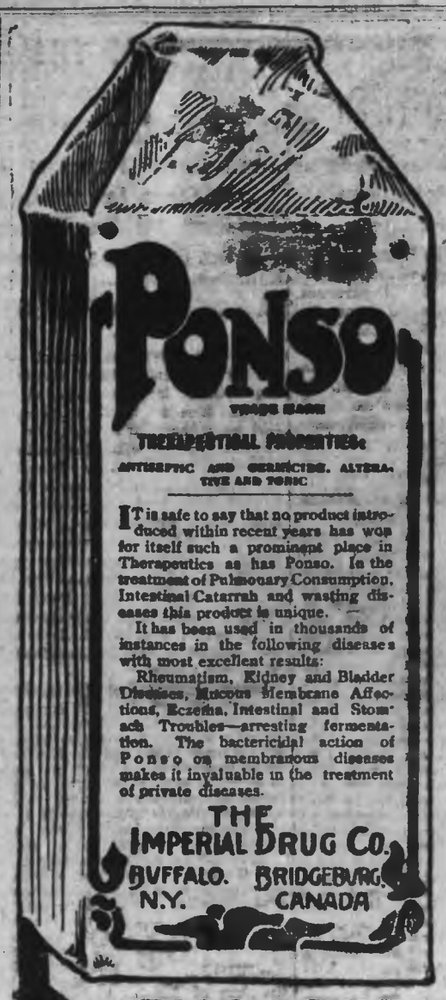
A well known farmer who lives near the Kendry station stated last night that a year ago last spring there was a gang of young Englishmen in the neighbourhood who caused considerable annoyance to the residents. The leader, or who appeared to be the leader, is supposed to be the dead man. This farmer saw him several times and twice tried to talk to him but the fellow would walk away and only answered in a gruff voice.

He was about 5 feet 2 or 4 inches tall and the clothes he wore corresponded with those found upon the skeleton. The shoes particularly were referred to as the man seen had on a pair of new shoes.

Shorly after the gang left Springville, a number of young Englishmen got into trouble in Belleville for breaking into a tailor shop there. These are believed to be the same gang.

The affair is still a mystery in Springville. The people cannot give any explanation of the affair whatever. The murder theory is not as strong as it was. The suicide theory is given more credence. It is a fact, however, that quite a number of the residents favour dropping the inquest and allowing the thing to die. They claim it will never be solved and that it is a big and needless expense to the county. The coroner, however, has a duty to perform. A proper record of the affair must be kept in case of future developments and the Province bears half of the expense.

The inquest adjourned until next Thursday night at 7.30 in the North Monaghan Town Hall.



SILENCE YOUR COLD AT ONCE

or it may develop into a very painful, serious and lingering lung or bronchial disease. In ninety-nine cases, out of every hundred, death would not have occurred if the person had not thoughtlessly neglected a little cold. Why is it, that the most terrible diseases start from a mere cold?—because a cold, however little, is a congestion at some weak part of your system. This congested condition paralyzes nature's function of throwing off impurities. And with what result?—the horrible minute germs that have been lying dormant are instantly aroused to wicked action—these parasites, once they get a good start, multiply exceedingly rapid. There is only one thing swifter than these hungry germs—that is PONSO.

PONSO Saves Lives

PONSO is a tonic-germicide. If taken before a cold it is a sure preventive. If taken just as a cold starts it is a sure cure of that cold and a sure preventive of any serious disease getting its death grip upon you.

"I was visiting in Buffalo with my daughter, who is twenty years old, and suffering from consumption. Two of the most prominent specialists on lung diseases of Buffalo pronounced her incurable, and advised me to take my daughter to live in the mountains or out-of-doors.

"Following their advice I went to Angola, N. Y., on the lake shore, and there lived in a tent during the summer, and the only medical treatment that she had was 'PONSO.' Everytime she took a drink of water, she took 'PONSO.' Her progress in recovering her health was remarkable, and by the first day of September she had gained twenty-eight pounds; and when she returned to Buffalo, the doctors, who had pronounced her incurable, said she was completely cured.

"She is entirely well now.

"We use 'PONSO' all of the time, as do my sisters, and many of my friends to whom I have recommended it.

"I will be glad to answer any inquiries regarding 'PONSO.'"

NEW LINE FROM PETERBOROUGH TO TORONTO WILL NOT BE BUILT NOW

Reports from Montreal which appear to be entirely authentic, state that the C. P. R. line, between Montreal and Peterborough, will be double-tracked. From Peterborough to Toronto, instead of a double track, a new line will be built along the lake front, taking in the towns, as far east as Belleville. The Montreal Herald, in yesterday's issue, has the following.

It has been practically decided by the Canadian Pacific management that the double tracking of the system to Toronto and Chicago will not be carried farther at present than Peterborough, which will be the point of junction of the new grain road from Victoria Harbour, Georgian Bay, which will be finished next year if all goes well.

West of Peterborough, istead of a double track, a new line will be built, which will run along the lake shore east from Toronto, passing through the principal towns abutting on the lake and extending as far east as Cobourg, Port Hope, and Belleville, before joining the main line.

An official of the Canadian Pacific stated that the work of double-tracking their line from Montreal to Toronto was gradually being accomplished.

"We are within twenty-five miles of Smith's Falls, and by next season we will have the double track thrown open for traffic that far."

In connection with the statement that the C. P. R. intend to build a line from Peterborough to Toronto, along the lake shore, to-day's Globe contains the following:

Mr. J. W. Leonard, General Manager of the eastern lines of the C. P. R., said there was nothing in the story that his company was to build a line from Peterborough to Lake Ontario and thence west to Toronto. "There is absolutely nothing to the story," he said. "It is true that we made a survey along Lake Ontario some two years ago, with the object of paralleling the Grand Trunk, but since then there has not been anything done in regard to the matter."

But what about the future plans of the C. P. R. in that section of Ontario?" was asked.

"It is hard to say what we may do in the distant future, but for the present and the near future, there is absolutely nothing in the story that we are to build that line. We are too busy with urgent construction in the west to bother much with eastern lines. Eventually we will double-track much of the line between here and Toronto, and build new lines, but not for some time."

LADIES' COAT SWEATER IN ITS NEWEST STYLES

The latest thing in sweaters is not a sweater at all in the old-fashioned conception of the word, but a knitted coat, fitted to the figure, double-breasted with lapels and collar. These coats may be very costly or very expensive. I have seen machine-made ones as low as $2.50, but there is not much latitude in colour among the cheap ones. The hand-made ones, which cost anywhere from $10 up, are beautifully soft in texture and shade. I saw one the other day in town, for they are worn everywhere, of a lovely pigeon blue colour, and it extended below the knees. It was worn over a white dress, with white shoes and stockings, and was exceedingly picturesque.

The knitted coats are really intended to be worn in the country, and are not yet seen much in town, though they are no longer conspicuous. They are indispensable for golf and are worn on board ocean steamers with great comfort. Many of them have collars and lapels of a contrasting shade. One of the pictures shows a creamy-looking coat with pale blue collar and revers, while the other one is of pearl colour gray with scarlet trimmings.

Another good looking sweater-made coat shape is of gray worsted with green revers of knitted silk. Some of the new coat sweaters are destined to be worn under the long light cloaks which are to be fashionable next winter. These are knitted and reach down to the ankles. They serve splendidly for automobile wear under large ulsters, for they take up remarkably little room considering the amount of warmth they afford.

Handsome knitted waistcoats made V-shape in front and finished off with pretty gilt buttons belong by right to the sweater variety. They are so very well fitted and neat that they have none of the unconventionality of the average knitted coat or muffler.

Of course there are wonderful little novelties in sweater coats for children, some in blue or rose colour, but red and gray are the best and most popular shades.

BIG CELEBRATION AT CHEMONG TO-DAY

Indians From Lake Simcoe Down on Three-Day Excursion.

The steamer "Geneva" with headquarters at Orillia brought an excursion of Indians from the reserves at Rama and Georgia Island, Lake Simcoe to Chemong and a big celebration is in progress to-day. There were two hundred in the party which left yesterday morning arriving at Chemong last night after a long trip. This is an annual affair, the Indians of these reserves reciprocating the hospitality every year. Last year the Chemong people visited Rama and spent several days the guests of the Lake Simcoeo Indians.

These reunions afford the hosts and their guests no end of pleasure and their affair to-day takes the form of concert, baseball match, games and sports of all forms, very similar to a big family gathering. The visitors will leave to-morrow morning for their homes.

Kidney Suffering IN THE SPRING

Backaches and tired feelings tell of weak kidney action—Prompt relief by using DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

No organs of the body are so susceptible to the quickly changing temperature of spring as the kidneys. Sudden cold waves mean chilling of the surface of the body, closing of the pores of the skin and over crowding of the kidneys at a time when they are already overworked in an effort to free the system of the accumulated poisons of winter.

The tired draggy feelings you experience and the weakness and pains in the back tell of a poisoned system and defective kidneys.

There is no treatment for kidney disease which will afford you relief so quickly as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and none which will so certainly cure the most complicated forms of this disease.

There is a reason for this. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills awaken the action of the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys and thereby effect a thorough cleaning and regulating of the whole excretory system.

In this combined action Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique. There are no substitutes or imitations which possess this principle.

Mrs. F. O. Bacon, Baldwin's Mills, Que., writes: "I was very sick last spring. The doctors said I must go to the hospital for an operation but I didn't want to. My liver and kidneys did not act and I suffered terribly. I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and nothing else, and am now fully cured and doing my own work for a family of seven."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Letter On Salary Paid To Firemen

Correspondent Thinks They Should be Higher in Order to Make The Staff Permanent.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—There is what I consider a defect in the Fire Department, which should be remedied at once and for all, and when this is done I think we will have a thoroughly efficient brigade. I refer to the small salary that is held out to the firemen. To my mind it is altogether too small, and is undoubtedly the explanation of the many changes in the personnel of the men who man the waggons when an alarm is sent in. The officials who have charge of the brigade, should give this more attention. I know that the city is not in a position in which it can afford to be lavish in its expenditure for fire protection, but I believe it would be money well septn if the firemen's salaries were increased to such an extent that they would take up the work as an occupation, not as a summer or winter's job. Those who go in it for that purpose will do more harm than good, and it is this kind of man who will keep the brigade below the standard, which it should soon arrive at. The city wants a good class of men in the fire brigade. I am not saying anything against the men now on duty for I am acquainted with only two or three of them, and they are thoroughly capable. But I understand that from time to time men are leaving and some of those who fill the vacancies intend to remain but for the winter or something as indefinite as that. The men will never be a thoroughly drilled body, while that condition obtains, and if it is on account of a small salary that they do not remain then I say give them a higher salary. I would like to hear what the Chief has to say about this question, that is what can be done to make the staff a permanent one.

Yours,
IGNIS.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents "Rath More" Norwood. After congratulations, the party adjourned to the dining-room, where a dainty dejeuner was served, the room being beautifully decorated, the colour scheme being pink and white.

After the party had done justice to the good things served, several toasts were proposed, which were responded to by the groom in a few well chosen words.

SERVICE OF THANKSGIVING FOR THE BOUNTIFUL HARVEST

Annual Harvest Festival at All Saints Church Last Evening—An Excellent Address Delivered by Rev. Canon Dixon of Toronto

A LARGE CONGREGATION

The annual Harvest Festival was held at All Saints' Church last evening when a large congregation assembled to return thanks to Almighty God for a bountiful harvest. The service was one of joyful thankfulness. The church was prettily decorated, the windows and the entrance being banked with fruit and flowers and grain. Rev. Canon Dixon of Trinity Church, Toronto, was the special preacher, delivering an address most appropriate to the occasion. The anthem by the choir "Break Forth into Joy," was most acceptably rendered.

The rector, Rev. H. R. Trumpour was assisted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt of St. Luke's Church.

In the first part of the speaker's discourse he reminded the congregation that their lives should be continually singing the praises of God for the many blessings He had seen fit to pour down on them, not once in a while, but all the time, as His desire was to always guard those whom He loved. "But, what is it to give thanks unto God?" asked the preacher. "If we are going to be thankful we must first be obedient, as that is the very foundation of thankfulness. It is when we are assigned irksome duties and do them with a cheerful heart that we are showing the true spirit of thankfulness and not when our pathway is smooth and no cares beset us. Sometimes He calls us to stand up for our faith in the face of derision and mockery. If we stand the test we again display the true spirit. It is impossible to give full thanks for all or even part of the mercies we receive from His hand. But, suppose the crops had failed this year and our families were called upon to suffer the pangs of hunger, what then? Would we still be thankful? It is very easy to be grateful when conditions are satisfactory, but that was not the kind of thankfulness that God wanted. It was in all circumstances and at all times that we should give Him our thanks. He emphasized the fact that those present knew nothing about real poverty and gave several cases which had come under his notice in Toronto which would tend to bear out his statement. He next gave some interesting statistics showing the immensity of the harvest in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for this year, and asked if it was not a matter of thankfulness for all to consider. The words of the poet:

"Lord, God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."

But there was one way in which we could show how thankful we are and that was by giving our hearts to Him and let Him guide and direct us in everything. We would then be within the power of His love, and our lives will be happy. The speaker closed with a strong appeal to all to make a friend of Him and follow in His footsteps.

Twenty-five years ago it was difficult to sell spring wheat flour for pastry at any price.

People didn't want it—they were using soft, winter wheat flour, and saw no reason for changing.

But hard wheat flour was persistently pushed. The women tried it and succeeded with it,—to-day hard wheat flour is the favorite for Pastry as well as for Bread.

Ogilvie's Royal Household

is hard wheat flour at its best—milled by modern methods, retaining all of the good of the wheat. It is without an equal for every kind of baking in which flour is used. 16

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.

ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.

OTHERS admired the tone of the Evans Bros.' Piano.

AND SOME others prefered the Sherlock-Manning—each and every one produce perfect tones but of different qualities.

WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

A CANADIAN CONCERT SINGER'S BIG RECORD

Harold Jarvis Has Filled More Than 400 Concert Engagements This Year and is Out on Another Tour.

(Windsor Record)

One of the most remarkable records of a concert singer for this year is that of Harold Jarvis, Detroit's famous tenor, who up to Saturday last has filled 437 engagements. This is something rarely equalled, seeing that Mr. Jarvis has made jumps of two towns in one day and sometimes singing at funerals an hour apart at different ends of Detroit.

At the present time Mr. Jarvis is arranging for a Western Canadian tour to the Pacific, on which he will enter Oct. 2nd. The tour will last about two months.

Upon being asked by The Record as to how he retained his present good voice after singing so many years, he said he never used liquor or tobaccoes and took the best of care of himself.

"I have had many offers to go into opera and have had managers offer to pay my own terms to get me on the circuit, but to all of these I turned a deaf ear, preferring to follow my church and concert work. I like church singing and am always at home in the choir loft."

Mr. Jarvis has many warm friends in Windsor as he has throughout Canada where his appearances have always called for overflow houses. Although residing in the States, he is an ardent Canadian, being a native of Toronto, and a descendent of United Empire Loyalist stock. His singing of "The Death of Nelson" at many patriotic banquets in this country has placed him upon the threshold of friendship with all who have heard him. Two weeks ago Mr. Jarvis sang to the greatest crowd ever in attendance at a concert on Belle Isle, over 50,000 people crowding that popular place to hear him.

Mr. Jarvis' transcontinental tour is under the personal direction of Miss Maude C. Bradley, of Brockville.

OBITUARY

FRANCIS PETTIGREW

After a long and noble battle against the encroachment of that dreaded destroyer known latterly as "the white plague," Miss Frances N. Pettigrew, only daughter of Dr. G. A. Pettigrew of this place, passed away on Wednesday morning, Sept. 22nd.

For several years past she bravely fought against the disease, spending considerable time at the Muskoka Sanatorium and other places with the hope of staying its progress, and although aware, for some time at least, of the hopelessness of the task she bravely endured, keeping a bright and cheerful courage till the last. Her death has brought the bitter cup of sorrow not only to her father who will greatly miss her companionship, but to a host of friends who esteemed her very highly. Deceased was 33 years of age.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, from her father's residence, Peterborough St., to the Norwood cemetery.—Norwood

WARSHIPS ARRIVE

Drake, Argyll, Duke of Edinburgh and Inflexible Are Now in the Harbor With Sir Edward Seymour In Command — Big Reception Is Planned by American Officers —Admirals Exchange Visits.

New York, Sept. 24.—Three British cruisers, the Drake, Argyll and Duke of Edinburgh, which, with the armored cruiser Inflexible, will represent Great Britain at the Hudson-Fulton celebration, pushed through a gray haze into sight of New York harbor yesterday afternoon and anchored at sunset close to Sandy Hook. The British flagship, the Inflexible, with Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour on board, joined her sister ships this morning.

The coming of Sir Edward Seymour has been looked forward to with unusual pleasure by the American officers. The flagship Connecticut has been paired off with the Inflexible by order of Admiral Schroeder, and the officers in the flagship will see to it that their British brothers on the Inflexible get as good a time as possible during their stay in American waters. Admiral Schroeder, as soon as the Inflexible anchored, called on Sir Edward and welcomed him. Admiral Sir Edward Seymour immediately returned the visit and met on the Connecticut all the officers of the flagship and the division commanders, who were assembled there to welcome him.

Jurymen With a Grievance.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 24.—Jurymen spoke out in the Circuit Court here yesterday morning. J. Sydney Kane, when called for duty, asked to be excused, declaring he had served the last ten days in different cases, and thought it time somebody else took a turn.

Kendall Hall, another merchant, declared merchants who were excused from jury duty in the recent trial of McDougall, editor of Free Speech, on the ground of ill-health, sat day after day through the proceedings, listening to evidence and arguments. It was his opinion that the court should enforce jury attendance by sending to jail those who failed to assume their burden.

Unknown Man Killed.

Kingston, Sept. 24.—The body of an unknown man is awaiting identification. As 6 o'clock yesterday morning it was found beside the G.T.R. tracks near Rideau station. Dr. Anglin found death due to natural causes. The man was presumably a tramp, dressed in shabby blue serge coat and vest, light flannel shirt, dark trousers with gray stripped Kentucky jeans. He wore new boots and a pair of grey woolen socks, the top of one of the socks being brown; wore a dark tweed peaked cap and was dark complexioned with gray eyes, dark hair and full dark beard; 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds, and being about 55 years of age.

A New Style Aeroplane.

Lucrene, Switzerland, Sept. 24.—A new aviator, Dane Hurlburt, made several successful flights. His machine is different from existing aeroplanes, in so much as it travels lengthwise through the air and has two propellers, one in front and another behind.

They Didn't Have to Change.

During the years in which our pure food laws have been put into effect there has been a great hurrying and scurrying on the part of the food manufacturers to change their methods to make them conform to the law.

The Quaker Oats Company is a conspicuous exception. It was admitted that Quaker Oats was as pure and clean as possible and that it was an ideal food. The purity and cleanliness of Quaker Oats is familiar to every one who has compared it with other brands of oatmeal.

It is so cheap that any one can afford it and so nourishing that everyone needs it. The result of last year's experiments at Yale and other points where food values were tested is that Quaker Oats has been adopted by many persons as their food on which they rely for adding vigor and endurance of muscle and brain. 18

WILL SET UP ALIBI

Woman Charged With Strangling the Authers' Baby, Says She Gave the Child to Mrs. Wagner and Was to Meet Her on Wednesday—Says It Was Impossible For Her to Have Dropped the Infant.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—For the first time since the arrest of Mrs. Maud Turner for the murder of the Authers infant, T. C. Robinette, her counsel, was induced to speak of her defence last night.

According to his statement, the defence will set up an alibi in so far as to try to show that while Mrs. Turner did go to Lewiston from Toronto on the Chippewa, leaving Toronto at 7.30 on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 16, she did not go from Lewiston to Niagara Falls and return on the New York Central train, which runs along the cliff from which the box containing the body of the child was thrown, but on the Gorge Route, which runs along the rocks at the river's edge, and, therefore, could not possibly have thrown it as it was seen to fall.

Her story to her counsel is that she gave the child to the Mrs. Maud Wagner of Cleveland, who had written her from that city regarding the adoption of the child. She says she gave the child to Mrs. Wagner in Toronto on Wednesday and agreed to meet her at Niagara Falls, N.Y., on the Thursday, to give her some clothes for the baby. She says she did so meet Mrs. Wagner there, going over on the Chippewa, and did carry a box like the one containing the body of the child, but says that it contained only lunch and baby's clothing, and that she did not have it with her on the way across the lake, but checked it in the check-room of the boat and was reading a book on the way over and had not a parcel with her until she took it out on arriving at the dock at Lewiston.

She says she went to the Falls on the Gorge Route and returned that way in the evening. Then she says she met Mrs. Wagner at the New York Central at the Falls depot, and that Mrs. Wagner then had the Authers' child with her alive and well, and that she gave her the clothes in the box.

Mrs. Turner has also informed her counsel that she did not at any time advertise in the papers for the adoption of children, and that the advertisements spoken of by the police must have been inserted by others. She says that she never had any other babies save the Authers' and King children, and that the child taken from the Wood street house was the King child, despite the fact that the police are informed that it was not.

She declares that the statement of Mr. and Mrs. Goldie, who keep the house at 30 Wood street, that they heard the cries of a strangling child coming from her room on the Tuesday night are false and foolish, and that she does not even remember them coming to her door then or on any other occasion to enquire about that or any other noise.

Mrs. Turner has not explained either where she took the child from the hospital, nor where she kept it from the Saturday till Wednesday, when she says she gave it to Mrs. Wagner.

Coroner Charges Murder.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 24.—Coroner Walter A. Scott, who has been conducting the investigation following the finding of the body of an infant girl thrown from a train on the Lewiston branch of the New York Central, on Thursday last, and in connection with which Mrs. Maud Turner (alias Miller) is now under arrest in Toronto, last evening rendered a verdict, which formally charges Mrs. Turner with the crime of murder in the first degree.

San Francisco Police Interested.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 24.—That Maud Turner, alias Miller, alias Gmelin, incarcerated for child murder at Toronto, may be the same woman who operated in San Francisco and in Reno, Nev., in 1905, is the belief of the authorities here. Dr. Marion Thrasher of this city, asserts that he made a medical examination of a child for a woman named Zemelin, who wished to adopt it. Later the woman removed to Reno, where the child was taken from her by the authorities. This woman was also accused of murdering another infant.

Suicide at Grave.

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—Yesterday afternoon a New York City man named E Hamilton, committed suicide at Beachwood cemetery here by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. His wife died here a year ago, and he suicided at or near her grave.

It is stated that Hamilton a year ago married a Miss King, of Ottawa, that she died in about a month, and that despondency at her death led to his deed of yesterday.

Caught In Elevator.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Angelo Ottagalli, an Italian, was so badly injured at Port Credit, late Wednesday night that he died in St. Michael's Hospital at 4.30 yesterday afternoon. He did not regain consciousness. He was caught in the elevator mechanism at the Port Credit brick works. His skull was fractured, both legs and right arm broken.

GUELPH'S SUCCESS

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario Turns on Valve Which Starts the Flow of New Spring Water — City Also Owns Its Street Railway and Its Electric Lights and Gas Plants.

Guelph, Sept. 24.—The Royal City yesterday celebrated the formal opening of its new waterworks system by his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Col. J. M. Gibson. Apart from the local significance attached to such an event, the ceremony in the afternoon and the banquet in the evening bore splendid testimony to the results which can be achieved by municipal ownership, under the management of a competent commission, shorn of the deleterious influences of local and party politics.

Guelph first drew upon its shoulders the mantle of municipal ownership over twenty years ago, when the Guelph Junction Railway was constructed to connect the city with the C.P.R. The line is only 15 miles long, but Sir William Van Horne once said that it was the most profitable piece of municipal ownership in the world. From that time until the present the city has kept faith with the principle of municipal ownership, never to find that confidence misplaced.

To-day Guelph citizens are the only citizens in Canada who can say of their street railway, gas, electric light and waterworks systems, "These belong to us."

Hon. Mr. Gibson, attended by Capt. Douglas Young, A.D.C., arrived from Toronto about 3 o'clock. The party was met by the members of the city council and board of trade, and was driven at once to the new main pumping station, where his honor turned the large valve letting the supply of pure spring water into the reservoir, and declared the waterwords officially open.

In welcoming his honor, Ald. J. A. McCrea, chairman of the reception committee, referred to the events antecedent to the installation of the new system. In 1907 the system was placed under the control of a commission. When these gentlemen found the water impure and asked the citizens for funds to provide a new supply, the confidence of the ratepayers as to municipal ownership, and in the commissioners, at once showed itself, and $125,000 was immediately available.

His honor, after turning the valve, admitted that it was fifty years since he had performed a similar task. It was in 1869 that he was one of the head boys of the Central School in Hamilton who were selected to open the waterworks there.

He congratulated the city on securing a full supply of pure spring water, so well protected from the source to the reservoir as to entirely free from contamination. He was all the more gratified when he learned that it had been efficiently and economically brought about.

The banquet last evening took the form of a municipal reunion. Representatives from all municipalities in western Ontario were present, as well as from financial papers in the States.

Responding to the toast of "Our Guest," the Lieutenant-Governor referred to municipal ownership and control. He thought Guelph occupied an advanced position in regard to the operation of public utilities generally. That opened a large question. Some utilities were properly placed under public control. It was not every municipality that could be trusted to elect or appoint men capable of managing such works. It was always advisable for a municipality to own its utilities. In many cases it was an advantage to operate these utilities directly or by commission. Guelph in this respect had been fortunate in its representatives.

Other speakers were Mayor R. P. Slater of Niagara Falls, Mayor Weidenhammer of Waterloo, Jas. Oborne, general superintendent C.P.R.; E. A. James, a Canadian engineer, and Jos. P. Downey, M.P.P., South Wellington.

Threatened to Kill Mother.

Kingston, Sept. 24.—"I'm guilty," said Francis Stinson, aged 16, when arraigned on a charge of striking his mother and threatening to kill her with an axe. He was remanded until Saturday, his mother begging the police not to let him out, as she was afraid of him.

If your buildings show the need of paint, have them painted now--this Fall. FIRST GAME IN LEAGUE AT RIVERSIDE TO-MORROW

The local Rugby season will commence to-morrow, when the Rough Riders and Collegiate teams will play the first game in the Junior City League. The game will be played at Riverside Park and should be an interesting exhibition inasmuch as the teams are old rivals, and last year had several very hard-fought contests. The teams are practically the same as last year and as none of the rivalry is lacking the contest will be fought out from the first toot of the referee's whistle. Both teams will be strong and will be in good shape, as they have been holding afternoon practices. The game will be called at 2.30 o'clock sharp.

Fred Lynch Home On A Visit Talks Of Lacrosse In West

Mr. Fred Lynch, of New Westminster, is home on a visit to his mother, corner of Aylmer and London streets, and is incidentally meeting many of his Peterborough friends.

Fred is President of the New Westminster Lacrosse Club which held the Minto Cup last year and captured it again this summer after a long season of hard work. The team not only trimmed its Western opponents but also destroyed the hopes of the Tecumsehs of Toronto who were looked upon as capable of bringing the silverware back east. Fred is also Secretary of the Western Canada Lacrosse League and is one of the most important lacrosse supporters along the Pacific coast and in fact in the entire Dominion. He is engaged in the manufacture of cigars and has a factory in New Westminster with a branch at Revelstoke. Mr. Lynch is remembered as one of the stalwarts on what was probably as classy a lacrosse team as this old burg ever boasted of.

He played coverpoint with Dot Brown at point and Dinny Dobbin in goal. This inner defence protecting the flags was ideal and with the team built up on the same lines out through the field to the scoring division the fans idolized them almost as they won time and again. "Them were the days," the fans may well exclaim. "I haven't seen a lacrosse game worth a holler since, well, it's more than a decade ago."

Fred will likely remain in the city a few days and this evening will appear with his friend Bill Grady on Roller skates at the Auditorium.

Talking of lacrosse in the West, the President of the Cup Holders fails to see anything looming up in the east good enough to recapture the Minto Mug, and he feels that it will nestle in the New Westminster Club Rooms for a longer period than the present season.

The O. R. F. U. "Big Four" May Amalgamate This Evening

The Toronto Globe says: Representatives of the Interprovincial Rugby Union and of the O.R.F.U. will hold a peace conference at the King Edward Hotel to-night. The meeting is being called at the instance of the "Big Four" League, which realizes that the control of intermediate and junior football in this Province has passed out of its hands and into those of the Ontario Union. With the exception of Dundas, Hamilton II. and Argonaut II. in the intermediate ranks and a couple of scattered junior teams nothing is left in the big organization apart from the four senior clubs. This is a serious state of affairs for the Interprovincial to be facing. The Interprovincial's policy has been to foster the intermediate and junior teams. It desires likewise to obtain entire control of Rugby football in Ontario and Quebec. With the O.R.F.U. in the pitiable shape in which it was last season the Interprovincial's plans for the absorption of the Ontario Union and the O.R.F.U appeared easy of execution. But conditions changed. The O.R.F.U. instituted housecleaning proceedings, and elected a new and a strong Executive at its last annual meeting. This put a new complexion on affairs. Assured of a good season and a fair deal, the junior teams jumped the Interprovincial practically in a body, with Parkdale, last year's junior champions, climbing two series higher and entering the senior series, along with T.A.A.C. and Peterborough, which two clubs composed the senior district in 1908. Just here the Interprovincial Union awoke to the fact that they were up against opposition which could not be overlooked. But the main issue, and one which was the biggest factor in the rebuilding of the old union, was entirely ignored by the "Big Four." And it was this: that the sign hung out by the Interprovincial, that "no interlopers need apply" for admission to the senior series was like the proverbial red rag to the bull to the O.R.F.U. Now the big organization has suggested an amalgamation on lines which would concede much to the Ontario Union, the principal concession, one demanded by the O.R.F.U., the breaking up of the "close corporation" in the senior series at the end of the three-year agreement, which terminates after the coming season. They ask for the amalgamation for the good of the game in Canada, and, though it is rather late for them to effect an absorption this year, the O.R.F.U. has promised to met them half way. The Interprovincial's plan is to have Peterborough and Parkdale play in the intermediate series along with Argos II., Dundas and Tigers II., and the junior clubs come in pretty much as they are now grouped

RUGBY

There will be a full practice of the members of the Peterborough Rugby Club to-morrow afternoon at Riverside Park immediately after the Junior City League game. Every player is expected to get out in uniform, as the team must get in shape as soon as possible.

INDOOR MEET FOR PORT HOPE Y.M.C.A.

Several Men Who Will Probably Enter Examiner Road Race Will Try Out.

Physical Director Galley, of the Y.M.C.A., is busy making arrangements for a huge indoor meet on October 22nd, three days before Thanksgiving. The merchants are requested to contribute prizes for the affair. The meet will be held in the rink on Queen street.

It will be remembered that last fall, the Y.M.C.A. held an indoor meet of extreme interest whereat Bobby Kerr, of Hamilton, then 220 yards metre champion of the world (amateur) gave an exhibition of 50 yards and 220 yards dash. This year, Walter Lukeman, the 9 4-5 second man, of Montreal, Sebert, the Toronto wonder, and Archibald the champion pole vaulter are possibilities for the Port Hope meet. Archibald is a most graceful performer and can negotiate nearly 12 feet in a vault. This act would prove a great card for the local athletic congregation.

There will be the usual sprints, dashes, runs, and jumps with a walking race.

As W. Jewel, J. Ham and others may go to Peterborough to take in the Examiner Road Race on Thanksgiving Day and will appear here three days before that big race their form will prove an added attraction.—Porot Hope Times.

MANY HORSES SCRATCHED.

Track Wet and Crowd Small at the Woodbine.

Woodbine, Sept. 24.—The attendance yesterday was very light on account of the rainy weather. The scratches were numerous following the changed weather conditions. The track was very sloppy, the water lying on top in little lakes and the mud flew so much when the horses were in action, that the riders presented a sorry sight after each race.

COLD ON THE LUNGS
This letter gives some idea of the confidence placed in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine by people who know by experience of its exceptional merit. Mrs. E. D. Turner, Broadview, N.W.T., writes:—"We have seven children and have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for them all when troubled with colds on the lungs. We buy four bottles at a time and always keep it in the house, believing there is nothing so good for coughs and colds."

Grain ... Calgary.

Calgary, Sept. 24.—The grain exchange will open an office and be in business next week. Officials say that the figures of C.P.R. Vice-President Whyte show that the grain rates per bushel to Liverpool via Vancouver are dearer than via Fort William, are misleading because based in the figures of the Blue Funnel line only, and that quotations of from $25.85 to 29.86 cents are available.

"IT SEEMED LIKE THROWING MONEY AWAY

Until I Tried Gin Pills."

Mr. P. Fitzgerald was completely disheartened. He had suffered so long with his Kidneys, and spent so much money on doctors without relief, that he had made up his mind he could not be cured.

Then, he chanced to read about the wonderful cures by Gin Pills, the great Kidney Remedy, and sent for a sample. The pills did him so much good that he immediately bought two full size boxes. And these two boxes of Gin Pills made him feel like another man.

But let Mr. Fitzgerald tell his own story of a really remarkable cure.

Provincial Asylum, Orillia
June 18th.

I have much pleasure in stating that the sample, which you sent me, led me to buy two boxes of Gin Pills from a local druggist. They are the best remedy for Uric Acid Trouble that I have ever tried. I must say that before using Gin Pills, I had undergone a long and expensive course of treatment by eminent specialists of Chicago. They did me no good—it seemed like throwing money away.

I still keep a box of Gin Pills on hand and take one occasionally. I am pleased to recommend them and bear testimony to their efficacy.

P. FITZGERALD.

After reading such a letter as this, you simply can't doubt the value of Gin Pills in cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble. If you are a sufferer, write the National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. Toronto, for a free sample of Gin Pills and try them at our expense. After you have seen for yourself just what Gin Pills will do, buy the full size box at your dealer's, and remember that Gin Pills are sold with a positive guarantee of a cure or money refunded. 17

Card of Thanks.

F. C. Cubitt, Book seller and stationer, takes this opportunity of thanking the many pupils of the Collegiate who favoured him with their orders for school books and regrets exceedingly that he has been unable to supply the various books asked for the last few days, owing to not having been given the slightest intimation that they were to be used. In fact he was only given information regarding one subject for the current term. He suggests that pupils ask the teachers where they had better purchase their books.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Mr. S. T. Medd was in Toronto yesterday.

Miss Baye Hurley is visiting her sister in Lindsay.

Miss Alice Neal has gone to visit friends in Lindsay.

Mrs. Stanger and Mrs. Miller have returned home from Montreal.

Miss Edith Talbot has returned home after a visit in Rochester.

Mr. Martin McAuliffe, of Atcheson, Kansas, has returned home after an enjoyable visit with friends here.

R. M. Roy leaves to-day for a week in New York, visiting studios, art galleries, and frame factories. After all the latest ideas.

Miss Agnes Mercier, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. Mercier, Burnham street, East City, returned to Rochester, N.Y., to-day.

Mrs. Arthur S. Laing, of Montreal, is in the city, having been called home on account of the illness of her mother, Mrs. John Watt, Rubidge street.

A very pleasant afternoon was spent on Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. T. Chatten, 368 Smith street, when a few friends came into a quilting for the purpose of spending an afternoon with Mrs. Alice Coolidge.

Mr. Wm. Bunton has returned safe and sound from his visit to the annual convention of the United States Passenger Agents' Association, held in Toledo, U.S. Mr. Bunton went as chosen representative of the Canadian Ticket Agents Association and it goes without saying that that body was well represented, especially if the representation, as it doubtless did, carried with it the capability and courtesy which distinguish the management of the City Ticket Agency.

"GAY MUSICIAN'S" ACT OF COURTESY

Sang "God Save the King" at the Conclusion of the Performance the Other Night.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We think that all the people that were at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night last to witness the performance of "The Gay Musician," were surprised and delighted at the act of courtesy of the entire company standing and singing "God Save the King," at the close of the performance and the vast audience joining in. As this Company is composed entirely of American citizens the kind act should be deeply appreciated. Another act of courtesy was having the good old Union Jack on the boat that went across the stage and the audience were not slow in responding. We would like to see all companies that play in the Grand Opera House follow the example of the Gay Musician Co. and the audience join in. We would like to call the attention of those people who start to rush out before the performance is over, to the fact that it is very annoying to those who wish to see the finish of the play.

Hoping that the general public will take these words kindly, and, thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, we remain,

Yours truly,
J. J. TURNER & SONS.
Peterborough, Sept. 23, 1909.

CHOIR PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED

A pleasant time was spent by the choir at the close of the regular practice last night in St. Andrew's lecture room. Mrs. C. S. McClelland, the organist entertained the members to supper in the Guild Room after, when a number of well known songs and choruses were given and a very happy time spent.

Miss Olive Howell, who assisted in the children's day services last Sunday so ably has accepted the invitation to permanently assist the choir and her duties will begin at once. Miss Howell's vocal abilities are well known to Peterborough people, and she will prove a valuable addition to St. Andrew's choir.

Miss Winslow of Toronto, whose singing in St. Andrew's has been appreciated during her two week's visit will sing next Sunday morning.

FALL SKIN DISEASES

An Article for Mothers.

When the children break out with eruptions and skin diseases, so common in the fall, don't run to useless and nauseating medicines. Zam-Buk is what is needed. It is a skin food as well as a healing balm.

Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says: "My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so fearful that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off.

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good.

"As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk effected a cure."

Mrs. Holmes, of 30, Guise Street, Hamilton, is quite as eloquent in her praises. She says: "Zam-Buk cured my boy of boils and eruptions when he was so bad that he had been unable to mix with other children. Prior to the boils breaking out he had had a bad eruption, but Zam-Buk cleared this away, too, and made his skin clear and smooth. It is a wonderful preparation, and mothers throughout the land should always keep it handy.

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sore, blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

How Grandpa Started New Family And Is Daddy Again At Age Of 87

John Henry Thiry Never Felt so Happy as He Does in His Strenuous Second Childhood—One Son is Old Enough to be His Brother's Grandfather—Four Babies Since His 87th Year.

By W. G. Shepherd

"At eventide it shall be light."—The Bible.

Long Island City, N.Y., Sept. 25.—John Henry Thiry is 87 years old, but on September 4 he became the father of a bouncing baby boy.

He wasn't as much surprised as were scientists, who have since been pestering him for facts regarding his manner of living. Two years ago, when he was 85 years old, he had become the father of a fine little baby girl. And two years before that he had become the father of a baby boy. And two years before that—

But this is telling the story backward.

Here is the story, dates and all, of the seeming miracle whereby an old man was living out the end of his life alone, his wife dead, his two sons grown and fathers themselves; the story of how this old grandfather began a new family of his own that is youonger and livlier and even perhaps healthier than the families of his sons. It's a story of one bright evening of life.

No wonder scientists in France, Austria and Germany, as well as in the United States, are asking Thiry his secret.

In his fine old home in Long Island, with its vineyards and walled garden hebind it, sitting in his great library, where once he thought he must spend his declining years alone, he'll tell you freely about the wonder.

But first you must have some of the wine he him self made from his own grapes, and some Belgian cakes. That is the custom of his native land.

"I married in Belgium when I was 26 years old. I was born in 1822, and I think I shall surely liv euntil 1922. Don't you think so?" he asks, significantly.

"My boys, Ralph and Joseph, were born in Belgium in 1853 and 1854. In 1859 my wife and I brought the children to America, and I opened a book store. I did pretty well financially.

"The boys grew and we bought this old homestead. That was back in 1883. Pretty soon the boys were married. They went off to start homes of their own.

"That left mother and I home alone. I retired from business and took care of my grapes and wife, and we used to have some pleasant times together, in spite of missing the boys.

"But in 1883 she died. She was 63 years old then, and when she died I began to feel old. I saw that if I didn't find a new interest in life I would fade out of existence

"That was how I instituted the system of school savings banks, which is now in operation in all parts of the world. I was summoned to tell educators of my system, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that the biggest part of my life work was done after I was 60 years of age.

"At the Paris Exposition I was granted special honours by educators for my savings system."

Mrs. Thiry talks interestingly, too. She is in the thirties and her name was Margaret O'Connor. She was born in Ireland.

"There was a little romance about it," she says. "But my husband thinks we ought to keep that to ourselves.

"We met at the home of a banker in New York, one evening in 1898.

"We were married within the year. My husband was 75 years old then.

"The next year, on March 17, a baby was born to us. We named him John Henry, after my husband. This baby died the next year. We then adopted a foundling who was born on the same day that John Henry was born. We didn't name him John Henry, though, because I thought it might be bad luck. We love him as if he were our own child.

Then, on June 14, 1901, Henrietta was born. One December 11, 1903, a boy was born to us. We wanted to name him John Henry but we were again prevented from doing this by my fears. So we called him Francis.

"Then, on April 28, 1905, another baby boy was born. This time my husband had his way and named the baby John Henry, after himself.

"This is the strongest baby of them all, and so we hope that my husband's name will go down to our children.

"Little John Henry is uncle to a man 30 years old, son of Ralph Thiry."

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle

"Is that not everything?" cried Chandos impatiently. "Can you not see, oh foolish Master Wintersole, that the French suspect we are about to make some attempt and that they have sent Peter the Red Ferret, as they have sent him many times before, to get tidings of whither we are bound? Now that he knows that the stores are for Calais, then the French near Calais will take his warning, and so the King's whole plan come to nothing."

"Then he will fly by water. We can stop him yet. He has not an hour's start."

"It may be that a boat awaits him at Rye or Hythe; but it is more like that he has all ready to depart from here. Ah, see yonder! I'll warrant that the Red Ferret is on board!"

Chandos had halted in front of his inn, and now he pointed down to the outer harbor, which lay two miles off across the green plain. It was connected by a long winding canal with the inner dock at the base of the hill, upon which the town was built. Between the two horns formed by the short curving piers a small schooner was running out to sea, dipping and rising before a sharp southerly breeze.

"It is no Winchelsea boat," said the Mayor. "She is longer and broader in the beam than ours."

"Horses! bring horses!" cried Chandos. "Come, Nigel, let us go further into the matter."

A busy crowd of varlets, archers, and men-at-arms swarmed round the gateway of the "Sign of the Broom Pod," singing, shouting, and jostling in rough good-fellowship. The sight of the tall thin figure of Chandos brought order amongst them, and a few minutes later the horses were ready and saddled. A breakneck ride down a steep declivity, and then a gallop of two miles over the sedgy plain carried them to the outer harbor. A dozen vessels were lying there, ready to start for Bordeaux or Rochelle, and the quay was thick with sailors, laborers and townsmen and heaped with wine-barrels and wool-packs.

"Who is warden here?" asked Chandos, springing from his horse.

"Badding! Where is Cock Badding? Badding is warden!" shouted the crowd.

A moment later a short swarthy man, bull-necked and deep-chested, pushed through the people. He was clad in rough russet wool with a scarlet cloth tied round his black curly head. His sleeves were rolled up to his shoulders, and his brown arms, all stained with grease and tar, were like two thick gnarled branches from an oaken stump. His savage brown face was fierce and frowning, and was split from chin to temple with the long white wale of an ill-healed wound.

"How now, gentles, will you never wait your turn?" he rumbled in a deep angry voice. "Can you not see that we are warping the Rose of Guienne into midstream for the ebb-tide? Is this a time to break in upon us? Your goods will go aboard in due season, I promise you; so ride back into the town and find such pleasure as you may, while I and my mates do our work without let or hindrance."

"It is the gentle Chandos!" cried some one in the crowd. "It is the good Sir John."

The rough harbor-master changed his gruffness to smiles in an instant. "Nay, Sir John, what would you? I pray you to hold me excused if I was short of speech, but we port-wardens are sore plagued with foolish young lordlings, who get betwixt us and our work and blame us because we do not turn an ebb-tide into a flood, or a south wind into a north. I pray you to tell me how I can serve you."

"That boat!" said Chandos, pointing to the already distant sail rising and falling on the waves. "What is it?"

Cock Badding shaded his keen eyes with his strong brown hand. "She has but just gone out," said he. "She is La Pucelle, a small wine-sloop from Gascony, home-bound and laden with barrel-staves."

"I pray you did any man join her at the very last?"

"Nay, I know not. I saw no one."

"Yes I know," cried a seaman in the crowd. "I was standing at the wharf-side and was nigh knocked into the water by a little red-headed fellow, who breathed as though he had run from the town. Ere I had time to give him a cuff he had jumped aboard, the ropes were cast off, and her nose was seaward."

In a few words Chandos made all clear to Badding, the crowd pressing eagerly round.

"Aye, aye!" cried a seaman, "the good Sir John is right. See how she points. It is Picardy and not Gascony that she will fetch this journey in spite of her wine-staves."

"Then we must lay her aboard!" cried Cock Badding. "Come, lads, here is my own Marie Rose ready to cast off. Who's for a trip with a fight at the end of it?"

There was a rush for the boat; but the stout little seaman picked his men. "Go back, Jerry! Your heart is good, but you are overfat for the work. You, Luke, and you, Thomas, and the two Deedes, and William of Sandgate. You will work the boat. And now we need a few men of their hands. Do you come, little sir?"

"I pray you, my dear lord, to let me go!" cried Nigel.

"Yes, Nigel, you can go, and I will bring your gear over to Calais this night."

"I will join you there, fair sir, and with the help of Saint Paul I will bring this Red Ferret with me."

"Aboard, aboard! Time passes!" cried Badding impatiently, while already his seamen were hauling on the line and raising the mainsail. "Now then, sirrah! who are you?"

It was Aylward, who had followed Nigel and was pushing his way aboard.

"Where my master goes I go also," cried Aylward, "so stand clear, master-shipman, or you may come by a hurt."

"By Saint Leonard! archer," said Cock Badding, "had I more time I would give you a lesson ere I leave land. Stand back and give place to others!"

"Nay, stand back and give place to me!" cried Aylward, and seizing Badding round the waist he slung him into the dock.

There was a cry of anger from the crowd, for Badding was the hero of all the Cinque Ports and had never yet met his match in manhood. The epitaph still lingers in which it was said that he "could never rest until he had foughten his fill." When, therefore, swimming like a duck, he reached a rope and pulled himself hand over hand up to the quay, all stood aghast to see what fell fate would befall this bold stranger. But Badding laughed loudly, dashing the salt water from his eyes and hair.

"You have fairly won your place, archer," said he. "You are the very man for our work. Where is Black Simon of Norwich?"

A tall dark young man with a long, stern, lean face came forward. "I am with you, Cock," said he, "and I thank you for my place."

"You can come, Hugh Baddlesmere, and you, Hal Masters, and you, Dicon of Rye. That is enough. Now off, in God's name, or it will be night ere we can come up with them!"

Already the head-sails and the mainsail had been raised, while a hundred willing hands poled her off from the wharf. Now the wind caught her; heeling over, and quivering with eagerness like an unleashed hound she flew through the opening and out into the Channel. She was a famous little schooner, the Marie Rose of Winchelsea, and under her daring owner Cock Badding, half trader and half pirate, had brought back into port many a rich cargo taken in mid-Channel, and paid for in blood rather than money. Small as she was, her great speed and the fierce character of her master had made her a name of terror along the French coast, and many a bulky Eastlander or Fleming as he passed the narrow seas had scanned the distant Kentish shore, fearing lest that ill-omened purple sail with a gold Christopher upon it should shoot out suddenly from the dim gray cliffs. Now she was clear of the land, with the wind on her larboard quarter, every inch of canvas set, and her high sharp bows smothered in foam, as she dug through the waves.

Cock Badding trod the deck with head erect and jaunty bearing, glancing up at the swelling sails and then ahead at the little tilted white triangle, which stood out clear and hard against the bright blue sky. Behind was the lowland of the Camber marshes, with the bluffs of Rye and Winchelsea, and the line of cliffs behind them. On the larboard bow rose the great white walls of Folkestone and of Dover, and far on the distant skyline the gray shimmer of those French cliffs for which the fugitives were making.

"By Saint Paul!" cried Nigel, looking with eager eyes over the tossing waters, "it seems to me, Master Badding, that already we draw in upon them."

The master measured the distance with his keen steady gaze, and then looked up at the sinking sun. "We have still four hours of daylight," said he; "but if we do not lay her aboard ere darkness falls she will save herself, for the nights are as black as a wolf's mouth, and if she alter her course I know not how we may follow her."

"Unless, indeed, you might guess to which port she was bound and reach it before her."

"Well thought of, little master!" cried Badding. "If the news be for the French outside Calais, then Ambleteuse would be nearest to Saint Omer. But my sweeting sails three paces to that lubber's two, and if the wind holds we shall have time and to spare. How now, archer? You do not seem so eager as when you made your way aboard this boat by slinging me into the sea."

Aylward sat on the upturned keel of a skiff which lay upon the deck. He groaned sadly and held his green face between his two hands. "I would gladly sling you into the sea once more, master-shipman," said he, "if by so doing I could get off this most accursed vessel of thine. Or if you would wish to have your turn, then I would thank you if you would lend me a hand over the side, for indeed I am but a useless weight upon your deck. Little did I think that Samkin Aylward could be turned into a weakling by an hour of salt water. Alas the day that ever my foot wandered from the good red heather of Crooksbury!"

Cock Badding laughed loud and long. "Nay, take it not to heart, archer," he cried; "for better men than you or I have groaned upon this deck. The Prince himself with ten of his chosen knights crossed with me once, and eleven sadder faces I never saw. Yet within a month they had shown at Crecy that they were no weaklings, as you will do also, I dare swear, when the time comes. Keep that thick head of thine down upon the planks, and all will be well anon. But we raise her, we raise her with every blast of the wind!"

It was indeed evident, even to the inexperienced eyes of Nigel, that the Marie Rose was closing in swiftly upon the stranger. She was a heavy, bluff-bowed, broad-sterned vessel which labored clumsily through the seas. The swift, fierce little Winchelsea boat swooping and hissing through the waters behind her was like some keen hawk whizzing down wind at the back of a flapping heavy-bodied duck. Half an hour before La Pucelle had been a distant patch of canvas. Now they could see the black hull, and soon the cut of her sails and the lines of her bulwarks. There were at least a dozen men upon her deck, and the twinkle of weapons from amongst them showed that they were preparing to resist. Cock Badding began to muster his own forces.

He had a crew of seven rough, hardy mariners, who had been at his back in many a skirmish. They were armed with short swords, but Cock Badding carried a weapon peculiar to himself, a twenty-pound blacksmith's hammer, the memory of which, as "Badding's cracker," still lingers in the Cinque Ports. Then there were the eager Nigel, the melancholy Aylward, Black Simon who was a tried swordsman, and three archers, Baddlesmere, Masters and Dicon of Rye, all veterans of the French War. The numbers in the two vessels might be about equal; but Badding as he glanced at the bold harsh faces which looked to him for orders had little fear for the result.

Glancing round, however, he saw something which was more dangerous to his plans than the resistance of the enemy. The wind, which had become more fitful and feebler, now fell suddenly away, until the sails hung limp and straight above them. A belt of calm lay along the horizon, and the waves around had smoothed down into a long oily swell on which the two little vessels rose and fell. The great boom of the Marie Rose rattled and jarred with every lurch, and the high thin prow pointed skyward one instant and seaward the next in a way that drew fresh groans from the unhappy Aylward. In vain Cock Badding pulled on his sheets and tried hard to husband every little wandering gust which ruffled for an instant the sleek rollers. The French master was as adriot a sailor, and his boom swung round also as each breath of wind came up from astern.

At last even these fitful puffs died finally away, and a cloudless sky overhung a glassy sea. The sun was almost upon the horizon behind Dungeness Point, and the whole western heaven was bright with the glory of the sunset, which blended sea and sky in one blaze of ruddy light. Like rollers of molten gold, the long swell heaved up Channel from the great ocean beyond. In the midst of the immense beauty and peace of nature the two little dark specks with the white sail and the purple rose and fell, so small upon the vast shining bosom of the waters, and yet so charged with all the unrest and the passion of life.

The experienced eye of the seaman told him that it was hopeless to expect a breeze before nightfall. He looked across at the Frenchman, which lay less than a quarter of a mile ahead, and shook his gnarled fist at the line of heads which could be seen looking back over her stern. One of them waved a white kerchief in derision, and Cock Badding swore a bitter oath at the sight.

"By Saint Leonard of Winchelsea," he cried, "I will rub my side up against her yet! Out with the skiff, lads, and two of you to the oars. Make fast the line to the mast, Will. Do you go in the boat, Hugh, and I'll make the second. Now if we bend our backs to it we may have them yet ere night cover them."

The little skiff was swiftly lowered over the side and the slack end of the cable fastened to the after thwart. Cock Badding and his comrades pulled as if they would snap their oars, and the little vessel began slowly to lurch forward over the rollers. But the next moment a larger skiff had splashed over the side of the Frenchman, and no less than four seamen were hard at work under her bows. If the Marie Rose advanced a yard the Frenchman was going two. Again Cock Badding raved and shook his fist. He clambered aboard, his face wet with sweat and dark with anger.

"Curse them! they have had the best of us!" he cried. "I can do no more. Sir John has lost his papers, for indeed now that night is at hand I can see no way in which we can gain them."

Nigel had leaned against the bulwark during these events, watching with keen attention the doings of the sailors, and praying alternately to Saint Paul, Saint George, and Saint Thomas for a slant of wind which would put them alongside their enemy. He was silent; but his hot heart was simmering within him. His spirit had risen even above the discomfort of the sea, and his mind was too absorbed in his mission to have a thought for that which had laid Aylward flat upon the deck. He had never doubted that Cock Badding in one way or another would accomplish his end, but when he heard his speech of despair he bounded off the bulwark and stood before the seaman with his face flushed and all his soul afire.

"By Saint Paul! master-shipman," he cried, "we should never hold up our heads in honor if we did not go further into the matter! Let us do some small deed this night upon the water, or let us never see land again, for indeed we could not wish fairer prospect of winning honorable advancement."

"With your leave, little master, you speak like a fool," said the gruff seaman. "You and all your kind are as children when once the blue water is beneath you. Can you not see that there is no wind, and that the Frenchman can warp her as swiftly as we? What then would you do?"

Nigel pointed to the boat which towed astern. "Let us venture forth in her," said he, "and let us take this ship or die worshipful in the attempt."

His bold and fiery words found their echo in the brave rough hearts around him. There was a deep-chested shout from both archers and seamen. Even Aylward sat up, with a wan smile upon his green face.

But Cock Badding shook his head. "I have never met the man who could lead where I would not follow," said he; "but by Saint Leonard! this is a mad business, and I should be a fool if I were to risk my men and my ship. Bethink you, little master, that the skiff can hold only five, though you load her to the water's edge. If there is a man yonder, there are fourteen, and you have to climb their side from the boat. What chance would you have? Your boat stove and you in the water—there is the end of it. No man of mine goes on such a fool's errand, and so I swear!"

"Then, Master Badding, I must crave the loan of your skiff, for by Saint Paul! the good Lord Chandos' papers are not to be so lightly lost. If no one else will come, then I will go alone."

The shipman smiled at the words, but the smile died away from his lips when Nigel, with features set like ivory and eyes as hard as steel, pulled on the rope so as to bring the skiff under the counter. It was very clear that he would do even as he said. At the same time Aylward raised his bulky form from the deck, leaned for a moment against the bulwarks, and then tottered aft to his master's side.

"Here is one that will go with you," said he, "or he would never dare show his face to the girls of Tilford again. Come, archers, let us leave these salt herrings in their pickle tub and try our luck out on the water."

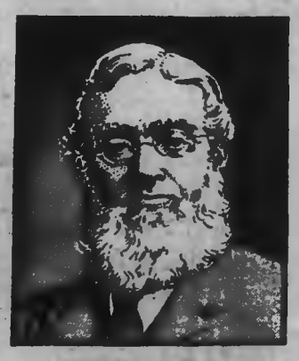
This Well Known Gentleman Strongly Recommends "Fruit-a-tives" to all Sufferers.



JAMES DINGWALL, ESQ.

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action."

Ask Her This Question

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine. Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. Letitia Blair, Canifton, Ontario.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Blair.

Laid Behind the Counter Until Relief Came.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING OF AN OWEN SOUND CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

MR. WM. KRANTH, Owen Sound, Ont., writes: "Having read some of the testimonials of cures effected by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I thought it advisable to say a word of praise for its merits.

"Some years ago I was much troubled with stomach trouble and cramps. I used to roll on the floor in agony, and on one occasion I went into a faint after suffering intensely for four hours. A short time after this, in driving to town, I was attacked again and had to lie down in my rig, seeking relief.

"When I reached the drug store I asked the druggist for a quick remedy and laid behind the counter until relief came. The remedy I received from the druggist was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Whenever, after that time, I felt cramps coming on, I found speedy relief in the above mentioned remedy, and I am now cured of this dreadful malady. The bottle is small, but its contents effect a marvelous cure. I can recommend it highly for the cure of cramps."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 65 years. It is not a new and untried remedy. Ask for it and insist on getting what you ask for. Refuse substitutes. They're dangerous.

VARICOCELE CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

PREPARING POULTRY FOR THE MARKET

In Farm and Dairy last week this article dealt with the time to fatten, fattening crates, feeds, market requirements and fasting. Other points relative to preparing poultry for market are dealt with in the following.

Never kill by decapitating. This is a disgusting and unsanitary method. The neck invariably crooks upwards and stops the flow of blood, causing the formation of clots, which produce coagulation. Furthermore, the exposed portion of the neck leads to early decomposition and spoiling of the flesh. The simplest and surest method of killing is by cutting through the roof of the mouth by means of a sharp knife. If the operation is correctly performed, death follows instantly, and all blood flows through the mouth from the body.

Hold the bird under the left arm, and with your thumb on the neck force open its mouth. Insert the knife with the right hand, first severing one artery, and then the other, and next pierce the brain, it being necessary to drive the knife through the roof of the mouth towards the top of the head. If the work is done properly, the bird will shiver and give a convulsive flutter—it is paralyzed for the instant, and dead.

PLUCKING.

All birds must be dry plucked. Scalding is not satisfactory because the appearance of the fowl is destroyed. To dry pluck is a simple and easy task, the only proviso being that all feathers must be removed before the carcass has cooled. Having the bird suspended, head downwards, at a convenient height its back towards the operator, grasp the wings with one hand and pull the long feathers with the other. To remove the wing feathers pull downward quickly. The stiff feathers at the shoulder joints are pulled upward. With the thumb and forefinger around each shank, remove the feathers from the thighs by bringing the hands towards the body. Roll the feathers from the back, using both hands, beginning at the tail and passing down by the wings and around to the breast. Turn the bird and perform the same operation on the other side. Strip the feathers from the neck, leaving a band two and a half inches wide near the head. A bunch of feathers should also be left to cover the leg joint, and the last two small flight feathers, as well as all the small feathers on the tip of the wings, should be left on. Pin feathers may be removed with a blunt edged knife.

PLUMPING OR SHAPING.

Shaping a bird means giving it a plump, attractive appearance, in other words, showing it compactly to best advantage. A shaping frame is made by nailing two six inch by seven-eighth inch planed boards together at right angles, forming a trough. The trough may be made six feet long and nailed into a frame. Have it inclined slightly backwards.

A bird should be shaped as soon as it is plucked. The wings are folded by turning the tips behind the shoulders, and the legs are placed alongside the breast. The bird is forced into the angle of the shaper, breast downward, then covered with paper, and a weight is placed on the back to hold it down. Care should be exercised to shape and cool the birds in as low a temperature as possible, about six to twelve hours being usually sufficient.

PACKING DRESSED FOWL.

Poultry must be packed neatly and carefully in clean boxes or barrels. Line the inside of the packing case with parchment paper—never use newspaper—and allow a good quantity to extend over the edges to be used as a top covering. In packing the first row of birds are laid with backs downward, and the second row are laid with breasts and heads extended across between the birds of the first row.

FATTENING DUCKS.

Keep ducks in small pens. Do not permit them to swim; feed them a good food in sloppy condition; have plenty of drinking water at hand, for a duck will take all of the food it can and then clean the passage to the crop by drinking freely, when it will again return to the food, and continue to eat until it can eat no more. Food must not be left before ducks continuously, but should be fed regularly. If these instructions are followed ducks will be in prime condition in 10 days or less.

FATTENING GEESE.

Geese will not stand confinement, and if placed in a limited run and not being permitted to swim, in fact, given practically the same conditions as ducks, they will show like results.

FATTENING TURKEYS.

The best way to keep turkeys from roaming is to give them a small, rich barrel several quick short shakes. You will have to be governed according to range, such as clover field, and to feed a rich food, all they will eat morning and night.

The instructions previously given with reference to the killing, plucking and shaping of chickens are equally applicable in the case of turkeys, ducks and geese.—From phamplet issued by the Poultry Yards of Canada, L'td., Pembroke, Ont.

PACKING APPLES IN BARRELS

From Farm and Dairy.

One of the most successful co-operative fruit growers' associations in Ontario is the one in Norfolk County with headquarters at Simcoe. A large measure of its success is due to the fact that the association is conducting an educational campaign among the growers as well as selling their fruit. The rules state that it is the duty of each member to prune and fertilise, and he must spray three times each season. All apples are to be packed in accordance with the grade adopted by the executive committee. Instructions in packing are given to the members. As they are of general interest Farm and Dairy herewith reprints them for the benefit of its readers:

"Drive all quarter hoops down firmly and nail with three nails in each upper quarter hoop. Then drive hoops well down on the end of the barrel with poorest head and nail with four nails. Then headline by using four nails in each headliner. Exercise care in headlining and drive nails slanting. If nails show through to outside of barrel don't clinch but take out and drive right so it does not show through. Now take out the other end of the barrel and clinch the quarter hoop nails. Use 1¼ inch wire nails. Next stencil your barrel. Now you are ready for packing.

"If using paper, place this in the end of the barrel. With great care pick out and stem your facers, not the largest but average size of grade you are packing. See that every apple is a perfect one with the very best color you have to choose from. You should not have any difference in size in your facers, but if you should have, place your smaller apples to the outside row and the larger ones to the centre. A good many of unexperienced packers do the opposite. Always place stems down, with the exception of long slopey varieties, as gilliflower and bellflower which lay red cheeks down. The sorting must be done carefully and reject all worms, scabs, bruises and unshapely apples both for No. 1's and No. 2's. Now, place your barrel on a plank and after each basket of apples is emptied, give the

Many of our best authorities contend that it is not advisable to pasture alfalfa. Mr. R. E. Birdsall, however, who has been growing alfalfa for a number of years, and that successfully, has sent Farm and Dairy the photo reproduced above, as proof that alfalfa may be pastured. Read what Mr. Birdsall says in the adjoining article, and send us your experience in this particular for the benefit of Farm and Dairy readers.

the size of the apples you are packing how full to fill the barrel before using the leveller. At all times level so it will take one row, blossom end up, on top and leave your apples about ¼ inch above staves. Care must be exercised in racking down very carefully. Nail and headline your barrel and same is ready for shipment.

"Size for Snows, Golden Russets and kindred sized varieties, 2¼ inches and over, of good color, for No. 1's, and 2¼ inches and over, showing some color, for No. 2's.

"Size for Baldwins and kindred sized varieties 2½ inches and over, of good color, for No. 1's, and 2¼ inches and over, showing some color, for No. 2's.

"Size for Spies, Greening, Kings, and kindred size varieties, 2¼ inches and over, of good color, for No. 1's, and 2⅛ inches and over, showing some color, for No. 2's.

"Don't pack any No. 2's in Talman Sweets or early fall varieties, such as Genetians, Colverts, St. Lawrence, Maiden's Blush, etc. Pack very few No. 2's in odd winter varieties. Let No. 2's consist chiefly of Kings, Snows Greenings, Spies, Baldwins and Russets.

"The number on every barrel is the grower's name and each grower will be paid for his fruit according to varieties and quality, and it is the duty of each grower to see that his apples are packed according to the above instructions."

A Great British Industry to Invade Canada

The Oxo & Lemco Company of London, Eng.

To Establish Themselves In This Country.

A new and striking example of British interest in Canada is the announcement that the historic Oxo and Lemco Company, whose head offices are in London, England, are to invade this country with their famous concentrated beef foods known as "OXO" and "LEMCO".

This great firm, the originators of concentrated beef foods, who have agencies and depots in all parts of the world, do things in a big way, and now that they have turned their attention to this country, they will not be satisfied until they have established a huge business here.

Already the firm has some of the most tremendous cattle farms on the face of the earth, their area running into millions of acres of nutritious pasturage.

The fact that this firm, long ago, adopted these unique and progressive measures to provide the richest, purest and most nourishing of beef foods will accentuate the importance of the step it is now taking to establish itself in Canada.

It seems almost like a fable to say that the extent of the Oxo and Lemco Company's grazing lands at the present time are so great that if stretched out into the width of a foot-ball field,

Would Girdle The Earth FIVE AND A HALF TIMES at the Equator.

The Oxo and Lemco farms are situated on the River Plate, which is considered the most healthful of any place on the Globe. Far beyond human vision stretch vast areas of fertile grazing lands upon which more than a quarter of a million of cattle feed; these cattle are being raised with the utmost cleanliness and care, for the use of humanity in condensed forms under the names of OXO and LEMCO.

Of a truth the River Plate district is a veritable paradise where many millions of cattle can draw sustenance from the plentiful verdure of its rich lowlands. Little wonder that cattle so raised impart to OXO and LEMCO the life-giving qualities so much commented upon, and endorsed by prominent physicians.

Practically half a century has been devoted, by the OXO firm, to developing and extending its farms in this district. In the year 1868 the Company had less than twenty nine thousand acres and twelve thousand head of cattle, but to-day its acreage runs into millions.

It is in this Paradise that every ounce of OXO is made—from cattle that have no superiors as to breeding and absolute healthfulness in any land, hence it is little to be wondered at if OXO is rapidly displacing all other brands of fluid beefs.

OXO Is Good Every Way

OXO has a wonderful effect on the vital energies—the very springs of life. Without putting any strain on the digestion OXO gives real nourishment to the system. OXO repairs the bodily waste and stimulates the mental faculties. And for that reason it is a most valuable daily beverage.

OXO Is Good For Everybody.

A cup of OXO and a biscuit about 11 o'clock in the morning will give you energy till lunch time. Between meals it is invaluable as a sustaining food. Children love OXO. It is good for them at any time, day or night. It makes them healthy and strong. It builds up their little bodies and helps nature to make blood, bone and muscle. For delicate children and invalids there is nothing in the world so rapidly nourishing as OXO and hot milk. As a night-cap for yourself there is nothing to equal OXO—take it just before bed-time.

PACKING APPLES IN BOXES

From Farm and Dairy.

About 18 years ago, a few apple growers at Burlington began packing No. 1 apples in boxes for export. The box in use at that time was 10x11x22 inches, inside measurement. The first shipment was Baldwins, and sold in Liverpool for 9 shillings per box, no deduction for slacks. After using this box a few years ago the size was reduced to 9x12x18 inside measurement, which held a fourth of a barrel. This we found to be the ideal box, the package being cheaper (9-inch end materially reducing the cost) more convenient to handle and showing a larger quantity of fruit when opened in proportion to the contents, and selling for practically the same price.

Since the passing of the Fruit Marks Act, we have used the standard box, our company of shippers increasing in numbers each year. For many years we used a cushion of excelsior with sheets of paper next the fruit at top and bottom of the box. We now use a sheet of corrugated paper with white facing for this purpose. Tops and bottoms should be cut three out of plump inch lumber to give plenty of spring. In pressing the boxes for nailing, the pressure should only be on the lid about two inches from each end.

Fancy fruit of thin skinned varieties, as Spys, Snows, etc., will pay for the additional cost of wrapping in paper. The British market, however, is not educated up to taking an unlimited quantity of apples in boxes, and will not pay any premium on No. 2 apples packed in this way. By continuous shipment of a given brand to one market and careful and uniform grading and packing, a profitable outlet for No. 1 apples may be opened up. This is a particularly suitable package for growers who ship their own fruit.

RAPE TREATMENT FOR SOW THISTLE

From Farm and Dairy.

Ed. Farm and Dairy,—The article "Sow Thistle Beyond Control," in Farm and Dairy, Sept 2, again illustrated very forcibly the need of co-operation in dealing with the Perennial Sow Thistle. Undoubtedly many of the seeds are brought down by the spring freshets as Mr. Smith mentions, but we think that some of them are also blown in from neighboring fields containing Sow Thistle which he has probably not noticed.

He says that he finds that his cattle will not eat it. We should advise him to try sheep and hogs. Sheep, we know are very fond of this weed and will keep it closely cropped. If it is possible, we should advise him to plow the land this fall and next spring give thorough cultivation until about the middle of June. Then give the land a thorough dressing of farm yard manure, using about 10 loads per acre. Next ridge it up slightly and sow pasture rape at the rate of one and a half pounds an acre. When the rape begins to grow, cultivate it frequently until it occupies all the land and makes further cultivation impossible.

Should he get a good catch of rape he will find at the end of the season, provided his cultivation has been thorough, that the Sow Thistle has entirely disappeared. He will, however, require to look after the plants in the fence corners also. These should be cut early enough in the season to prevent them from going to seed. We advise the rape treatment for this land as he mentions that it is rather low and damp. Rape thrives very luxuriantly on such land."—J. E. Howitt, M.S.A., O.A.C., Guelph.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catologue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance :—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

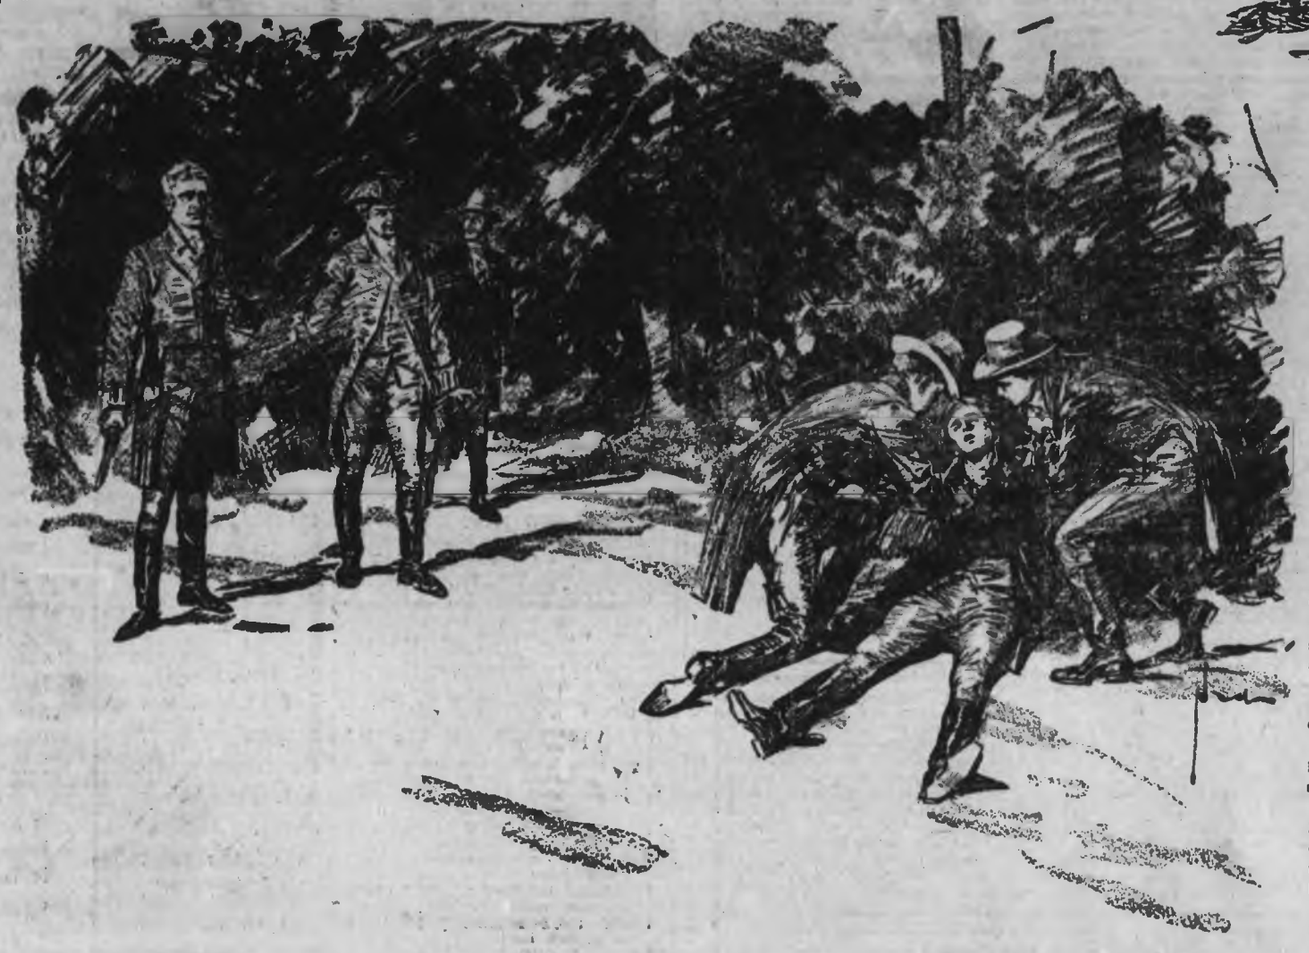
The DAY of the DUEL

FOR THE WOMAN'S NAME

(A TRUE STORY)



JACKSON REMAINED IN HIS PLACE, WATCHING HIS OPPONENT CLOSELY.

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

"MR. DICKINSON, sir, I would not willingly engage in hostile relations with you, for that I know you are being urged by my enemies rather than by personal opposition. But I am in honor bound to ask you if, in truth, you have said anything in any way reflecting upon Mrs. Jackson?"

The young lawyer leaned back languidly as he returned his questioner's direct glance. One who did not know Charles Dickinson might have thought to smile at him as some pretty butterfly of fashion. He was strikingly handsome, almost womanish in his beauty, and daintily clad. But all who came in contact with Charles Dickinson were exceedingly careful of their behavior. He was known far and wide as the best shot in Tennessee, if not in the country. There was a veiled insolence in his manner that did not go with his words when he made reply.

"General Jackson, never, to my knowledge, have I said anything concerning your wife which might cause offence. It is my fault, sir, that I am something reckless and loose mouthed when I have passed a convivial evening. At such times my remarks are beyond my control, and I cannot subsequently tell what I may have said."

"Well, sir," returned the elder man, sternly. "What then? What of the possibility you infer?"

"Without yielding my self-respect, General, I should be heartily sorry if I learned I had made an unmeaning slip. If I were shown to be guilty I should most respectfully apologize."

"I can ask no more, sir," said Jackson, bowing. "I wish you good-day."

"A very good-day to you, General," said the other, with curling lip.

Andrew Jackson, then nearly forty years old, was too expert a player in the game of politics not to know that behind the growing enmity of this expert marksman lay the designs of some closer and craftier adversary. It was not the first time that he had heard of Dickinson in connection with slurs upon the one person he would be sure to fight for. He had been member of Congress, United States Senator and Judge of the Supreme Court of Tennessee. But a short time before he had been elected major general of the State militia, an office scarcely below that of Governor, as a mark of favor with the people. He was a dominant figure.

Aggressive in every move, "refusing compromises and going for a clean victory or a clean defeat in every case," he had created antagonism rather than encountered it throughout his career. Rising now to a power that would make him invincible, he had reached the point where he must be checked, if he were to be checked at all. Certain elements among those who had reason to hate him were resolved that the only effective means of removing him from the field lay quite outside party trickery or intrigue. The only way was to uproot him bodily. Three men, all well known in Nashville, who were chiefly interested in bringing about that result met with some show of secrecy in the rear room of a tavern on the evening following the Dickinson incident.

"I thought you had your young man primed to it, Judge," was the opening remark of the session. The speaker was of military appearance, tall figure and sinister expression, to which a long scar on his right cheek contributed in no small part. The one at whom he flung his words in a tone of reproach was an obese, flabby man, with smooth face and soft, thick hands. He spread these hands out protestingly.

He Is Mystified.

"And so I had, Captain," he returned. "I have played upon him two months or more, according to our agreement. But he fails me at the pinch. I am all at sea over it. He had no reason to love Jackson and most carefully I fomented his ambition and his pride that he might see his chief obstacle. With what discretion I had to use I tried to make him ready for defiance. I cannot explain it."

"But you said it was a sure way," said the Captain, irritably, throwing himself into a chair.

"Why, so we all thought it was. It is well known that he keeps this wife of his a sacred thing that none may speak of, scarce look upon. We might have tried any other method and he would have laughed. But his wife—let any one hint that there was an irregularity in the marriage and he becomes a fiend."

"What's the matter with Dickinson, then?"

"How can I tell! The boy is only twenty-five and he has fought six duels. He need fear no one. To meet him on the field is like confronting the clammy hand of death. I have seen him snuff a candle at fifteen paces ten times out of ten. As for Jackson, he has fought, rough and tumble and other ways. But he never had the name of a quick shot or a sure one."

"Then we're back where we started from," said the Captain, with some temper. "If there's any one we can find besides Dickinson for this thing I'm in favor of trying him. I'd do it myself, only my nerves are not what they used to be. This young cub is hopeless, that's plain."

"Do you suppose, after all, that Jackson frightened him?"

"Either that or he's developed some queer qualms of conscience all of a sudden."

"Then I'm for trying a new plan altogether. We'll never be able to find anybody as good as Dickinson for that one," said the Judge, decidedly. "We can't afford to waste time like this."

"The plan's all right. It's another man we want," said the Captain.

"You're both wrong." It was the third member of the conference, speaking for the first time since they had entered the room. He was small and thin, dressed in plain but fashionable clothes, a man who had the appearance of a successful lawyer, not remarkable in any way save for the quiet power of his voice. "The fault was neither with the plan nor with Dickinson. If you want to know, specifically, why there wasn't a challenge on the spot it was because I had fixed matters to block just that outcome."

The others looked at him in wonderment. The Judge recovered first.

"And may I ask what induced you to interfere, Mr. K.?" he asked, with a trace of sharpness.

"Certainly. It was common sense, that's all. Suppose Dickinson had flared up and they had fought. The whole State would have known that Jackson was protecting his wife's name and sentiment would have been with him. If we're going to get rid of the man once for all we must destroy his popularity. I had a little talk with Dickinson and convinced him that he had a bad case for himself."

The Insult Recognized.

"Then what have we been planning and working for all this time if not that identical situation?" snapped the Captain.

"When you strip it bare that is what we're planning and working for, an insult and a challenge," returned Mr. K., calmly. "But I take it you gentlemen know little of the art of confusing the issue. We get Dickinson to spread remarks about Mrs. Jackson because that's the only thing that will bring the General into the open. But we can't meet him on that ground. It's too apparent, too barefaced. No. We get Dickinson to back down. Then, after a time, we have him repeat the offence and take care that Jackson hears of it. If necessary, he must back down again. Meanwhile, we carefully circulate contradictory tales, putting Jackson in a bad light, making him appear in the wrong as the result of his quarrelsome, hot headed temperament. When his suspicions of Dickinson are aroused to a point where they can't be calmed he will challenge. Well and good. By that time we will have every one against him."

"That's good sense," nodded the Judge. "Can you compass it on those lines?"

"Easily, if you will aid me intelligently," returned Mr. K. "We can handle Dickinson as we want to now." After some further discussion the gathering broke up.

Within three weeks another story, vague as to details, came to the ears of Jackson concerning Dickinson's rambling tongue. Confident though he was that the young lawyer served merely as a pawn, he could see no way of meeting the move peaceably. His eyes were open, but he had no choice other than to enter the trap. His one weakness had been fairly found and fairly gauged. When it was a question of protecting the name of Rachel Jackson caution, restraint and political insight counted for nothing.

Fifteen years before one of the rarest, strongest passions of history had come to flower with the marriage of Andrew Jackson and Rachel Robards. Unwittingly, in full belief that her worthless husband, Lewis Robards, had obtained a divorce, they married several months before the decree had in fact been granted. Upon learning the facts they had repeated the ceremony. This was the incident which malice had remembered and nursed as the one weapon capable of wounding a great heart.

The loves of poetry are not more tender, deep or enduring than the love Andrew Jackson bore the woman who was his wife. The flame of it never wavered. To the rugged, iron willed soldier and statesman she was ever his "dear saint," enshrined in an affection which a man of lesser nature could not have known. He was better able to support any conceivable personal calumny, any blow that fell alone upon him, than that a breath should turn roughly against her.

Since his second wedding, quite simply and without bravado, he had kept a certain set of dueling pistols oiled and ready for the man who should read an ill meaning into the error over the divorce. None had yet dared to appear as the author of slurring comments. Even Dickinson had denied his share. But Jackson knew that the time had come to fight. There was no escape. The rumors, the nods and winks would not cease until he had called out the one who had revived the dead slander. He had positive proof that Dickinson, drunk and sober, had said things that could not be passed over. It made no difference that, with his keen understanding, he could feel the secret forces at work behind the young lawyer and identify their purpose. They meant to pit him against a man whose shot was death. They meant to bring it about in a roundabout way so that he could not pin down the offence and have clear justification. All this he knew and accepted.

Dickinson the Puppet.

He waited only long enough to determine to his own satisfaction who were really responsible. Three figures among the ranks of his enemies he finally settled upon—three men for whom, as he felt sure, Dickinson was puppet. It was nearly a year after the first whisper of evil had been traced to the lawyer that he sent his challenge in May, 1806. It was well known that trouble hung about the two men, but Jackson's opponents had been active and clever. The common view of the matter was that the General, so much the older and therefore so much more to blame, had shown himself irascible, unreasonable and ill-governed in seeking the quarrel.

Dickinson accepted the challenge instantly and proceeded, as was his privilege, to name the terms. General Thomas Overton, a rough old Revolutionary soldier, acted as Jackson's second and returned from the interview with the dandy duellist in a great state of mind.

"Here is the very fop of duellists," shouted the indignant warrior to his principal. "It seems that you must wait a week upon him while his beribboned lordship procures an arm properly adjusted to the killing of you."

"Why, what did he say? I desired to meet him instantly!" exclaimed Jackson.

"Oh, he was much astonished that you should make such unseemly haste in the matter. As for him, twisting his hand and setting it on his hip like some figurante, he must have a pistol especially made for the occasion."

"Well, well, Overton. Let him have his time. If I were as expert with the pistol as himself I might be particular. As it is, any pistol suits. What else?"

"You are to stand eight paces apart and to fire at any time after the word is given."

"I see him there," nodded Jackson. "No man has a chance of firing before him. He counts upon killing me before I can raise my weapon."

"So I thought of it," answered Overton, anxiously. "Are you quick enough upon the trigger to compete with him for the first shot?"

"No. The only result would be to confuse my aim."

"Then listen to my advice. Let him have his shot, stand his fire without returning it. If he misses or only wounds you, you will have a fair chance at him. I see no other way for you to win."

"The plan is good," answered Jackson, and there his preliminary worry over the meeting ended.

Dickinson and several of his close friends, young blades about town, set merrily forth on the morning of May 20 for the duelling ground, at Harrison's Mills, on Red River, Logan county, Kentucky, a good day's ride distant. It was a junketing, a pleasant outing, spiced with the interest that would centre about the killing of the obnoxious General Jackson. They galloped on with many a lightsome jest, and the young lawyer amused the party from time to time with exhibitions of his skill. He had his new duelling pistol, a graceful weapon of proved accuracy, with which he hit an indicated mark time and again along the road.

The Four Bullets.

After leaving the city Dickinson learned that he was preceding Jackson. He stopped at the first wayside tavern, marked off eight paces from a tree and fired at it four times at the word of command. It was found that the four bullets were imbedded in the trunk within a space that could be covered by a silver dollar. Dickinson called the innkeeper's attention to the exploit.

"When General Jackson rides this way," he said, "just show him that."

A short distance further on the party passed a farm house. A cucumber was hanging by a string from a branch near the door. Without dismounting Dickinson severed the string with one shot and shouted to the farmer to tell General Jackson what had happened.

"I'll have the fellow so frightened he'll need a crutch to face me with," was the duellist's laughing comment amidst the applause of his followers.

Jackson, coming along the road with Overton, a surgeon and two friends an hour later, was shown the proofs of his adversary's marvellous ability. He noted them unmoved. Throughout the journey he rode apart with his second and the two soberly discussed the approaching encounter. They agreed that their original plan was the best, though dangerous in the extreme. It would take extraordinary control of nerve to accept the fire of so deadly an opponent. But Overton knew that his principal could summon that control if any man might.

The two parties stopped for the night at inns about a mile apart. Jackson was in good spirits during the evening meal and discoursed upon politics with his friends. He slept well and next morning made an early start. On the way to the rendezvous the business of the day was mentioned only once. One of those who were with him asked the General how he felt about the meeting.

"I have no doubt I shall wing him," was the answer. Yet all except Overton were assured that he was going to certain death.

After a brisk ride through the forest they came to a point where it was necessary to cross a river. No ferryman being in sight, Jackson spurred his horse into the current and swam him across. The others followed, and in a few moments they came to the small clear space in the woods where the duel was to take place. Jackson, with his second and surgeon, dismounted, tethered their horses and approached the opposing group, already on the ground.

Dickinson's second won the toss for position, while Overton acquired the right to give the word. The old warrior regarded this as no trifling advantage and had already determined in his own mind that he would put it to good use if it fell to his lot. Eight paces were marked off with particular care, the weapons were loaded and the two men took their places.

The sun was glancing its sharp shafts here and there among the trunks of the poplars. It was a clear, cool morning. Dickinson had taken great pains with his toilet and stood erect, debonair, smiling, his handsome face tinted with pink, his garments well brushed and fitting him without a wrinkle. Jackson wore a loose frock coat carelessly buttoned over his chest. He did not smile, but his long, powerful face, always resolute, showed firm purpose and complete hold of every faculty. Each man, following the agreement, pressed one foot against the peg marking his position and kept his pistol pointed downward.

Dickinson looked his opponent over and then turned to his second casually.

"Do you mark the third button of his coat on the left side? I shall hit him there."

"Are you ready?" asked Overton, quietly.

"I am ready," said Dickinson.

"Ready," repeated Jackson.

"Fire!" roared Overton, with thunderous voice dropping into his back country accent under the excitement of the moment. Knowing that his principal would not follow the word, he sought to make it as sudden and startling as possible.

Instantly, with such dexterity and ease that the eyes of the watchers could scarce see the movement, Dickinson whipped up his pistol to a level and fired. A puff of dust flew from the breast of Jackson's coat at the side of the button Dickinson had indicated. The General did not wince. He raised his left arm with doubled fist and pressed it tightly against his side. Dickinson stared at him a moment, then paled and fell back in amazement.

"Great God, have I missed him?" he cried.

Overton's pistol was out of his belt in a flash and covering Dickinson.

"Back to your place, sir. Back to your place. My principal has not had his shot."

His Own Wound Concealed.

Dickinson recovered himself, glanced once more at Jackson and stepped back to the peg. He pressed one foot against the mark and stood with his side toward his opponent, his head turned away so that he might not see the other's move.

Jackson waited calmly. When Dickinson had taken his position he raised his pistol slowly and took careful, deliberate aim. There was a tense pause. Jackson pulled the trigger, but no report followed. The hammer had stopped at half cock. Without using his left hand, which was still pressed against his breast, Jackson recocked and took aim once more, showing no haste or the sign of irritation. Again he pulled the trigger. The pistol spoke this time and Dickinson, with a gasp, staggered back. His second and surgeon rushed forward and caught him in their arms as he was about to fall. They seated him gently on the ground, with his back against a bush, and began to strip off his clothes. It was found that the bullet had passed through his body below the lowest ribs.

Jackson remained in his place, watching his opponent closely. Overton, who had stepped forward to see the extent of the injury, took him by the arm.

"He won't want anything more of you, General," said the gruff old soldier, and led his principal from the field. They walked toward the spot where they had left the horses tied. Jackson's surgeon, who was at his left, suddenly noticed that blood was running down into his boots and stopped with a cry.

"Are you hit, General?" he asked.

"Oh, I believe he has pinked me a little. But say nothing about it to them," answered Jackson, indicating the other group. Further on, among the trees, the surgeon made an examination and found that Dickinson's bullet had grazed the breastbone, breaking two ribs. In spite of his wound Jackson was able to mount and ride to his inn.

During the afternoon he sent word to the neighboring tavern, inquiring after Dickinson's condition, offering the services of his own surgeon or those of any member of his party. Word was returned that his recent antagonist was in need of no further aid. Later Jackson sent a bottle of wine to Dickinson. Another messenger despatched in the evening came back with the news that Dickinson had died at nine o'clock. Throughout all these friendly negotiations Jackson was careful that no word of his own hurt should reach the other party.

"Dickinson considered himself the best shot in the world," was his explanation. "He was certain he would kill me at the first fire and I don't want him to have the gratification of even knowing he has touched me."

Jackson rode back to Nashville the following day. It was while on that journey that he turned to his second with this remark:—

"Overton, I believe I should have lived long enough to kill him if he had shot me through the brain."

"I don't doubt it for a moment, General." They went on in silence together for some minutes. Then Jackson spoke again, more grimly this time:—

"Overton, there are certain men in Nashville who had a greater claim to stand opposite me than the misguided young man. I shall find a way to settle scores with them yet, Overton."

"Yes, General," said Overton.

POETRY AND PARENTS.

"YOU never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a Columbia professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen that he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:—

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme. Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end word of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no; he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell written in 1652."

HOME OR DAIRY BUTTER MAKING

From Farm and Dairy.

T. B. Telford, Leeds Co., Ont.

Buttermaking depends primarily on the cow. She is the machine for converting fodder into milk, and from this milk we get the cream and then the butter. There is a wide difference in cows. Some will turn a larger percentage of the food into milk than others. Some will show a higher percentage of fat in the milk. The butter fat in the milk from some cows will be of a high color, while from others it will be of pale color. Some will give a hard fat that will make a firm butter, while the butter from others will be soft.

The fodder has much to do with the flavor, color and firmness of butter. It is important, therefore, that we have the right kind of cows and feed them an abundance of proper food. The health of the cows should be carefully looked after. No diseased animal should be kept in the herd.

IN THE EARLY STAGES.

The milking should be regularly and cleanly done. The milk after straining should be run through the cream separator as soon after milking as possible. The cream should be cooled down to below 60 degrees and not mixed with the older cream for at least 12 hours. If warm, fresh cream is mixed with old cream it will in all probability curdle, and this will cause white specks in the butter when churned.

The cream should be kept cool until about 14 hours before churning, when the temperature should be raised to 65 degrees and a starter of fresh milk put in to ripen it. There should be a sweet acid taste to the cream, which should have a fine satin like appearance on the surface.

CHURNING.

The churn should be scalded and cooled down before churning. The cream should be strained before churning and it should be churned at a temperature of about 60 degrees in summer, perhaps a little higher in winter. The temperature at which cream should be churned is hard to fix. Some cows give a butter fat that is much harder than others. This fat may require the cream to be several degrees higher in temperature than that produced from other cows. On this account the maker should note carefully the temperature. If the butter fails to come in half an hour, the next time raise or lower the temperature a little as required. In a short time the proper degree of heat will be found for the cream from the herd.

Another factor that influences the churnability of cream is its richness. A rich cream will churn much more quickly and at a lower temperature than will a thin cream.

WASHING AND WORKING.

When the butter breaks and comes the size of clover seed the churn should be stopped, add a little cold water and start the churn again. When the particles are the size of wheat stop the churn and let stand for a minute or two; then draw off the buttermilk, letting the buttermilk run through a strainer to catch any small particles of butter that may come from the churn. When the buttermilk has drained off pour a pail of water at a temperature of about 15 degrees, into the churn. Rotate the churn a few times, then draw off the water. It is seldom necessary to apply the second lot of water if every detail has been properly attended to. In the winter time the water should be from 55 to 60 degrees.

After washing the butter should drain for about half an hour to take off the excessive moisture before salting. If salted on the worker about three quarters of an ounce of best dairy salt to the pound of butter will suit the tastes of most people. The salt having been evenly and properly worked into the butter, make it up into pound prints and wrap it in parchment paper, which package is most popular on the market.

MARVELLOUS HEALING POWERS

The most severe test to which a healing ointment is ever put is the cure of eczema. So successful has Dr. Chase's Ointment proven in the cure of torturing itching eczema that many people refer to its effects as magical and marvellous. After the first few applications it positively stops the dreadful itching and then gradually and naturally heals up the sores.

QUANTITY OF FOOD FOR WINTERING STEERS

From Farm and Dairy.

Would you kindly advise us of the quantity of hay and straw that would be required for a day or a week (without roots, grain or other foods) to winter two year old stock steers from 800 to 900 lbs. in weight. Also the extra amount, if any, such animal will consume in a couple of days folowing a fast of 24 or 36 hours.—D. M. M., McLennan, Ont.

The amount of hay and straw per diem required to winter such animals, two-year-old stock steers, will depend upon quite a number of circumstances or conditions not given by you.

In the first place nothing is said of the condition in which it is desired that they should come through the season. Further, nothing is said of the kind of hay nor yet of the sort of straw, both of which facts are important.

Supposing it is desired to bring steers through in fair condition so that they will go on grass ready to put on weights at once, then each steer would require about 10 lbs. hay and 20 lbs. straw per diem. This provided the hay was of fair quality and the straw good oat straw. With poorer quality of hay or straw somewhat more of each would be necessary to get as good results.

If the object was to get the steers through without any progress having been made then a small amount of hay might be fed, say five lbs. per diem and slightly more straw. Steers will come through on less of both but they would lose very materially and so be quite unprofitable. Barley straw might take the place of the oat straw to a considerable extent. Wheat straw is of very small value. Wheat chaff might make up part of the straw ration. An effort should be made to have the steers go out on grass improving rather than losing in flesh. For this reason it is often wise to feed a somewhat heavier hay portion in the spring and so start steers along just before going on grass.

The steers are sure to eat considerably more for a day or so after a 24 or 36 hours fast. The amount extra will depend upon the quality of the food. They would no doubt eat in the two days as much as would make up the average for the three days or so, but it would not be wise to give them that much. The better plan would be to feed a normal ration for a couple of days and then increase for a few days to make up for the loss—J. H. Grisdale, Agriculturist, C.E.F., Ottawa.

A smart style for winter wear.

HORSES FOR FARM WORK

From Farm and Dairy.

The general purpose horse has become so popular as an all round useful animal for farm work that the heavy horse has in many instances been ousted from his old time place. The tendency seems to be to get horses even lighter than what is properly classed as a general purpose horse. Various reasons may be ascribed for these prevailing conditions. Probably the one most accountable is that heavy horses have been in great demand and since they command high prices they have been sold. The general purpose and light stock, not enjoying a similar demand, have been kept for farm service.

The general purpose horse and representatives of light breeds as well, have much to commend them. When, however, it comes to the heavy work of plowing or hauling the binder or other heavy machinery, these light horses are ill-fitted to meet the demands made upon them. Not long since, an editor of Farm and Dairy had this matter forced on his attention through seeing three comparatively light horses working on a binder, in which instance to operate the machine it required the services of a boy and a man, the former beng employed in chasing the motive power and administering merciless whacks with a large pole in order that these ill-adapted horses might be enabled to haul the binder at the speed demanded by their owner.

This particular incident would have justified action being taken on the part of the humane authorities. The farmer little realized just how his outfit and his means of driving it appeared to the outside observer. But, be this as it may, the incident is a sign of the times and is but one of the many indications pointing to the fact that we are going in too much for the lighter horses and to our loss sacrificing the services of heavier horses, which on the average farm will prove much more profitable and will command a ready sale whenever such is desired.

WEAK LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, HAWKING.

Even Though Head and Throat Are Diseased From Neglected Colds, Cure is Certain.

Hundreds die of chronic catarrh that could be cured by persevering with a remedy of real merit. Look for these symptoms in your own case—they all mean Catarrh in some form:

"Is your voice rough?"
"Do you cough up phlegm?"
"Is your nose stuffed up?"
"Do you snore at night?"
"Does your nose itch and burn?"
"Have you frontal headaches?"
"Do your eyes pain?"
"Is it a dryness in your throat?"
"Do you sneeze, hawk, cough?"
"Have you droppings in throat?"
"Are you losing sense of taste?"
"Have you stomach nausea?"

Catarrh has been pronounced a disease caused and maintained by germ life, and, like other diseases where germs are present, is impossible to be cured by the ordinary constitutional medicines.

Hundreds of different remedies have been tried. Inhalers which produced steam, vapors and sprays were introduced, but turned out useless, as the vapor condensed and the medicaments were left deposited in the large bronchial tubes long before the air reached the smaller cells of the lungs.

Catarrhozone

is the only germicide ever found volatile enough to impregnate every particle of air breathed, yet leaving it FREE from moisture, thus enabling this powerful germ destroyer to reach every part of the air passages in the head, throat, and lungs, where it at once kills the bacilli that cause catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, colds, etc.

It cures by inhalation, and because it cannot fail to reach the seat of the disease. It is guaranteed, and incurs not the slightest danger of inconvenience to the patient.

BEGIN TREATMENT NOW.

Catarrhozone is absolutely certain to reach the source of the disease. It possesses marvelous healing properties, and quickly restores the raw, congested membranes to a normal, healthy condition. In a few breaths it clears away all foul mucous discharges, and quickly allays coughing, headache, pain over the eyes, and the manifold unpleasant symptoms of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, coughing, sore throat and colds.

QUICK CURE IS GUARANTEED.

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhozone. Do you not think this is a rational method of treatment—a reasonable way of reaching the diseased surfaces, which lie so far in the cavity of the body or of the head that they can be reached in no other way?

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure if you will use Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, absolutely guaranteed, costs $1.00, smaller size, 50c., at all dealers in medicine.

Princess Virginia

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"I'm coming to that now. It was best that you should know first all that's been troubling my heart and brain during these few bittersweet days which have taught me so much. You know men who have their place at the head of great nations can't think first of themselves or even of those they love better than themselves. If they hope to snatch at personal happiness they must take the one way open to them and be thankful.

"Don't do me the horrible injustice to believe that I wouldn't be proud to show you to my subjects as their empress, but instead I can offer only what men of royal blood for hundreds of years have offered to women whom they honored as well as loved. You must have heard even in England of what is called a morganatic marriage. It is that I offer you."

With a cry of pain—the cruel pain of wounded, disappointed love—the princess tore her hand from his.

"Never!" she exclaimed. "It's an insult."

"An insult? No, a thousand times no. I see that even now you don't understand."

"I think that I understand very well, too well," said Virginia brokenly. The beautiful fairy palace of happiness that she had watched as it grew lay shattered, destroyed, in the moment which ought to have seen its triumphant completion.

"I tell you that you cannot understand or you wouldn't say—you wouldn't dare to say, my love—that I'd insulted you. Don't you see, don't you know, that you would be my wife in the sight of all men as well as in the sight of God."

"Your wife, you call it!" The princess gave a harsh little laugh which hurt as tears could not hurt. "You seem to have strange ideas of that word, which has always been sacred to me. A morganatic marriage! That is a mere pretense, a hypocrisy. I would be 'your wife,' you say. I would give you all my love, all my life. You in return would give me—your left hand. And you know well that in a country which tolerates such a one sided travesty of marriage the laws would hold you free to marry another woman—a royal woman, whom you could make an empress—as free as if I had no existence."

"Great heaven, that you should speak so!" he broke out. "What if the law did hold me free? Can you dream—do you put me so low as to dream—that my heart would hold me free? My soul would be bound to you forever."

"So you may believe now. But the knowledge that you could change would be death to me—a death to die daily. Yes, I tell you again, it was an insult to offer a lot so miserable, so contemptible, to a woman you profess to love. How could you do it? If only you had never spoken the hateful words—if only you had left me the ideal I had of you—noble, glorious, above the whole world of men! But, after all, you are selfish, cruel. If you had said, 'I love you, yet we must part, for duty stands between us,' I could— But, no; I can never tell you now what I could have answered if you had said that instead of breaking my heart."

"Never!" she exclaimed.

Under the fire of her reproach he stood still, his lips tight, his shoulders braced, as if he held his breast open for the knife.

"By heaven, it is you who are cruel!" he said at last. "How can I make you see your injustice?"

"In no way. There's nothing more to be said between us two after this except goodby."

"It shall not be goodby."

"It must. I wish it."

He had caught her dress as she turned to go, but now he released her. "You wish it? It's not true that you love me, then?"

"It was true. Everything—everything in my whole life—is changed from this hour. It would be better if I'd never seen you. Goodby."

CHAPTER ELEVEN

SHE ran from him along the moonlit path. One step he took as if to follow and keep her, but checked himself and let her go. Only his eyes went with her, and in them there was more of pain than anger, though never before in all his life perhaps had he been thwarted in any strong desire. Passion urged him forward, but pride held him back, for Leopold was a proud man, and to have his love thrown in his face was to receive an icy douche with the blood at fever heat.

For this girl's sake he had in a few days changed the habits of a lifetime. Pride, reserve, self control, the wish not only to appear but to be a man above the frailties of common men, the ambition to be placed and worthily placed on a pedestal by his subjects—all these he had thrown away for Helen Mowbray.

He was too just a man not to admit that if one of his royal cousins of younger branches had contemplated such folly as this he would have done his best to nip that folly while it was in bud. "He jests at scars who never felt a wound," and until Leopold had learned by his own unlooked for experience what love can mean, what men will do for love while the sweet madness is on them, he would have been utterly unable to understand the state of mind.

A cousin inclined to act as he was now bent on acting would but a month ago have found all the emperor's influence, even force perhaps, brought to bear in restraining him. Leopold saw the change in himself, was startled and shamed by it. Nevertheless he would have persevered, trampling down every obstacle that rose in his way, if only the girl had seen things with his eyes.

She had accused him of insulting her, not stopping to consider that even to make her morganatically his wife he must give great cause for complaint not only to his ministers, but to his people for he was expected to marry a girl of royal blood that the country might have an heir. If Helen Mowbray had accepted the position he offered her, he could never have broken her heart by making another marriage.

Not only would it be difficult in these days to find a princess willing to tolerate such a rival, but it would have been impossible for him to desecrate the bond between himself and the one adored woman.

This being the case, with Helen Mowbray as his morganatic wife, there could be no direct heir to the throne. At his death the son of his uncle, the Archduke Joseph, would succeed, and during his life the popularity which was dear to him would be hopelessly forfeited. Rhaetia would never forgive him for selfishly preferring his own private happiness to the good of the nation.

He could fancy how old Iron Heart von Breitstein would present this point of view to him with fierce eloquence, temples throbbing like the ticking of a watch, eyes netted with bloodshot veins. But, on the other hand, he could picture himself standing calmly to face the storm, steadfast in his own indomitable will, happy with love to uphold him.

But now the will which had borne him through life in a triumphal march had been powerless against that of this young girl. She would have none of him. A woman whose face was her fortune, whose place in life was hardly as high as the first step of a throne, had refused—an emperor!

Hardly could Leopold believe the thing that had happened to him. He had spoken of doubting that he had won her love, and he had doubted. But he had allowed himself to hope, because he had confidence in his star and because perhaps it had scarcely been known in the annals of history that an emperor's suit should be repulsed.

Besides, he had loved the girl so passionately that it seemed she could not remain cold. And he hoped still that when she had passed a long night in reflection, in thinking over the situation, perhaps taking counsel with that comparatively commonplace yet practical little lady, her mother, she might be ready to change her mind.

For the first few moments after the stinging rebuff he had endured Leopold felt that if she did it would be her turn to suffer, for he could never humble himself to implore for the second time. But as he stood in the soft stillness of the night, gazing toward the lights of the house, thoughts of Virginia—her youth, her sweetness, her beauty dimmed with grief—overwhelmed him. Could he have reached her he would have fallen on his knees and kissed her gown.

By and by a vast tenderness breathed its calm over the thwarted passion in his breast, and plans to win her back came whispering in his ear. He would write a letter and send it to her room. But, no; perhaps it would be wise to give her a longer interval, for reflection and, it might be, regret. Tomorrow he would see her and show all the depths of that great love which she had thought to throw away. She could not go on withstanding him forever, and, now that he had burned his boats behind him, he would never think of turning back. He would persevere till she should yield.

Meanwhile Virginia had hurried blindly toward the house, and it was instinct rather than intention that led her to the open window of the music room, by which she had come out.

Tears burned her eyelids, but they did not fall until she stood once more in the room where she and Leopold had been happy together. There she had sat at the piano, and he had bent over her, love in his eyes—honest love, she had thought, her heart full of thanksgiving. How little she had guessed then the humiliation in store for her and the end of all her hopes! How could she bear her pain, and how could she go on living out her life?

She paused in the window niche, looking into the room through a mist of tears, and a sob choked her. "Cruel, cruel!" she whispered. "What agony, what an insult!"

Then, dashing away her tears, she pushed back the dark curtains and would have passed on into the room had not the quick gesture brought her arm into contact with the buttons and gold braid on a man's breast.

Instantly she realized that some one was hiding there, some one dressed in a military coat, and her first impulse was for flight, anything to escape unrecognized. But on second thoughts she changed her mind.

Whoever it was had in all probability hidden himself for the purpose of spying and was already aware that Miss Mowbray had rushed into the house weeping after a tete-a-tete with the emperor in the garden. Perhaps he had even caught a word or two of her sobbing ejaculation. No; she must not run away and leave the outcome of this affair to chance. She must see with whom she had to deal that she might know what was best to do.

She had taken a step into the room, but quick as light she turned, pulled away the screen of curtains and faced Captain von Breitstein.

It was a trying moment for him, and the girl's look stripped him of all his light audacity. She had come to the window by a different path from the one he had watched; therefore she had taken him unawares before he had time to escape, as he had planned. He was caught fairly and must save himself as best he could without preparation.

If her reproach forestalled his excuse he was lost. He must step into the breach at whatever risk. There was no time to weigh words. He must let loose the first that sprang to his lips.

"I see what you think of me," he said. "I see you think I was watching you. I swear I wasn't, though I knew you were in the garden with—the emperor. Wait—you must listen. You must hear my justification. I was sent to this room to fetch you. For your sake, how could I go back and say you had disappeared—together? I looked out into the garden and saw you—with him. I saw from your manner that—he had made you suffer. I was half mad with rage, guessing—guessing something which one word you let drop as you came in told me had happened. He is my sovereign, but—he has insulted you. Let me be your knight, as in days of old. Let me defend you, for I love you. I waited here to tell you this as you came, so that if you would we might announce an engagement"—

If Virginia's eyes had been daggers he would have fallen at her feet pierced to the heart. For one long second she looked at him without speaking, her face eloquent. Then she went by him with the proud bearing of a queen.

Egon was stricken dumb. Dully he watched her move across the room to a door which led into a corridor. He heard the whisper of her satin dress and saw the changing lights and shadows on its creamy folds under the crystal chandeliers; he saw the white reflection, like a spirit, mirrored deep under the polished surface of the floor.

Never had she been more beautiful, but she was beautiful in his eyes no longer. He had hurt her pride, but she had stabbed his vanity, and to wound Egon von Breitstein's vanity was to strike at his life. He hated the girl, hated her so sharply that his nerves itched with the intensity of his hatred, and the only relief he could have would be through reprisal.

He had not been able to deceive her. She knew that he had been spying, and it was fortunate for his future, he realized already, that she had broken with the emperor. He must do all he could, and do it quickly, to prevent a reconciliation lest she should work him injury.

As for his hastily stammered proposal, it was a good thing that the girl had not taken him at his word, for the chancellor had not given him permission to speak, and if she had accepted him he might have had to wriggle out of his engagement. Still, he could not forgive her scorn of him.

"Lorenz shall help me to pay her for this!" he said furiously to himself, too angry to mourn over lost hopes, lost opportunities. "He will know how to punish her. And between us she shall suffer."

CHAPTER TWELVE

IT was for refuge that the princess fled to her own room.

A boudoir shared by the grand duchess adjoined it, and, entering there, to her dismay the girl saw her mother lying on a sofa, attended by Ernestine, the French maid.

Virginia's heart sank. She had supposed the grand duchess to be in the white drawing room with the baroness and the other guests of the house. Now there was no hope that she might be left alone and unquestioned. And the girl had longed to be alone.

"At last!" exclaimed a faint voice from the sofa. "I thought you would never come."

The princess stared, half dazed, unable to tear her mind from her private griefs. "Are you ill, mother?" she stammered. "Had you sent for me?"

"I came very near fainting in the drawing room," the grand duchess answered. "Ernestine, you may leave us now."

The Frenchwoman went out noiselessly.

Still Virginia did not speak. Could it be that there had been another spy besides Egon von Breitstein and that her mother already knew how the castle of cards had fallen? Was it the news of defeat which had prostrated her?

"Have you—did any one tell you?" the girl faltered.

"I've had a telegram—a horrible telegram. Oh, Virginia, I am not young, as you are! I am too old to endure all this. I think you should not have subjected me to it."

The grand duchess' voice was plaintive and pried among the girl's sick nerves like hot wire.

"What do you mean, dear? I do not understand," she said dully. "I'm so sorry you are ill. If it's my fault in any way I"—

Her mother pointed toward a writing table. "The telegram is there," she murmured. "It is too distressing—too humiliating."

Virginia picked up a crumpled telegraph form and began to read the message, which was dated London and written in English:

Some one making inquiries here about the Mowbrays. Beg to advise you to explain all at at once or leave Kronburg to avoid almost certain complications.

LAMBERT.

Lady Lambert was the wife of the ex-ambassador to the court of Rhaetia from Great Britain.

The princess finished in silence.

"Isn't it hideous?" asked the grand duchess. "To think that you and I should have deliberately placed ourselves in such a position! We are to run away, like detected adventuresses, unless—unless you are now ready to tell the emperor all."

"No," said Virginia hopelessly.

"What! Not yet? Oh, my dear, then you must bring matters to a crisis—instantly—tonight even. It's evident that some enemy perhaps some jealous person, has been at work behind our backs. It is for you to turn the tables upon him, and there isn't an hour to waste. From the first you meant to make some dramatic revelation. Now the time has come."

"Ah, I meant—I meant!" echoed Virginia, with a sob breaking the ice in her voice. "Nothing has turned out as I meant. You were right, dear; I was wrong. We ought never to have come to Rhaetia."

The grand duchess grew paler than before. She had been vaguely distressed. Now she was sharply alarmed. If Virginia admitted that this great adventure should never have been undertaken, then indeed the earth must be quaking under their feet.

"Ought not—to have come?" she repeated piteously. "What dreadful thing has happened?"

The princess stood with bent head. "It's hard to tell," she said, "harder almost than anything I ever had to do. But it must be done. Everything's at an end, dear."

"What—you've told him, and he has refused to forgive?"

"He knows nothing."

"For heaven's sake, don't keep me in suspense!"

Virginia's lips were dry. "He asked me to be his wife," she said. "Oh, wait—wait! Don't look happy. You don't understand, and I didn't at first. He had to explain, and he put it—thing as little offensively as he could. Oh, mother, he thinks me only good enough to be his morganatic wife!"

The storm had burst at last, and the princess fell on her knees by the sofa, where, burying her face in her mother's lap, she sobbed as if parting with her youth.

There had always been mental and temperamental barriers between the Dresden china lady and her daughter, but they loved each other, and never had the girl been so dear to her mother as now. The grand duchess thought of the summer day when Virginia had knelt beside her, saying, "We are going to have an adventure, you and I."

Alas, the adventure was over, and summer and hope were dead! Tears trembled in the mother's eyes. Poor little Virginia, so young, so inexperienced and, in spite of her self will and recklessness, so sweet and loving withal!

"But, dear, you are making the worst of things," the grand duchess said soothingly, her hand on the girl's bright hair. "Why, instead of crying you ought to be smiling, I think. Leopold must love you desperately or he would never have proposed marriage, even morganatic marriage. Just at first the idea must have shocked you knowing who you are. NON-POISONOUS

Recommended by Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, Ontario

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do. Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertilizer, both in one.

WORK TO BE CARRIED OUT

The Property Committee decided last night to take immediate steps in the erection of the Isolation Hospital by authorising the City Clerk to advertise for tenders. Ald. Bradburn was in the chair and Ald. Duncan, Morgan, Hicks, and McIntyre, were present. It was moved by Ald. Duncan and Morgan that tenders be called for the hospital to be received up to 4 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 4. Each tender must be accompanied by a marked cheque for $1,000. It was decided, on motion of Ald. Morgan and McIntyre that red clay brick be used in the outer wall and the rest of the brick used in the building be of the sand limestone variety. Other details were discussed and determined by the committee.

FIRST MEETING OF BOYS' CLUB

Of Knox Church Was Held Last Night.

The first meeting of the Knox Church Boys' Club held last night was largely attended and was enjoyed by the young people. After the usual routine business was concluded a short entertainment was provided. Miss Barr was heard in a humorous recitation and Mr. Roland Common gave an instructive and humorous talk with the aid of his lantern. Mr. Wm. Lorimer and Mr. Dixon favoured the boys with vocal solos and Mr. Common closed the evening by showing other slides. Miss Hall, sister of Mr. Gordon Hall, the club's president, has donated to the boys three new games. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to donor for her thoughfulness.

BLOSSOMED SECOND TIME

Mr. Thos. Burke's Cherry Tree Will Have Second Crop.

Mr. Thomas Burke, 103 Smith St., brought into this office this morning a branch from a cherry tree showing two or three clusters of blossoms. This is the second time that this tree has blossomed this year, a most remarkable occurrence.

BABY'S TEETHING TIME IS A TROUBLOUS TIME

When baby is teething the whole household is upset. The tender little gums are swollen and inflamed, and the poor child often cries day and night wearing the mother out and keeping the rest of the family on edge. In the homes where Baby's Own Tablets are used there is no such worry. The Tablets allay the inflammation, soothe the irritation and bring the teeth through painlessly. Mrs. Jean Boutin, St. Marguerite, Que., says:—"When I sent for Baby's Own Tablets my nine months' old baby was suffering greatly from teething troubles and I hardly got any rest. A few doses of the Tablets relieved her, and the teeth seemed to come through painlessly." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

YOM KIPPUR, MOST SACRED FEAST IN THE JEWISH CALENDAR, TO-DAY

His Broken Vows and Other Sins of Past Year are Forgiven To-day, the Day of Atonement--Prays for Success for the Coming Year.

To-day is the feast of Yom Kippur, probably the greatest feast day in the Jewish calendar, and from an interview with prominent Jews in Peterborough, it is being celebrated according to the solemn custom that has been a Jewish rite for centuries. It began at sunset last evening and continues until sunset this evening. During that time every pious Jew abstains from food and drink, as a sacrifice, and because on Yom Kippur his past sins are forgiven, and he prays for future success, happiness, and for his material and spiritual welfare. Rabbi Garfenkal, o fToronto, is in this city, and has conducted services at the home of Mr. B. Lastar. The day is one of atonement for the sins and broken vows of the past year. At its conclusion to-night, when the Rabbi pronounces the word "Tilhoroo," ye are cleansed, the people return to their homes, and, needless to say, partake of a feast after their twenty-four hours' fast.

The services of the day of atonement in the tabernacle in the wilderness, and during the existence of the temple, in Jerusalem, were of great solemnity, the high priest offering the sacrifices as commanded in the Bible, as an atonement for himself, the members of his own house, and the whole house of Israel. It was the only day in the year on which the high priest was allowed to enter the Holy of Holies, the reserved space in the temple in which the ark of the covenant was kept. The atonement service was likewies the only one at which the sacred name of "Jehovah" was pronounced by the high priest, and by him only. The whole nation fasting, praying and confessing their sins, crowded the courts of the temple. They witnessed the impressive ceremonies with feeling of awe and contrition. Every time the high priest uttered the word "Jehovah," in holiness and purity, the entire congrgation fell upon their faces and exclaimed: "Blessed be the name of the glory of His kingdom forever and ever." At the conclusion of the service the high priest pronounced the comforting word ("Tilhoroo"), ye are "cleansed," and the people returned happy to their homes, grateful to God, who had pardoned their transgressions, and received them again in His favour.

Wolfe Street Wharf Crowded By Saturday Morning Traffic

A visit by a representative of the Examiner, to Wolfe St. wharf this morning, and a glance at the number of steamboats and scows in port, was convincing proof that the wharfage accommodation at Peterborough is totally inadequate to meet the volume of traffic in and out of Peterborough on the Trent Canal, and that increased accommodation must soon be afforded.

The Water Lily is in port with a large scowload of lumber from Rice Lake. The tug "Ajax," owned by Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, came in with a scow load of cord wood from Stony Lake. The "Dawn," owned by Mr. Richard Sheehy, has a scow load of building stone from Clear Lake. The "Beaver" has a scow load of cordwood from Deer Bay for the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Company. The Government tug "Bessie Butler" was in port this morning to take a scow load of brick, lime and lumber up north. The "Rainbow" and the "Monarch" landed into port with their usual market day crowd. This makes a total of seven steamers and five scows at Wolfe St. wharf.

When it is considered that all of the above mentioned steamers, tugs and scows are trying to find accommodation at a dock only 200 feet in length it will be readily seen that Peterborough is in need of additional wharfage accommodation.

Grange To Be Gift To Public As Art Gallery And Park

Provision has been made whereby the beautiful old residence known as The Grange, and the property surrounding it, will ultimately become the property of the citizens of Toronto. The grounds will be used as a public art gallery.

The late Mrs. Goldwin Smith, it is understood, specified that at a future time the property and all buildings upon it will pass into the hands of the city, to be permanently owned and cared for by the city. Toronto will then have an art gallery in a building which has been admired and examined by thousands of visitors since the year 1820, when most of it was built. The spacious grounds, which have been kept in excellent condition for nearly a hundred years, will be one of the most beautiful parks in the city.

The Grange, of course, will be the home of Dr. Goldwin Smith until his death.

The Grange is the finest specimen of house architecture in the province. Built in a 100-acre park, it stands at the top of John Street, and is one of the examples of gentlemen's residences of the early days of the last century. It is a solid and substantial building, two storeys in height, and was one of the first brick houses built in York. The main building was erected about 1820 by D'Arcy Boulton, eldest son of Mr. Justice Boulton. The original gate which commanded the entrance to the park surrounding the house was on Queen Street, but when John Street was opened the gate was moved to the head of the street. Bears at one time roamed about the grounds which surround the house. It was the home of Wm. Henry Boulton, son of D'Arcy Boulton, who for several years was Mayor of Toronto, he being the first husband of the late Mrs. Goldwin Smith. The halls and rooms of The Grange are large, artistic, and handsomely finished in black walnut. In the hall of the house are some fine wood carvings more than two hundred years old. The hall was designed by the late Hon. Wm. Cayley.

There are at present in The Grange some of the most handsome and valuable portraits in Canada, comprising thirteen portraits of celebrities in English history. About the house are scenes of the residence of Dr. Goldwin Smith's father in Berks County, Eng., and a painting of a lady member of the family who danced at the famous ball at Brussels on the night before the Battle of Waterloo.

Springville Mystery May Never Be Unravelled

The Springville mystery still continues to engage the interest of the people of the neighbourhood, although the feeling that the identity of the man may never be discovered, seems to be deepening. The nearest approach to a clue that has yet been discovered has been furnished by Mr. Jas. Baptie, a well-known farmer, who remembers having seen a man whose appearance would seem to correspond with the dimensions of the skeleton found and whose clothes, especially the boots, were very much alike. Mr. Baptie states that the man wore new boots and was on the tramp. It is possible that this man may be the one whose body was discovered in the woods.

The tree by which the body was found was cut down a year ago last winter, so that the tragedy has taken place since that time. Some people think that it might have occurred soon after, basing their opinion upon the state in which the body was when discovered.

BLACK-HANDERS ARE IN THE TOILS AT MONTREAL

Two Italians Trapped by a Trick---Were Looking for a Package That They Thought Contained a Thousand Dollars When the Detectives Swooped Down on Them

Montreal, Sept. 24—The Black Hand men arrested at midnight last night in St. David's lane are believed to be leaders of that organisation in this city, and the city detectives think that owing to the arrests they can break u pthe operations of the gang.

An Italian shoe store proprietor named Saora received a letter on Tuesday demanding $1,000 on pain of death. It was signed La Mano Nora —"the Black Hand." This letter was handed over to the police, who set the trap and arrested the two Italians, Mittigo and Castino. To-day Mittigo admitted that he wrote the letter, giving as an excuse that he wanted that amount to take him back to Italy. He also confessed that he had lived with Rossa and Lungo, the two Italians who are now awaiting trial on a murder charge. The police are satisfied that they have secured the leaders of the Black Hand gang.

Witnesses Being Examined At Investigation Into Collision

The formal investigation into the collision which took place between the steamers Otonabee and Rainbow on August 31st, was opened this morning at 11 o'clock, in the County Council Chamber by Commissioner Captain Demers, of Kingston. Capt Naish, of Montreal, and Capt. Jones, Snperintendent of the Dominion line of steamers, are sitting as assessors.

Capt. Burnett, of the steamer Rainbow, was the first one called. He explained that the collision was due to the breaking of the steering gear of the Rainbow. The boat then got out of its course, and the steamer "Otonabee" coming down the river around the bend, collided with the "Rainbow." The damage done was slight. Several other witnesses were called.

THE SANCTUARY

I do not like the man who searches his mind for caustic things to say, about the preachers and the churches; he grows more common every day. The cynic is a scurvy tutor, whose head and creed are made of wood; he puts up little gods of pewter, and says that they are "just as good." He thinks that triumphs he is winning, and he emits a joyous laugh, if he can knock the underpinning from Faith, that is our rod and staff. He is a poor and tawdry victor, who would o'er dead religious walk; the church still lives, though fools have kicked her, since first she builded on a rock. I hear the mellow church bells ringing, a welcome to that calm retreat; I hear the choir's sweet voices singing an anthem, reverent and sweet. And well I know the gentle pastor is pointing out the path to wend, and urging men to let the Master be evermore their guide and friend. And he, like all good men, is reaching for better, and for higher things; and so the message of his preaching—unlike the cynic's—comfort brings. Walt Mason.

COMMITTED SUICIDE BY CUTTING HIS THROAT

Special to the Examiner

Millbrook, Sept. 25.—Edward Widdows, a farmer residing about a mile west of Millbrook committed suicide this morning between ten and eleven o'clock by cutting his throat from ear to ear. This morning Widdows in company with his wife came to the village. He went to a barber shop, had a shave and then immediately returned to his home leaving his wife here. Upon arrival at the house he committed the rash act. His two small children and Mrs. Widdows' mother were in the house at the time. Drs. Turner and Montgomery of Millbrook were summoned but Widdows lived but a few minutes.

The unfortunate man is said to have been suffering from nervous trouble for some time.

No inquest will be held.

NOT SPRINGVILLE BOYS

Who Placed Pile of Logs on Highway Several Weeks Ago.

A few weeks ago the Springville correspondent to the Examiner wrote an article to the effect that a number of Springville young men had piled logs across the highway as an obstruction to automobiles. A gentleman living in the vicinity has taken the trouble to carefully examine the facts and learns that it was not the act of men living at least within two miles of the village ,and considers that the young men of Springville would not be guilty of an act of that kind.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Nearer to the earth by 15,000,000 miles than it has been for fifteen years, the planet Mars yesterday was the object of immense interest to the astronomers throughout the world, particularly at the U. S. Naval Observatory here.

Its average distance from the earth is 50,000,000 miles. Its distance from the earth yesterday was only 35,000,000 miles.

With this proximity, interest in the planet, which is always keen, will become, even among those who cannot claim to be students of astronomy, all the keener, on account of the probability that new discoveries concerning matters Martian will be made.

In this connection it may be stated that the members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada and the friends of the Peterborough centre are invited to Mr. H. B. Collier's, 555 Weller St. on Tuesday evening next to view the Moon, Saturn and Mars. Each of these planets are in excellent position for observation and it is expected that quite a number will avail themselves of this opportunity of taking a telescopic trip to these realms.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

One who looks down upon the city, from the crest of some of our environing hills can see no city. What he sees is a gigantic green crater, looking as a forest looks from a balloon—a sweeping expanse of foliage. All that breaks the illusion is a spire or uncommonly high building, thrusting itself through the sea of foliage, like the sharp crest of rock showing among the green waves on some stern sea shore. The beautiful trees with which the parks, grounds, and streets of the city are covered and almost hidden, from a superior point of view, except in the newer portions of the outskirts, where building operations have advanced tree planting, conceal the city itself. One gets the idea that a paradise must exist under the emerald mantle that rests upon it.

But far-away fields look green; and travellers tell us that from a distance, from a ship at sea, Constantinople, with the glittering domes and minarets of its mosques, its bright waters and green trees looks like an Orient paradise. But when the city is entered the vision changes; the filthy, narrow, dark, dog-infested and stench-infected streets and lanes make the Stamboul of the poets the gigantic cesspool of the Osmanli.

In like manner the streets of Peterborough belie the promise of beauty, which its embowering trees, as seen from overhanging hills, makes. But, of course, the dissimilitude between the streets of the city and its general sweep of tidy, green lawn and its long walls of street-tree foliage, is not so sharp as the Constantinople contrast. But is is sufficiently great to break the harmony and destroy the desirable continuity of lawn, tree line, and boulevard attraction that go to constitute the city beautiful.

As frequently remarked the chief essentials of civic beauty, taken in large, are green, smooth, well-grassed and well-trimmed and tended lawns, brightened with bloom or studded with shrubbery, merging into straight, smooth, well-kept boulevards, bounded by well-drained, level, and smooth-surfaced, easy-driving streets.

We have the first condition fairly well met, though there is still ample opportunity for improvement. This desired improvement is gradually coming. Private citizens are giving greater care, showing a finer taste, and taking a deeper interest in the beautifying of their lawns and homes. This is shown by the increasing number entering the lawn contest, and the increasing keenness of this patriotic rivalry.

As to the second, the improvement is not so evident; and there is good reason for this. In default of curbing and by the indifference of the city in constructing, and when constructed, protecting boulevards, citizens do not take the interest in boulevards necessary to their greatest beauty. Where boulevards are protected they are of equal beauty with the private lawns, of which they are a practical extension. When pavements are laid outside the tree line, the boulevard is continuous with the lawn, and being protected from wheels of vehicles is of equal beauty with the lawns.

But on streets where the pavements are inside the tree lines, the boulevards are largely neglected, for, with the greatest care on the part of the private citizen, they are destroyed. Careless teamsters cut them up with wheels and vandal pedestrians tramp on them, destroying the turf and the beauty of the boulevard by a single operation. This same habit of walking over boulevards—"cutting corners"—is responsible for a wholesale destruction of civic beauty. To this habit is due the fact that Central Park is guttered with paths like a sheep pasture. The lawn laid down in front of the Collegiate Institute is fenced in with hideously unsightly white birch stakes, looking like parts of the mangy skeleton of a mastodontic fossil, upon which are stretched crooked strings of wire. Why is this done? Why is it necessary? We have by-laws protecting boulevards and parks. Has the slightest attempt ever been made to put them into force?

Lethbridge, Alberta, a new town, but yesterday covered with Indian tepees, has passed a by-law to provide money to purchase a park of 300 acres. It has also a by-law to protect boulevards and it is enforced. The other day eighteen citizens were haled to the police court and fined for walking upon boulevards. Why does Peterborough, a place, eighty two years of age, at least, neglect such a palpable duty as enforcing its by-laws in the interest of the promotion and protection of the beauty of the city?

Coming down to causes, the responsibility for the causes that fight against civic beauty rests with the neglect and indifference of the aldermen, their neglect to provide and protect boulevards. This is only the first count in the indictment.

The neglect of the condition of the driving surface of the streets is almost criminal. Drainage, so easy a matter in Peterborough, is grievously neglected. Thus, we have mud where we should have cleanliness and tidiness. The object of making streets is to provide a smooth, comfortable, surface for the use of vehicles. Streets are for no other purpose, and any condition that interferes with the comfortable use of the streets is a wrong to horses, drivers, and, to the extent to which the streets are made uncomfortable for driving, a waste of the people's money.

This waste, which results not only in obstruction of the streets, but in destruction of their beauty, is caused by dumping on the streets gravel mixed with mud to develop into holes and round cobble stone from the size of a goose egg to that of a baby's head. These make the streets look like a neglected gravel pit, and "play the very deuce" with the feet of horses, the wheels of vehicles and the tempers of drivers for business or pleasure.

Then again, the city fathers allow our streets to be ripped up by trenches for sewers, water and gas services, and permit them to be sloppily filled, creating mounds of earth from a few inches to a foot in height, maikng a section of the street like winter pitch holes on a country sideline. At the head of Scott street on Reid, a sewer service was put in at the north side of the crossing. Of course in filling the trench a huge mound was left, and we have first the crossing a little above the street level, then the dip from its western edge, then a bump against the sewer hump, then another plunge.

Why are these disgusting, disfiguring and foolish things permitted? Why does the town permit everybody that rips up the streets, to leave them in the condition described? It is not necessary. People open the streets for their own advantage. They should pay for the privilege by restoring the ripped-up streets to the condition in which the people spent their good money to place them. It can easily be done. The Machine Telephone Company first and the Bell Company next, showed that it could be done—one could not see where they had opened a trench three days after they had filled it like Christians.

The city could do the same and without cost by simply insisting that it MUST be done, and so doing they would promote the beauty of the city, and give the people who pay for the streets something like honest value for their money.

We can't arrive at the highest condition of the city beautiful till citizens and city unite in a real spirit of co-operation, to create the easily attainable and necessary conditions.

THE BRITISH BUDGET

The Lloyd-George budget holds the British people and the Imperial Parliament in thrall. It is the theme in private conversation, in clubs and in all political gatherings. It nails the members of parliament to their seats and threatens to prolong the session till November. The 12th of August and the grouse were forgotten, the partridge and the pheasants were undisturbed by parliamentary sportsmen. Those who do not see good in the budget are gunning after Lloyd-George instead. This Cymric statesman has had the audacity to introduce "the budget of the century," to introduce into the British fiscal regime a new tax which will have to be borne by a privileged class which has heretofore been almost exempt from taxation—the great landed proprietors. Hinc illae lachrymae.

Lloyd-George had to feed a multitude of national demands and the loaves and fishes at his disposal would not "go round'." He had to seek additional revenue and has fished in new waters. The usual source of taxes has been made to yield more and new imposts have been added in this class. He has also increased the excise and the taxes on licenses, features of the budget which have not yet come under discussion. These two branches of the budget in their boldness—"audacity" its enemies say—are remarkable enough but it is the third part which is the pivot of the budget. It is regarded by those who will be affected as a sinister attempt to juggle with the fundamental elements of British social and economic life, and Lloyd-George is denounced as a revolutionary socialist who leads the hungry hordes of the democracy in the assault upon the sacred rights of property. They cry, "It is not a budget, it is a revolution."

In the eyes of Canadians, what may be generally called the land tax feature of the budget, that which is arousing the most bitter protest, the heart-breaking lamentations of the landed aristocracy, the privileged class, is endowed with a simple and palpable principle of justice. It is an attack upon the last stronghold, the citadel, of feudalism, in which, instead of exacting so many bowmen and spearmen, the "overlords" exact from the people the payment of taxes which they themselves escape. The landed proprietors have in these latter days exercised so potent a political influence that it has been possible for them to safeguard their personal interests—escape taxation—at the expense of the community at large and to throw upon the shoulders least able to bear it the always heavy burden of taxation. This condition is in the passing, and it is just to describe the budget as a revolution.

The budget proposes a tax of 20 per cent. upon the future increase in value in lands proceeding from causes independent of the industry, the work and the expenditure of the proprietors. It does not apply to general augmentation of value but only to that which the owner will have no share in producing, such as that produced by increase of population in the vicinity and the expenditure by the community in the vicinity. In fact the "unearned increment," is the basis of the impost. A tax rate of 10 per cent. is proposed upon the benefits the proprietor receives at the expiry of a lease. In general in towns and cities of England one cannot buy land outright, only acquire it under long-term lease, and with the condition that the tenant at his own expense shall erect buildings of a style and value determined by the landlord and at the end of the lease the whole becomes the property of the landed proprietor. It seems simple justice to make these lands and lands that are exploited in a similar manner by joint stock companies contribute their share of the revenue. The general principle upon which the Lloyd-George budget proposes to make land values conotribute to the national revenue does not seem to be unjust. The budget in its general features bears hardly upon the classes that have, for centuries paid the taxes of the Kingdom; and they are making no loud wail; only giving out a good British growl. But a tremendous outcry comes from the class that has been largely exempt from national burdens since the Conquest. the class that has been willing to see, "the galled jade wince," so long as their "withers were unwrung."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Of the great powers of the world eight pay an annual war tax aggregating $1,500,000,000. This sum is merely for army and navy appropriations and represents about 40 per cent. of all taxes paid.

A speaker at a theological conference in Toronto declared that we had prophets to-day as great and good as patriarchs of old. Old fashioned laymen would regard this is a sly way of denying the inspiration of the old day prophets or making modern mortals equal to them.

Rev. Professor Bland of the Wesleyan Theological Seminary, Montreal, showed a kindly tolerant spirit when in speaking at a theological conference in Toronto, he said: "Centralization of power and individual freedom must be reconciled. We need Catholic and Protestant. We must recognize the place of both of them for they are equally indispensable to success and progress in life."

Guelph turned on the tap on Thursday, when its new waterworks system was formally opened. The Royal City is now ready by reason of its abundant supply of water to become "dry."

Peary is a more energetic, not to say magnanimous, pole seeker than Cook. Cook contents himself with saying that he discovered the Pole. Peary wants to show that he not only found the pole, but that Cook didn't find it. There is no copyright on polar discovery. Isn't it possible that both Cook and Peary made the discovery? The Globe drops into bathos in order to paint the horrible feelings of Cook if he is accepting praise for an achievement he did not achieve. There's a lot of writing done in connection with the pole discovery, controversy that the writers will find it harder to get back from than the journey back from the pivot of mother earth, suppose anybody has been there.

THINK IT OVER!

There is a distinctive style and finish about a "Curzon" Suit or Overcoat which the "ready-to-wear" or "semi-ready" garments sold in Canada and the States lack. Indeed the "Curzon" cut and finish is hardly equalled even in garments sold by the best Custom Tailors, whose charges are always exclusive, if not altogether prohibitive. There is just that appearance of ease and comfort about our garments which gives the wearer a comfy appearance.

Then there is the cloth to remember: nothing but real British materials every time.

The process is simple: merely fill in a post card and address same to us as below, asking for our latest assortment of materials. Together with patterns, we send you fashion-plates and complete instructions for accurate self-measurement, tape measure, all sent free and carriage paid. We dispatch your order within seven days, and if you do not approve, return the goods and we will refund the money.

Badly Hurt In Thresher

BLOOD POISON SET IN

Healed in one place, broke out in another—Cure effected by Dr. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Truth is often stranger than fiction and many of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are more like miracles than anything else.

You generally hear of this great Ointment as a cure for eczema or piles. In the case we report to-day the trouble was blood poison. You know how dreadfully dangerous this is. You know how helpless doctors are in its treatment. Read about this cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont., writes: "I feel like shouting the praises of Dr. Chase's Ointment. While threshing grain my son got badly hurt. One of the men who was pitching sheaves, missed the sheaf and ran the prongs of the fork into my son's leg. He did not take much notice of it and in a day or two it got sore and very itchy and blood poison set in. We did everything for it but it would heal one place and break out at another, and kept on this way for three months.

"Finally I thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a week's time we noticed a wonderful change. By the use of three boxes he was completely cured and the wounds healed up. There has not been a sign of a spot on him since.

"I might also say that my husband was cured of a very bad case of piles by the use of two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a wonderful Ointment."

Wherever there is itching or irritation of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with every assurance that the results will be prompt and satisfactory.

FOSTER'S WEATHER PREDICTIONS

Washington, D.C., Sept. 25.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 22 to 26, warm wave 21 to 25, cool wave 24 to 28. This disturbance was expected to be preceded by very low temperatures, the week centring on 24 to average unusually cool, electric storms not far from 24 and cooler than usual the balance of September.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 26, cross Pacific slope by close of 27, great central valleys 28 to 30, eastern states and provinces Oct. 1. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 28, great central valleys 28, eastern states and provinces 30. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 29, great central valleys Oct. 1, eastern states and provinces Oct. 3. This disturbance will cause severe storms as it passes eastward across the continent. It will be preceded by moderate weather and will be followed by a cold wave that will carry frosts to the northern borders of the cotton belt. Moderate rains will follow the warm wave.

First disturbance of Oct. will reach Pacific coast about 1, cross Pacific slope by close of 2, great central valleys 3 to 5, eastern states and provinces. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 1, great central valleys, longitude 105 to 85, Oct. 3, eastern states and provinces 5. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 4, great central valleys 6, eastern states and provinces 8.

Temperatures will not go very high with this disturbance while preceding and following it unusually cool weather will prevail. It will be most severe on the Pacific slope and will decrease in force as it moves forward. The severe storm periods of Oct. will centre on 1 and 13 and 28. The month will be unusually cold. Killing frosts will go unusually far south about Oct. 16 and 25 with lighter frosts near Oct. 1. Most precipitation will come from 4 to 16. Indications are that heavy rains will fall during October where the August drouth prevailed and dry weather elsewhere.

My weather charts predicted northeastern frosts during the week ending September 7 and the frosts got there. These bulletins advised farmers not to sell corn while the Chicago prices for the new crop were below 50 cents. Corn went up from 51 1-2 to 61 1-2 before September 14. Now I advise farmers not to sell any of their new crop till the price at Chicago touches 70. I do not advise them to sell even then but will let them be the judges after it touches 70. Better keep your wheat till the Chicago price reaches $1.25 and your oats till they pass the 40 cent mark. These bulletins have never misadvised the farmers as to prices of their grain and cotton. By acting in harmony we have seen cotton go from 6 1-2 to 12 1-2, corn from 35 to present price, oats from 18 to 45, wheat from 60 cents to above $1.00.

Circulation of these bulletins is immense; they are read by millions. I propose to double their circulation during the next twelve months and knowing the future weather better than all the balance of the human race combined I am going to stand by the interest of the producers that they may get good prices.

Rich Farmer Lives in Style In Cave

On top of Mountain and is Fitted With Electric Lights, Hot and Cold Water, Modern Conveniences.

Prairie Grove, Ark., Sept. 25.—One of the most prominent and successful farmers of this section, who is an active member of the National Farmers' Union, has dwelled in a cave for years. It is probably the most palatial cave in the world, and is fitted up with all modern conveniences, including hot and cold water, electric fans, electric lights and steam heat. He discovered the cave at the top of a mountain, 1,700 feet high.

It is 78 feet long by 25 feet wide, and 32 feet high. The walls are of beautiful granite, which has been handsomely polished. The ceiling is 40 feet thick. The front of the cave is of glass, which the owner and occupant, H. S. Mobley, put in, together with hardwood floors. The flues for the cooking range pass out through the mouth of the cave and extend outward a distance of nearly 40 feet. Movable screens permit the increase and reduction of rooms at the pleasure of the occupants. A fine spring at the top of the mountain furnishes water through a private system of waterworks.

This novel dwelling was completed about two years ago. It is approached by a beautiful road ascending the crest of the mountain by easy stages, and the grounds about the cave are kept in perfect condition. The occupants declare that it is the coolest dweling in Summer and the most comfortable in Winter, and they have no fear of cyclones, which are frequent in that region. Neither heat nor cold pentrates the solid protection of yards of granite. Mr. Mobley says he will live in the cave for the rest of his life. The cave is in easy driving distance of this town.

IMPORTANT FACTS

"A quart of milk is practicgally equal to a pound of beef in food value."

Prof. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College: "The composition of wheat is higher in protein and heat of combustion than any other cereal for human food."

Results of analysis by Bureau of Chemistry by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture:

ORANGE MEAT is simply the whole wheat berry, steam cooked, mixed with salt, flaked and toasted. This process develops in each wheat berry the highest percentage of grape sugars. It converts the starches into a form most easily digested and assimilated. ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food.

TO KEEP GRAPES FRESH FOR MONTHS

A great firm of wine growers at Saint Benezat, France, has devised a simple method of keping grapes perfectly fresh for several months. To keep grapes fresh they must not be allowed to dry, while, on the other hand, they lose all their good qualities if they are immersed in water. Therefore, they must receive moisture just as they receive it while still on the vine—through their stalks. The grapes must not touch anything and they must be handled as little as possible.

In cutting the grapes an inch or two of stalk is left on each side of the twig that bears the bunch, and to each end of the stalk is fitted a bulb or rubber or glass, containing sterilized water. The whole is then hung up where the grapes may swing free. The water in the bulbs is sucked up by the stalks and supplies the fruit with the wherewithal to keep fresh. This water can be renewed as often as necessary without touching the grapes, and any grape that withers can be slipped off without disturbing its neighbours. It is said that by this method freshly picked grapes can be kept fresh for two or three months.

TOASTED CORN FLAKES

HOW TO PLEASE HIM

Men appreciate tenderness. They value the little proofs of love every whit as much as a woman—long just as keenly to hear those three little words—the sweetest in any language when spoken by the right lips. And yet many girls, ignorantly or wilfully, ignore this and absolutely starve their lovers, as far as any expression of their love is concerned.

It pleases a man to see a woman he loves gentle and considerate in her home life. He may appear to be a trifle jealous of the duties that absorb some of the time which might be devoted to himself. Yet in his heart he would not have her one iota less loving to her own people. He knows the truth of the old saw and how good an omen it is for the future.

A certain maidenly dignity always pleases a man ish love of fu lights to know
respect that will respect his rights as well as her own,

It pleases a man to find the woman he loves companionable and able to take an interest in the things that interest him—to meet a smiling face on which frowns are unknown, and a pair of bright eyes that grow brighter as they seek his own, or more hopeful at his sorrows.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH HAPPINESS

One of the first rules taught by experience and knowledge of the world is that nothing ever comes up to our expectation, therefore it is a sound maxim to say: "Don't expect too much."

In business, in amusements, in social life, this rule applies, but it is in affairs of the heart that its most potent significance is made manifest.

Some people say (though we are none of us ready to accept the unromantic theory) that love marriages are often less successful than those which are entered into without any passion on either side.

To this we cannot entirely agree; but, nevertheless, it is an undeniable fact that at the end of ten years the couple who united their lives on a good sound basis of affection, congenial tastes and comradeship are often happier than those whose mutually ardent devotion was like an idyll culled from the pages of some romantic novel.

And the reason of this? Well, that is not hard to find.

The first-named pair hoped and believed that all would go well; but they were quite prepared to find in each other the normal faults of normal human temperaments, while the others permitted themselves to anticipate nothing less than a dream of rapturous bliss.

Angelina knew that Edwin would be always true, always tender, always generous, always forbearing; that if the dinner was spoiled he would only condole instead of growl, and that he would still remain, the devoted lover throughout all the trials of domestic life.

She knew all this; while he in turn felt absolutely convinced that his adored bride would be just as sweet and gentle and sympathetic and admiring as the adored sweetheart had been, and that she would never be impatient, never cross with over-fatigue, never exacting, never extravagant, and would never display any of those regrettable attributes which were so often observable in other men's wives.

And the result of all this tender belief, this unwise expectation of the impossible?

Why that before six months had passed, Edwin and Angelina were both sad with that most acute of sorrows—the sadness of disillusioned beliefs.

WEST END GREENHOUSES UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

An Experienced Florist From Toronto Will Now Superintend the Practical Work—Mr. G. Walter Green, Proprietor.

The attention of all interested is directed to the announcement in another column regarding the West-end Greenhouses, located at 547 Park street. By the purchase of the beautiful residential property known as "Cordah," the new owner, Mr. G. Walter Green, became the proprietor of the West-End greenhouses. These greenhouses formed part of the property, and at the time of purchase were under lease to Mr. Blade. This lease having expired last month, Mr. Green decided to manage the greenhouses himself in future. The services of an experienced florist have been secured to superintend the practical work, Mr. W. C. Mead, of Toronto. The process of renewing and invigorating the growing facilities of these extensive greenhouses has been initiated. An entirely modern system has been introduced for the higher cultivation of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, begonias and rare flowering and foliage plants have been introduced. Better stock and more of it is the design of the new management.

It will also be noted that special attention is to be given to the prompt supply of floral emblems, etc., for weddings, funerals and other occasions. A down-town agency has also been arranged for at Messrs. White & Gillespie's grocery, where orders will have careful attention.

THE BURDEN BEARER

"I'll lay my burden at His feet,
And bear a song away."

Over the narrow pathway
That led from my lonely door,
I went with a thought of the Master,
As oft I had walked before;
But my heart was heavily laden,
And with tears my eyes were dim,
But I knew I should lose my burden,
Could I get a glimpse of Him.

Oh, friend! if the greater burden
His Love can make so light,
Why should His wonderful goodness
Our halting credence slight?
The little, sharp vexations,
The briars that catch and fret—
Shall we not take them to the Helper
Who never failed us yet?

Tell Him about the heartache,
And tell Him the longings, too,
Tell Him the baffled purpose,
When we scarce know what to do;
Then leaving all our weakness
With the One divinely strong,
Forget that we bore the burden
And carry away the song.

Margaret E. Sangster.

DOES HUSBAND OR WIFE HAVE MORE GOOD TIMES?

They say that in the good old days, before marriage had come to be discussed in the light of a "failure," no one ever dreamed of suggesting that the husband got all the halfpence, whilst the wife, metaphorically, had nothing save the kicks and pinpricks of matrimony.

The varied trials and crosses that come into every married life were accepted as matters of course, and to have suggested to some sweet young great-grandmamma, in the days ere she was a great grand-mamma, that her lord and master had the "best" of life, would have filled her with equal amasement and horror.

"Appetite comes in eating," say the French. And assuredly the talking and writing indulged in on the subject of matrimonial jars increases them to an astonishing extent. The mere acknowledgment of the tiny pinpricks magnifies them, to say nothing of the desecration of the dear old loyalty that washed (if there was any to wash) its dirty linen at home, and turned a smiling and unruffled face toward the cold criticism of the world.

Apart from Nature having elected to handicap the fairer sex in a physical sense—an injury that even the most discontented New Woman must surely recognize the futility of railing against, more especially since, without an effort on her own part, it obtains countless concessions from the opposite sex—apart from this one immense superiority of man—and wherein lies the "best" that husbands in general are said to enjoy?

A freer, more diversified life? Undoubtedly; but, in nine cases out of ten, the woman who so bitterly complains of the monotony of her life is largely herself to blame. She has laid herself—a willing sacrifice—upon the altar of home and children, and then grumbles when the sacrifice is unthinkingly accepted!

A useless sacrifice, of health, brightness, and, alas! good temper. The most tiresome of children, the most carefully-kept house, need not absorb every working minute. Time can, and should, be made for the reading of papers and books, the taking of a daily walk, and Saturday afternoon together in the park—even an occasional concert or a new play is possible with a little contrivance, and some good-natured soul to mind the chicks.

Paradoxical as it may sound, womanly unselfishness is at the root of much married trouble. The wife lays upon her slender shoulders more than any one pair can carry, and, when she falls beneath the unreasonable load, blames Providence and the marriage state, grows discontented, sharp tempered, and is actually a less desirable wife and mother than a more commonsensical, if selfish, sister, who lives up to the belief that all work and no play makes Jill an exceedingly dull and morbid creature.

Activity In Labour Circles Reported From Peterborough

The Labour Gazette for September contains the following report for conditions in Peterborough during the month of August as contributed by the local correspondent, Mr. J. Arthur Sharp.

Active conditions prevailed in the labour market during August, the building trades being as brisk as last month. The Peterborough Lumber Company is building a new sawmill in place of the one destroyed last month by fire; it will cost about $25,000. The city is about to build a bridge across the Otonabee river at Smith street. Work on the erection of the waterworks dam has been commenced; a large number of men are at work installing machinery for handling the concrete. Mr. James Bogue has received the contract for grading and sodding the Peterborough drill hall. W. Hickey and Sons are building a new steamer at No. 6 lock, for use at Fenelon Falls. The factories were all busy; the Canadian Electric Company was working some of the departments until ten o'clock at night. Merchants reported business very good.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture.—The condition of all crops is very promising, and prospects are bright for an abundant harvest. With very few exceptions the farmers were well supplied with help.

Lumbering.—The lumber mills were very busy, and big cuts are expected. The Peterborough Lumber Company expects to be running night and day as soon as it gets its new machinery properly installed.

Manufacturing.—All branches were very busy.

Condition of Particular Trades

The building trades were all busy. Moulders and coremakers had a good month, and machinists were busy, with woodworkers active. Pattern makers also had a good month. Printers and tailors had a good month, and bakers and confectioners reported business very good. Cigarmakers reported a slight improvement over last month, but on the whole trade was not good. Railroad employees were very busy, also steamboat men, teamsters and expressmen. Unskilled labour was very active.

HISTORIC BRITISH FIRM INVADES CANADA

The Manufacturers of "Oxo" of London, England, Opening in Toronto and Montreal.

Canada is beginning to assume striking proportions in the eyes of British capitalists and business men. They are realizing that here is a tremendous, rapidly growing and friendly market, and many of the more progressive firms of the Motherland are hastening to establish themselves here.

One of the latest is the "Oxo" concern, whose head offices are in London, Eng., but whose operations extend over a good share of the civilized world. For nearly half a century they have been building up an enormous business in their concentrated beef food, "Oxo," and they now propose to add Canada to their conquests.

At first sight it seems like "Carrying coals to Newcastle" for a British firm to import concentrated beef into Canada, when we supply them with a good share of the prime roast beef which appears on their tables. But, on the one hand, notwithstanding the plentiful supply of beef, the preparation of such foods as "Oxo" is practically unknown in Canada, and on the other hand the "Oxo" is practically unknown in Canada, and on the other hand the "Oxo" people do not depend on British grown cattle for their supply. If they did the tight little isle would quickly be stripped of its bovine population.

When they began operations, away back in 1865, they adopted the rather daring policy of establishing great cattle farms in those distant countries where pasture was richest and the climate most favourable for rearing great herds of the healthiest cattle. Their first big ranch was on the River Plate, in South America. There they found conditions ideal, and there they now have millions of acres of pasturage, and more than a quarter of a million of the finest cattle in the world.

This is the source of supply of "Oxo," which Canadians are now to have a chance to enjoy.

WHEW, HOW I HATE HEAT! SAY MR. AND MRS. FAT

Is it any wonder that the fat people hate hot weather? If your heart and lungs and stomach were bound around with layer after layer of false flesh that gave out a terrible unnatural heat and that interfered with their normal functions you would understand the aversion of fat people to hot weather. There is absolutely no reason for fat people staying fat in the age of triumph. We do not advise drugging yourself, dieting, or exercising yourself to death, but there is a method that has been proven successful. It is the famous Marmola tablets which do the work of removing fat exactly like nature intends it should be done. They stop the digestive organs from producing fat. They seek out the fat as it lies around the body and remove it at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. These little tablets are made from the great Marmola prescription, and compressed into hard tablets by tremendous power. You may carry one in your pocket, and always eat a meal in peace of mind, for you know that the tablet will get you the best results from such a meal. These tablets contain nothing but Marmola, Cascara Aromatic and Peppermint Water, but they do their work so pleasantly, harmlessly, and so fast that you will be surprised. They are sold by every druggist, price 75 cents per case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Department 833, Detroit, Mich.

PHYSICIANS WHO KNOW RECOMMEND ALGONQUIN PARK

Many people have chosen resorts by the sea for their vacation this summer, others the mountains, and many inland waters of the "Highlands of Ontario," for that much needed rest that one should take at least once every twelve months. In many cases the desired haven was found, but in others, the more fashionable resorts did not give the restful quiet which in most cases is needed and return to the office with only half the good accomplished. There is one place, however, which offers unlimited inducements to those whose health is run down, or those who are in need of relaxation from worry and work. This place is known as the Algonquin National Park of Ontario, situated 205 miles north of the City of Toronto and 168 miles west of Ottawa. Here the conditions are ideal. The altitude at the Park Station, your objective point, is 17,000 feet above the sea level. The "Highland Inn," built for the accommodation of 100 people on a bluff overlooking Cache Lake is a comfortable hotel set on one of the beauty spots of this charming reserve.

Modern plumbing with bathrooms with hot and cold water, large bright sleeping rooms, cosy lounging rooms with large bright open fire places, are a few of the special features. The "Inn" is also heated by furnace.

The months of October and November are ideal in this locality and a sojourn there is recommended.

Had No Time For Anything But Work

Wife Seeking Divorce Presents a Schedule of How Her Hours Were Occupied.

SPOKANE, Wash., September 24. — Mrs. Maries Mann, wife of John Lester Mann, a bonanza wheat rancher in Spokane Co., states in her petition for divorce, filed in the Superior Court here, that the routine for her four years of married life left no time for visiting relatives or neighbors, to say nothing of bridge, whist or music. Her complaint in brief, presents the appended schedule of duties:

Rise at 4 o'clock a.m.

Exercise with a cross-cut saw on a pile of logs.

Get breakfast for a threshing crew of 30 men, each possessed of a healthy appetite.

After breakfast the schedule is:

Plant or dig potatoes and do chores.

Clean the barn and chop wood for the cook stove.

Load several waggons with sacked grain to take to market.

Cook dinner for 30 threshermen, with appetites as mentioned.

Afternoon recreation is thus set forth:

Butcher hogs and make sausage.

Chores and wood chopping, also milking a dozen cows.

Prepare supper for the same crew of hungry harvesters and clean the house.

Evening at home:

Darn socks, make bread and do other work till 12 o'clock p.m. Bed on a pallet of straw on the floor of the cook house.

The complaint closes with the declaration that Mrs. Mann was literally forced by her husband to perform the tasks mentioned in the foregoing, alleging also that when she was too sick to work he refused to permit her to go to her mother's home.

Mann declines to talk about the charges preferred by his wife. He has not engaged counsel to defend the action.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

If one thing more than another is brought out by the result of the recent Exhibition in this city it is that the grounds should be acquired as speedily as possible as a permanent asset of the Corporation. There are thirty-one acres of land in the property, and it is estimated that if another site was procured it would take from $3,000 to $5,000 to erect buildings as extensive as those now in existence on the grounds. The half-mile track cost $1,500 to make and is acknowledged to be one of the best half-mile tracks in Canada. Finally, the situation is an excellent one, far superior to any other that has been put forward as a substitute. Two years ago this property was offered to the city for $15,000. That offer was refused. To-day the price asked is $30,000. In two years from now the lease falls in, and Heaven alone knows what the price might be raised to then. We venture to predict that if the grounds were purchased for the people and handed to a Commission to operate, it would not only encourage the directors, who do a lot of work for the Exhibition without any charge, but it would be found that instead of their asking for a contribution from the City Council each year they would be able to increase the revenue of the City with whatever surplus they could spare after paying for the interest on the investment, and by setting aside a sufficient sum for improvements, would put the Exhibition on a basis with the Water Works, which has proven to be one of the best investments that the citizens possess. As an asset to the City the Exhibition is a valuable one, as it induces people to come in from outside, who must be accommodated while they are visiting us. This naturally circulates money and everybody enjoys the benefit thereof.

Football is one of the most interesting and fascinating of all games. Those of us who have had our day in athletics can well remember with what eagerness we used to don uniforms and sally forth to the field to do battle for our school or college. What days of enjoyment they were, and with what pride we still cherish the memories of the triumphant runs and kicks with which we occasionally helped our teams to victory. But there are some who can see no good in football. The very mention of the game provokes their wrath. They stigmatize it as more brutal than prize-fighting, and fit only as a pastime for savages. There might have been a certain amount of force in such a stricture in the days of the true Rugby game, when hacking and tripping were allowed, and a man was liable to have his nose loosened and ears elongated if he wouldn't "have down." But in these days, when in obedience to the dictates of safety players go on the field arrayed somewhat like Yeomen of the Guard in padded knickers and panoplied with nose guards, ear guards, hair protectors, chest protectors, and shin-protectors, it seems to us that the stricture is somewhat inapplicable.

Rugby, in fact, as played to-day, is one of the safest and healthiest of games, and should be encouraged by all who have a desire to help the rising generation on the road to physical perfection.

A letter appeared in the Examiner this week from a gentleman, complaining of the number of young men to be seen loitering at night in the shop entrances along George street, and calling upon the police to take steps towards mitigating the evil. The inference to be taken from the letter was that a considerable amount of insulting language was indulged in by these habitues of the doorways. In every large community there will be found a certain number of young men, who take their chief pleasure in insulting women by voice or gesture. But these are humanity's hogs, and Peterborough, it can be honestly stated, does not possess many of them. It has a few, however, and it is a pity that these few should so tincture the whole mass as to call forth so strong a condemnation of the whole lounging fraternity.

We heard a very sensible suggestion made a day or so ago, in regard to a deviation in a portion of the street car route, which we respectfully commend to the notice of the Peterborough Street Railway Company, and of the aldermen of Peterborough. The jog in the line on Crescent street has always been a source of annoyance to those going to or coming from funerals at the Little Lake cemetery. Now that George street has been opened up right through to Lansdowne street, why could not the Company take up their line on that part of Crescent street from Lake street to Romaine, and continue the line down George street to Lansdowne, then along Lansdowne to Crescent, and south to the river? Coming back the railway could follow Crescent street, as far as Romaine, and then westerly on Romaine to George. This change in the route would also have the additional advantage of giving patrons of the Driving Park much better accommodation than they are accorded under present conditions. The plan seems well worthy of adoption.

Those engaged in the active pursuit of journalism are often brought face to face with incongruities of expression from their newspaper contributors. Sometimes, however, these are not so startling as the eccentric habit in which certain writers indulge, of parting their sentences in the wrong places, or placing words at ends of lines that presumably finish the sentence. These may be termed "interrupted sentences." Two stories will act as illustrations. A doctor once procured a certain amount of custom for an aerated water company, by recommending it to his friends. He acted solely in the interests of his friends and expected no recompense from the Company. To his surprise he received an effusive letter one morning from them, saying that his recommendations had done them so much good that they "ventured to send him a hundred.—Here the page came to an end. "This will never do," said the Doctor, "it is very kind, but I could not think of accepting anything." He turned the page and found the sentence ran—"of our circulars for distribution."

A wife gave her husband a sealed letter, begging him not to open it till he got to his office. When he did so he read:

"I am forced to tell you something that I know will trouble you, but it is my duty to do so. I am determined you shall know it, let the result be what it may. I have known for a week that it was coming, but kept it to myself until to-day, when it has reached a crisis, and I cannot keep it any longer. You must not censure me too harshly, for you must reap the results as well as myself. I do hope it won't crush you.". Here he turned the page, his hair slowly rising: "The coal is all used up. Please have some sent this afternoon. I thought by this method you would not forget it." He didn't.

RHEUMATISM DRIVEN FROM THE BLOOD

A Remedy Which Assists Nature Makes a Cure Which is Permanent as This Case Proves.

Every sufferer from rheumatism wants to be cured and to stay cured. The prospect of the frequent return of the trouble is not attractive to anybody who has gone through one siege. Most treatments aim simply to "keep down" the rheumatic poisons of the blood. The tonic treatment by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has proved by hundreds of cures that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out these poisons through the regular channels of excretion—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin. When this is done the rheumatism is permanently cured, and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be free from rheumatism. Mr. Thomas McNeil, Richibucto, N. B., says:—"Permit me to hear testimony to the worth of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a cure for acute rheumatism. My son, Frederick, was subject to this painful trouble for a period of eight or ten years, and during this time periodical attacks would regularly occur. His last attack was a most severe one, and the pains were excrutiating in the extreme, shooting through the various parts of the body to such an extent that even the approach of any person would cause him to cry out with fear, and he had rest neither day nor night. Our family doctor, a man of experience and skill, applied many remedies without avail, and could give no encouragement other than that the warmer weather then approaching might prove beneficial. Just at this time we noticed where some person similarly afflicted had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. He kept on using the pills, each succeeding box showing improvement, until he had taken ten boxes, when all pains and aches had completely disappeared, and although his mode of life is that of a fisherman, and consequently exposed to both wet and cold, he has had no return of any of the symptoms whatever. The cure is complete and is entirely due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADIAN SPRUCE FOR CANADIAN MILLS

The latest commendation of Sir Lomer Gouin's proposal to place an embargo on the exportation of pulpwood cut on Quebec Crown lands comes from the Council of the Montreal Board of Trade. One after another, the leading commercial organizations of the country are putting the stamp of their approval on it. Most of them, indeed, go farther and declare themselves in favour of a Dominion restriction upon the exportation of the raw food. At the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, held in Hamilton last week, a resolution was passed calling for the retention of our own industries. A similar resolution was passed at the recent annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, a body whose constituents are the local Board's of Trade of the Maritime Provinces.

Formerly there was a considerable force of opposition to the idea of withholding our pulpwood from the United States. Conditions have changed in such a way as to cause much of this opposition to disappear. When the farmers of the Eastern Townships of Quebec and of other portions of that province convenient to the United States were most adverse to proposed measures of restriction, the price will henceforth be reasonably high. Whoever makes it, or whether it is made, there will have to be at least as much pulp manufactured as ever. If the closonig off of pulpwood supplies from Canada causes a shutting down of pulp and paper mills in the United States, the owners of these mills or other persons of enterprise will establish similar works, of at least equal total capacity, on this side of the line. What happened when Ontario placed an embargo on its sawlogs will have its analogy in our pulp and paper industry if we deprive the United States of its privilege of drawing pulpwood from this country. It is not unlikely that other timbered provinces, such as New Brunswick, and British Columbia, will follow the example of Ontario, as Quebec is about to do. If so, our neighbours will be put at a great disadvantage for continuing the expansion of their pulp and paper industries.

But a Dominion pulpwood policy is not the sum ofo the several provinces' pulpwood policies. After the provinces have done all they can do for the retention of the raw pulpwood for the use of our own industries, there will still be great Canadian sources upon which our neighbours can freely draw for the raw material of their pulp-making industry. All the private lands upon which timber grows will be exempt from the provincial checks upon exportation. To put an effectual stop to the supplying of Canadian pulpwood to United States mills action by the Dominion Government is necessary.—Mail and Empire.

Tuberculosis May Vanish In 40 Years

Expert Declares That Airy Homes, Schools and Shops Will Banish It In Two Generations.

EDINBURGH, September 24.—Everything points to the early and final disappearance of tuberculosis in civilised countries, according to Prof. R. W. Philip, who, in an address before the British Medical Association has just given his reasons therefor. The diminution of consumption, he says, can be accomplished within a generation or two by a concerted movement towards educating the public.

Recent widespread investigation, Philip says, point to one fact of supreme significance not hitherto recognized—namely that tuberculosis is commonly contracted in childhood. Therefore it must be prevented from attacking young children. Milk, he says, is not the usual cause, notwithstanding the popular notion to the contrary. The real agent is the relatively airless condition of home and school life. Thus tuberculosis is not only to be credited with a much greater proportion of mortality in childhood than is generally supposed, but is largely responsible for the aggravated manifestations of otherwise simple complaints.

Philip agrees with Dr. Mary Wollencroft of New York and her co-investigators that tuberculosis is far more prevalent than health statistics indicate. Concerted action is therefore necessary to put homes, schools, factories and shops under sanitary control. Sufficient air is preventive as well as a curative agent. Of tuberculin, he says it is good only in light cases of consumption or in the early stages. When the system becomes laden with the tuberculous toxins the addition of tuberculin only makes the patient worse.

Treatment of individual patients, Philip says, must give way to or be supplemented by concerted action towards preventing the airless conditions which breed the disease. The main object is more air for young lungs in the large cities, in the congested tenement districts. Air creates appetite. Appetite creates or restores health. Health resists disease.

SENTENCE IS DEATH

Woman Who Killed Babes to Conceal Husband's Crime Is Sentenced to Hang on November 24 — Jurors Twice Acquitted on Grounds of Temporary Insanity, But Were Sent Back to Reconsider.

Sudbury, Sept. 25.—Mrs. James Robinson of Warren, who murdered the infant born to her own daughter Jessie, because of her husband's infamy, was sentenced by His Lordship Justice Magee last night to be hanged on the 24th day of November at 8 a.m., in the district of Sudbury.

When asked by the judge if she had anything to say before sentence was passed upon her, she broke out, in sobs, "I have not."

Immediately after the sentence, she fainted and had to be carried out of the court-room in the arms of her brother, Rev. Peter Matheson.

The Court of Appeal will, in the interval, decide on the merits of a reserve case granted after Mrs. Robinson's conviction on the first charge of slaying a child born to another daughter. The jury in this case twice voted for acquittal on grounds of temporary insanity, but were sent back by the presiding justice.

Laurier Answers Protest.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 25.—The Labor Council recently sent a telegram to Sir Wilfrid Laurier saying in part: "We will not peacefully stand for the proposed further wholesale importation of Oriental labor into this province at the behest of merciless profit-seeking railway contractors. We demand fulfilment of election promises and such as will disprove that the Government is bet the executive committee for corporate interests. Further importations will aggrevate a serious menace. We refuse to be reduced to an Oriental standard of living. Answer."

In reply, the Premier says: "Quite disregarding the offensive language; I beg to inform you that no request has been made to this Government by anybody for the importation of Asiatic labor."

Mr. Monk Explains.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—F. D. Monk, M.P., puts himself straight in connection with the claim that the Conservative leader has sacrificed the party interests in allowing the County of Montcalm to go by default, as far as the opposition are concerned.

Mr. Monk declares that he was in the fight from the start, but that every local leader in the county was opposed to it. They even opposed a contest when a friend offered to put up the deposit.

As regards party inactivity here, Mr. Monk states that the last interview he had with Mr. Borden, the leader expressed the wish that nothing should be done here before his return.

Heroic Seven-Hour Swim.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 25.—A gasoline launch caught fire on Tuesday night in Calm Channel, 100 miles north from here, and three men on board had to take to the water. The boat which was carried on the launch was filled with water, and while two clung to the gunwale one, named W. Norton, swam ahead towing it. For seven hours he bravely swam to the shore, but one of his companions gave up owing to the coldness of the water and drowned. Both survivors were badly burned on the arms and hands.

B.C. Elections This Fall.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 25.—It is understood that the Provincial Government (Conservative) will go to the country between Nov. 15 and Dec. 8. The Government will in October announce their policy of assistance to the Canadian Northern Railway to enter this province, and then go to the people for their approval of that policy.

Attorney-General Bowser and Minister of Works Taylor are leaving today on a speech-making tour of Lillooet and Cariboo, Liberal strongholds.

Bail Bonds Disappear.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Indictments charging conspiracy to corrupt the jury lists were returned by the grand jury yesterday against John J. Holland, secretary of the jury commissioners; Willis J. Rayburn, a real estate dealer, and Nicholas Martin, secretary to Ald. ("Hinky Dink") Kenna. The indicted men were arrested several days ago.

Bonds aggregating $75,000, under which the accused men have been at liberty, have disappeared. The papers were in Judge McEwen's desk, which was broken into and the bonds stolen. Two women are said to be connected with the theft.

"Therefore, be it resolved, That this congress offer up a sincere prayer that the light of common-sense may yet reach the C.M.A., and protest in the most vigorous manner against the unwarranted tactless partisanship and unprecedent action of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario in interfering as the crown's representative with the affairs of Ontario citizens, and that the proper authorities be petitioned for the removal of Hon. Mr. Gibson on the ground that his usefulness is gone."

150 Lives Lost In Storm.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 25.—Belated reports yesterday of death and destruction from Monday's hurricane in Louisiana and Mississippi show further loss of life and property. The list of dead is now over one hundred and may reach one hundred and fifty.

A four-year-old child was found lodged in the branches of a tree, having survived for three days without food or water.

Verdict In Sigel Case.

New York, Sept. 25.—Elsie Sigel, the young Chinese missionary, was strangled to death by Leon Ling, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury rendered yesterday. The girl was murdered on June 10, but the verdict has been delayed by the chemists' examination of the body. They report that the stomach contained a quantity of a drug known as Ergot, but this did not alter the jury's verdict.

Fooled the Pipers.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—Lord Strathcona, who was to sail from Quebec yesterday morning on the Empress of Ireland, changed his mind at the last moment and left last night by the Intercolonial train to catch the Empress at Rimouski. A number of Scotchmen, headed by the pipe band of a local regiment, were prepared to escort his lordship to the train.

Grange Willed to Toronto.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—The announcement that the magnificent property known as "The Grange," at the head of John street, is to be dedicated to the city on the death of Dr. Goldwin Smith, is one more evidence of the remarkable public spirit of Dr. Smith, and of his wife, whose death occurred a short time ago.

Cremated In Auto Wreck.

Americus, Ga., Sept. 25.—One man was burned to death, a woman instantly killed and a second woman seriously burned, when an automobile ran over an 8-foot embankment. The latter ran two miles to give the alarm.

Ogilvie Mills to Enlarge.

Winnipeg, Sept. 25.—The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. will double the capacity of the Winnipeg mills, now 4,000 barrels daily. The demand for export flour is the reason.

TO GO TO COUNTRY

Balfour's Colleagues Would Like to Force an Issue on Tariff Reform or Socialism — If Lords Reject the Budget Liberals May Win on Question of Reform of Upper House—Likely to Be Oct. 21.

London, Sept. 25.—The agents of both political parties now are convinced that a general election will take place, either in December or January, the date depending upon whether the House of Lords shall reject the budget outright, or take a more temporizing course. The House of Commons will conclude its discussion of the budget and send it to the House of Lords about October 21.

Meantime the political campaign, which is proceeding throughout the country, is approaching dimensions of a general election campaign. The Conservatives are well organized and claim to be fully prepared. With four hundred new candidates, both sides appear equally confident, but it is evident that the leaders of the Conservatives are far from agreed as to the best course to pursue.

Should the House of Lords reject the budget, it would be extremely probable that the Liberals might win on the double issue of reform of the House of Lords and the budget. For this reason the shrewd moderate men on the Conservative side are anxious to make the election struggle, as Mr. Balfour recently put it down, tariff reform versus socialism, keeping the question of the House of Lords in the background, and it is believed that Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne are in favor of the House of Lords accepting the budget, on the understanding that the Government will immediately dissolve Parliament and appeal to the country.

Blythe Again Reprieved.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Walter Blythe, twice reprieved from the death sentence, will not be hanged Friday next, the date set for his execution, and to-day his chance for the commutation of his death sentence is brighter than it yet has been since his sentence.

Yesterday the Court of Appeal directed that T. C. Robinette, K.C., his counsel apply to Justice W. R. Riddell for a stated case on the ground that he should have specifically charged the jury that if, Blythe, at the time the crime was committed, was in such a state of intoxication as not to be capable of forming an intention of killing his wife that it would then be the duty of the jury to find him guilty of manslaughter and not of murder.

Hepworth Hotel Burns.

Hepworth, Sept. 25.—The Royal Hotel, an up-to-date temperance house owned and managed by J. J. Downs, was completely gutted by fire early yesterday morning. The fire is supposed to have originated in a frame cook house in the rear. R. Morrison, traveler for W. B. Sherring & Co., Winnipeg, lost his clothes, samples and $200 in cash, and got out by dropping from a side window. F. S. Clark, another traveler, crawled through his bedroom window to a baloony and then dropped. Two daughters of Mr. Downs were not missed until nearly every person was out. Their brother made a dash for their rooms, and found them overcome by the smoke, and dragged them out.

The loss is about $2,000, with small insurance.

Fed With Pumps.

London, Sept. 25.—Wild scenes are reported to have taken place in the prison at Birmingham as the result of the forcibly feeding with a stomach pump of the suffragettes who are on a hunger strike.

The women resisted the efforts of the keepers, smashed windows and assaulted the wardresses, and finally had to be handcuffed and placed in solitary confinement.

The leaders of the suffragettes here are indignant over the attempt to feed the women. They contend that forcible feeding is illegal, and intend to bring actions against the medical authorities of the prison concerned in it.

Early Is a Leper.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Dr. G. Armour Hansen, the discoverer of the leprosy baccilus, has officially announced that he found the baccilus in the skin of John Early, the North Carolina soldier whose detention here for many months attracted wide attention. When taken to New York some months ago, Early was declared by physicians to be a healthy man.

Gen. Hubbard and Peary's Records.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 25.—"I have read the records submitted by Commander Peary on the question 'Has Cook been at the pole?' and found in them much that Dr. Cook has not stated and they are very interesting."

Gen. Thomas Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic Club, made this statement yesterday.

Bank Clerk Wounded.

Woodstock, Sept. 25.—Erwell McNeill, a young bank clerk, employed in the Traders' Bank at Embro, was brought to Woodstock Hospital yesterday suffering from what may prove a fatal revolver shot wound in the stomach. He was examining a revolver in his room over the bank when it was accidentally discharged.

Mr. Lucas Will Go.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Hon. I. B. Lucas will represent the Government at the laying of the corner-stones of the new legislative buildings at Edmonton, Alberta, and Regina, Saskatchewan on Oct. 1 and 4.

Last of the Albinos Dead.

Kansas City, Sept. 25.—Joseph Lucasa, the last member of the first family of Albinos to be exhibited in America, died at the general hospital here yesterday. Lucasa and his parents and sister were brought to America from Holland by P. T. Barnum.

The flat races were all the regulation $500 purses. The weather, threatening with intermittent rain, did not keep the people away who desired to make up for Thursday. Spanish-Moroccan Complications.

Madrid, Sept. 25.—It is generally believed here that the complications which have arisen between Spain and Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of Morocco, are likely to result in a Spanish-Moroccan war, as distinct from the present conflict with Moorish tribesmen.

Spain to-day has over 60,000 troops in Northern Africa, with 11,000 more mobilizing for service there, and the Government feels that only the brilliant completion of the work begun can defeat the plans of political enemies at home. Bomb explosions on the streets of Barcelona are almost of daily occurrence.

Mulai Hafid recently despatched a note to the powers protesting against Spain's course of action in the Riff country, declaring it to be contrary to the terms of the Algeciras agreement, and asking for intervention by the powers. Spain demanded that this note be withdrawn, but Morocco insisted that the appeal stand.

Mother Finds Daughter.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 25.—"I will never go home, I will commit suicide first," said pretty 17-year-old Mabel Jobe, with tears streaming down her cheeks Thursday night, after being taken to police headquarters on a charge of vagrancy, the warrant for her arrest having been sworn out by her mother.

The girl resides with her mother in Peterboro, Ont., and came to this city some time ago to accept a position in a paper box factory.

The girl's mother came to Rochester Thursday to get her daughter to return to her home in Canada, and again take up work as a domestic. This the girl refused to do, and as a result the warrant was sworn out for her arrest.

Dufferin County Fair.

Orangeville, Ont., Sept. 25.—The Dufferin Agricultural Society held the annual fair here yesterday and, in spite of the rain, a large crowd was out. The exhibits in the main hall were exceptionally good, especially the art and fancy goods. The live stock show was excellent. W. H. Hunter's cattle, which carried off many prizes at the Toronto Exhibition, being among the number.

Hon. Mr. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, opened the fair, and delivered an address in which he entirely won the hearts of Dufferin tillers of the soil. In the evening a splendid concert was given in the town hall, at which Mr. Duff again spoke.

DETROIT OR PHILADELPHIA—WHICH TEAM WILL WIN THE FLAG?

Tip Wright Sees Two Teams in Their Final Tremendous Series, and Picks Connie Mack's as Strongest Club.

By Tip Wright

Detroit or Philadelphia—who will win? Which will defend the honour of the American League in the world's series?

With Connie Mack's great bunch of brainy youngsters and Hughey Jennings' hard hitting Tigers in a tremendous fighting finish, I went to Philadelphia to try to pick the winner.

After seeing the two teams in their last great series at Philadelphia my tip is that in spite of Detroit's lead, Philadelphia has still more than a fighting chance to capture the flag.

Here are my reasons:

Detroit is on the road, with New York, Boston and Washington to play. The Athletics are coming down the home stretch upon their own stamping ground. And this is a big advantage if anyone questions you. The Athletics will meet the soft western clubs.

It's a copper riveted cinch that both New York and Boston will play their heads off to nip the champions. Both teams have shown that they can win with alarming frequency at home.

What Washington will do is an open question. I don't believe this talk of teams laying down to each other, which has been heard at odd times, but I do believe Washington would like to see Detroit win, while both Boston and New York prefer the Athletics as champions.

Detroit has not made much noise in the east this season. The first trip was an even break, but the second was disastrous. I think this one will be also. On the other hand the Athletics have won a majority of the games played at home.

You can't put much reliance in "dope" when figuring base ball, but right now the Athletics line up is better than the Tigers. They are fortified by being able to play either right or left handed hitters when necessary. Against left-handed pitchers Connie Mack can send in a bunch of right-hand batters, whose clouting ability discounts the southpaw's advantage. Against right handers he can shift and use left-handed batters, which is another advantage.

Then too, Mack has it on Jennings in pitchers. The Detroit corps has been overworked and for some time Jennings has depended more upon the defensive ability of his infield and outfield than upon great twirling. He has let his great batteries and base runners win his games.

There is no denying the Detroit team is a hard hitting, fast running outfit. And they are game. They come up from behind and will oftener than any other team in the American league. But, keep Cobb off the bases, and they are easy to beat. It is upon this theory the Athletics played them, and the other eastern teams will follow the plan unless I am mistaken.

"Bend every effort to head off Cobb," seems to have been flashed through the east.

The Tigers have nothing on the Athletics save in base running. The teams are evenly matched in batting. The Athletics have the best of the pitching proposition, and also of the backstopping. Both have a brilliant fielding defence and it would be hard to make a choice in this respect. But on the bases Detroit shines. Cobb, Moriarty, Bush and McIntyre are liable to score every time they reach first. All they need is an excuse.

It is because I am confident that the at-home series of the Athletics gives them such an advantage that I favour them for the pennant. Should Detroit win every remaining game on the trip, they will grab the flag, no matter how hard the Athletics play or how many games they win. But I don't think the Tigers can do this. They are travelling fast, but are being driven by the indefatigable Jennings at a faster pace, I think, than they can hold.

If the Tigers do go ahead and grab oo every game in the face of the opposition they are sure to meet with, it's hats off to the gamest, fastest, hardest-fighting outfit that ever chased a pennant.

CONNIE SAYS.

Well, baseball is a funny proposition. Why shouldn't I claim the pennant before the season is over? Naturally I believe the Athletics are the best team in the American League. We are going splendidly. I have brainy players, and you know brains mean a lot when they are used. Remember this when the fight really gets hot. It's only lukewarm now. My team is in splendid condition for a fast finish. I think the team is best because it is better balanced, has brains, always has something in reserve, and plas a good inside game. I am fortunate in having men who can jump in and play any position when called upon.

HUGHEY SAYS.

Why shouldn't we win? I don't see anything in the east to scare us, do you? My boys are game. They are never defeated until the game is over. They couldn't spell quit if they wanted to. Never mind about the pitchers. They'll travel on their nerve if necessary. I don't say we will win the pennant, but I do say we will not quit until the race is decided. I have the best team because I have the gamest team.

CRIMSON COACH

HEAD COACH PERCY HAUGHTON

Isn't it a fine old dome for a football coach? Such a lovely skating rink for flies and things. Add the frown and Percy is quite a fierce proposition, isn't he?

Imagine the small boys yelling "Oh, you Percy!" when Haughton appears in sweater and moleskins to teach the young idea how to puncture the Yale armour plate.

With a team which last season won the championship of the east and pulled down the Yale bulldog, Haughton has his work cut out for him, to develop another team equally as good this year.

Twelve Years In Penitentiary.

Hamilton, Sept. 25.—Twelve years in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence given David Irvine by Judge Monck, who was found guilty of assaulting and attempting to rob Fred Porteous. Mark Tomkins, captured at the time of the assault, is now doing a ten-years' term. The judge said he thought Irvine deserved more, because Tomkins had attempted to lead an honest life until led astray by Irvine, and in addition, Irvine had assaulted a crown witness in court. Although not an old man, the judge said that Irvine had spent 25 years in prison. Irvine attempted to correct this remark, but the judge paid no attention. The prisoner took his sentence gamely.

Beat the Inflexible.

New York, Sept. 25.—The passengers on the steamer Lusitania, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool and Queenstown, were treated to an inspiring sight Thursday afternoon when at four o'clock the ocean liner overtook the British battleship Inflexible, the flagship of the British vessels here to take part in the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The war vessel manned her decks and the band played British and American national anthems, while the Lusitania's passengers cheered.

The Lusitania left the Inflexible astern after two hours' steaming side by side, and arrived at the Ambrose lightship at 9.57 Thursday night.

Two Prisoners Escape.

Two men were run down and killed by trains while walking on the tracks. An Italian employe of the C.P.R., Tony Federoink, was killed near Donald, and the body of an unknown man was picked up near Sturgeon Falls.

COMMISSION IN TORONTO.

West Indies Trade Inquiry Will Open on Monday.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—With the object of promoting trade between Canada, Great Britain and the West Indies, the Royal Commission appointed by the British Government arrived in Toronto yesterday.

The members of the commission are: Lord Balfour of Burleigh (chairman), Hon. George Gordon, Sir J. Poynder Dickson-Poynder, M.P.; Sir Daniel Morris, imperial commission West Indian Agricultural department; Hon. Wm. Paterson, Minister of Customs; Hon. Wm. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance; R. H. McCarthy.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh is no novice at the work he has undertaken. He has served in a similar capacity in connection with economic enquiries, and in 1903 presided over a commission appointed to consider the important question of keeping the people of the British Isles supplied with food in war time.

Discussing the work of the commission yesterday Lord Balfour said they hardly had time to measure the difficulties before them. The meeting at Ottawa was in the nature of a conference with the Government. "Our first meeting for business will be held on Monday when we desire to get from the manufacturers and merchants of Toronto all the information we can," he observed.

Cook Meets Huntington.

New York, Sept. 25.—For the first time since his arrival here, Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, took into his confidence yesterday, one of the leading American geographical authorities, Archer M. Huntington, president of the American geographical society, with whom he had an hour's private conference.

Dr. Huntington refused to comment on the meeting, but Dr. Cook's friends announced that just before his departure, he had expressed perfect confidence in the statements of the explorer.

Most of Dr. Cook's waking hours yesterday were devoted to preparing the literary steps which lead to the lecture platform, which he will mount next Monday at the Carnegie Institute.

Union Thanksgiving Service.

Sudbury, Sept. 25.—At a meeting of the Town Council, a deputation of clergymen from the English, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches, presented a proposal that the citizens should celebrate Thanksgiving Day in service en masse in a purely non-sectarian manner. It was proposed that the opera house be secured and a prominent public speaker invited—Premier Whitney was suggested.

Lumbermen Are Scarce.

Fort William, Sept. 25.—Employment agents say indications are not wanting that there will be more timber cut in this district this winter than for several seasons past. Largely owing to the fact that numbers of bushmen during the recent lull in their line, entered upon other vocations, there is more or less of a dearth of expert timber men in the district.

Lightning Scared Students.

Kingston, Sept. 25.—Students writing on examinations in Queen's University on Thursday were badly frightened during a rainstorm, when, after a vivid flash of lightning, a ball of fire flew through an open window, crossed the room, and smashed a window on the opposite side, shocking one student, whom it passed very closely.

Perished In Far Northwest.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—It is now almost certain that George, Caldwell, explorer, has perished in the Canadian north with the two natives who set out with him three years ago to cross Canada from Hudson's Bay to Great Slave Lake and down to Edmonton and civilization.

Your instructions are so simple and easy that I am sure if you make yourself known that your success will certainly be assured.

THE RUSH FOR PONSO

Warne's Drug Store Besieged With Crowds of Coupon Holders.

At ten o'clock this morning, the biggest crowd that has been attracted to any store in the city was congregated in and around the store of the Warne Drug Co., Limited, 435 George street.

The store was so full of people that there was no possibility of exit except through the rear of the shop, while the street pavement was jammed to a standstill. For fully three-quarters of an hour the crowd wedged into the store while pedestrians had to take to the street in order to pass.

The cause of the grush was occasioned by the appearance of an advertisement of Ponso which appeared in the Examiner during the week. Ponso is a new patent medicine possessing therapeutical properties of a special nature compounded by the Imperial Drug Company, of Buffalo, with a Canadian branch in Bridgeburg. The Company advertised to give away 200 full size bottles of Ponso free, between 10 and 11 o'clocok to-day, the only condition being that the coupon attached to the advertisement must be signed and presented at Warne's Drug Store. So successful was the advertisement that when the 200 bottles were given away, two dozen more had to be taken out of Warne & Co.'s, regular stock in order to appease the demands of the crowd still left in the store.

The distribution of the medicine was conducted by Mr. Taylor of Bridgeburg, who had a lively experience before he finished. The Warne Co. are the sole agents for Ponso in this city, and should be able to report large sales after to-day's advertising.

Rhubarb.

The rhubarb of medicine is a very different plant from that of which we eat the stalks in the form of rhubarb tart. It is smaller, with round leaves, and it is the root, not the stalk, which is valuable. At one time most of the rhubarb root came from Asia Minor. Now it is being grown in other localities.

Old Hair Men.

There are few bearded men in China. Men who have grandchildren may wear a mustache, and many take advantage of the privilege and are called "old hair men."

Work of the Bees.

It is not for the honey alone that bees are valuable, for they play an important part in the raising of fruit crops. There they perform the function of pollination and thus help to increase the apple crop.

The Sicilian Woman.

The Sicilian woman is generally illiterate and is proud of being so. In native parlance, such a one "sees with two eyes only." Those who can read are said to see with four eyes.

Bows and Arrows.

It is impossible to say when the bow was invented. It was in use long ages before there was any such thing as authentic history, and its reign was a long one. As a warlike weapon the bow lasted on in Europe all through the middle ages and well down into modern times. One of the amazing sights of the allied invasions of France in the year 1814 was that of the Cossack cavalry of Russia riding through the streets of Paris with bows and arrows.

A Costly Volume.

In these days of cheap literature it is interesting to note that 1,000 years ago the Countess of Anjou gave 200 sheep, one load of wheat, one load of rye and one load of millet for a volume of sermons written by a German monk.

Ivory.

The Kongo ivory, as indeed all African ivory, is far more highly prized than the Asiatic product. It is harder, of a finer grain, lends itself more easily to workmanship and has fewer fissures. The tusks of Kongo elephants are, as a rule, very large and weigh on an average sixty pounds. Some of them are of extraordinary size.

Cast Iron Plows.

Cast iron plows were first made in this country in 1797 and were greatly objected to from the belief that the cast iron poisoned the ground and prevented the plants from growing.

Spanish Black.

Residents of the cork regions of Spain heat the bark in kettles with spouts, through which issues a gas that is used as an illuminant. The refuse is sold as the "Spanish black" pigment.

Almighty Dollar.

The expression "almighty dollar" was first made use of by Washington Irving in his sketch a "Creole Villager" (1807)—"The almighty dollar, that great object of universal devotion throughout our land."

The Battering Ram.

The battering ram of the Romans was like the bill of a huge woodpecker, the walls of the enemy being the tree trunk. The battering ram was so called because at the end of the beam, from 60 to 100 feet long, was fastened a bronze ram's head. The beam was hung on ropes in a shed and worked by from 50 to 100 men.

The Welcome Nugget.

The Welcome nugget, one of the largest pieces of natural gold in the world, was taken from Bakery hill, Ballarat, in 1858. It was found at a depth of 180 feet. It weighed over 2,217 ounces and was sold for $52,500.

The Penguin.

A bird that walks and swims, but does not fly, is the penguin. No nests are made by penguins, but the one egg laid at a time by the mother is carried about under her absurd little wing or under her leg.

Virginia.

Captain John Smith never during his lifetime succeeded in convincing the English that Virginia was not an island. In vain he wrote home, "Virginia is no isle, as many doe imagine."

BIRTHS.

Work Begins on C.N.R.

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Next week the contractors will start building the Canadian Northern Railway line from Toronto to Trenton, a distance of 104 miles. The contract was let yesterday afternoon, but a good deal of reticence was observed at the offices of the company with regard to the details.

The name of the contractor was withheld until final papers had been signed. The amount of the contract is a matter of estimate, and it is understood the work will be proceeded with in sections.

Peary May Leave Navy.

Portland, Me., Sept. 25.—Referring to a rumor that he would resign from the navy, Commander Peary remarked: "It would be unique in the history of the country to have the discoverer of the north pole still in active service in the navy."

Two years from Oct. 26, he could retire on pension after thirty years' service.

Hypnotic Power in Animals.

An interesting instance of the hypnotic power possessed by a good many animals is given by a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald. One morning outside Elgin a blackbird was observed to be standing by the roadside, paying no heed to the footsteps of the passerby. It was gazing fixedly at four young weasels under the hedge, which were approaching in a semicircle, apparently to surround it. Just then a warning cry was heard from behind, uttered presumably by the parent weasel, and the young ones disappeared in the hedge. The bird still remained powerless and immovable, and only after repeated urging did it fly to a tree near by, when it gave forth a weak, frightened sound, as though still under the influence of the terror which had arrested its faculties.

A Mild Hint.

Two guests came to spend the evening and didn't know when to depart. The host and hostess were patient with them, very patient, but when 11, 12 and finally 1 o'clock struck the husband realized that something must be done. He was an original chap, and in his droll way he looked over at his wife and said mildly:

"My dear, hadn't we better get up to bed? Our friends may want to be going."

The Separation.

"I understand that she is separated from her husband."

"Yes."

"Oh, tell me all about it. What did she do?"

"Nothing. He died."

It Was Hard.

Hamfatter Hamlet (the actor)—That hard boiled egg gave me a headache. His Friend—You shouldn't eat hard boiled eggs. Hamfatter—I didn't eat it. A fellow hit me with it behind the ear.

The Early Drama.

The first foreign actor to play in England was Drusiano, an Italian comedian, who visited London in January, 1577.

In Shakespeare's time printed bills were stuck on posts on which the title of the play was announced, but neither the name of the author nor those of the actors.

Queen Elizabeth advised all actors to place themselves under the protection of some baron or other noble lest they be adjudged and deemed rogues and vagabonds.

Among the most famous of the first plays ever produced in England were "A Dead Man's Fortune," "Tamar Cam," "Frederick and Basilea" and "The Seven Deadly Sins."

Things Theatrical.

Katherine Kavanagh is to bring out a new play in October.

"The Winterfest," by Charles Rann Kennedy, is to be produced in Berlin.

Graham Brown, an English actor, is to play an important role in "Israel," by Henri Bernstein.

Miss Ann Murdock will appear in the cast of "A Noble Spaniard," in which Robert Edeson is to star.

A. W. Pinero has finished a new play which he calls "Midchanel," in which Ethel Barrymore is to star.

Mme. Kalich will appear in two new plays this season by Maeterlinck and Hauptmann. She has also a new play by an American author.

The Cookbook.

To mix corn bread more easily warm the bowl that it is mixed in.

Tarragon vinegar is an essential touch to a sharp salad dressing.

A little baking powder added to the flour used in making pie crust is often desirable. The proportion is half a teaspoonful to one pie.

When cooking a small roast, first sear the meat all over on a hot spider. This will immediately drive in the meat juices, and less heat will be required in the oven.

REFUSED TO ASSIST

According to Message From Harry Whitney, Peary Refused to Take the Doctor's Instruments and Books on Board the Roosevelt When He Came South — Peary's Friends Justify His Action.

New York, Sept. 27.—Commander Robert E. Peary refused absolutely to allow any of the records or instruments of Dr. Frederick A. Cook to be brought aboard the steamer Roosevelt, and was thus instrumental in causing these records to remain in a cache at Etah, Greenland, according to Harry Whitney, the New Haven sportsman, in a despatch received in this city by Dr. Cook yesterday.

Dr. Cook was questioned yesterday as to his view of the situation created by the action ascribed to Commander Peary, but he declined to say anything derogatory of his rival.

"It may be that the instruments will arrive this year after all," he said, "and as for the records and observations, their non-arrival here makes no difference whatever, as I have ample duplicates, so that there will be no delay in compiling my story with all its details."

Dr. Cook did not appear to be greatly perturbed by the news he had received from Mr. Whitney. He hopes to see him soon and hear a complete explanation of the occurrences at Etah.

Dr. Cook denied the report that he was to bring suit for slander against Peary. "There is no truth in the report," he said. "I have no intention of bringing suit. Naturally, I am taking measures to have everything in order in case of necessity; but I have never even thought of filing a suit, and I wish to contradict such reports at once."

If they are still at Etah, Dr. Cook's instruments may not arrive in New York until the spring months of 1910. There is a possibility, however, of their reaching here this year, as another vessel may have touched at Etah after the Roosevelt left.

On Saturday Cook wired Whitney, "You are at liberty to tell all you know."

Peary's Defence.

Portland, Me., Sept. 27.—It was learned from a source close to Commander Peary last night that the commander justifies his action of refusing to allow Dr. Cook's instruments, or records on board the homeward bound steamer Roosevelt on the theory that he had been aware for some time of Cook's intention to claim the discovery of the North Pole, and that Peary, therefore, would sanction nothing to aid this project.

Peary's forthcoming statement concerning Cook, it was also learned, will charge that the Brooklyn explorer cannot produce shoes, sledges or other equipment which will show the wear and tear that comes from traveling over the Arctic ice.

Cook May Bring Action.

New York, Sept. 27.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook contemplates the bringing of a suit against Commander Peary to recover damages for slander and defamation, according to friends of the Brooklyn explorer.

Dr. Cook himself had nothing to say Saturday regarding the proposed suit, but his secretary, Walter Lonsdale, admitted that the idea was seriously entertained both by Dr. Cook and by John R. Bradley, Cook's backer. He said that affidavits had already been prepared in case it was definitely decided to bring the suit.

"But certainly nothing will be done just at present in the matter," said Mr. Lonsdale, "and as a matter of fact it is doubtful if anything will ever be done unless it is in retaliation."

Abruzzi Congratulates.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Duke of Abruzzi, who led a notable Canadian Arctic expedition in 1900, on Saturday sent a message of congratulation to Commander Peary through The New York Times. The message was as follows: "Turin, Sept. 24, 1909. Commander R. E. Peary: May I congratulate you on the result of your expedition. Am very glad you have succeeded.—Abruzzi."

Spanish Troops Advance.

Larestinga, Morocco, Sept. 27.—Gen. Orozee's division advanced Saturday in the direction of Selouan, using a captive balloon to direct the movements.

The Moorish villages were set on fire by the advancing troops.

Heavy resistance was encountered at several points, but the Spanish displayed great gallantry and keeping the Moors under a rain of shells from the batteries, drove the enemy steadily back with considerable loss.

CARNIVAL A SUCCESS

Two Ancient Vessels in Fac-Simile, Hudson's Half Moon and Fulton's Clermont Parade Around the Harbor Visiting the Warships and Are Followed by Fifteen Miles of Boats—Only One Accident.

New York, Sept. 27.—The boom of guns aboard the warships in the North River awoke New York Saturday morning to the first day of the celebration, long planned and long awaited, which honors the deeds of Henry Hudson and Robert Fulton. The river that Hudson found and where Fulton set his steamboat was the place toward which the eyes of five million persons turned for the most impressive pageant that ever floated in the New York harbor.

Business was comparatively at a standstill. The Stock Exchange was closed and many of the big mercantile establishments did not open. New York abandoned itself without reserve to the spirit of the day.

The day's first spectacle was the assembling of the naval pageant in the upper bay. Between 10 and 11 o'clock the squadron of four American cruisers and five submarines assigned to escort the Half Moon and the Clermont, met in the Kildon Kull between Staten Island and the New Jersey shore. The Clermont was towed from its night anchorage to Stapleton, Staten Island, to join the Half Moon, which had spent the night off St. George, Station Island. Then, with the escort trailing to rear, the two little craft which epitomize the celebration cruised along the Brooklyn shore in sight of the spectators that blackened every street and housetop in view.

Meanwhile the rest of the parade was assembling, and when the Half Moon and the Clermont finished their round of the upper bay and sailed into the mouth of the Hudson, they fell into line. The assembling of the 500 or more boats that followed Hudson's and Fulton's craft up the river occupied the whole morning, and it was not until after one o'clock that the mass straightened out into something like procession formation.

The two little ships, once so weighty with achievement before a marveling world, and now mere toys for an older and more sophisticated civilization, made their rounds of the warships assembled to do them honor, with a thousand merchant ships and pleasure craft trailing behind them in a parade 15 miles long; saluted the national and international flags of peace; were officially received by the city and the Hudson-Fulton commission, with other visiting notables.

Their progress was marred by but one accident—a slight collision early in the morning, by which the Clermont lost a little paint and the Half Moon an anchor chain.

It is estimated that at least five million people witnessed the display.

Rich, Elopes at 64.

New York, Sept. 27.—The handicap of sixty-four years mattered not to Miss Jeanette Suffern, oldest surviving descendant of one of the oldest families in the Ramapo Valley, when Robert Hiscock, twenty-three years old, proposed marriage.

At first Miss Suffern, who is worth $1,000,000, was undecided, fearing that her neighbors in Ridgewood, N. J., would crowd the Episcopal Church during the marriage ceremony and make unkind remarks. Hiscock suggested that they elope, so the pair drove to the office of Justice of the Peace John Keep in Paterson and were wedded. Then they returned to the Ridgewood home of the bride. Saturday the couple went to Suffern, N.Y., where the aged bride maintains another home. A long honeymoon trip also is planned. Miss Saffern had held herself aloof from the townspeople and has been called eccentric. She is noted for her gifts to charity.

Labor Party's Plans.

Bristol, Sept. 27.—James Kier Hardie, member of Parliament for Merthyr-Tydvil, outlining the policy of the Laborites in the general election said on Saturday that he believed the Liberals would emerge from the conflict with a working majority.

The Laborites, he said, were confident of increased strength in the House of Commons, from 54 members to between 65 and 70, although supporting the budget.

They will follow their usual course in the election running a Laborite wherever they think they have a chance of defeating either or both of the opposing political parties.

Murdered by Pirates.

Manila, Sept. 27.—Official despatches from southern ports say it is rumored that the revenue cutter Sora has been captured by Moro pirates and the crew murdered. The authorities have been unable to secure confirmation of the rumor, although despatches have been sent to all adjacent points.

The Sora was used as a patrol boat against the Moro pirates of the Southern Archipelago in the general campaign against smuggling inaugurated by the insular government a short time ago. It was commanded by Capt. E. A. McGorty and carried a crew of fourteen, all Filipinos.

A Serious Operation.

London, Sept. 27.—George Taylor, chief opposition whip in the Canadian House of Commons, has undergone a serious operation. He is progressing as well as expected.

DUPING THE CATHOLICS

Father Roche of Chicago, Speaking In Toronto, Says Bogus Priests Are Causing Foreigners to Leave the Church — Charges Presbyterian Mission Board With Running a Vile, Villainous Paper.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—From the steps of the altar of St. Ann's Church, Rev. Dr. J. T. Roche of Chicago, who is at present assisting in the production of The Catholic Register, and is a prominent worker in connection with the Catholic Church Extension Society, denounced Protestant missionary methods, particularly of the Presbyterian Church, in the prarie provinces among the Ruthenian settlers. Among other statements he made was a most emphatic one with regard to The Ranok, the Ruthenian paper published in Winnipeg, towards the support of which he claimed the Presbyterian Mission Board contributes. Dr. Roche stated that if the same statements appearing in The Ranok with respect to Roman Catholicism were printed in English the paper publishing them would be denied the mails.

In opening his address, Dr. Roche said that about seven weeks ago Father Canning and himself, visited Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to investigate conditions. From Winnipeg they went to Sifton, the centre of one of the largest of the Ruthenian settlements. From that place they drove forty miles with a young priest who was ordained by the Ruthenian Church. The Ruthenian Church, he explained, was in communion with Rome, having the same ceremony, administering the same sacraments, and acknowledging the doctrine of the real presence, "which," he added, "has kept Christianity from falling back into paganism." He found the people true Catholics, many having suffered in their own country under the Czar and the Greek Church.

Agitators Bogus Priests.

In that forty-mile drive they saw half a dozen little churches, and the priest who accompanied them stated he was to no longer say Mass there. "Because," proceeded the speaker, "agitators have come into the country, bogus priests who have gone through some process of ordination, who worked on these people and raised the race cry by saying that the Catholic Church was trying to rob them of their race."

They found that amongst the people vile and villainous literature was being circulated. The Ranok, published at Winnipeg, and towards the support of which they had it over the signature of the president of the Presbyterian Mission Board funds were contributed, printed articles which, if they were reproduced in English in The Register, as he had intended, would render the paper liable to be denied the privilege of the mails. It was so indecent that the girls at the Catholic school refused to translate it for him. "This Ranok," he said, "as a vile, villainous indecent paper, published with the aid and support of the Presbyterian Home Missionary Society. I don't believe Presbyterians will stand for it, for among them are decent, law-abiding people."

The Catholic Church, however, had no intention of allowing her people to be taken away, and an active campaign would be carried out.

No Strike on T. & N. O.

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 27.—Enquiry at the head office of the T. & N. O. Railway here elicited the statement that the report that twenty-five employes of the railway at Cobalt station had left their work in sympathetic strike, protesting against the appointment of a new agent there, was an error, and had its origin from the fact that five employes of the station staff failed to report for duty one morning recently, but from an entirely different reason. They returned to work next day. The present agent, Mr. Herbert, is ill in bed, threatened with typhoid fever.

Andy Lubice, aged 15, of Matheson, has been missing for several days.

E. W. Kiser, a prospector, is alleged to have been seen at North Bay, accompanied by a boy, and the police are searching for him.

Rescued Eight Men.

New York, Sept. 27.—Capt. Samuel W. Bartlett of the Arctic steamer Jeanie, now at Indian Harbor, Labrador, has sent a wireless message to Secretary Bridgman of the Peary Arctic Club, saying:

"Rescued eight men belonging to the steamer Snowdrop last year at Frobisher. All well."

The despatch is confirmatory of reports already received. Chief interest in the presence of the Jeanie at Indian Harbor is centered in the fact that Harry Whitney, to whom Dr. Cook says he delivered part of his records and his instruments and related his story of reaching the Pole, is aboard.

Hamilton, Sept. 27.—The police continued their crusade against the liquor traffic in the foreign settlement Saturday night, when a squad searched 17 Imperial street and 7 Rosedale avenue, finding at the latter two dozen bottles of beer and five bottles of gin. This they seized and will prosecute the occupants.

Sentenced to Three Years.

Cobourg, Sept. 27.—Ferdinand Vansicklin was sentenced by Judge Benson to three years in penitentiary on a charge of incest. He is a farmer living in the north of Haldimand.

REFUSED TO ASSIST

According to Message From Harry Whitney, Peary Refused to Take the Doctor's Instruments and Books on Board the Roosevelt When He Came South — Peary's Friends Justify His Action.

New York, Sept. 27.—Commander Robert E. Peary refused absolutely to allow any of the records or instruments of Dr. Frederick A. Cook to be brought aboard the steamer Roosevelt, and was thus instrumental in causing these records to remain in a cache at Etah, Greenland, according to Harry Whitney, the New Haven sportsman, in a despatch received in this city by Dr. Cook yesterday.

Dr. Cook was questioned yesterday as to his view of the situation created by the action ascribed to Commander Peary, but he declined to say anything derogatory of his rival.

"It may be that the instruments will arrive this year after all," he said, "and as for the records and observations, their non-arrival here makes no difference whatever, as I have ample duplicates, so that there will be no delay in compiling my story with all its details."

Dr. Cook did not appear to be greatly perturbed by the news he had received from Mr. Whitney. He hopes to see him soon and hear a complete explanation of the occurrences at Etah.

Dr. Cook denied the report that he was to bring suit for slander against Peary. "There is no truth in the report," he said. "I have no intention of bringing suit. Naturally, I am taking measures to have everything in order in case of necessity; but I have never even thought of filing a suit, and I wish to contradict such reports at once."

If they are still at Etah, Dr. Cook's instruments may not arrive in New York until the spring months of 1910. There is a possibility, however, of their reaching here this year, as another vessel may have touched at Etah after the Roosevelt left.

On Saturday Cook wired Whitney, "You are at liberty to tell all you know."

Peary's Defence.

Portland, Me., Sept. 27.—It was learned from a source close to Commander Peary last night that the commander justifies his action of refusing to allow Dr. Cook's instruments, or records on board the homeward bound steamer Roosevelt on the theory that he had been aware for some time of Cook's intention to claim the discovery of the North Pole, and that Peary, therefore, would sanction nothing to aid this project.

Peary's forthcoming statement concerning Cook, it was also learned, will charge that the Brooklyn explorer cannot produce shoes, sledges or other equipment which will show the wear and tear that comes from traveling over the Arctic ice.

Cook May Bring Action.

New York, Sept. 27.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook contemplates the bringing of a suit against Commander Peary to recover damages for slander and defamation, according to friends of the Brooklyn explorer.

Dr. Cook himself had nothing to say Saturday regarding the proposed suit, but his secretary, Walter Lonsdale, admitted that the idea was seriously entertained both by Dr. Cook and by John R. Bradley, Cook's backer. He said that affidavits had already been prepared in case it was definitely decided to bring the suit.

"But certainly nothing will be done just at present in the matter," said Mr. Lonsdale, "and as a matter of fact it is doubtful if anything will ever be done unless it is in retaliation."

Abruzzi Congratulates.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Duke of Abruzzi, who led a notable Canadian Arctic expedition in 1900, on Saturday sent a message of congratulation to Commander Peary through The New York Times. The message was as follows: "Turin, Sept. 24, 1909. Commander R. E. Peary: May I congratulate you on the result of your expedition. Am very glad you have succeeded.—Abruzzi."

Spanish Troops Advance.

Larestinga, Morocco, Sept. 27.—Gen. Orozee's division advanced Saturday in the direction of Selouan, using a captive balloon to direct the movements.

The Moorish villages were set on fire by the advancing troops.

Heavy resistance was encountered at several points, but the Spanish displayed great gallantry and keeping the Moors under a rain of shells from the batteries, drove the enemy steadily back with considerable loss.

CARNIVAL A SUCCESS

Two Ancient Vessels in Fac-Simile, Hudson's Half Moon and Fulton's Clermont Parade Around the Harbor Visiting the Warships and Are Followed by Fifteen Miles of Boats—Only One Accident.

New York, Sept. 27.—The boom of guns aboard the warships in the North River awoke New York Saturday morning to the first day of the celebration, long planned and long awaited, which honors the deeds of Henry Hudson and Robert Fulton. The river that Hudson found and where Fulton set his steamboat was the place toward which the eyes of five million persons turned for the most impressive pageant that ever floated in the New York harbor.

Business was comparatively at a standstill. The Stock Exchange was closed and many of the big mercantile establishments did not open. New York abandoned itself without reserve to the spirit of the day.

The day's first spectacle was the assembling of the naval pageant in the upper bay. Between 10 and 11 o'clock the squadron of four American cruisers and five submarines assigned to escort the Half Moon and the Clermont, met in the Kildon Kull between Staten Island and the New Jersey shore. The Clermont was towed from its night anchorage to Stapleton, Staten Island, to join the Half Moon, which had spent the night off St. George, Station Island. Then, with the escort trailing to rear, the two little craft which epitomize the celebration cruised along the Brooklyn shore in sight of the spectators that blackened every street and housetop in view.

Meanwhile the rest of the parade was assembling, and when the Half Moon and the Clermont finished their round of the upper bay and sailed into the mouth of the Hudson, they fell into line. The assembling of the 500 or more boats that followed Hudson's and Fulton's craft up the river occupied the whole morning, and it was not until after one o'clock that the mass straightened out into something like procession formation.

The two little ships, once so weighty with achievement before a marveling world, and now mere toys for an older and more sophisticated civilization, made their rounds of the warships assembled to do them honor, with a thousand merchant ships and pleasure craft trailing behind them in a parade 15 miles long; saluted the national and international flags of peace; were officially received by the city and the Hudson-Fulton commission, with other visiting notables.

Their progress was marred by but one accident—a slight collision early in the morning, by which the Clermont lost a little paint and the Half Moon an anchor chain.

It is estimated that at least five million people witnessed the display.

Rich, Elopes at 64.

New York, Sept. 27.—The handicap of sixty-four years mattered not to Miss Jeanette Suffern, oldest surviving descendant of one of the oldest families in the Ramapo Valley, when Robert Hiscock, twenty-three years old, proposed marriage.

At first Miss Suffern, who is worth $1,000,000, was undecided, fearing that her neighbors in Ridgewood, N. J., would crowd the Episcopal Church during the marriage ceremony and make unkind remarks. Hiscock suggested that they elope, so the pair drove to the office of Justice of the Peace John Keep in Paterson and were wedded. Then they returned to the Ridgewood home of the bride. Saturday the couple went to Suffern, N.Y., where the aged bride maintains another home. A long honeymoon trip also is planned. Miss Suffern had held herself aloof from the townspeople and has been called eccentric. She is noted for her gifts to charity.

Labor Party's Plans.

Bristol, Sept. 27.—James Kier Hardie, member of Parliament for Merthyr-Tydvil, outlining the policy of the Laborites in the general election, said on Saturday that he believed the Liberals would emerge from the conflict with a working majority.

The Laborites, he said, were confident of increased strength in the House of Commons, from 54 members to between 65 and 70, although supporting the budget.

They will follow their usual course in the election running a Laborite wherever they think they have a chance of defeating either or both of the opposing political parties.

Murdered by Pirates.

Manila, Sept. 27.—Official despatches from southern ports say it is rumored that the revenue cutter Sora has been captured by Moro pirates and the crew murdered. The authorities have been unable to secure confirmation of the rumor, although despatches have been sent to all adjacent points.

The Sora was used as a patrol boat against the Moro pirates of the Southern Archipelago in the general campaign against smuggling inaugurated by the insular government a short time ago. It was commanded by Capt. E. A. McGorty and carried a crew of fourteen, all Filipinos.

A Serious Operation.

London, Sept. 27.—George Taylor, chief opposition whip in the Canadian House of Commons, has undergone a serious operation. He is progressing as well as expected.

DUPING THE CATHOLICS

Father Roche of Chicago, Speaking In Toronto, Says Bogus Priests Are Causing Foreigners to Leave the Church — Charges Presbyterian Mission Board With Running a Vile, Villainous Paper.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—From the steps of the altar of St. Ann's Church, Rev. Dr. J. T. Roche of Chicago, who is at present assisting in the production of The Catholic Register, and is a prominent worker in connection with the Catholic Church Extension Society, denounced Protestant missionary methods, particularly of the Presbyterian Church, in the prarie provinces among the Ruthenian settlers. Among other statements he made was a most emphatic one with regard to The Ranok, the Ruthenian paper published in Winnipeg, towards the support of which he claimed the Presbyterian Mission Board contributes. Dr. Roche stated that if the same statements appearing in The Ranok with respect to Roman Catholicism were printed in English the paper publishing them would be denied the mails.

In opening his address, Dr. Roche said that about seven weeks ago Father Canning and himself, visited Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to investigate conditions. From Winnipeg they went to Sifton, the centre of one of the largest of the Ruthenian settlements. From that place they drove forty miles with a young priest who was ordained by the Ruthenian Church. The Ruthenian Church, he explained, was in communion with Rome, having the same ceremony, administering the same sacraments, and acknowledging the doctrine of the real presence, "which," he added, "has kept Christianity from falling back into paganism." He found the people true Catholics, many having suffered in their own country under the Czar and the Greek Church.

Agitators Bogus Priests.

In that forty-mile drive they saw half a dozen little churches, and the priest who accompanied them stated he was to no longer say Mass there. "Because," proceeded the speaker, "agitators have come into the country, bogus priests who have gone through some process of ordination, who worked on these people and raised the race cry by saying that the Catholic Church was trying to rob them of their race."

They found that amongst the people vile and villainous literature was being circulated. The Ranok, published at Winnipeg, and towards the support of which they had it over the signature of the president of the Presbyterian Mission Board funds were contributed, printed articles which, if they were reproduced in English in The Register, as he had intended, would render the paper liable to be denied the privilege of the mails. It was so indecent that the girls at the Catholic school refused to translate it for him. "This Ranok," he said, "as a vile, villainous indecent paper, published with the aid and support of the Presbyterian Home Missionary Society. I don't believe Presbyterians will stand for it, for among them are decent, law-abiding people."

The Catholic Church, however, had no intention of allowing her people to be taken away, and an active campaign would be carried out.

No Strike on T. & N. O.

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 27.—Enquiry at the head office of the T. & N. O. Railway here elicited the statement that the report that twenty-five employes of the railway at Cobalt station had left their work in sympathetic strike, protesting against the appointment of a new agent there, was an error, and had its origin from the fact that five employes of the station staff failed to report for duty one morning recently, but from an entirely different reason. They returned to work next day. The present agent, Mr. Herbert, is ill in bed, threatened with typhoid fever.

Andy Lubice, aged 15, of Matheson, has been missing for several days.

E. W. Kiser, a prospector, is alleged to have been seen at North Bay, accompanied by a boy, and the police are searching for him.

Rescued Eight Men.

New York, Sept. 27.—Capt. Samuel W. Bartlett of the Arctic steamer Jeanie, now at Indian Harbor, Labrador, has sent a wireless message to Secretary Bridgman of the Peary Arctic Club, saying:

"Rescued eight men belonging to the steamer Snowdrop last year at Frobisher. All well."

The despatch is confirmatory of reports already received. Chief interest in the presence of the Jeanie at Indian Harbor is centered in the fact that Harry Whitney, to whom Dr. Cook says he delivered part of his records and his instruments and related his story of reaching the Pole, is aboard.

Hamilton, Sept. 27.—The police continued their crusade against the liquor traffic in the foreign settlement Saturday night, when a squad searched 17 Imperial street and 7 Rosedale avenue, finding at the latter two dozen bottles of beer and five bottles of gin. This they seized and will prosecute the occupants.

Sentenced to Three Years.

Cobourg, Sept. 27.—Ferdinand Vansicklin was sentenced by Judge Benson to three years in penitentiary on a charge of incest. He is a farmer living in the north of Maldimand.

THE Princess Virginia

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON,
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor," "Rosemary in Search of a Father." Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"His point of view to me is terrible. Oh, mother, it's useless to argue! Everything is spoiled. Of course if he knew I was Princess Virginia he would be sorry for what he had proposed, even if he thought I'd brought it on myself. But then it would be too late. Don't you understand? I valued his love because it was given to me, not the princess. If he said, 'Now I know you I can offer my right hand instead of my left to you as my wife,' that would not be the same thing at all. No; there's nothing left but to go home, and the emperor of Ilhaetia must be told that Virginia of Baumenburg-Drippe has decided not to marry. That will be our one revenge, but a pitiful one, since he'll never know that the princess who refuses his right hand and the Helen Mowbray who wouldn't take his left are one and the same. Oh, mother, I did love him so! Let us get out of this hateful house as soon as we can."

The grand duchess knew her daughter and abandoned hope. "Yes, if you will not forgive him we must go at once and save our dignity if we can," she said. "The telegram will give us our excuse. I told the baroness I had received bad news, and she asked permission to knock at my door before going to bed and inquire how I was feeling. She may come at any moment. We must say that the telegram recalls us immediately to England."

"Listen!" whispered Virginia. "I think there's some one at the door now."

Baroness von Lyndal stood aghast on hearing that she was to be deserted early in the morning by the bright particular star of her house party—after the emperor. She begged that Lady Mowbray would reconsider; that she would wire to England instead of going, or, at all events, that she would wait for one day more until Leopold's visit to Schloss Lyndalberg should be over.

In her anxiety she even failed in tact when she found arguments useless. "But the emperor?" she objected. "If you go off early in the morning before he or any one comes down, what will he think? What will he say at being cheated out of his au revoir?"

The grand duchess hesitated. But Virginia answered firmly: "I said good-by to him tonight. The emperor—will understand."

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

BREAKFAST at Schloss Lyndalberg was an informal meal under the reign of Mechtilde. Those who were sociably inclined appeared. Those who loved not their species until the day was older ate in their rooms.

Leopold had shown himself at the table each morning, however, and set the fashion. And the day after the parting in the garden he was earlier even than usual. It was easy to be early, as he had not been to bed that night, but he had an extra incentive. He could scarcely wait to see how Helen Mowbray would meet him—whether she would still be cold or whether sound advice from her mother would have made her kind.

This was his last day at Lyndalberg. By his special request no programme of entertainment had been arranged, and before coming down to breakfast Leopold had been turning over in his mind plan after plan for another chance of meeting the girl alone. He had even written a letter, but had torn it up because he was unable to say on paper what was really in his heart.

Breakfast passed, however, and when she did not appear Leopold grew restless. He did not ask for her before the others, but when he and the baroness had strolled out together on the terrace, where white peacocks spread their jewelled tails, the emperor sought some opportunity of bringing in the name that filled his thoughts.

"I see the red October lilies are opening," he said. "Miss Mowbray will be interested. She tells me there's nothing like them in England."

"Ah, she has gone just too soon!" sighed the baroness.

The emperor glanced quickly from the mass of crimson flowers to his hostess' face. "Gone?" he repeated.

"Yes," the baroness answered. "They must have reached Kronburg before this. You know, they left their companion there. Perhaps your majesty did not realize that they were leaving here quite so early?"

He turned so white under the brown tan the mountains had given that the baroness was alarmed. She had taken Virginia's words as Virginia had meant her to take them and therefore supposed that a formal farewell of some sort had been spoken. This impression did not prevent her from guessing that there must have been a misunderstanding, and she was tingling with a lively curiosity which she was obliged carefully to hide.

The romance which had been enacted under her eyes she believed to be largely of her own making, and, not being a bad hearted woman, she had grown fond of Virginia. She had e had pangs of conscience, and, though she did not see the way for a happy ending to the pretty drama, it distressed her that the curtain should go down on sadness.

"I did not know they were going at all," Leopold answered frankly, willing to sacrifice his pride for the sake of coming quickly at the truth.

"Oh," exclaimed the baroness, "I am distressed! Miss Mowbray distinctly said when I begged that they would wait, 'The emperor will understand.'"

"I do understand—now I know they have gone," he admitted. "But Miss Mowbray thinks she has some cause of complaint against me, and she's mistaken. I can't let such a mistake go uncorrected. You say they must be at Kronburg before this. Are they staying on there?"

"I'm afraid not, your majesty. They leave Kronburg for England today by the Orient express."

"Do you happen to remember at what hour the train starts?"

"I believe at 12."

Leopold pulled out his watch. It was twenty minutes past 11. Forty times sixty seconds and the girl would be gone!

The blood rushed to his face. Barring accidents, he could catch her if he ordered his motor car and left at once. But to cut short his visit at Schloss Lyndalberg would be virtually to take the world into his secret. Let him allege important state business at the capital if he chose, gossip would still say that the girl had fled; that he had pursued her. The baroness knew already. Others would chatter as if they knew. That was inevitable—if he went.

A month ago, when yielding to inclination meant humbling his pride as emperor and man, such a question would have answered itself. Now it answered itself also, the only difference being that the answer was exactly opposite to what it would have been a month earlier.

"Baroness, forgive me," he said quickly. "I must go. I can't explain."

"You need not try," she answered softly.

"Thank you a hundred times. Make everything as straight for me as you can. Say what you will. I give you carte blanche, for we're old friends, and I trust you."

"It's for me to thank your majesty. You want your motor car?"

"Yes."

"I'll telephone. Your chauffeur will have it here in six minutes. And your aid-de-camp. Will you"—

"I don't want him, thanks. I'd rather go alone."

Seven minutes later the big white motor car was at the door which was the private entrance to the emperor's suit, and the emperor was waiting for it, having forgotten all about the sable lined coat which had been a present from the czar. If it had been midwinter he would have forgotten, just the same, nor would he have known that it was cold.

There was plenty of time now to carry out his plan, which was to catch the Orient express at the Kronburg station and present himself to the Mowbrays in the train later. As to what would happen afterward, it was beyond planning, but Leopold knew that the girl had loved him, and he hoped that he would have Lady Mowbray on his side.

The only way of reaching Kronburg from Schloss Lyndalberg was by road. There was no railway connection between the two places. But the town and the castle were separated by a short eight miles, and until checked by traffic in the suburbs the sixty horse-power car could cover a mile in less than two minutes.

Unfortunately, however, police regulations were strict, and of this Leopold could not complain, as he had approved them himself. Once he was stopped and would certainly not have been allowed to proceed had he not revealed himself as the emperor, the owner of the one unnumbered car in Rhaetia. As it was, he had suffered a delay of five minutes, and just as he was congratulating himself on the goodness of his tires, which had made him no trouble for many weeks, a loud report as of a pistol shot gave warning of a puncture.

But there was not a moment to waste on repairs. Leopold drove on on the rims, only to acknowledge presently the truth of an old proverb, "The more haste the less speed."

Delayed by a torn and flapping tire, the car arrived at the big central station of Kronburg only five minutes before 12. Leopold dashed in, careless whether he were recognised or not, and was surprised at the absence of the crowd which usually throngs the platform before the departure of the most important train of the day.

"Is the Orient express late?" he asked of an inspector to whom he was but a man among other men.

"No, sir. Just on time. Went out five minutes ago."

"But it isn't due to start till 12."

"Summer time table, sir. Autumn time table takes effect today, the 1st of October. Orient express departure changed to 11:50."

An unreasoning rage against fate boiled in the emperor's breast. He ruled this country, yet everything in it seemed to conspire in a plot to wreck his dearest desires.

For a few seconds he stood speechless, feeling as if he had been dashed against a blank wall and there were no way of getting around it. Yet the seconds were but few, for Leopold was not a man of slow decisions.

His first step was to inquire the name of the town at which the Orient express stopped soonest. In three hours, he learned, it would reach Felgarde, the last station on the Rhaetian side of the frontier.

His first thought on hearing this was to engage a special and follow. But even in these days there is much red tape entangled with railway regulations in Rhaetia. It soon appeared that it would be quicker to take the next train to Felgarde, which was due to leave in half an hour and would arrive only an hour later than the Orient express.

Leopold's heart was chilled, but he shook off despondency and would not be discouraged. Telephoning to the hotel where the Mowbrays had been stopping, he learned that they had gone. Then he wrote out a telegram:

Miss Helen Mowbray, Traveling From Kronburg to Paris by Orient Express, Care of Station Master at Felgarde:

I implore you leave the train at Felgarde and wait for me. Am following in all haste. Will arrive Felgarde one hour after you and hope to find you at Leopoldhof.

So far the wording was simple. He had signified his intention and expressed his wish, which would have been more than enough to assure the accomplishment of his purpose had he been dealing with a subject. Unfortunately, however, Helen Mowbray was not a subject and had exhibited no sign of subjection. It was therefore futile to prophesy whether or no she would choose to grant his request.

Revolving the pros and cons, he was forced to conclude that she probably would not grant it—unless he had some new argument to bring forward. Yet what had he to urge that he had not already urged twice over? What could

DARE YOU EAT HEARTILY?

Or is Every Good Meal Followed By Discomfort?

So certain are we that "Little Digesters" will cure Indigestion every time—for every person—for YOU—that we will give you your money back without a word if they fail.

You can enjoy a good, hearty meal of wholesome food three times a day, if you take a tablet after each meal.

Read how "Little Digesters" cured Mr. Thody.

"For two years I suffered with Indigestion, and obtained no relief from anything I took, including several prescriptions from prominent physicians. Every meal was followed by acute pain until I feared to eat, consequently became run down for lack of nourishment. "Little Digesters" were recommended to me by a friend and I tried them with remarkable results, two boxes completely curing me. It is three months since I took any, and I have not suffered a pain, no matter how heartily I eat. I would certainly recommend them to anybody suffering with Indigestion." (Signed) E. THODY.

he say at this eleventh hour which would not only induce her to await his coming at Felgarde, but justify him in making a last appeal when he came to explain it in person?

As he stood pen in hand suddenly he found himself recalling a fairy story which he had never tired of reading in his childhood. Under the disguise of fancy it was a lesson against vacillation, and he had often said to himself as a boy that when he grew up he would not, like the prince of the story, miss a gift of the gods through weak hesitation.

The pretty legend in his mind had for a hero a young prince who went abroad to seek his fortune and received from one of the fates to whom he paid a visit three magic citrons, which he must cut open by the side of a certain fountain. He obeyed his instructions, but when from the first citron sprang an exquisite fairy maiden, demanding a drink of water, the young man lost his presence of mind. While he sat staring the lovely lady vanished, and with a second experiment it was the same. Only the third citron remained of the fate's squandered gifts, and when the prince cut it in half the maiden who appeared was so much more beautiful than her sisters that in adoring wonder he almost lost her as he had lost the others.

"My knife is on the rind of the last citron now," Leopold said to himself. "Let me not lose the one chance I have left."

Last night he had believed that there would not be room in a man's heart for more love than his held for Helen Mowbray; but, realising to the full how great was the danger of losing her, he found that his love had grown beyond reckoning.

He had thought it a sacrifice to suggest a morganatic marriage. Now a voice seemed to say in his ear: "The price you offered was not enough. Is love worth all to you or not?" And he answered: "It is worth all. I will offer all, yet not count it a sacrifice. That is love, and nothing less is love."

A white light broke before his eyes like a meteor bursting, and the voice in his ear spoke words that sent a flame through his veins.

"I will do it," he said. "Who is there among my people who will dare say 'No' to their emperor's 'Yes?' I will make a new law. I will be a law unto myself."

His face, that had been pale, was flushed. He tore up the unfinished telegram and wrote another, which he signed "Leo, the Chamois Hunter." Then, when he had handed in the message and paid, there was but just time to buy his ticket, engage a whole first class compartment for himself and dash into it before his train was due to start.

As it moved slowly out of the big station Leopold's brain rang with the noble music of his great resolve. He could see nothing, think of nothing, but that. His arms ached to clasp his love. His lips, cheated last night, already felt her kisses, for she would give them now, and she would give herself. He was treading the past of an empire underfoot in the hope of a future with her, and every throb of the engine was taking him nearer to the threshold of that future.

But such moments of supreme exaltation come rarely in a lifetime. The heart of man or woman could not beat on for long with such wild music for accompaniment, and so it was that as the moments passed the song of the emperor's blood fell to a minor key. He thought passionately of Virginia, but he thought of his country as well and tried to weigh the effect upon others of the thing that he was prepared to do. There was no one on earth whom Leopold of Rhaetia need fear, but there was one to whom he owed much, one whom it would be grievous to offend.

In his father's day one man, old even then, had built upon the foundations of a tragic past a great and prosperous nation. This man had been to Leopold what his father had never been and, without the magic power of inspiring warm affection, had instilled respect and gratitude in the breast of an enthusiastic boy.

"Poor old Von Breitstein!" the emperor sighed. "The country is his idol—the country with all the old traditions. He'll feel this break sorely. I'd spare him if I could. But I can't live my life for him."

He sighed again and looked up, frowning, at a sudden sound which meant intrusion.

Like a spirit called from the deep, there stood the chancellor at the door between Leopold's compartment and the one adjoining.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

IRON HEART was dressed in the long double breasted gray overcoat and the soft gray hat in which all snapshot photographs (no others had ever been taken) showed the chancellor of Rhaetia.

At sight of the emperor off came the famous hat, baring the bald dome of the fine old head, fringed with hair of curiously mingled black and white.

"Good day, your majesty," he said, with no sign of surprise in his voice or face.

The train rocked going around a curve, and it was with difficulty that the chancellor kept his footing. But he stood rigidly erect, supporting himself in the doorway until the emperor, with more politeness than enthusiasm, invited him to enter and be seated.

"I'm glad you're well enough to travel, chancellor," said Leopold. "We had none too encouraging an account of you from Captain von Breitstein."

"I travel because you travel, your majesty," replied the old man. "It is kind of you to tolerate me here, and I appreciate it."

Now they sat facing each other, and the young man, fighting down a sense of guilt, familiar to him in boyish days when about to be taken to task by the chancellor, gazed fixedly at the hard, clever face on which the afternoon sun scored the detail of each wrinkle.

"Indeed!" was the emperor's only answer.

"Your majesty, I have served you and your father before you well, I hope—faithfully, I know. I think you trust me."

"No man more. But this sounds a portentous preface. Is it possible you

"Good day, your majesty," he said.

imagine it necessary to 'lead up' to a subject if I can please myself by doing you a favor?"

"If I have seemed to lead up to what I wish to say, your majesty, it is only for the sake of explanation. You are wondering, no doubt, how I knew you would travel today and in this train; also why I have ventured to follow. Your intention I learned by accident." The chancellor did not explain by what diplomacy that "accident" had been brought about. "Wishing much to talk over with you a pressing matter that should not be delayed, I took this liberty and seized this opportunity.

"Some men would in my place pretend that business of their own had brought them and that the train had been chosen by chance. But your majesty knows me as a blunt man when I serve him not as diplomat, but as friend. I'm not one to work 'in the dark with those who trust me, and I want your majesty to know the truth." (Which perhaps he did, but not the whole truth.)

"Your raise my curiosity," said Leopold.

"Then have I your indulgence to speak frankly not entirely as a humble subject to his emperor, but as an old man to a young man."

"I'd have you speak as a friend," said Leopold. But a slight constraint hardened his voice as he prepared himself for something disagreeable.

"I've had a letter from the crown prince of Hungaria. It has come to his ears that there is a certain reason for your majesty's delay in following up the first overtures for an alliance with his family. Malicious tongues have whispered that your majesty's attentions are otherwise engaged, and the young Adalbert has addressed me in a friendly way, begging that the rumor may be contradicted or confirmed."

"I'm not sure that negotiations had gone far enough to give him the right to be inquisitive," returned Leopold, flushing.

The chancellor spread out his old veined hands in a gesture of appeal. "I fear," he said, "that in my anxiety for your majesty's welfare and the good of Rhaetia I may have exceeded my instructions. My one excuse is that I believed your mind to be definitely made up. I still believe it to be so. I would listen to no one who should try to persuade me of the contrary, and I will write Adalbert"—

"You must get yourself and me out of the scrape as best you can, since you admit you got us into it," broke in the emperor, with an uneasy laugh. "If Princess Virginia of Baumenberg-Drippe is as charming as she is said to be, her difficulty will be in choosing a husband, not in getting one. For once, my dear chancellor, gossip has told the truth, and I wouldn't pay the princess so poor a compliment as to ask for her hand when I've no heart left to give her in exchange for it. There's some one else"—

"If is of that some one else I would venture to speak, your majesty. Gossip has named her. May I?"

"I'll save you the trouble, for I'm not ashamed that the common fate has overtaken me—common because every man loves once before he dies, and yet uncommon because no man ever loved a woman so worthy. Chancellor, there's no woman in the world like Miss Helen Mowbray, the lady to whom I owe my life."

USEFUL FURNITURE MADE AT HOME

Easy Instructions by Which Anyone Can Make Attractive Articles.

By Ellen Wise.

A simple addition to the furniture of the porch or for one of the interior rooms of the house, can be made from a few strips of wood, supplemented by as clean and trim a box as the grocery-man can furnish you.

If you want to keep one of the boys employed for an hour or two, you can cut the strips from box lumber and save the cost of this part of the job, but it is best to buy the strips ready cut, as they will be neater than any that you can saw yourself.

True, I cut those shown in the accompanying photographs, but it was only because I made the chair on a holiday and could not buy the strips ready cut.

The chair may be made of any size you wish. The only thing to remember when preparing the wood for the framework, is that the strips must be half an inch less in width when intended for the inner part of the legs, so that they will fit at the proper angle with the outer strip and make a symmetrical joint.

Tell the man you want four strips of the length that you intend the chair to be (thirty inches is a good size) two and a half inches wide, and four strips of the same length, two inches wide.

When you have nailed these strips together in the way shown in one of the photographs, that is the smaller strip on the inside of the larger, you will have the legs for the chair, or whatever you prefer to call it when finished.

If you are a novice at this sort of thing, it is well to tack the strips lightly together until the chair is well under way, for you may have to pull it apart.

Drive a nail in at each end. This will keep the legs together until ready to be assembled.

A back piece is needed, three inches wide, for the top of the chair, and two pieces of the same width for the sides.

Use your own judgment as to the length of these pieces. In some families larger chairs are needed than in other families, for reasons that will suggest themselves readily.

When you have the back piece and the side pieces nailed on, you will begin to see how the chair will look when finished.

Let the side pieces protrude about two inches over the front legs of the chair to give the finished work a more artistic appearance.

Now nail a broad strip across the two rear legs, to stiffen the frame work and brace the legs. Then you will have your chair finished all but the seat.

If you want an ordinary seat, with no trimmings, the chair will be easily completed.

The soap box from the corner grocery, however, will give you a chair with a seat that can be used for storage purposes.

Get a box of the exact size that you have decided your chair is to be, and fit your chair to the box. This can be readily done by fastening the four legs to the corners of the box before putting on the back and side pieces referred to above.

The easiest way to do this is to lay the box down and nail the legs to it, taking care that the box is even.

When you are satisfied that your soap box, which later will be the seat of the chair, is nailed to the legs at the right distance from the floor and with due regard for straightness, then stand the chair on its legs and finish it as directed.

The lid of the soap box should be hinged so that it can be lifted up and the box used as a receptacle for anything that will be wanted in the vicinity of the room in which the chair is destined to stand.

When you have hinged the lid, the chair will be finished, all except the inevitable coat of paint, which will cover defects in workmanship and hide the origin of the soap box to some extent.

A photograph is shown on this page of a handy little shelf that can be made for the holding of watch and eyeglasses, when retiring at night.

The shelf can be fastened over the head of the bed and the watch and glasses will always be in a place where you can get at them without trouble.

Christine Terhune Herrick

DEAR MRS. HERRICK:—I am interested in your household talks and would like to say that I can feed five grown people on a little less than $10.00 a week. The only lack is in rich cake and much pastry. We have sponge cake in Summer when eggs are plenty, and home-made rusks in Winter.

We always have chicken once a week in Winter. Five pounds of chicken, costing $1.00, is the basis for three meals. Chicken soup with celery and rice or barley, home-made baked beans and brown bread and a nice dessert make one meal. The white of the chicken with two hard-boiled eggs and celery make a delicious salad, with cold ham, when we have another meal. The dark meat, ground, makes five cutlets, served with peas and potatoes julienne makes another meal.

I do not always serve the three on successive days, but let beef or lamb come in between. I am tempted to send a list. I use always plenty of lettuce and sliced cabbage and keep a stock pot. I hope this will interest some one who may be helped to make both ends meet.

Here is one week's list: Olive oil, 22 cents. Eggs, 40 cents. Butter, $1.20. Lard, 12 cents. Sugar, 30 cents. Coffee, 50 cents. Meat and chicken, $2.50. Vegetables, $1.50. Fruit, 50 cents. Milk, 56 cents. Ice, 25 cents. Cheese, 20 cents. Flour, 45 cents. Cereal, 30 cents. Macaroni, 12 cents. Beans, 10 cents. Total, [illegible] F. B.

[illegible] ought to be of interest to all housekeepers who keep a close account of their money outlay in housekeeping. I shall be glad to learn how it compares with the expenses of other housekeepers. To myself it seems as if this family were composed of small eaters and I would be glad to know if there are any growing boys or girls or hearty workingmen included in it.

Pandowdy by Different Rules.

A while ago a correspondent wrote, asking how to make old-fashioned dear pandowdy and a number of replies have come to her inquiry. Some of them are repetitions of one another, but there is a variance in some of them.

New England Pandowdy.

Make a biscuit dough, using two cups of flour; roll it out thin. Cut four or five sour apples into thin slices, put in a deep pie plate. Sprinkle well with sugar and cinnamon or nutmeg. Add a teaspoon butter cut in bits, cover with the thin sheet of dough. Bake half an hour in a hot oven. D. W.

Pandowdy Pudding.

Fill a dish half full of sliced apple, season with cinnamon, put on sweetening, half sugar and half molasses, to taste, a little salt and butter, cover with pie crust and cook slowly until apples are red.

A More Elaborate Pandowdy.

Pandowdys are nice but must be made with care. Select apples of fine flavor and tart. My mother used greenings. Pare and quarter your apples. Then slice the quarters into halves or thirds, this being decided by the size of the apples. Remove the crust from bread and cut into half inch cubes. Place in a porcelain baking dish, thin slices of butter covering the bottom of the dish and put in a layer of your apples an inch thick.

Over this sprinkle sugar, then a layer of the bread with thin slices of butter over it. Continue this until the dowdy is the desired thickness, having the bread on top with the butter over it. Sift lightly a little cinnamon over the top.

Bake carefully, covering for a time with a plate but remove this when the apples are almost done and let the dowdy brown slightly.

If baked in a gas oven set the dish on an asbestos cover. Bake thoroughly but slowly and do not make the mistake of adding water. Serve with rich cream or with whipped cream. E. P. F.

Is this a genuine pandowdy? It is the dish I have cooked and eaten under the name of Brown Betty.

Another Bread Pandowdy.

Butter a baking dish and line bottom and sides with buttered slices of stale bread, fill dish with sliced apples and grate half a nutmeg on them. Mix one gill of water and one gill molasses, pour over the apples, then sprinkle over them half cup brown sugar. Turn a tin plate over the top, bake in a moderate oven for two hours. Loosen the edges with a knife and turn out on a hot dish. Serve hot with sugar and milk.

A Use for Tin Cans.

Pound the cut parts of the quart cans into the inside of the cans so that they will not cut your hands and use them to bake your bread. It is fine for sandwiches and looks nice on the table.

JEAN.

Do I understand that the bread dough is put into the tin cans leaving only the top of the can off, and the other end closed? It sounds like that, but I would like to be sure.

Lavender for Moths.

Dear Mrs. Herrick:—I see that some one asks about lavender for moths. I have used oil of lavender for the past ten years with perfect satisfaction. I sprinkle it over hats, coats, furs and everything I am packing away and the work is complete. The oil never leaves a mark where it is sprinkled, keeps away the moth and certainly smells better than camphor. MRS. C. L. H.

Possibly this pleasant information comes too late to be of use to housekeepers in putting up their woolens this year, but it would be well for them to cut it out and paste it in a scrap book as a reminder for next year. I am glad to know of it and I have no doubt others will share my pleasure.

Aspic Jelly.

Put three heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatine into a clean cold saucepan, add three and a-half cupfuls water or stock, then add one small carrot, one small turnip, one small onion, one stalk of celery all cleaned and cut into dice. Then add four tablespoonfuls white vinegar, four tablespoonfuls tarragon vinegar, one blade of mace, two bay leaves, twelve white whole peppers, one inch of cinnamon stick, four cloves, six drops of kitchen bouquet, rind and juice of one lemon, one level teaspoonful of salt, whites and shells of two eggs and one sprig of parsley.

Whisk over a gentle heat until boiling.

Remove the beater, allow the thick white scum to rise to the top of the pan, draw to one side of the stove, cover and allow to stand for 10 minutes.

Pour two quarts boiling water through a jelly bag, then the jelly. Heat three tablespoonfuls of sherry wine and add it to the strained jelly.

Pour the jelly into a wet mold and use as required when set.

Aspic jelly lends itself to a great variety of useful dishes. It is used in cold entrees where the materials are molded in the jelly and this means that the aspic must be beautifully clear and of firm consistence.

When Corn is Tough.

Preparing tough corn to make it palatable is not generally understood. It is served on the cob long after it is unsuitable for this method of cooking, or else the family gives it up long before it is necessary.

A nice treatment for corn that is no longer young is to scrape out the heart of the grain and stew it in butter.

Slit out each row of grains and with a scraper or back of a silver knife work out the tender part. Put this on in a saucepan, with plenty of butter, salt, pepper and enough cream to cover it. Cook until tender, stirring so that it does not burn or stick. It is better to use a double boiler.

If preferred the corn can be cooked in a little water, which is then drained off and the corn seasoned with butter, salt and pepper, omitting the cream or milk.

SEASONABLE DISHES

By Marion Harris Neil

Cook half a cupful of evaporated apples with a quarter of a cupful of prunes, quarter of a cupful of seeded raisins, quarter of a cupful of currants, a small piece of stick cinnamon and eight cupfuls of water. Replace if it boils away.

Boil gently until the fruit is tender. Rub through a sieve and add two tablespoonsful of vinegar. Sweeten to taste and thicken with the tablespoonful of oatmeal.

Rice Souffle.

One heaping tablespoonful of ground rice, one cupful of milk, three egg yolks, the grated rind of one lemon, four whites of eggs, half a teaspoonful vanilla extract, one heaping tablespoonful of sugar. Put the milk on to boil, sprinkle in the ground rice and sugar, add the greated rind of lemon and stir till it thickens.

Remove from the fire and cool a little, then stir in the yolks and the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Add the vanilla extract. Pour into a greased mold, cover with buttered paper and steam gently for forty minutes. Unmold and serve with a sweet custard sauce.

Curry of Lamb.

There are two ways of preparing this dish. One is by using fresh or raw meat, and the other by using cooked meat. This being a supper dish, it is more likely than not that cooked meat (the remains of a joint served at a previous meal) will be used. The following is one of the best known methods of making a curry from cooked meat:—

One pound of cooked meat, half a small onion, one tablespoonful chopped cocoanut, two tablespoonfuls butter, one teaspoonful of flour, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one dessertspoonful of chutney, a little salt, three-quarters of a cupful of stock or water, one chopped apple, plain boiled rice for border.

Cut the meat into neat slices, not too thin. Trim off some of the fat if the meat be found very fat. Peel and chop the onion finely. Melt the butter and fry the onion to a very light color, then add the chopped apple, flour, cocoanut, curry powder, chutney, salt, lemon juice and stock. Allow to cook slowly for ten minutes, then lay in the slices of meat.

Cover the pan, and shake it over the fire until the contents begin to boil. Allow the whole to simmer very gently for thirty minutes. Wash, boil, and drain the rice, drain it carefully and fry it in the oven, dress it on a dish in the form of a border, put the meat and sauce in the center, and send to table very hot.

Frozen Pudding

Beat the yolks of four eggs and half a cupful of sugar until very light. Dissolve one tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little cold milk, add to the beaten yolks and gradually stir in four cupsful of hot milk. Cook over hot water for fifteen minutes, stirring constantly until it thickens, and then only occasionally.

Chop finely one cupful of nut meats and plump out one cupful of raisins by covering them with boiling water, and after standing fifteen minutes drain them and roll in granulated sugar.

When the coked mixture is cold, add one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, one cupful of strawberry preserve, the nuts and raisins, and freeze as ice cream. When half frozen add the whites of four eggs, stiffy beaten, with quarter cupful of sugar.

When serving, garnish with halves of walnut nut meats and a little whipped and sweetened cream.

Timbales of Flounder.

One pound of flounder, one raw white of egg, quarter cupful of thick white sauce, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one pickled walnut, some mushrooms, salt, pepper and one cupful of bechamel sauce.

Remove all skin and bones from the fish and pound it finely. Mix in slowly the white of an egg and the thick white sauce, rub the mixture through a fine wire sieve, and season it well. Whisk the cream slightly and mix in.

Butter thickly some small timbale molds, and fill them with the mixture, cover the tops with buttered paper, and steam very gently for thirty minutes or until they feel firm. Then turn them out on to a hot dish, and coat them with the hot bechamel sauce. Put a thin ring of pickled walnut on each, and a small heap of cooked mushrooms finely chopped between each timbale.

Eugenic Ice Cream

Pound and sift twelve macaroons, four lady fingers, Bianch, chop fine and pound to a paste, roughly stir almonds, or take four ounces of almond paste.

Scald two cupfuls of rich cream in a double boiler, add one cupful of sugar and stir till dissolved.

Remove from the fire, add another two cupfuls of whipped cream and set away until cold.

Then add two tablespoonfuls orange flower water, two tablespoonfuls of maraschino and freeze; when frozen remove the dasher, work in the cake crumbs and prepared almonds with a long handled spoon.

Pack away for three hours.

Salads Worth Knowing About

DURING the Spring and Summer months very little meat should be eaten. If possible, it is better to do away with meats altogether, and to depend upon fresh fish, eggs and vegetables, prepared in so many appetizing ways by good cooks, and also those "green things," which may be converted into salads.

The very first thing I look for in my garden in the early Spring, as soon as the soil can be stirred, is the onion which has stood the cold Winter, and which is sure to show itself early.

One of the prettiest of all salads is composed of sliced tomatoes buried in the green and white of garden cress and early onions. These latter vegetables can be finely clipped into bits with a pair of scissors.

This salad served with French dressing is as healthful as pretty.

Upland cress should be in every garden. It has the leaf and the piquancy of the water cress, and is hardy keeping green from Spring to Spring, when the seed must be planted again.

Corn salad, another hardy "live-over," is found to be a fair substitute for lettuce.

The wild dandelion when it first appears takes the place of endive, and a most healthful salad it is. If one would eat it three times a day, with the onion as flavoring, there would be little need for doctors.

Lettuce planted in early Spring and continued every two weeks until the last week in August would give us salad until November. The best for this late sowing, is the Black Seeded Simpson.

To take the place of pepper or mustard in a salad dressing, finely cut pepper grass and Chinese mustard leaves add an agreeable piquancy, and is more healthful for the stomach.

Parsley has always had a place in gardens, and has been used for a garnish, but eaten like celery, dipped in salt, it is pleasant to the taste and excellent for the health.

Last Summer a ten-foot row of celery afforded my family a delicious addition to any and all salads. It was an experiment of mine. I had never heard of treating celery in just this way before, but I never allowed it to grow beyond four or five inches in height, and it seemed as if cutting agreed with it, for it grew luxuriantly. The white plume was the variety I planted.

It is only within the past ten years that Americans have known the good qualities of the sweet pepper. The Italians have taught us to use it as a salad, and we ought to be very grateful to Italy for giving us such a treat. I find the Chinese giant a very acceptable variety.

The Italian onion, giant recon, is also delicious sliced raw, and those who object to the strong onion flavor, it will be most satisfactory and pleasing, as it is sweet and mild.

Endive or escarolle, comes in several varieties, and by studying the seed catalogues this appetizing salad may be grown from Spring until late December. It is slightly bitter to the taste, but not disagreeably so, and when well blanched is crisp and refreshing, and is certainly a treat during the late Fall months.

We all know the cucumber, but I doubt if many know that the most healthful way of serving this succulent vegetable, is to peel and slice it fresh from the garden, and to dress it at table, according to taste. To get the true flavor no dressing should be used.

The Japanese cucumber can easily be grown by those who have small garden room. It needs plenty of manure, and a tall pea bush to run on, as in the case of the illustration, a small dead tree. The Japanese grows to a large size, but is few and small seeded.

For a change from the large fruited used in salad form, there are small varieties of small fruited ones, which have delicious flavor and are most attractive when served whole. Hot water quickly poured over them takes off the skin. These are the red currant, the red cherry, the yellow plum and the pear shapes.

The radish cannot exactly be called a salad, but a dish of crisp, early radishes and good home-made bread and butter make a wholesome luncheon.

Household Notes.

Grease spots, unless of too long standing, can usually be removed by alcohol.

Never throw out sour milk. The best hot cakes and waffles, the sponges, the richest sweet cakes and delicious boiled salad dressing can be made from it.

Vanilla extract should be kept in a dark place, as it loses its strength when exposed to the light.

Overmixing of cake can often be overcome by using a teaspoonful of vinegar and one of sugar.

Windows can easily be kept tidy and clean when the screens are in by rubbing with a flannel wrung out of alcohol.

Never throw away egg yolks. Wash and boil down in salted water ice cream, a delicious sauce when mixed with a little milk. If a bit of onion is boiled in the milk the flavor is improved.

One housekeeper prevents her cake meat from molding by rubbing over fortnight with white of egg mixed a little salt paste.

GRAND RALLY

BOYS

THE

EXAMINER

WE WONDER if it ever occurred to the boys of Peterborough that the selling of papers was a stepping-stone to a successful business career in future years.

DO they recognize the fact that this little business offers them an opportunity to

MAKE

100 Per Cent ?

or in other words, to double the money invested in selling the EXAMINER to transient buyers.

BOYS buy the EXAMINER at one cent each and sell it for two cents each ; or in the case of weekly patrons, they pay six cents per week and receive ten cents from the subscriber, thus making a profit of 62 2-3 per cent.

DO you know of any business in the city that pays such profits with as little chance for bad debts ?

IT only requires a Boy to HUSTLE, the same thing that is required when he gets into a bigger business world.

OF course we do not mean to say that the Boy, to become a successful business man, must be a newsboy, but we do say that the successful newsboy has gained an experience that is of much service to him in after years.

A NEWSBOY'S EXPERIENCE IN A LARGE CITY. Why can't a local Boy be benefitted proportionately ? This story is taken from the Saturday Post :

MONEY IN NEWSPAPER ROUTES.

Another boy was only thirteen when his father died, leaving two hundred dollars insurance, a widow and four younger children. The insurance money was loaned out to a neighbour at six per cent., as a sort of reserve fund, and while the widow did plain sewing, the boy carried newspapers morning and evening. After three months' experience with this work he borrowed twenty-five dollars and purchased the smallest newspaper route in town. Vigorous canvassing for new customers made that route so productive that in six months he paid back the loan. The lender offered another loan of fifty dollars, which the boy took, buying two more routes. These were covered by boys hired to do the work, however, because he felt that all his energy must go into the original route, so that he would at least be certain of good returns from that. Principles of management learned by this plan made him so successful that in less than five years he owned every newspaper route in his town. His mother's two hundred dollars was still intact, and his brothers and sisters going to school. A legacy of two hundred dollars fell to the family. This, with the original two hundred dollars and another hundred the boy had saved, was paid on a home costing twenty-eight hundred dollars, the balance to be cleared off at the rate of twenty-five dollars a month. Three furnished rooms were rented at a total of about twenty-two dollars monthly, and this money, it was agreed, should never be spent. Newspaper routes, odd jobs and the mother's contributions kept the family and paid the instalments. In four years the income from furnished rooms, put away in the bank, grew to more than one thousand dollars. The mortgage was finally cleared off, and the boy, now nearly twenty-one years old, started to get an education at the high school.

THERE are a number of Boys in Peterborough making four and five dollars per week, not necessarily all selling the Examiner, but some easily make three dollars per week selling the Examiner exclusively.

Boys! Be Boys of Business

Get in the game. It won't hurt you, but will give you a right start. You will have money of your own to save or buy useful needs with.

BOYS ! Take your spare time between four and six o'clock and see what success you will have between now and Christmas.

NEWSBOYS' BONANZA

Boys, figure this proposition out for yourselves. Be ambitious. Good newsboys are always taken care of and recommended for future positions.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE WITH 5 OCCUPANTS

Travelling at High Rate of Speed Near Kingston.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 27.—Traveling at a fast rate of speed, an automobile owned by Felix Benjamin of Yonker, upset near Cataraqui Saturday afternoon, and five occupants received serious injuries.

Mrs. Benjamin is now in Hotel Dieu with a compound fracture of the thigh and other injuries.

The rim of the wheel worked off and the tire blew up. The car turned a complete somersault. Mr. Benjamin received severe cuts on the face and hands, and his thigh and hip are badly bruised. Miss Benjamin escaped with a severe shaking up and bruises. Mrs. Connolly and daughter of Toronto, guests of Mrs. Benjamin, were also hurt. Mrs. Connolly had her right wrist sprained, and was badly bruised, and Miss Connolly suffered a wound over the left eye, and also injuries to the thigh and hip.

CANADA MUST HELP.

She Must Assume Share of Imperial Defence, Says Brodeur.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—When Hon. L. P. Brodeur arrived in Montreal Saturday morning, he made the following statement: "Personally I am of the opinion that we owe it to ourselves to defend our own territory. I believe we have reached a period of national development which no longer permits us to shirk this grave duty, and having received from Great Britain every liberty which goes to make a truly independent nation, it would be, in my opinion, quite unworthy of our country if we look any longer to the Mother Country for our exclusive protection." The Minister, who came up with Mrs. Brodeur on board the Lady Grey, was received at the Victoria wharf by a large crowd of friends, who cheered lustily as the Minister stepped once more on Canadian soil.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur said that when England granted responsible government to Canada there were people who thought it all up with the Empire, and even to-day, when the question of naval defence is on the tapis, the same kind of people are seized with mortal fear, but I have no hesitation in saying that the future will abundantly prove that the people of the Dominion will not only show the world that they know the art of self-government, but that if the time ever comes they will show their gratitude to the Mother Land in a very practical manner.

"O Lord, Don't Disappoint Us."

West Duxbury, Mass., Sept. 27.—"O, Lord, don't disappoint us," prayed the Triune Immersionists at intervals during the meeting which they held throughout Friday night, but their prayers remained unanswered to-day, for the Lord had not appeared in person to them and the world was still intact.

A large proportion of the "elect" nevertheless remained firm in their conviction that the wicked would be destroyed by the peeling off of the earth's crust at sometime between 6 p.m. Friday and the same hour on Saturday.

Early Saturday the exhausted believers dispersed to various places nearby for rest and food.

Quebec Teachers Pleased.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—There is great rejoicing in educational circles in this province over news from Saskatchewan that the department of public instruction of that province will accept teachers from the Quebec Province normal schools, this action on the part of the western province being necessary in order to secure men and women capable of teaching both languages.

As there are a good many French-Canadian children in Saskatchewan, the Roman Catholic religious authorities have been endeavoring to secure the admission of Quebec teachers with the above result.

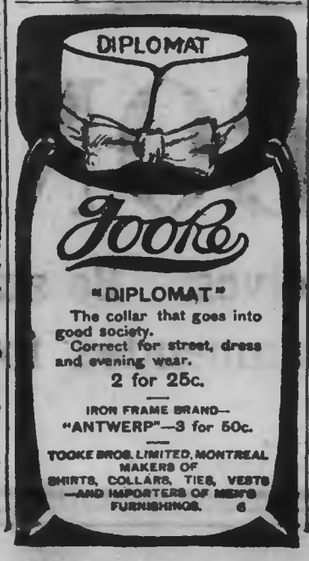
Busy Gang of Burglars.

Windsor, Sept. 27.—Thirteen burglaries in three nights is the record of housebreakers who began their operations in Leamington last Monday and have since been working east through Ontario, with stops at Tilbury and Ridgetown.

The fifteenth on the list was at the home of Phil. Bowyer, member of the Ontario Legislature for one of the Kent ridings. All they got was a handful of cigars.

Street Car Fatality.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 27.—Wm. Kizer of this city was killed and many were hurt, some probably fatally, when an interurban car from Boone struck a Des Moines street car near the Highland Park bridge in this city early yesterday. Kizer was the conductor of the street car. The motorman had both legs cut off.



13 MILLIONS ARE STILL UNCLAIMED

Valuables From Wrecked Messina Await Claimants.

Rome, Italy, Sept. 27.—It is estimated that $2,000,000 in coin, $6,000,000 in bonds and other securities, and $1,000,000 worth of jewels recovered from the ruins of Messina are still unclaimed.

In addition to the foregoing there is a further deposit of 100 strong boxes and 4,000 sealed packages, known to contain valuables, which have not been opened, representing at least $4,000,000. This total of $13,000,000 does not include the treasures from the cathedral, churches and vaults of banks.

The valuables were simply excavated and were sometimes found clutched in the dead hands of unidentified men and women. The excavations will be commenced again on Oct. 1, when the unclaimed deposits will naturally increase.

As it is generally impossible for survivors to establish claims to the property, the state will benefit largely.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Charles Smith of Ottawa was drowned at Buckingham, Que.

There was a small fire in the executive offices of the White House, Washington, on Saturday.

M. R. Smith & Co.'s biscuit factory was destroyed by fire at Victoria, B.C., yesterday with a loss of $50,000.

Already 200 bodies of drowned persons have been recovered as a result of last week's storm in the southern states.

Ald. J. H. A. Beattie has announced his candidature for the London mayoralty. Ald. Ferguson and C. M. R. Graham are possible opponents.

Charles J. Bell, former governor of Vermont, died suddenly of heart failure, in a train in the Grand Central station at New York, as he was about to leave for Boston.

Mrs. Pankhurst, the English suffragist leader, will probably speak in Toronto on November 2. The date has not been finally settled, but it is to be in the first week of November.

Must Buy Wheat.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—Chairman Karyakin of the Douma agricultural committee, called upon Premier Stolypin Saturday evening to urge the Government to sustain the price of grain, which threatened to break heavily in consequence of the abundant harvest.

M. Karyakin asked that the Government make immediate purchase. He pointed out that large quantities of grain would be needed in the spring for the commissariat and for provisioning the northern regions where the harvest would be bad, and he suggested that the Government take over $50,000,000 worth. This plan had been previously approved at a conference of the members of the Bourse, the Government grain specialists and members of Parliament.

Premier Stolypin strongly opposed the scheme because, he said, the Government should not engage in trade, as it had no organization for this purpose. Finally, however, the Premier agreed to submit the matter to the Cabinet.

Airship Explodes.

Moulins, France, Sept. 27.—The French dirigible military balloon Republique exploded in the air five miles from here Saturday morning, and was completely wrecked. The four men on board were killed. They are: Capt. Marchal, Lieut. Chaure and Sub-Lieuts. Vincent and Roux.

The Republique left La Palisse, where she had been engaged in the recent army manoeuvres, at seven o'clock Saturday morning. She was in charge of Capt. Marchal. She passed over Moulins at 8.45 at an altitude of 400 feet. She was going at a high rate of speed and apparently was under perfect control. The four officers in the car waved their hands in response to the enthusiastic cheers from the people below them.

Work Will Be Divided.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—There is great interest here in religious communities over a report that before the plenary council rises, they will promulgate a decree stipulating that certain religious communities will carry on educational work while others will confine themselves to hospital and other charitable work.

It may be remembered that the diocese of Halifax was stirred many years ago over the right to teach claimed by the "Sisters" being contested by the friends of the ladies of the Sacred Heart, supported very warmly by the then Archbishop Hannan.

Boy Murdered.

New York, Sept. 27—John McGrath, a 17-year-old errand boy, was shot and killed late Saturday night on the sidewalk in front of his home while he stood talking with two school girls, who live in an adjoining apartment house. His murderer, Vincent Stabill, resented the young girls' friendship with McGrath, shot the lad from behind, then turned and ran up a nearby stairway to the roof of an apartment house, where he was arrested.

Boy's Leg Cut Off.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—While selling papers at King and Niagara streets at nine o'clock Saturday night, Alec. McKenzie, aged 10, of 55 Tecumseh street, was run over by a King street car and his right leg was severed.

His explanation is that he thought the car was going to stop. He went in front of it in order to get on the open side of the car to cry his papers. It did not stop, and he was knocked down, falling under the wheels.

Where Women Vote.

Greenwick, Conn., Sept. 27.—Forty women appeared before the registrars of voters and board of select men here Saturday and qualified for suffrage privileges in the coming school election.

Miss Belle Mead, a settlement worker, has been named by the newly organized Greenwich Equal Franchise League as a candidate for membership on the board.

TRIAL OF WEST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION PETITION WAS BEGUN THIS MORNING

Before Justices McMahon and Magee—The Array of Legal Talent—A Cloud of Witnesses Present—Opening Proceedings—Petitioner Does Not Claim the Seat.

ONE WITNESS EXAMINED

On October 26, 1908, the general elections for the Dominion were held. The candidates in West Peterborough were Hon. J. R. Stratton, in the Liberal interest, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, Conservative. Mr. Stratton was elected by a majority of 333. Subsequently Mr. Burnham filed a petition against Mr. Stratton's return. A significant feature of this petition was that Mr. Burnham did not claim the seat which he petitioned to have vacated. A counter petition against Mr. Burnham was entered on Mr. Stratton's behalf. The petition was inscribed for trial on Sept. 7th, but owing to Mr. Burnham's reluctance or refusal to answer questions considered necessary in his examination for discovery and the postponement of this examination on more than one occasion, for the purpose of hearing motions to compel him to answer questions, as he was finally compelled to do, the date of the trial was postponed till to-day, Sept. 27, when it opened at the court house before their lordships Justices McMahon and Magee, beginning at 11.30 a.m.

For the occasion, Mr. H. S. Wood acts as registrar of the court, and Mr. Walter Wood as court crier. The official stenographer is Mr. F. Berryman, Toronto.

For Mr. Stratton, who was also present, in person, Mr. G. H. Watson, K. C., Toronto, supported by Mr. R. R. Hall, solicitor, appeared. Mr. Burnham was also present, and for him appeared Mr. E. E. A. DuVernet, K.C., and Mr. J. E. Jones, Toronto, with Mr. W. H. Moore, solicitor.

The judges came directly to the Court House from the mid-day train, on which they arrived from Toronto. The crier made proclamation, the big wigs adjusted their dossiers, settled their gowns upon their shoulders and the trial began in the presence of a not numerous attendance, not more numerous than the numbers of witnesses would be, supposing that the 450 summonsed were all present. For the petitioner between 250 and 300 witnesses were subpoenaed, and in the cross petition considerably over 100. The opening proceedings were merely formal, the sheriff being called to prove the election, with the results.

Does Not Claim the Seat.

Justice McMahon—The petitioner claims the seat, of course.

Mr. Watson: "No, my lord; the petitioner does not claim the seat.

In reply to Mr. Watson their Lordships said the main petition would be disposed of before the cross petition was entered upon.

The taking of evidence was then proceeded with.

Sheriff James A. Hall

Was called to prove the result of the election and produced the necessary papers for that purpose. The vote was 2851 for Mr. Stratton and 2518 for Mr. Burnham, a majority of 333 for Mr. Stratton. There were 43 sub divisions in the riding and the total available vote was 7040.

Joseph Picard

Was next called. He testified that he lived in Peterborough and was employed as a salesman at H. LeBrun & Company. He was one of Mr. Stratton's supporters at the last election. The Liberal Central Committee Rooms he stated were on Simcoe street with a room downstairs for public meetings and another big room upstairs for committee meetings. Witness was on a ward committee commencing work a couple of weeks before the election. Asked as to some of the workers he had seen at the committee rooms, witness named, Hon. J. R. Stratton, A. H. Stratton, R. R. Hall, W. S. Davidson, J. P. Bryson, R. H. Leary, John O'Brien, E. S. Clarry, G. E. Elliott, R. M. Glover, Jesse Irwin and Wm. Taylor.

Witness stated that his work was to check off the lists and gathering information. No one appointed him to the position and he had not spoken to any one about it. He thought that Mr. Leary was chairman of the ward. He had marked lists and made reports to Mr. Leary. Other chairmen might have asked him about certain men and he might have told them. He could not say how often he had reported in this manner. He thought A. H. Stratton was the general chairman and Elgin Myers the secretary.

"Were you asked to see some of the people on the list?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"I think this is outside of the record. There is no charge in which the name of this witness is mentioned," remarked Mr. Watson.

The witness answered the question in the affirmative and said that he had seen some of the workers.

"Did you take any message from Mr. Leary to any of these voters asked Mr. DuVernet.

"No, sir."

"Did you get anything from Mr Leary or anybody else for any of these voters?"

"No, sir."

"Was any money placed at your disposal for them?"

"No, sir."

"Did you send any one where they could get money?"

"No, sir?"

The witness stated that he was at the committee rooms on election day before the polls opened for the purpose of getting some papers from Mr. Walter Davidson. He could not remember having been there at any time afterwards on that day nor of having reported to anyone.

"Cross-examined by Mr. Watson, the witness said that he was a Liberal and had been a voter and supporter of the party in other elections. He had no personal knowledge of the organization meeting at which officers and committee was arranged. He had done similar work at other elections, and had volunteered on this occasion.. Mr. Stratton had not asked him to do any work for him on this occasion.

He had not seen Mr. Stratton or his brother do any work around the committee rooms. Mr. Leary was marking lists, Mr. Bryson had a division and so had Mr. R. M. Glover. He had not seen Wm. Taylor do anything but make reports. He had no knowledge of any of those persons being asked by Mr. Stratton to do anything. He had thought Mr. Leary was chairman of the ward because he had sat at the head of the table at meetings of the committee. Mr. Leary took the reports from the members of the committee and witness did not know of his doing anything else. He had no knowledge of a meeting by which any one was appointed secretary.

"There is no charge against you?"

"Not that I know of."

"You have no knowledge of illegal or improper expenditure?"

"No, sir."

"There was no bribery or anything wrong at your poll?"

"No, sir."

"What was the result there?"

"A majority of 6 or 7 for Mr. Stratton."

"How does that compare with the results there at any elections?"

"I don't decollect about that."

To Mr. DuVernet witness said that each ward had a table in the committee rooms.

Mr. Picard then stood down and the court adjourned at 1.10 p.m., until 2 p.m.

SENSATIONAL TRUNK CRIME RECALLED BY RECENT DEATH

Examiner Special.

London, Sept. 26. — After having served two years of his sentence of penal servitude for life for the murder of Mme. Emma Levin at Monte Carlo in August, 1907, Vere Thomas St. Leger Goold has died at the French convict settlement at Cayenne.

The news recalls a terrible and cold-blooded crime. Mrs. Goold, who is a Frenchwoman, was sentenced to death in connection with the crime, but her sentence was afterwards commuted by the Prince of Monaco to penal servitude for life, and she is now in a French prison.

A great sensation was caused by the discovery of the body of Mme. Levin, the wealthy widow of a Swedish engineer, in a trunk at Marseilles Railway Station. It had been taken to the station by Goold, who arranged with the goods clerk to have the trunk sent on to Charing Cross.

When the clerk, a man named Pons, came to move the trunk, he noticed red drops oozing from under the lid. The explanation offered by Goold that the trunk contained poultry did not convince him. He communicated with the police, who opened the box and found the body of the dead woman. The head and legs had been severed, and these were discovered in a kit-bag in Goold's possession.

At the trial witnesses gave evidence that the Goolds had borrowed money from Mme. Levin, who, after various fruitless attempts to recover it, sent a peremptory message demanding repayment. Thereupon Mr. and Mrs. Goold lured her to the Villa Manesini at Monte Carlo, and she was seen no more alive.

Mrs. Goold told the judge that her husband, while drunk, had killed the woman, but they were proved to be jointly guilty of the crime, although Goold afterwards admitted that he alone cut up the body. The head and legs, he said, he intended to throw into the sea at Marseilles.

Although Goold called himself "Sir" Vere, he had no right to the title. He came of a good Irish family, and was, in fact, the youngest brother of Sir James Goold, who succeeded his uncle in the title in 1893. It is said that he once offered the real baronet, who lives in Australia, £150 if he would waive his right to the title. Goold was well known as a lawn tennis player in Ireland.

The Goolds led a varied life. They were married in Paddington eighteen years ago, and opened a high-class dressmaking establishment in Bayswater. This did not pay, so they went to Montreal and started a similar business.

They next appeared in Waterloo, Liverpool, and lived for some time in style at a house in Adelaide terrace. Their next business venture was the opening of a steam laundry at Seacombe. This they turned into a limited company, and retired on the profits to Monte Carlo, where they lived in apparent affluence, but lost their money in heavy gambling.

MISSIONARY AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Rev. E. W. Morgan Dealt With Work Among the Chinese.

Rev. E. W. Morgan, B.A., missionary on furlough from Chentu, China, preached two impressive missionary sermons in St. James' Church yesterday. In the morning from the text Rom. 1:14, Mr. Morgan dealt with individual missionary responsibility as measured by the need and our ability to supply the need, making special reference to the field occupied by the Methodist Church in West China.

In his evening discourse the preacher very comprehensively outlined the work being done by the missionaries in the medical, press, educational and evangelistic departments and told of the gracious revival given in the Renshou convention last June and now in progress throughout the mission field.

The congregation responded very liberally to the appeal and have more than doubled their previous missionary givings.

The Peterborough Normal School opened this morning for the fall term. There were one hundred and seventy-five in attendance, including twenty-five boys. As was the case last year the number of boys is small in comparision with that of the girls. The students have come from various places in Ontario. The staff is the same as that of last year.

LOCAL PEOPLE INTRODUCED TO PEARY ON HIS ARRIVAL AT SYDNEY

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley and Miss Routley Met the Distinguished Explorer—Over Ten Thousand People Gathered at Harbour to Meet Him—Was Tendered a Banquet—Were on Board the Roosevelt.

A Peterborough citizen, his wife and daughter, were among those who shook hands with Commander Peary upon his arrival at Sydney, Cape Breton, on Wednesday last. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley and Miss Routley returned this morning after a three weeks' visit in Montreal. Their trip was one of great interest, especially their visit to Sydney and Glace Bay. They took a boat trip from Montreal to Sydney, taking the Steamer "Bona Vista" of the Black Diamond line. It is a voyage of eight hundred and fifty miles. Leaving Montreal on a Wednesday they reached their destination on the following Tuesday. Stops were made at Charlottetown and St. John's where the passengers went ashore and spent a half a day at each place.

The Arrival of Peary.

Mr. and Mrs. Routley and Miss Routley were in Sydney a few days before the arrival of Commander Peary on the steamer "Roosevelt." Mr. Routley stated that great preparations had been made for the reception of the North Pole explorer. He was expected on Tuesday last, but the "Roosevelt" did not come into the harbour until about half-past two on the following day. Fully ten thousand people were lined along the harbour, all striving to get a glimpse of the great Peary, as soon as he would step ashore. There were three hundred small craft gaily decorated with flags and the numerous boats in their gala appearance made an exceedingly pretty sight.

Commander Peary was met by Mr. Richardson, Mayor of Sydney, and with another public official of that city, and Hanson, the negro, who accompanied him on his long trip, drove to the Hotel Sydney. The cab stopped in front of the hotel and Commander Peary rose and thanked the immense throngs for their reception. He then shook hands with over five thousand persons. Mr. and Mrs. Routley and Miss Routley were acquainted with the Mayor of Sydney, and were introduced by him to the discoverer of the North Pole.

On the Roosevelt.

When Commander Peary entered the hotel, where he was tendered a banquet, the people hurried to the harbour, where they all rushed on board the "Roosevelt." One young man in the crowd fell into the water. He was rescued by a sailor. The same young man was bitten by an Eskimo dog. A number of white foxes which the explorer had brought back with him, attracted a lot of attention.

The people were anxious to receive souvenirs off the land at the farthest point north. The explorer had brought a large quantity of interesting small stones, which were given away. Miss Routley received one of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Routley and Miss Routley went through the steel works of Sydney.

At Glace Bay.

Mr. Routley was at Glace Bay on a Saturday night. The strike, he did not think it was as bad as had been reported. The main street was crowded with miners, loafing around. While he was there, one young man was stabbed in a riot. The soldiers were encamped around the city. Mr. and Mrs. Routley and daughter went down one coal mine with a drop of 180 feet and 2,000 feet in length.

They returned to Montreal on Sunday and came on to Peterborough this morning.

Suicide Of Ed. Widdis Had Not Been The First Attempt

Millbrook, Sept. 27.—The quietness of this place was suddenly broken on Saturday morning when it became known that Edward Weddis, a man of about sixty years, living a mile east of here had committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The news of the sad affair soon spread throughout the village. Doctor Turner was first notified and drove in his automobile to Widdis' home as rapidly as possible. When he arrived the man was still breathing but had expired before Dr. Montgomery could reach the place.

Besides his wife, there lived with him, his mother-in-law, his two small children and two English boys. Across the road from his house three brothers live and about three or four miles farther along the same road his fourth brother lives. He also leaves a sister.

It seems that his wife feared Widdis was meditating suicide and on Saturday instead of allowing him to shave himself she came with him to Millbrook where a barber shaved him. She was afraid to let him have a razor. But while here he secured one and going home before her, succeeded in carrying out his premeditated act.

When he reached his house Mrs. Brooks, his mother-in-law met him at the door and said, "You look fine," to which Widdis replied, "I feel fine," and Mrs. Brooks, seeing her son-in-law apparently in good spirits went on with her work anticipating no immediate trouble.

But Widdis had just gone into the adjoining room when the terrified cry of one of the little English boys who live with the family and who was in the room with Widdis brought her to the door only to see the poor victim stretched on the floor, the blood flowing from his gashed throat, which was cut clean from ear to ear.

At once Mrs. Brooks sent one of the boys here for a doctor and the other across the road to bring the unfortunate man's brothers. The doctors arrived in a very short time but no assistance could be rendered.

No definite motive for the act can be learned save that for the last few months his mind has apparently been slightly deranged and he has been very despondent and melancholy, keeping much to himself and doing very little to employ his thoughts and take them away from himself. He lived on a small piece of ground not more than six or eight acres and seems to have had a hard time to make a living on which to support his family. This fact together with the weak condition of his mind is believed to have been responsible for his suicide.

That his suicide was premeditated is evidenced by the fact that a couple of weeks ago he attempted to take his life by drinking the entire contents of a bottle containing a patented sleeping mixture. Doctors were called and through their indefatigable efforts he recovered after a day and night of unconsciousness. When he was better he asked why they had not let him die when he was so near death's door.

In his second attempt he was successful and evidently took great care to cut so deeply that recovery would be beyond all possibility.

Accident To C. P. R. Sunday Morning Train Caused Delay

The Canadian Pacific train due at the Union Station, Toronto, at 7.35 a. m. yesterday did not arrive till nearly 3 p.m. The delay was caused by the breaking of an axle of the tender close to Burketon Junction. The accident occurred about 5.30 a. m., and the tender, leaving the tracks, tore up the sleepers for some distance until the engine was stopped. The engine and cars fortunately kept the tracks, and beyond a slight shaking up the passengers were in no way injured.

The train was going slow at the point and the moment the accident occurred the brakes were applied. The lines were at once blocked by signal and an auxiliary from Peterborough was soon on the spot and the work of clearing the track and replacing the broken sleepers was carried out with as much speed as possible.

HEAD BADLY CUT

Young Men Get Into Fight Coming Home From Lindsay.

Coming down from Lindsay from the Fair on Saturday evening, two young men got into an altercation and before Peterborough was reached they got into it with their fists. It is said that in the scuffle, one fellow hit his opponent over the head with a bottle, cutting him badly. Upon his arrival at Peterborough he was taken to a doctor where his injuries were attended, several stitches being required to bind the gashes.

CHEQUE WAS WORTHLESS

Stranger Bought Pair of Boots From Robert Di Bernardo and Paid With $20 Cheque—Lost $8 in the Deal.

ANOTHER CASE REPORTED

A rumor to the effect that a number of bogus cheques were passed on Peterborough merchants on Saturday by a smart stranger was whispered around the streets this morning, and an Examiner reporter, in an endeavour to find out the facts of the matter discovered an entirely different case and also learned that there was no truth in the Monday morning story. The reporter enquired of a number of merchants regarding the report, but they had not heard of it. A few days ago, however, Robert di Bernardo, a shoemaker on George St. south sold a pair of boots to a stranger, who offered a cheque for twenty dollars in payment. Bernado gave the man 8.00 and was to deliver the boots the next day with the remaining $12.00 to a house on Reid St. Bernardo was told when he called at the address given by the stranger, that there was no one had ordered the boots, and the person did not recognise the name given by the stranger He found afterwards that the cheque was worthless.

Frank Marino, a fruiterer opposite the Grand Opera House, suffered a loss in a similar manner. It is believed that the same polished individual worked the game on him. His loss amounted to about twenty dollars as the man had purchased fruit and offered a cheque for $22.00, which was cashed by Marino.

The police were informed of the affair, but their efforts to discern the culprid up to the present time have been unavailing.

A BREAD LINE AT SUDBURY STATION

Hungry Harvesters Bought 5000 Loaves, Besides Hundreds of Pies, Cakes, Etc.

Sudbury, Sept. 27.—There has been a "bread line" in Sudbury for the past month. Not the ordinary "bread line," but one of hungry harvesters. The estimate of the amount of bread purchased at Sudbury station, while the harvester trains have been passing through to the west have been 5,000 loaves, besides hundreds of pies, cakes and buns.

When the harvest excursions started last month local bakers found that they could dispose of waggon loads of bread to the west-bound excursionists, and, as a result, one or two waggons have visited the Canadian Pacific railway station upon the arrival of every train.

On the arrival of every train there was always a rush, and the excursionists were required to form in line and take their turn. But it was a "bread line" where every crumb was paid for. This year's sale beat all former records.

LYNCH AN M.P.

Irish Colonel Who Had Been Found Guilty of Treason Occupies Seat In English House.

Dublin, Sept. 26.—Colonel Arthur Lynch has been returned unopposed as Nationalist member for West Clare, in succession to the late Mr. Halpin. Thus there will enter Parliament a man who, of all its members, has probably had the strangest career. In 1901 Colonel Lynch was elected Nationalist M. P. for Galway. He was unable, however, to take the oath or his seat in the House because he was taking a holiday after fighting on the side of the Boers against the British. Scarcely had he set foot on English soil again when he was arrested on a charge of high treason. A memorable trial culminated in Colonel Lynch being sentenced to death. This was subsequently commuted to penal servitude for life. On his conviction the seat for Galway became, ipso facto vacant. Mr. Lynch remained in prison for four years. Then he received the King's pardon and was restored to full civil rights, his disqualification for membership of the House of Commons being, therefore, removed. After he had been declared elected, Mr. Lynch said he remembered meeting the sheriffs on a previous occasion—when the decision of the Court was sentence of death; but the verdict he had received that day gave him a new lease of life. (Cheers.) Born in 1861, at Ballarat, of Irish parentage, Mr. Lynch started as an engineer, became a lecturer, and drifted into journalism.

A SURPLUS BUT ——

The Temiskaming Railway shows net receipts of $457,000 for the first seven months of 1909, or a balance of $107,000 after paying operating expenses, interest on investment, and all other charges. This surplus is not a cause for unmixed satisfaction. The Ross Government, which projected the road, intended it for colonisation purposes; to facilitate the settlement of the rich territory in the northern part of the province. That policy cannot be fulfilled if the road is to be regarded as a mere money-making concern.

Collier's Weekly cites a few cases of exorbitant charges that are probable examples of many. The manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada,, Mr. Lloyd was charged eight dollars on an express parcel from Toronto. Two dollars of this paid the freight frm the Queen City to North Bay, and the other six dollars represented what the Government-owned railway charged the sender from North Bay to Cochrane. A settler from Essex County was charged $103 to have his effects moved over the people's railway to Cochrane. Another settler was charged $40 for the transportation of a cow. New Ontario will not be peopled and developed as it ought to be if such heavy tolls are to be levied upon the newcomers and upon the traffic of the district. Perhaps this policy is only temporary, and the Government will apply the surpluses toward the reduction of rates. This is the principle which should govern public ownership of public utilities.—London Advertiser.

Conservative newspapgers gloat over the big showing of revenue achieved by the Provincial railway, and compare it with the financial results of Intercolonial management greatly, as they seem to think, to the disadvantage of the latter. It is no surprise that such a showing is made if the exorbitant charges cited above are made. Hon. A. G. Blair, speaking in Peterborough, on one occasion, said that if the charges were stiffened on the Intercolonial, if the people were made to pay high prices for the services rendered, if instead of being made a convenience to the commercial and travelling public it was made a means of bleeding their pockets, the railway would be able to make a much better showing. What the Whitney Government has evidently been doing is making shippers of merchandise pay through the nose for the sake of the glory of boasting of a big revenue. A revenue thus gained cannot be permanent; in the first place the people won't stand it long; in the second place, the goose that lays the golden egg may quit laying. The mining activity which is mainly responsible for the big freight and passenger traffic, may cease, to a large extent, and dependence will have to be placed upon the trade resulting from agricultural and genral commercial operations, which will never flourish, if the rates charged at present are maintained. How will the great fertile clay belt be filled up if a farmer going in is charged, as in the case of the Essex farmer, more for getting upon his land than he paid for the land itself? It would be more in the public interest to charge reasonable rates on the provinicial railway, and incur the danger of a short-fall in income than to force the people by ruinously high rates to contribute to an unjustly inflated income. The Government would be justified in imposing such rates as would barely pay its way and keep expenditure and income on a level. Any excess of income arising out of the operation of a publicly-owned utility comes out of the pockets of the people, in whose interests the railway is assumed to be operated, and nothing but a little empty glory to the operators is gained thereby. Any excess of revenue over expenditure, beyond the necessary expense of up-keep and providing for renewals, goes into the general fund for the benefit of the people, with the effect that one section of the people—those who use the railway for commercial or travelling purposes—is unduly taxed for the benefit of the whole. If the provincial railway earned big revenue by reasonable rates a surplus would be legitimate cause for congratulation, but if the excess comes from extortion then humiliation is the becoming attitude.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Many Peterborough citizens were roused from their beauty sleep last night by the report of a fire arm followed quickly by another explosion. The report was evidently made by a shot gun as shown by the woolly nature of the sound, as contrasted with the clean-cut noise of a rifle. The shots were heard at half-past one o'clock, and as there is no sequential report of a human tragedy this morning, it is probable that some long-suffering individual has been returning good for evil—kept from sleep by the caterwauling of some wakeful or pugnacious or billing and cooing cats, he has put them to sleep with his trusty gun.

COLLECT THE GARBAGE.

The Brockville Times thus refers to a condition which should very properly engage the attention of our own authorities:

"Kingston, among other Ontario towns, is wrestling with the problem of garbage collection. It has made a tentative experiment at a cost of some $500, but with poor results. Meantime, typhoid fever has broken out in the west end of the town, and public sentiment there is becoming insistent upon some action being taken by the authorities. In all probability the common absence in our towns of a good general system of garbage collection is responsible for the typhoid, diptheria and scarlet fever which kills so many valuable lives every year. The blame is frequently laid upon the supply of water and of milk, but we are much mistaken if the putrid animal and vegetable garbage at our back doors is not largely to blame for disease. The Provincial Board of Health would do well to consider this matter and try to make it compulsory for civic authorities to provide some form of systematic removal of garbage. Already precautions exist and are enforced for the protection of the public health. Why not add another much-needed safeguard?

"THE ATONEMENT OF SIN"

(By Pastor Russell.)

Sunday, Sept. 26.—A realization of imperfection, of sin, is general. We were "born in sin, shapen in iniquity; in sin did my mother conceive me." A general realization of this fact prevails amongst intelligent people. Whether the how and the why, the philosophy of the matter be discerned or not, the fact is recognized. However we may theorize that the same Creator who made the angels pure, happy, holy, sinless, also made us, we nevertheless are aware of the fact that we are not pure, holy, sinless, undefiled. Righteousness should not, however, be considered the phenomenon, but the original, proper condition of things. Sin is the phenomenon, the peculiarity, the disorder—the disarrangement of the proper order which previously prevailed and by right should everywhere prevail.

Nowhere in the world do we find any explanation of present conditions that is satisfactory to us, except in the Bible, which teaches that God's Work is perfect; that he made man in his own image and likeness; that sinful ambition brought in rebellion against the Divine regulations and that present disorders are the result of that rebellion—human degradation, mental, moral, physical—dying—death.

It is true that human philosophy has sought to solve the question of man's condition of sin and imperfection aside from the Bible. Its claim is that the Bible record is untrue; that man was never perfect; that man never fell from perfection into sin and death; that man, consequently, needs no Saviour from sin and death and no restitution to original perfection — to original Edenic perfection. Its claim is that if there is a personal God, he is not exercising any special powers, but merely allowing so-called Laws of Nature to operate.

It claims that in the surging of the salt waters of the ocean protoplasmic life was generated, and that the microscopic germ polly-wogged and evoluted into a thousand different forms—worms and snakes, fish and whale, beasts and birds and reptiles; and that finally one division of the polly-wog family attained to monkeyhood, and gradually getting used to stand on his hind legs, became a man. It ignores, if it does not deny, sin and its downward tendencies, which we all know afflict the human family and must be struggled and fought against. It denies the need of a Saviour, an Advocate, a Mediator; and it holds that each generation of humanity dying, helps onward the succeeding generation to grander development and that eventually human perfection will be attained by the evolutionary process, by man's own exertion, regardless of whether there is a Creator or not.

We can only assume that this Evolution theory found friends and advocates because the Bible teaching has been so grossly misunderstood. It has been misrepresented as teaching that practically all of the human family were born under a Divine sentence of eternal torture and that only the few reached in the present life by the Gospel can by faith in the Saviour and by a thorough-going conversion to saintship escape eternal torment and gain eternal blessing. Thinking people, not surmising that the Bible is misrepresented by its own friends, by the creeds in general, have looked about for a substitute. Evolution, although quite unsatisfactory to them, furnished the only substitute they could think of, while it ignored the Bible.

Now as the electric lights supplant the tallow dip, concordances and other Bible study helps assist us to a proper understanding of God's Revelation. One Scripture throws light upon another; and thus gradually the errors of gross darkness and superstitution which prevailed so generally in "the dark ages" flee away, and the Lamp of Divine Truth gives forth a brilliant ray which fully satisfies our heads and hearts, and glorifies our Creator.

In the light of this newly-trimmed Arc-light of Truth, God's Word, we may now see that the real penalty for sin is not a coming eternal torment at the hands of fire-proof demons, but instead the reign of sin and death. Now we may see how disobedience on the part of Father Adam brought upon him a death sentence, a dying condition, and that these, transmitted from parent to child, have increased the calamity, century by century, until to-day, amongst the most civilized, one out of every one hundred and fifty adults is in an insane asylum—unable to care for himself. Millions more of our race are in prisons and penitentiaries because of moral blemishes, because "born in sin and shapen in iniquity," they have inherited vices which have been accentuated by association with each other. All over the world, too, we have hospitals and infirmaries and cemeteries. The reason is exactly what the Word of God teaches, namely, "The wages of sin is death." "The soul that sinneth it shall die." The great disease of sin, started by our first parents in Eden, has spread as a plague amongst all their children, blemishing some specially in one particular and some in another but corrupting the whole and bringing death to all.

Our minds agree to the foregoing. We agree, too, that it is proper that the Almighty God should be a just God, that Justice should be "the foundation of his throne," his Government. We inquire as to what is possible in the way of sin-atonement, by which original sin might be offset and Adam and all his race, who fell through disobedience, might be brought back to Divine favor and be made again holy and happy, as the angels, and recipients of Divine favors, including eternal life. The Scriptures answer this inquiry, telling us that we are right in feeling that we are sinners; that we are right in believing that Divine Justice must be met before reconciliation can be effected. But they tell us that God has moved first in this matter—that he did not wait for man to appeal to him for mercy, but that, "while we were yet sinners," he sent his only begotten Son to be our Redeemer, to bring us back into harmony with God. The Old Testament is full of assurances that God's mercy will ultimately be manifested to mankind through that Redeemer and through the nation of Israel, upon which he would confer the special privilege and honor of bearing the Truth to every other nation. The New Testament contains the record that when our Redeemer came, the world and his own nation knew him not. It tells that, in crucifying the Redeemer, the people of Israel really fulfilled the Divine intention as foretold through the prophets; that they thus slew the great sin-offering, "The Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." And as we learn how to bring the various testimonies of the Scripture into harmony with each other, they tell us that the Redeemer, before blessing Israel, will accomplish another work not generally known—the gathering of Spiritual Israel. This the Apostle styles "The mystery of God."

The result of sin-atonement and the return of man to God's favor would not mean a changing of men to spiritual beings, nor the giving to mankind of a heavenly home, but rather restitution. The Eden home first provided for Father Adam was Paradise, but it was lost by his disobedience. The proposition of the Scriptures is that the great Redeemer will restore Paradise and enlarge it, making it world-wide, the home for not only Adam, but his now multitudinous progeny of Twenty Thousand Millions. The Scriptures abound with promises that Israel shall be re-gathered and restored to Divine favor and be made the instrumentality of the Lord in spreading the blessings to other nations. The Scriptures tell us how the paradaisaical condition shall be brought about. They explain that the wilderness shall blossom as the rose and the solitary place be glad. St. Peter points us down to the Second Coming of Christ for the fulfillment of all these great restitution promises. He tells us that then will come to earth "times of refreshing." He assures us that the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world has begun will then find accomplishment (Acts iii, 19-21.).

But now we inquire why this delay in bringing in the "times of refreshing," the "times of restitution." Why did not the great Redeemer begin at once to accomplish the work secured by his death at Calvary? How can he bear to delay, since he loved the world so that he died for all, and since he fully admits that the whole creation is in pain, waiting for the great deliverance made possible by his sacrifice (Romans viii, 19-22)?

The Scriptures answer the question. They tell us that the gathering of the elect Church during this Gospel Age as a feature of the Divine program must precede the bringing of restitution blessings to the world. They tell us that God has imposed special crucial tests upon those now called and chosen. Their invitation is to joint-heirship with Christ in a heavenly or spiritual nature, and to a share with him in the Millennial Kingdom and glory, and in the work which these will accomplish for the world. The Scriptures tell us that those who will be accounted worthy of this exaltation to glory, honor and immortality, will first be required to prove their loyalty to the Lord to the extent of sacrifice. This does not mean a putting away of sin, for that would not be sacrifice. It does mean the laying down of earthly rights and privileges, after the manner and example of the Redeemer, who knew no sin. Believers are exhorted thus to sacrifice. The Apostle says to them, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, your reasonable service" (Romans xii, 1).

Many Scriptures inform us that God has attached the glories of the future to the sufferings of the present and that "if we suffer with Christ we shall also reign with him" and "if we be dead with him, we shall also live with him." Thus we see this entire Gospel Age is a period of sacrificing. Our Lord began the sacrificing, and in accepting believers as his members, it is on condition that they will be sanctified, separated from the world, and present their bodies living sacrifices. Thus the saints throughout this Gospel Age have been suffering with their Lord and Head and, as St. Paul declares, "filling up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ" (Colossians 1, 24). The merit is in the sacrifice of their Lord, but he passes that merit through the believers of this Gospel Age, to the intent that they may share in the glories and honors of his Millennial Kingdom, which will be established as soon as the last member of "his Body" shall have finished the sufferings of the Christ.

St. Paul, after pointing out the typical sin-offerings under the Jewish arrangement, shows us that the sacrifices of Christ and the Church are the antitypes of these sin-offerings—offered year by year under the Jewish economy. Those he styles the "better sacrifices than these," (Hebrews ix. 23).

We are at the time of the year when our Hebrew fellow-citizens are accustomed to celebrate their great Day of Atonement. They celebrate it, however, in a meaningless manner. Those of them who are acquainted with the facts know that the whole procedure is a farce. In the confusion which God has permitted to come upon them they have no Priest. Since their rejection of Messiah their priestly records are lost, so that no Jew in the world can make claim to the position of High Priest or dare to perform the functions of High Priest in connection with the Day of Atonement sacrifices. They have no Tabernacle or Temple, nor dare they erect one for if one were consecrated, an unauthorized priest would risk his life in attempting to pass through the Second Veil into the Most Holy.

As a consequence our Hebrew friends deserve our sympathy. The tenth day of the seventh month was their appointed Day of Atonement. By the sacrifices of that day, properly performed, reconciliation for their iniquities was made for the ensuing year, at the end of which they would again become unclean and need another Atonement Day. As the Apostle says, the arrangement God made for them for the forgiveness of sins was "year by year continually," and the yearly repetition indicated that the sins were not really cancelled, but merely covered for the year.

It is a part of Divine providence that our Hebrew friends have no Priest and that no sin-atonement sacrifice is possible. Now when the anniversary of the Day of Atonement comes they bemoan their sins and fast and pray; but they have no Priest to offer the bullock of a sin-offering and then to take its blood into the Holy and Most Holy and to sprinkle the same for the cleansing of the priestly tribe. They have no Priest later on to come and take the goat's sin-offering and do with it as he did with that of the bullock, taking its blood into the Most Holy and sprinkling the Mercy Seat for all the other eleven tribes of Israel. The Priest does not come out of the Holies to bless them, as of yore, and to tell them that their sins are forgiven through the merit of the sacrificial blood. No! After waiting the entire day, and knowing that they have no Priest, no Advocate, no Intercessor, no Sin-bearer, at the close of their Atonement Day they endeavor to be cheerful and happy and to suppose their sins forgiven; or, rather, they endeavor to forget all about the matter in worldliness.

Would that all our Hebrew friends, as well as all Christians, could understand the true antitype of that great Day of Atonement, which the Jews celebrated annually in a typical manner. Its antitype is this Gospel Age. At the beginning of this antitypical Atonement Day our Lord Jesus offered up himself—the antitype of the bullock (Lev. xvi). When he ascended up on high, he applied the merit of the sacrifice to the antitypical Levitical tribe—to the household of faith of this Gospel Age, for the Royal Priesthood. Since Pentecost the second part of the Day of Atonement sacrifices has been in process. "The Lord's goat," antityped by the Church, has been in process of sacrifice. The great High Priest has been accepting consecrated believers as members of his Body and has been seeing to their sacrificial sufferings. "Now is the acceptable time" for such sacrificing.

This procedure has gone on for now nearly nineteen centuries and, according to our understanding of the Scriptures, is nearly complete. Soon the last "member of the Body of Christ" will have suffered with his Lord and Head. Soon the blood of this secondary sacrifice will be sprinkled in the Most Holy on the Mercy Seat—the blood of the members of Christ. Jesus' blood passed through them. Soon the acceptance of it as the pardon price "for the sins of the whole world" will be acknowledged by the Father. Soon the great High Priest, Head and members, will come forth, clothed in the glory, honor, dignity and power represented in the garments of the typical high priest of Israel, and will bless the world. Soon will come the time for the lifting of the hands of the Priest, the display of his power. Soon as a result the blessing will fall upon all of the people—upon natural Israel first. Soon will shouts of rejoicing arise from the people as conditions of sorrow and pain shall pass away, giving place to praise, as men shall seek to glorify God and lift up holy hands in his service.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. William Ball, Bracebridge, Ont. writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the coughs at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

Want Wire Competition.

Cobalt, Sept. 27.—The business interests of the mining camp are preparing to send a formal petition to the C.P.R. Telegraph Co. within a few days asking for the extension of that company's line to Cobalt. The rates charges by the T. & N. O. Co. have led the business men of Cobalt to believe that the town would be the better for a little competition. The telegraphic business between Cobalt and the outside world probably exceeds that of any town of similar size in the world, and it must be a veritable mint for the T. & N. O. Co. at the prevailing rates.

The route proposed for the Cobalt extension is up the Quebec side of Lake Temiskaming to a point opposite the Montreal River and thence to the mining town over the power companies' right of way.

As a Last Resort.

The stranger had been compelled to linger twenty-four hours within the gates. "Well," queried the landlord of the village inn as the stranger was settling his bill, "what do you think of our place as a summer resort?"

"I'd hate to tell you," answered the stranger as he picked up his grip. "Even what I think of it as a last resort would not look well in print."

Growth of Liverpool.

In fifty years Liverpool has doubled her population and quintripled her commerce. "Is not this something to be proud of?" exclaims the native. "If we have not the beauty of Edinburgh and Birmingham we measure up to these places in enterprise. Our shipping has grown until the seamen number nearly 50,000. What other place can equal this?"

Fox Finds a Pole.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Prof. Philip Fox, director of Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern University, announces that on Thursday night he had an unusually good observation of the South Pole of Mars, which is now only 35,000,000 miles from the earth. Prof. Fox says the Pole appeared to be a white peak surrounded by an ice-clad area and apparently similar to the Poles of the earth.

SUFFERED 15 YEARS CURED IN ONE MONTH

Gin Pills are wonderful.

If every woman, who has Kidney or Bladder Trouble, could go to Davisville, Ont., and talk with Mrs. A. Simpson, they would do just as she did—take Gin Pills and cure themselves.

Mrs. Simpson grows enthusiastic over Gin Pills. Quite naturally, for she would be dragging out a miserable existence, instead of being the picture of health, had she not taken these pills.

"For 14 or 15 years I had Kidney and Bladder Trouble, suffering at times intense pain. I doctored continually and received sometimes temporary relief, but nothing gave me permanent relief until I was persuaded to try Gin Pills.

Within a couple of days I received great relief, and after taking one box I was completely cured and now would not be without them. I can highly recommend them to all who suffer from any form of Kidney Trouble."

Mrs. A. SIMPSON.

Chemong Indians Defeated Visitors In All The Sports

Large Excursion From Rama and Georgina Island Reserves Was a Big Success—Details of How Friday Was Spent—Five-Mile Race Warmly Contested.

BALL GAME A HUMMER

Examiner Special:

Chemong Village, Sept. 27.—The excursion of the Lake Simcoe Indians on Friday last to this village resulted in one of the biggest celebrations in the history of Chemong, the visitors and guests uniting for a good time, which was realized to the full. The steamer "Geneva" left Lake Simcoe on Thursday morning with about 200 excursionists from the reserves at Rama and Georgina Island, and the whole day was required for the trip, the boat not landing here until eight o'clock in the evening. They were given a great reception, but nothing was done as the big programme had been prepared for Friday, and it certainly did not disappoint anyone. All day long the fun was kept up with sports, etc., and a general good time was enjoyed. It was concluded by a grand concert in the village hall in the evening. The visitors left on Saturday morning for their homes after an outing that was conceded one of the best in the history of the several reserves.

Chemong Victorious.

The fun commenced Friday morning by a football match between the Rama team and the Chemong boys, in which the latter won out by the wide score of five goals to nothing. The home athletes were in great trim and galloped all around their competitors winning out with very little difficulty. Dinner was served and everyone joined in and had a merry time. In the afternoon when the men had recovered from the effects of the splendid spread with which the women had tickled their palates, a baseball game was played between the Chemong boys and the Georgina Island nine. It was a great game and created all kinds of excitement. Our boys won out by 23 runs to 20, and an innings to spare.

The line-up of the two teams was as follows:

Rama—Wm. George, W. Charles, Robert Port, John Ford, Eph. McCue, J. Port, Geo. Vernon, Tom Riccano, Dave Procer.

Great Race.

The five-mile race, however, was the best of them all, and meant another victory for Chemong, as Albert Smoke ran rings around the other runners, and crossed the line one-half mile ahead of the second man. Those who toed the tape for the start were William George, of Georgina, a member of the Beaverton Athletic Club, and a brother of James George, who has made good a number of times; S. Syers, of Rama, Jack Jacobs, of Chemong, and Albert Smoke also of Chemong. The track, which was five laps to the mile, was fast and in good condition. Syers quit after the fourth lap and Jack Jacobs succumbed to the pace after doing six laps. He got up again, but only did another lap. Smoke had George at his mercy and pranced home a half-mile ahead of him. Who says Chemong athletes are not among the classiest. The time of the race was 27 mins., 10 seconds. George's time was 30 mins., 20 sec. Smoke made the last lap, one-fifth of a mile in 45 sec.

The concert and tea in the evening was another big success. The large choir and brass band from the Rama reserve enlivened the proceedings, and helped largely in making the affair a success. Among the chiefs who were present were Chief Jos. Whiting, of Chemong, Chief Big Canie, from Georgina Island, Chief Isaac Johnston, of Scugog, and Chief Stinson of Rama. These were several of the Hiawatha people present.

STRANGE CASE OF MAN WHOSE MENTAL FACULTIES FAILED HIM

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 24.—One of the most reamrkable cases of lapse of memory on record is that of the man who on Friday, Aug. 27, came suddenly to realize the fact that he was unable to recall his past life. This unfortunate man has recently been identified as Harry C. Green, formerly of Columbus, O., but more recently of Dallas, Tex., and who was a salesman.

While in Keith Park here, immediately after a band concert, he suddenly lost his memory. He didn't know where he lived or what his name was; could not tell whether or not he was married, or what his business was.

After walking about town for an hour or two, talking to various men, and all the time fully aware of his predicament, but unable to come to himself, he at last inquired his way to the police station and there explained his misfortune. He was turned over to the county physicians, who tried to bring him to remembrance of his past life, but were baffled in every effort. He knew nothing whatever of this world; could spell the names of various countries and cities, but knew not where they were nor what they represented.

For some time no trace of his identity could be discovered, but the name of the manufacturers of his suit of clothes, D. M. Moore & Sons of Columbus, Ohio, was taken, and they were written to and his measure sent to them. They identified him and notified his brother, Charles C. Green of that place, who made preparations to come to Beaumont. Meanwhile this brother had communicated with the unfortunate man's wife, who had previously wired him that her husband had mysteriously disappeared and that she was unable to loate him. The anxious woman came here, but her husband showed no signs of recognition and was absolutely unable to recall any of the many events of their past life, to which she patiently referred.

He evinced no knowledge whatever of their five children; though he seems to have confidence in the truth of her statement that she is his wife, and tries as hard as any one to make some step toward a recognition of the past, but so far has not been able to get any encouragement from his muddled brain.

He has a very vivid recollection of everything that has happened since that Friday night; can recollect the names of dozens of Beaumont people who have called on and conversed with him; and, in short, is in every way all right with the exception of the absolute blank in his mind regarding his past. He is perfectly aware of his predicament, but is unable to remedy it. He seems to rack his brain for some clue to the past, but no ray of light has yet dawned on his memory.

It seems that Green left Dallas, Aug. 23 on his usual sales trip, but it is thought the heat must have caused a derangement of his faculties, and that he wandered down to Galveston, and then to Beaumont. He, his wife and his brother will probably return to Dallas shortly, and it is thought a long rest with his family will restore his normal condition.

SCHOOL BOY WHO ATE ONIONS SENT HOME

Teacher Did Not Like the Odour That Permeated the Atmosphere.

To show what ears some of our teachers have become, one pupil was sent home because he ate onions. The infinitesimal particles of the odoriferous fruit vibrated upon the nasal membrane of the aforesaid goddess of learning, and irritated her, though, she said, nauseated. The father sent the pupil back and the child was dismissed again.

The principal backed the teacher, and considerable correspondence ensued, which we will publish if we can lay our fingers on it, but the father had his way.

So now little Johnnie Jones and his chums can eat onions to their heart's content.

The question is. When did the teaching profession take upon itself the duties of regulating the diets of the ratepayers' children?—Trenton Advocate.

Canon Spragge, rector of St. Peter's Church conducted the ceremony. The bride wore her travelling suit of amethyst cloth and was given away by her father. She was unattended. Among the guests present from out of town were Mr. Edmund Bristol, K.C., M.P.; and Mrs. Bristol; Mr. Eric Armour, K.C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Drynan, Toronto; Mr and Mrs. S. B. Duncan, and others. Mr. and Mrs. Armour left later in the afternoon for the southern States.

COMSTOCK.—In Peterborough, on Monday Sept. 13, 1909, the wife of Mr. W. Comstock, of a daughter.

A Dramatist's Methods.

"First catch your sensation scene before you write your play," such is the dictum laid down by many dramatists. Mr. Cecil Raleigh, however, who, with Mr. Henry Hamilton, is at present engaged on the new Drury Lane drama in London, is not altogether enamoured of this plan. As a matter of fact, he never thinks of the sensation scene until last, for, as he says, he "can pick them up by the yard anywhere, as civilization is kind enough to provide me with something new every five minutes." Mr. Raleigh always begins the 'Autumn Drama," as it is called at Drury Lane—and he has a round dozen to his credit—on the 14th June, and it is invariably finished in the same length of time year after year. Three acts are always written before the rehearsals commence, and the fourth is finished while the actors are engaged preparing the earlier part.

Beards in Russia.

It is curious to note that in Russia the beard has always been an object of repute. An ordinance which Yaroslaf, son of Vladimir and legislator of Novgorod, then the capital of Russia, published in 1015 exempli fies this. By this law any one plucking a hair from a neighbor's beard was subjected to a punishment four times more severe than that inflicted for cutting off his finger.

In Moscow playing cards are sold only by the municipal government, and the vast income derived from that source is applied toward the maintenance of orphan asylums.

Long Lived Fish.

Fishes, especially the larger species, live a very long time. According to Bacon, eels live fifty years. Carp have been known to exist at least 150 years, while dolphins, sturgeons and sharks live more than a century and attain a huge size.

Hard Graves.

Before a grave can be dug in the churchyard of Llanbadoc, in south Wales, the rock has to be blasted away.

Pecan Culture.

Pecan nuts are grown successfully in several states, but mainly in those states south of parallel 40. Forty feet is generally the distance apart of the trees. If the triangular method of planting is adopted forty trees can be grown to the acre. Pecan trees may bear a few nuts at an early age, but paying crops cannot be expected under ten years and full crops under twenty. The annual yield of a tree in full bearing has been variously reported at from one to twenty bushels.

The Zuyder Zee.

The Zuyder Zee was formed by an inroad of the sea, which broke down the protecting sand dunes.

The Cylinder Printing Press.

In 1814 Frederick Koenig invented the cylinder press in London. It was used here first in 1827. Koenig invented it to the order of Walter of the London Times, the world's great newspaper in those days.

Philippine Forests.

The forests of the Philippine Islands cover an area of about 40,000,000 acres. The island of Mindanao, with an area of some 20,000,000 acres, has immense tracts of almost unbroken forests.

He Beat the Baker.

His name was Johnny, and he was the idol of his mother's heart in spite of what the neighbors might say to his detriment.

"You'll get my bread today before returning to school, John," remarked his mother to the boy while he indulged in his midday meal.

"Yes, mother," answered he and shortly went forth to carry out his mother's wishes.

"A quartern of bread—yesterday's, please," murmured John sweetly as he tendered fivepence halfpenny in payment of the two loaves forthcoming.

"Bread has gone up, my boy, one halfpenny," remarked Mr. Dough as he held out his hand for the needful balance.

"When?" queried John thoughtfully as the prospect of a distasteful double journey flashed across his mind.

"This morning, my lad, if that is any consolation."

Johnny's face brightened visibly. "Yes, I think it is," he remarked spasmodically, "for it was yesterday's bread I ordered."

The baker concluded he had no claim.—London Telegraph.

The Candle Tree.

One of the wonders of the vegetable kingdom is undoubtedly the candle tree of Panama, known to botanists as Parmentiera cerifera. This tree produces from its stem and older branches a great profusion of yellowish, cylindrical, smooth fruits, twelve to eighteen inches long, which appear exactly like wax candles, as the botanical name implies. So close is this resemblance that travelers, seeing the tree for the first time, are liable to be temporarily puzzled as to whether the candles of shops are made in factories or grown on trees! The candle-like fruits are suspended from the branches and bare stem by short, slender stalks, dangling in the air, and readily give the impression of the chandler's shop. As night falls and the numerous fireflies move among the fruit this impression is intensified. The inexperienced traveler is not infrequently informed that the fireflies perform the duty of lighting up these "candles" at night when light is required by the denizens of the jungle—London Strand.

A Lich Gate.

A lich gate is a shed, generally of oak, over the entrance of a church yard, beneath which the bearers paused when bringing a body for interment. Here the clergyman met the body and read the introductory part of the burial service as he preceded the funeral train into the church. Examples of old lich gates are still to be seen in many country churchyards. In Wales they are more modern and are usually built of stone. Some of the old lich gates are formed with one wide door turning on a central pivot and self closing by means of a rude pulley wheel in the roof and a stone weight inclosed in an iron frame, a primitive but effective piece of machinery. In Herefordshire they are also called "scallage" or "scallenge" gates. "Lich gate" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon lich, a corpse; hence the north country "lyke wake."—London Answers.

COLLEGIATE TEAM BEAT THE ROUGH RIDERS HANDILY

Students Won Opening Game in the Junior City Rugby League on Saturday Afternoon by 21 to 1—Were Superior at all Points and Especially on the Wing Line

The 1909 Rugby season was ushered in on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park when the first game in the Junior City League resulted in a brilliant victory for the Collegiate Institute team who defeated their old rivals, the Rough-Riders by 21 points to 1. Considering that it was the first game of the season and that the teams have had comparatively little practice the game was a splendid exhibition and the fairly large crowd present found it a most enjoyable contest. The weather conditions were splendid. There was little or no wind and the temperature was not too warm for Rugby, although the players could have stood a little more of the chilly stuff, without complaining of the cold.

The decisive victory of the Students was a surprise even to themselves. While they felt that their chances of winning were good, Dr. MacPherson's proteges hardly hoped for such a big majority in their favour. They had just about as much the better of the play as the score would indicate too and except on the one occasion when the Rough Riders kicked over the dead line for a single their line was never in danger. The Collegians played straight football all the way. They employed the bucking game almost exclusively, varying only once in a long while with an end run and kicking only when it was necessary. They found early in the game that they could make gains through the Rough Rider line so they devoted their attention to line plunging. The wisdom of this policy was shown by the ease with which they tore through for big gains. The Riders seemed unable to hold them and repeatedly they made their yards in one buck. Only for eagerness on the part of the wings which got them off side and lost them the ball when within scoring distance the garnet and gray combination would have scored more.

They seemed to be much stronger on the line than their opponents. When on the attack the Students' wings gave the backs stonewall protection, easily holding off their adversaries and on the other hand when the Rough Riders were in possession of the ball, Capt. Gibson's men came plunging through the line demoralizing the Riders' back division by their quickness in breaking through. The result was that the Riders' back men, all of whom are speedy, had really no chance to show what they could do. The Collegians' wings were often through before the ball was passed back, so that the Riders were held for losses. To this superiority on the wing line may be assigned the credit for keeping the Riders' score down as the back division of the losers with better protection would have been a much more formidable machine than they were under the circumstances. The Collegian backs were sure and reliable and with the splendid shelter given them by their wing line were able to do great work behind the line.

Capt. Gibson was much to the fore on all occasions. He handled his men well, used good judgment in his tactics and played a splendid game "on his own," as our cousins over seas would say. His tackling was a bright feature. Richardson at centre half was a tower of strength, especially in his line bucking. He was used to carry the ball in most of the mass plays and he hit the Rider line like a runaway freight engine. In addition he punted nicely. Burritt was useful at left half and played a fine game considering that it was his debut in the company. Geale at quarter was invaluable, bucking splendidly while his passing was clean and accurate. In addition he converted two tries in a clever fashion. Everyone on the wing line and in the scrimmage played fine Rugby, Conroy's splendid tackling bringing him especially into the calcium light.

All the Riders back division worked hard, but they were given no protection and had little chance to shine. Laing kicked nicely and worked in some good runs although the deadly tackling of the Collegians bowled him over often before he got underway. Fortye, last year with the Collegiate did some fine punting. There were no particular stars on the wing line. The line did not tackle well and failed to protect their backs. Lack of practice was no doubt responsible for this condition of affairs and the Riders will be a much better team the next time out. They only showed flashes of their last year's form on Saturday.

The officials, J. D. Clarke, as referee and A. Quinlan as umpire discharged their duties to the satisfaction of every one. They had occasion to inflict a number of penalties for high tackling and fighting but on the whole the game was a clean one.

The teams lined up as follows.

Collegiate		Rough Riders
V. Hayes	Back	Laing
Gibson	Halves	Corkery
Richardson		Fortye
Burritt		Quinlan
Geale	Quarter	L. Giroux
Leahy	Scrimmage	H. Giroux
Hogan		Dawe
Harstone		C. Giroux
Gilbert	Inside Wings	Pelton
Kelly		O'Brien
Smith	Middle Wings	Mills
Matthews		C. Hayes
Perks	Outside Wings	Heffernan
Conroy		Waram

The first quarter was the most even of the game and neither team succeeded in scoring although the Collegians early demonstrated their superiority and had the better of the play from the start. They commenced bucking early and made big gains only to lose the ball several times on offsides, when they had worked it well up the field. Just before the end of the quarter the Students got the Riders fifteen yard line and Gibson tried a drop wick which was a failure. The whistle blew immediately after.

A long punt from Richardson in the second quarter coupled with fast following up resulted in Laing being nailed to his own forty yard mark. Then the Students held their opponents for three down and secured possession of the oval. From that point it was a steady march down the field. To Richardson was given the task of carrying the ball and the centre half ripped holes in the Rider line with a persistency that could not be checked, finally plunging over for the first touchdown of the game. Matthews failed to convert from a difficult angle and the Students were ahead 5 to 0.

Before half time the Rough Riders scored their one point on a kick over the dead line by Fortye.

The Collegians opened the third quarter by scoring a safety and a rouge in quick succession by speedy following up. Then Gilbert broke through near centre and blocked Fortye's punt and Geale dribbled the pigskin and then picking it up got away for a long run being stopped at Riders' twelve yard line. On the second down Gibson ran around the end for a try placing the ball square behind the goal posts. Geale converted neatly and the Collegians' score was 14.

The last quarter brought seven more. A rouge came first and then the Students got another try on bucking by Richardson. Geale again converted and the score was 21-1. Full time was called a few moments later.

CHARLIE THORPE WINS THE MILE RACE AT HAMILTON

Charlie Thorpe of the Victoria Harriers, won the mile handicap race at Bobby Kerr's meet at Hamilton on Saturday. Evidently, the handicappers did not know much about the local galloper and they gave him the minimum handicap of 200 yards. The result was that Chuck Skene, the Toronto miler, and Wilson, the English champion, who were at scratch, were unable to get close to the Peterborough boy, who won handily with Cook of Hamilton, also a limit man, second. Thorpe's time for the distance, 1560 yards was 4.13, while Skene did the mile in 4.33, beating the Englishman by ten yards. Thorpe's showing was a creditable one. H. Wood of the Victoria Harriers, took part in the 100 yards' handicap race, and was second in his heat. In the final, however, he was beaten out by Hamilton sprinters, who had fifteen yards' handicap.

NO "PRO" HOCKEY IN NEW LISKEARD

Had Enough of it Last Winter—Will Play For Fun.

Hockey will be played in New Liskeard this winter for sport and for sport only. There will be no professionalism. The report of the intended big doings in Cobalt and Haileybury in hockey circles promoted a reporter of the Herald to put a question to Manager Haynes of the last year's hockey team. Cobalt and Haileybury are already talking of hiring players and are discussing the possibility of landing the Stanley Cup. What is New Liskeard going to do?"

"We will play our own men," was Manager Haynes' reply. If the others want to hire players, they may do so; we will not."

"Then New Liskeard will not compete in the professional league?" was asked.

"No," answered the manager. "We will play amateur hockey only, and if these other fellows want to bring in professionals, they can't play with us, that is all. We will play hockey for fun this year."

W. A. BAILEY IN THE DUNLOP CYCLE RACES

Referred to by Globe as One of Most Picturesque Figures in the Meet.

As usual when the Dunlop annual road race is run rain fell is sufficient quantities to make the road tricky and cause many of the riders to take dangerous tumbles. Of the sixty-three starters who lined up at Scarboro' Beach many of those who finished showed evidences of having been rolling in the mud while many of those who did not finish had similar experiences and were compelled to quit. The big annual fixture was won by Fred Klingbull of the Diamond Bicycle Club, who started with a nine-minute handicap.

The riders were sent away from Scarboro' Beach in relays. They made one turn on the field after which they took to the roads. Queen street east was deep with sand and mud, and several of the riders took chances of dodging the policemen and riding on the sidewalks.

The most picturesque figure in the race was W. A. Bailey, of Peterborough, a whiskered and bespattered man of 40, who stated that he had ridden in from Oshawa and rented another wheel for the race. Although he was away back in the ruck, several others were behind him and he was enthusiastically cheered. — Toronto Globe.

DRIVER THROWN FROM SEAT OF HIS SULKY

Accident in a Race at Lindsay Fair—Horse Slightly Injured.

While the second heat of the 2.22 class was being run off on Friday afternoon at the Lindsay grounds the wheel of Bourbon Brooks' vehicle became locked in the wheel of Forest Pointer's, causing the gig to overturn, throwing the driver under the horse's feet. Fortunately the animal, though frightened, jumped on the green at the side of the track, allowing the trailing horse to pass without any injury being done.

On examination no great injury was done outside of a small cut under Bourbon Brooks' front left leg. This horse is owned by Mr. Elmhirst, of Keene.

THE SHAMROCKS TRIMMED INDIANS

Montreal, Sept. 27.—Shamrocks defeated Tecumsehs Saturday by 7 to 2. Shamrocks needed this game to have a "look-in" at the championship, and as a consequence they put up their strongest team and called upon them to play their best game. By winning Saturday the Shamrocks are now tied with Montreal for first place, and home-and-home games will be necessary. This will mean gigantic receipts and lots of pocket-money for the players, so this may have had something to do with the fast game put up by the Irishmen on Saturday.

At any rate they started off at a fast clip, and did not give the Indians more than a look-in. Shamrocks were minus McIlwaine, while Tecumsehs were without Charlie Querrie.

Shamrocks got the first goal, and pressed hard, but the big Tecumseh defence men checked hard. Shamrocks seemed already to steal the ball from them, although when they did get it they did not do much with it. There was lots of running with the ball, but little really dangerous work on either side. After a time play steadied down and the checking and covering were close and hard. The Tecumseh home players put up a good game, but were unable to break down the defence work of the Irish. The finish was all Shamrock, as they scored the last four goals without the Indians finding their net.

Shamrocks — Muir, goal; Dillon, point; Kavanagh, cover-point; Howard, Tobin, Rochford, defence; Munday, centre; Robinson, Hyland, O'Reilly, home; Hogan, outside home; Brennan, inside home.

Tecumsehs — Kinsman, goal; Griffith, point; Yeaman, cover-point; Pickering, Graydon, Rountree, defence; Felker, centre; Green, Murton, Gilbert, home; Durkin, outside home; Adamson, inside home.

"CONSTRUCTION OF BALLOONS"

At the present time, when so much interest is being taken in aerial navigation, a picture of this sort should serve as an educational expedient. It shows the manufacturing of balloons from the time the material arrives until you see the airship turned loose to soar among the clouds.

"THE HUNCHBACK"

A strong and pathetic Drama, showing the great love of a deformed man for a good woman, "Lady Gertrude", the angel of the village, and how he sacrifices his life for her. The subject is splendidly mounted and the picture should be pleasing to everybody.

PANIC FROM FIREWORKS

New York, Sept. 28.—Terrified by Black Hand stories, 1,000 children stampeded in a Polish parochial school in Jersey City yesterday, when fireworks were set off in the street below, and in the mad rush for the doors, fourteen were crushed, one so seriously that death will probably result.

Cries of "dynamite and the Black Hand," rang through the building. The calls of the priest in charge had no effect. The terrified children poured into the halls and rushed wildly down the stairs. There are two street doors, but one of them was closed. A few passed safely out the open door, but at the closed entrance there occurred a disastrous jam.

Here several of the smaller children were tramped unconscious, while others ran back into the building and sprang through open windows, fifteen feet to an area below.

Fighting For Blythe.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—T. C. Robinette, K.C., counsel for Walter Blythe, condemned to die on Friday, will make his final struggle for the life of his client to-day before the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall. He will then apply for a direction compelling Judge Riddell to state a case to the Court of Appeal on the ground of intoxication.

Mr. Robinette will also seek at this hearing to argue the whole matter of a new trial and should this be granted Blythe's case can be heard at the Criminal Assizes November 18.

Should the judgment of the Court of Appeal not be delivered before Friday the execution must again be stayed until after it is heard, even should the judges decide against him.

Murphy Gruff to Bernier.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Asked for a statement as to his reasons for his reference to Dr. Bernier, Dr. Cook has wired from New York: "Bernier brought supplies sent by Mr. Cook. Left them at Etah in care of Harry Whitney on August 20, 1908. Bernier asked for Esquimaux and dogs, and was refused by Murphy. In Bernier's letter, Beechy Islands, Lancaster Sound, was given as his next winter station. See Whitney on Jeannie, now at Battle Harbor, Labrador. (Signed) Frederick A. Cook."

Murphy was Peary's boatswain, who was troublesome also to Cook.

Wade for Lieutenant-Governor.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—It is probable that F. B. Wade, the well-known western lawyer, will be appointed Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia. Much pressure is being brought to bear on the Government to give him the position.

THREE ARE DROWNED

Captain Corson of Hamilton and Mate McCallum of Toronto Lose Their Lives When the J. C. Van Straubenzie Is Run Down by the City of Erie—Unknown Woman Dies—Two Sailors Rescued.

Buffalo, Sept. 28.—Out of the darkness which overlay Lake Erie off Dunkirk early yesterday darted the schooner T. Van Straubenzie straight into the course of the steamer City of Erie.

There was a crash and shrieks from three persons who will never call out again. Capt. John Corson of Hamilton, Ont., of the sunken schooner; Mate James McCallum of Toronto, and an unknown woman who cooked for the crew of four.

Thomas Hollis and Thomas Garner, two seamen, pulled from the wreckage by the hands of the City of Erie, were saved to tell their half of the tragedy.

The Van Straubenzie, owned by the Erie Coal Co., was sailing light from Port Colborne to Cleveland for a load of sand.

Capt. McAlpine of the passenger boat had turned over the immediate charge of the vessel to Pilot Pickle, who was at the wheel shortly before 3 o'clock in the morning. The skies were then clear and starry and the proper signal lights could easily have been seen several miles ahead. But suddenly, dead ahead, the pilot perceived a dark shape take form out of the night.

The two vessels must have been at least a half mile apart at that time, but although the pilot signalled to reverse engines, such was the momentum of the City of Erie that she crashed prow to prow into the coming schooner.

The Erie's boats were lowered immediately and one seaman was picked up within the first few seconds of the search. It was nearly half an hour afterward that the second sailor was discovered, clinging to a bit of drifting wreckage.

The steamer lay to in the vicinity of the wreck until dawn showed that it was useless to continue the search, and then proceeded on its course to Buffalo.

"I am confident the collision was due to the negligence of the schooner in not properly displaying her lights," declared General Freight Agent H. R. Rogers of the Cleveland and Buffalo line, after a grilling examination of the captain, the pilot and other members of the crew of the City of Erie, as well as the two survivors of the wrecked vessel.

Wife Had a Premonition.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—The Van Straubenzie was a well-known craft in Toronto harbor, and cleared this port for Erie on Saturday last. It was a three-masted schooner, about 30 years old and could carry 750 tons of coal or 2,400 bushel of wheat.

Capt. Corson lived at 242 North Wellington street, Hamilton. He was born in Grimsby in 1843. He was owner of the schooner "Merritt," wrecked in a gale on Lake Erie many years ago. While in charge of the "W. J. Suffel" it was blown clean up the lake and stranded on Burlington Beach. It was then he located in Hamilton and married. His wife said yesterday: "All night long I was unable to sleep. I was very ill about five o'clock this morning—the time, they tell me, the accident occurred. I guess it was sort of a premonition."

J. W. Corson, coal and wood dealer, 549 East King street, Toronto, is a brother, and Mrs. Capt. Brooks of Cleveland, Mrs. Charles Hutchinson of Sarnia, and Mrs. H. E. Smith of Britton, are daughters.

Mate James McCallum had lived for years at the Grand Central Hotel. He was about 55 years old and has a wealthy brother in Montreal.

Actress Hurt In Runaway.

Stratford, Sept. 28.—Two ladies of the cast of "Faust," which was presented here last night, met with a serious accident in a runaway late yesterday afternoon. Miss Porter's nose was broken and Miss Miller received a severe shaking up. They were able to take their parts last evening.

The Stratford Normal School opened yesterday with an attendance of about 200. Kerr Brothers, revivalists of Toronto and Detroit, have opened a two-weeks' campaign in the Trinity Methodist Church.

Kills Father to Protect Mother.

Coshocten, Ohio, Sept. 28.—William Davis, 20 years old, killed his father during a quarrel between the boy's parents. The son says his father threatened to strike his mother and he struck him down with a hatchet. Eli Davis is said to have quarrelled with his wife because she did not cook breakfast to suit him.

Farmers Loses 35 Hogs.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—T. Trudel, a Cyrville farmer, has had 35 hogs shot by order of the Department of Agriculture. The animals had contracted a disease resembling hog cholera.

Two-thirds of their value will be allowed by the Government.

Little Accident at Brechin.

Barrie, Sept. 28.—Two light engines and a van ran through an open switch at Brechin early yesterday afternoon. No one was hurt; damages slight, and traffic not interfered with to any extent. Allandale auxiliary cleared up the wreck.

4 HORSES PERISHED

Photographer, the 20 to 1 Sensation of Last Year's Meet, Mooreshot, Overshot and Kempenfeldt Are Destroyed by Flames While Being Taken From Toronto to Their Stables at London.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Four of Adam Beck's string of racehorses, including Photographer, the 20 to 1 shot sensation of the Woodbine spring meet of 1908, were smothered and burned when the car in which they were being shipped to their owner's stables in London, caught fire just as the train was pulling out of the city at 8 o'clock last night. The other three animals were Kempenfeldt, Overshot and Mooreshot.

The four horses were loaded in a G.T.R. train yesterday afternoon, and Frank Dillon, 18 years, with William Palmer, of the same age, traveled in the car with them. As the car pulled out of the Union Station yards it was considerably jolted and a lantern which had been hung from the roof of the car was knocked down.

This set fire to the hay and straw in the car and the men, who had lain down to sleep were awakened by the plunging of the quartette of terrified animals. The train was moving rapidly and the air from the vents had fanned the flames so that nothing could be done to extinguish them. The men had no way of signalling for a stop, and as the horses were plunging wildly their position was exceedingly dangerous. They rushed to the door at the side of the car and swinging outside to avoid the flame and smoke, managed to climb to the outside.

As the train pulled past Spadina avenue passersby noticed the flames coming through the vent at the top of the car and turned in an alarm. This was at 8.27. The fire was noticed by the train hands and the train was stopped at the foot of Bathurst street. The terrified men jumped from the burning car, which was pulled away from the one immediately behind it, in which were a number of horses of the Dyment string.

When the fire was extinguished it was found that all the animals were dead. The carcasses were badly scorched and the inside of the car was damaged.

Called on the 'phone at London, Hon. Adam Beck had heard of the fire. He said that he could not place a money loss, and did not think that the horses were insured. He said that fortunately his 20 to 1 shot sensation of this year's spring meeting, Jack Parker, had escaped, being in Hamilton.

Beside his victory at 20 to 1, in the opening races of the 1908 meet, which made him famous, Photographer otherwise distinguished himself at that meet, winning four straight races.

Smothered In A Bank Of Sand

Mass of Gravel Drove Elderly Man Against Waggon With Fatal Results.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Smothered in a bank of sand, with his head crushed against the wheels of his waggon, Jas. Martin, aged 77, who lived with his daughter in the rear of 43 O'Hara avenue, was found early yesterday afternoon by some workmen in a sandpit on Huron street north of St. Clair avenue.

Martin owned a team and when yesterday morning his driver did not show up his hitched up the horses and drove to the pit. While taking on a load there the bank gave way and the falling gravel drove him with force against his wagon. Dr. Warren of Wychwood pronounced life extinct and the body was removed to Spiers' undertaking establishment.

Dr. C. H. Gilmour opened an inquest last night. After viewing the body the investigation was adjourned till this evening. Martin was a widower. He leaves a grown-up family.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—There is another deadlock between the city and the power company over the lighting question. The Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. have launched their ultimatum. All the lights on the city streets will be cut off on Friday, Oct. 1, unless a sum is voted to guarantee the payment of their account to the end of the year. The finance committee has refused to grant that sum.

Lockjaw After Vaccination.

London, Sept. 28.—Arnold Court, the 16-year-old son of Wm. Court, London South, is in Victoria Hospital last night suffering from lockjaw following vaccination. Two weeks ago the lad was sent home by the principal of the school to be vaccinated and the operation was performed by Dr. Ferguson, who says the child probably brought on the disease by scratching the wound.

Canadian Good Swimmers.

London, Sept. 28.—William Henry is very pleased at the result on his tour in Canada. He says life-saving is bound to make great headway in Canada. He found everybody extremely quick. Whereas the course of training in England lasts for six weeks, at Temagami the candidates went through the regime in two days.

WRONGLY ACCUSED OF KIDNAPPING

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Mrs. F. H. Baldie, wife of a prominent automobile manufacturer and former mayor of Tacoma, left for home last night, a very indignant woman. Some time ago she sent her two children across the Atlantic to visit relatives. They sailed in charge of the captain of the steamship Grampian. They returned in the captain's charge on the same boat, reaching Quebec on Saturday night. Their mother had come to Montreal to meet them, but when the Grampian arrived here there were no children on board. Then Mrs. Baldie learned that they had been taken from the ship at Quebec by United States immigration officers, despite the fact that they were traveling first-class and that that class of passengers is always landed at Montreal. Mrs. Baldie went down to Quebec and found the children in charge of a matron, who willingly turned them over to her. She returned to Montreal, and as she left the train was accosted by another United States immigration officer, who took her and her children in charge. At the immigration headquarters here she alleges she was put through a sort of third degree, and compelled to answer all sorts of questions, and it was only after she had secured the assistance of Mr. William Stitt, the general passenger agent of the C.P.R., to whom she had a letter of introduction, that she was able to secure release from the charge of kidnapping her own children. Mrs. Baldie says that her husband is going to take the case to Washington.

Cross of Honor For Dead.

Versailles, Sept. 28.—The bodies of Capt. Marchal, Lieut. Phaure and Subalterns Vincenot and Reux, killed Saturday, when the military balloon Republique was wrecked, were yesterday given imposing funeral ceremonies. The streets were hung with emblems of mourning.

The cross of the Legion of Honor was pinned on the bodies of the victims of this accident by order of Premier Briand.

THE Princess Virginia

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON,
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor," "Rosemary in Search of a Father," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

"It's natural you should be grateful, your majesty, but"—

"It's natural I should be in love."

"Natural that a young man inexperienced in affairs of the heart should mistake warm gratitude for love, impossible that the mistake should be allowed to continue."

Leopold's eyes grew dark. "In such a connection," he said, "it would be better not to mention the word 'mistake.' I'm glad you are here, for now you can learn from me my intentions toward that lady."

"Intentions, did you say, your majesty? I fear I grow hard of hearing."

"At least you will never grow slow of understanding. I did speak of my intentions toward Miss Mowbray."

"You would give the lady some magnificent estate, some splendid acknowledgment"—

"Whether splendid or not would be a matter of opinion," laughed the emperor. "I shall offer her a present of myself."

The old man had been sitting with his chin sunk into his short neck, peering out from under his brows in a way he had, but he lifted his head suddenly, with a look in his eyes like that of an animal who scents danger from an unexpected quarter.

"Your majesty," he exclaimed, "you are your father's son, you are Rhaetian, and your standard of honor"—

"I hope to marry Miss Mowbray," Leopold cut him short.

The chancellor's jaw dropped, and he grew pale. "I had dreamed of nothing as bad as this," he blurted out, with no thought or wish to sugar the truth. "I feared a young man's rashness. I dreaded scandal. But, forgive me, your majesty. For you a morganatic marriage would be madness"—

"A morganatic marriage I did think of at first, but on second thoughts I saw it would be ungrateful."

"Ah, yes, to the country which expects so much of you."

"No, to the woman who has the right to all or nothing. I will make her empress of Rhaetia."

With a cry the chancellor sprang up. His eyes glared like the eyes of a bull who receives the death stroke. His working lips and the hollow sound in his throat alarmed the emperor.

"No, your majesty, no!" he panted.

"But I say yes," Leopold answered "and let no man give me nay. I've thought it all out. I will make her a countess first. Then she shall be made my empress."

"Your majesty, it is not possible."

"Take care, chancellor."

"She has been deceiving you. She has neither the birth, the position nor the name she claims to have, and I can prove it."

"You are mad, Von Breitstein," the emperor flung at him. "That can be your only excuse for such words."

"I am not mad, but I am old and wise, your majesty. Today you have made me feel that I am very old. I punish me as you will for my frankness. My work for you and yours is nearly done. Cheerfully will I submit to my dismissal if only this last effort in your service may save the ship of state from wreck. I would not make an accusation which I could not prove. And I can prove that the two English ladies who have been staying at Schloss Lyndalberg are not the persons they pretend to be."

"Who has been lying to you?" cried Leopold, who held between clinched hands the temper he vowed not to lose with this old man.

"To me, no one. To your majesty, to society in Kronburg, two adventuresses have lied."

The emperor caught his breath. "If you were a young man I would kill you for that," he said.

"I know you would. As it is, my life is yours. But before you take it, for God's sake, for your father's sake, hear me out!"

Leopold did not speak for a moment, but stared at the vanishing landscape, which he saw through a red haze. "Very well," he said at last; "I will hear you, because I fear nothing you can say."

"When I heard of your majesty's admiration for a certain lady," the chancellor began quickly lest the emperor should change his mind, "I looked for her name and her mother's in Burke's Peerage. There I found Lady Mowbray, widow of a dead baron of that ilk, mother of a son still a child and of one daughter, a young woman with many names and twenty-eight years.

"This surprised me, as the Miss Mowbray I had seen at the birthday ball looked no more than eighteen and, I was told, confessed to twenty. The Mowbrays, I learned by a little further research in Burke, were distantly connected by marriage with the family of Baumenburg-Drippe. This seemed an odd coincidence in the circumstances. But, acting as duty bade me act, I wired to two persons—Baron von Sark, your majesty's ambassador to Great Britain, and the crown prince of Hungaria, the brother of Princess Virginia."

"What did you telegraph?" asked the emperor icily.

"Nothing compromising to your majesty, you may well believe. I inquired of Adalbert if he had English relations, a Lady Mowbray and daughter, Helen, traveling in Rhaetia, and I begged that if so he would describe their appearance by telegram. To Von Sark I said that particulars by wire concerning the widow of Lord Mowbray and daughter, Helen, would put me under personal obligation. Both these messages I sent off night before last. Yesterday I received Adalbert's answer, this morning Von Sark's. They are here." And the chancellor tapped the breast of his gray coat. "Will your majesty read them?"

"If you wish," replied Leopold at his haughtiest and coldest.

The old man unbuttoned his coat and produced a coroneted pocketbook, a souvenir of friendship on his last birthday from the emperor. Leopold saw it and remembered, as the chancellor hoped he would.

"Here are the telegrams, your majesty," he said. "The first one is from the crown prince of Hungaria."

"Have no idea where Lady Mowbray and daughter are traveling; may be Rhaetia or north pole," Adalbert had written, with characteristic flippancy. "Have seen neither for eight years and scarcely know them. But Lady M. tall, brown old party, with nose like hobbyhorse; Helen dark, nose like mother's, wears glasses."

With no betrayal of feeling, Leopold laid the telegram on the red plush seat and unfolded the other.

"Pardon delay," the Rhaetian ambassador's message began. "Have been making inquiries. Lady Mowbray has been widow for ten years. Not rich. During son's minority has let her town and country houses. Lives much abroad. Very high church, intellectual, at present in Calcutta, where daughter Helen, twenty-eight, not pretty, is lately engaged to marry middle aged judge of some distinction."

"So"—and the emperor threw aside the second bit of paper—"it is on such slight grounds as these that a man of the world can label two ladies 'adventuresses.'"

The chancellor was bitterly disappointed. He had counted on the impression which these telegrams must make, and unless Leopold were acting it was now certain that love had driven him out of his senses.

But if the emperor were mad he must be treated accordingly, and the old statesman condescended to "bluff."

"There is still more to tell," he said, "if your majesty has not heard enough, but I think when you have reflected you will not wish for more. It is clear that the women calling themselves Mowbrays have had the audacity to present themselves here under false colors. They have either deceived Lady Lambert, who introduced them to Rhaetian society, or, still more likely, they have cleverly forged their letters of introduction."

"Why didn't you telegraph to Lady Lambert while your hand was in?" sneered Leopold.

"I did, your majesty, or, rather, not knowing her present address, I wired a friend of mine, an acquaintance of hers, begging him to make inquiries without using my name, but I have not yet received an answer to that telegram."

"Until you do I should think that even a cynic like yourself might give two defenseless, inoffensive ladies the benefit of the doubt."

"Inoffensive," echoed Von Breitstein. "Inoffensive when they came to this country to ensnare your majesty through the girl's beauty! But, great heaven, it is true that I am growing old! I have forgotten to ask your majesty whether you have gone so far as to mention the word marriage to Miss Mowbray?"

"I'll answer that question by another. Do you really believe that Miss Mowbray came to Rhaetia to 'entrap' me?"

"I do, though I scarcely think that even her ambition flew as high as you are encouraging it to soar."

"In case you're right she would have been overjoyed with an offer of morganatic marriage."

"Overjoyed is a poor word. Overwhelmed might be nearer."

"Yet I tell you she refused me last night and is leaving Rhaetia today rather than listen to further entreaties."

Leopold bent forward to launch this thunderbolt, his brown hands on his knees, his eyes eager. The memories, half bitter, half sweet, called up by his own words caused Virginia to appear more beautiful, more desirable, ever than before.

He was delighted with the expression of the chancellor's face. "Now, what arguments have you left?" he broke out in the brief silence.

"All I had before and many new ones, for what your majesty has said shows the lady more ambitious, more astute, therefore more dangerous, than I had guessed. She staked everything on the power of her charms, and she might have won had you not an old servant who wouldn't be fooled by the witcheries of a fair Helen."

"She has won," said Leopold, then quickly: "God forgive me for chiming in with your bitter humor, as if she'd played a game. By simply being herself she has won me, such as I am. She's proved that if she cares at all it's for the man and not the emperor, since she called the offer you think so magnificent an insult. Yes, chancellor, that was the word she used, and it was almost the last she said to me, which is the reason I'm traveling today. And none of your boasted 'proofs' can hold me back."

"By heaven, your majesty must look upon yourself from the point of view you credit to the girl! You forget the emperor in the man."

"The two need not be separated."

"Love indeed makes men blind and spares not the eyes of emperors."

"I've pledged myself to bear with you, chancellor."

"And I know you'll keep your word. I must speak for Rhaetia and your better self. You are following this lady to give her your empire for a toy."

"She must first accept the emperor as her husband."

"A lady who has so poor a name of her own that she steals one which doesn't belong to her—the nation won't bear it."

"You speak for yourself, not for Rhaetia," said Leopold. "Though I'm not so old as you by half your years, I believe I can judge my people better than you do. The law which bids an emperor of Rhaetia match with royalty is an unwritten law, a law solely of customs handed down through the generations. I'll not spoil my life by submitting to its yoke, since by breaking it the nation gains, as I do. I could go to the world's end and not find a woman as worthy to be my wife and empress of Rhaetia as Helen Mowbray."

"You have never seen Princess Virginia."

"I've no wish to see her. There's but one woman for me, and I swear to you if I lose her I'll go to my grave unmarried. Let the crown fall to my uncle's son. I'll not perjure myself even for Rhaetia."

The chancellor bowed his head and held up his hands, for by that gesture alone could be express his despair.

"If my people love me they'll love my wife and rejoice in my happiness," Leopold went on sharply. "If they complain, why, we shall see who's master—whether or not the emperor of Rhaetia is a mere figurehead. In some countries royalty is but an ornamental survival of a picturesque past; a king or queen is a mere puppet which the nation loads with luxury to do itself honor. That's not true of Rhaetia, though, as I'm ready to prove, if prove it I must. But I believe I shall be spared the trouble. We Rhaetians love romance—you are perhaps the one exception—while, as for the story you've told me, I would not give that for it!" And the emperor snapped his fingers.

"You still believe the ladies have a right to the name of Mowbray?"

"I believe that they are of stainless reputation and that any seeming mystery can be explained. Miss Mowbray is herself. That's enough for me. Perhaps, chancellor, there are two Lady Mowbrays."

"Only one is mentioned in Burke."

"Burke isn't gospel."

"Pardon me. It's the gospel of the British peerage. It can no more be guilty of error than Euclid."

"Nor can Miss Mowbray be guilty of wrong. I should still stake my life on that even had your conclusions not been lame ones."

The old man accepted this rebuff in silence. But it was not the silence of absolute hopelessness; it was only such a pause as a prize fighter makes between rounds.

"Your majesty will not be in too great haste, at all events, I trust," he said at last—"at least a little reflection, a little patience, to cool the blood. I have not laid down all my cards yet."

"It's often bad policy not to lead trumps," replied Leopold.

"Often, but not always. Time and the end of the play will show. Is your majesty's indulgence for the old man quite exhausted?"

"Not quite, though rather strained, I confess," Leopold tempered his words with a faint smile.

OUR EXHIBIT of Pianos and Organs at the Fair and at our Show Rooms attracted great attention and admiration for their beauty of design, perfect action and purity of tone.
ONE MUSICIAN a graduate of one of the best colleges of music in Canada remarked that "The Newcombe Piano is one finest tone Pianos I ever heard.
OTHERS admired the tone of the Evans Bros.' Piano.
AND SOME others prefered the Sherlock-Manning—each and every one produce perfect tones but of different qualities.
WE WOULD be pleased to discuss tone quality and Piano construction with you. There are reasons for different qualities and there are good, bad and horrible Pianos. Let us tell you about them before you buy.

NOVEL CURE FOR CATARRHAL ILLS.

Stops Bronchitis, Relieves Hoarseness, Cures Asthma, Prevents Throat Irritation.

The most effective way to treat and cure ailment of the breathing organs is by inhalation.

Now as this method is in application, its practice is as old as man. Down from Adam has spread the reputation of the air of the pine woods, charged with balsam and healing for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages.

Yet medical men neglected to employ the natural curative agency for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages until the wonderful results which attended the Catarrhozone dry air method were brought to their notice and compelled attention.

The air of the pine woods, charged with little drops of balsam and ozone, has been enhanced by the Catarrhozone method through the addition of vegetable antiseptics more powerfully healing than the air of the pine woods.

This balsamic and healing vegetable compound is broken up by the air INTO MINUTE PARTICLES so small that the air is enabled to carry them to the remotest parts of the lungs, throat and nasal passages—in fact, it is the air of the pine woods concentrated a thousandfold, and you can have it at home.

FAILURE IS IMPOSSIBLE.

You can now understand why Catarrhozone cures with such certainty. It is medicated air carried to the seat of bronchitic congestion or situation here the micro-organisms which excite asthma or hay fever exert their baneful and dangerous influence.

The air distributes evenly over the entire diseased surfaces a covering of healing Catarrhozone. Immediately congestion is relieved, inflammation is subdued, the microbes which cause the trouble are destroyed, and cure follows as inevitably as the sun follows the night.

THOUSANDS CURED DAILY.

No other medicine has achieved such remarkable success, and to-day not less than twenty thousand physicians in America alone are prescribing Catarrhozone. And why? Simply because they realize that a healing remedy like Catarrhozone which air carries direct to the sore, inflamed membranes is bound to cure every form of Catarrh, all types of bronchitis and throat trouble, and will almost instantly stamp out coughs, colds, sneezing and bronchial deafness.

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

The reputation of Catarrhozone has grown by leaps and bounds. It reaches the diseased spot. It cures speedily. Almost the first use gives such relief in the worst cases that most people cannot understand its action.

Don't experiment longer—Catarrhozone means sure cure. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

AFTERNOON FROCKS for the SCHOOL GIRL

ALTHOUGH perhaps in detail different from the fashions ordained each season for the grown-up members of society, the costumes for young girls not yet out are nevertheless absolutely governed by the vogue of the moment. There is always a greater simplicity in the young girl's frocks, and no elaboration and costliness of trimming is ever to be seen, but the lines are always practically the same. In general the same textures are employed and the same styles of dress for different times of day and different occasions are worn by all ages of woman. Some years, of course, it is more difficult than others to adapt the fashions of the moment to suitable schoolgirl frocks, while at other times one sees very nearly the same models worn by girls of fourteen years and over as are seen on their débutante sisters.

The chief features in which a schoolgirl's outfit will be an imitation of a débutante's trousseau will be in her street suits and house gowns. Naturally, evening or party dresses will be on a quite different scale, and such a garment as the "reception dress" is unknown until once a girl is an acknowledged member of the social set in which she is to move.

The school costumes this winter are exceedingly smart because so simple and so essentially practical. One coat and skirt costume of serge, cheviot, homespun or some such rough finished material, worn with a dark waist of net, soft silk or washable flannel, and then one pretty but severely simple gown of light weight cloth or cashmere, over which is worn in the street a long cloak or ulster of some rough warm goods or of pony skin, so that a girl is well fitted out for the morning hours.

For very young girls suspender and strap dresses are still worn, but instead of the eternal separate waist or jumper of thin linen or lawn the bodice is of coarse net or chiffon cloth, or even a thin silk, as foulard, which, relieved with a bit of white at the throat, is quite as becoming as the all white waist and will keep clean and fresh far better when worn each day and all day. Indeed, separate white bodices are nearer their doom just now than ever before since first introduced, for they are certainly not smart for afternoon and do not begin to look as well with a dark colored street suit as do the waists which harmonize in color with the rest of the costume.

LONG cloaks reaching to the very edge of the dress itself are to be exceedingly smart this winter for both schoolgirls and "grown up people," but it is for the misses, the girls of from fifteen to eighteen years of age, that these ulsters will prove so serviceable. Fitted in to the figure with a return to the long, natural waist lines, trimmed with pretty collar, revers and cuffs of velvet, silk or fur, they are exceedingly smart and even bid fair to replace the long, loose fur wraps that have enjoyed such tremendous vogue during the last four or five winters.

Practically all street costumes this year, save those intended for more elaborate style of wear than a young girl is supposed to go in for, are of rough texture. Fortunately the new cloths are of such excellent quality that while so coarse of finish and apparently so heavy they are by no means too warm or of too great weight for comfort. In our climate it is infinitely wiser for the street garments to be thoroughly warm, while for the house the waists and dresses should be kept as light and cool as possible. The long cloaks are all of rough finished material, some of the new serges being especially in demand, but these cloaks are all cut so as to be appropriate for city wear and be trim and show well the lines of the figure. There is no resemblance, in other words, between this cloak and the sort of loose ulster such as would be worn in the country for coasting, sleighing, &c. Dark colors predominate, and there are some mixtures that are exceedingly good.

There is, after all, no very great change in line in the new street costumes from those of a year ago. There is a return to the normal waist line in all styles of dress, although many—in fact the majority—separate skirts are still attached to a three or two and a half inch band of belting, instead of being finished with a narrow stitched band of the material as a separate belt. Skirts are considerably fuller, and as it is difficult to arrange any pleats or tucks about the hips in the heavy woollen material that is now made use of altogether, a deep bias yoke with a full flounce added at the knees makes a favorite skirt model. This yoke effect with the fulness beneath is seen in numberless variations and is unquestionably the model most in demand at the moment. Often the skirt is flat at the top, with a flaring flounce instead of a pleated piece added at about the knees, the joining hidden by a two to four inch bias band of the cloth, or, in the case of broadcloth being used, this band may be of silk.

The new jackets are somewhat longer than those of last year, are still not quite pitted it, to the figure, but yet give an impression of a longer waist line than has been seen for some time. The sleeves are quite small, full length of course, and in front the coat may be either double or single breasted, as desired. Both flat revers and the shawl collar are to be seen, the preference being somewhat in favor of the latter.

SOME few of the newest coats are regularly belted in the waist line with cloth, silk or leather strap, below which the coat is quite full and reaches but a few inches below the hips. There is a suggestion of the old blouse jacket about this new model, and to some young girls the fashion is a peculiarly becoming one.

For the moment white linings have given way before those of pale gray, of brocade or of the same or lighter shade of the coat itself. With a very long coat certainly a white lining is impracticable, for once it becomes the least soiled—a state of affairs which is bound to occur all too soon—the whole costume forfeits much of its smartness. A narrow band of white duck and linen basted just inside the collar will protect the lace of the waist about the throat, should a dark lining be objected to on the ground of its rubbing off on the light waist worn underneath.

As already stated, it is the textures rather than the lines of the gowns themselves which have suffered change since last year. In the waist for a tailor suit, now that in the heavy cloths a one piece gown is impossible, silks of all kinds and colors are being made use of. Nor are these silks necessarily of the same tone as the rest of the costume, queer changeable silks being especially in demand and a waist of vividly contrasting hue being frequently worn with a skirt of dark blue or brown. A brown skirt is rendered far less sombre by a waist toning from brown to blue, with tints as well of green, red or perhaps yellow. These queer silks are most of them delightfully soft in tone and give no suggestion of crudity or harshness in color, as a description of them would perhaps indicate.

For an essentially practical, really durable waist there is nothing so good as the best quality of crêpe de Chine, and for a school girl it would be an excellent plan to provide one severely simple crêpe shirt waist of the same shade as her skirt, and to purchase also one other bodice of the changeable silk, or perhaps of tucked chiffon or net for slightly smarter wear.

CORDUROY and velveteen make altogether the most attractive costumes for afternoon. Black is sometimes worn by young girls, but dark brown, sapphire blue or deep green are infinitely more sensible, since black can be worn, and must be worn so much later on in life, when the pretty bright colors will be no longer possible. There is some little braiding on a few of the newest velvet and corduroy costumes, but those which are absolutely unadorned are every bit as smart and far more youthful. One model in brown corduroy with long, half fitted jacket, double breasted, relieved only with wide collar and cuffs of bear skin, was delightfully smart, while another in velveteen, made with shorter jacket, belted in at the waist line with a band of stitched satin and collar and revers of the same, was also exceedingly pretty.

Light weight qualities of both ladies' cloth and broadcloth are of course still worn, but only for afternoon and for some few kinds of morning dress. Both broadcloth and ladies' cloth are, however, made up quite differently from the rough materials, the skirts being really full about the hips and an effect of considerable draping being given. For a gown to wear with a separate cloak or a fur jacket, finer grades of smooth cloth are still made use of, and for a gown suitable for wear in the schoolroom smooth finish cloths of light weight are still in vogue, although for ordinary street wear they must for a time relinquish all pretence to being really smart.

Gifts for Boys' College Room.

NOW is the season of the year when brothers and boy cousins are going away to school and college, and especially if it is the first year at one of these institutions of learning it is an affair of some moment as to how the boy's room shall be fitted out. There are some fixings for his room which even the least luxurious of boys will be glad to have, and many girls are looking around for new and attractive designs for these furnishings of the masculine den.

One of the newest ideas in strictly masculine styles of decoration is carried out in heavy crash and leather. This is used for pillows, table scarfs, waste baskets, &c. The crash is used for the body of the article and the leather is put on in appliqué in simple, bold designs, which are not at all difficult to copy. The work is done with a machine, and the whole effect is extremely simple and masculine.

Dark colors of crash or very heavy linen are used for this purpose. Dark brown, a rich golden brown, dark green, blue and red are the favorite colors. The leather harmonizes or contrasts, as desired. The college colors may be carried out, if desired, or the walls of the room matched.

Waste baskets made in this style are collapsible. They are four sided and of pasteboard, covered outside with the crash and inside with linen of the same color. The material may be overhanded at the edges or pasted if great neatness is used. The bottom is hinged at one side by linen bands and collapses inside the basket.

Scarfs and square covers for table covers have the leather decorations at the ends or for borders when they are stitched in with the hem. On pillows the decorations are on one side or in the corner, but this is a matter of fancy entirely. Sets to fit out an entire room are made to match. The designs are some of them plain straps or bands of leather with circles, lattice work, triangles or any similar geometrical design used to make a pattern. The pieces of leather are large and the motifs not at all complex.

AN interesting and pleasant occupation for girls is framing pictures in passepartout, and many of them do it very cleverly. It is not at all a difficult accomplishment and can be learned very quickly, especially by a girl who has some skill in using her fingers. This simple style of framing is especially suited to a light and daintily furnished girl's room or to the living room of a simple country house.

An easy way to collect many attractive and interesting pictures is to save all the magazines that have good pictures and from these cut out such as please you. When a considerable number of these have been saved up the girl is in a position to choose carefully those that seem to suit her room and her special tastes. Perhaps she may want to have pictures for several rooms, and among the magazines she will surely find them to suit any taste. Many of the modern magazines have some most artistic pictures that are well worth keeping.

In the meantime the girl who is going to do the framing should have practised the work on some pictures she does not care much about, and when she finds she can do it accurately begin on her good pictures. The passepartout binding can be bought at any art goods store and at many stationers'. It comes in black, gold, silver, white and several colors and can be found in a color to tone with almost any room. Many good effects can be made by using two kinds in one room if they are carefully chosen so that the colors will not clash. The glass for the pictures can be bought at any shop where they frame pictures or from a glazier.

Fancy Silk Covered Boxes.

ODD lengths of perfectly fresh satin, ribbon, brocade and hand embroidered linen may be utilized as coverings for various kinds of ornamental receptacles. A six sided flat box for handkerchiefs may be smoothly covered with delicately hued satin, then hand painted at top or sides or decorated with bows of narrow ribbon. A silk covered glove box may have a lingerie lid of hand embroidered linen edged with lace, and the top of a veil box may be composed of wide strips of allover muslin embroidery or of Madeira work insertion.

Shoe boxes are transformed into writing desks by covering them with flowered brocade, dividing the base into compartments for ink bottles, pens, stamps and clips, and using the lid for stationery, which should be held in place by narrow ribbon straps.

A silken covered deep square box makes an attractive looking fancy work receptacle. The interior sides of the under section should be fitted with little spoon pockets of shirred silk, the bottom of the box thickly wadded to serve as a pincushion and the under side of the lid equipped with straps for the accommodation of scissors and bodkin.

Powder puffs are concealed in silk or embroidered lingerie covered square boxes into which are set small crystal powder jars. The lid of the box is denuded of its sides, padded to hold sachet powder and then fastened to the main portion by means of narrow ribbon hinges so that it need not be wholly removed whenever the box is opened.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"PRACTISE the art of looking happy, and you will not only be happy yourself but you will make your associates feel so, temporarily at least," advised the April Grandmother as she led her youngest granddaughter to a mirror. "At this moment your face looks as dark and threatening as those thunder clouds which warn you against taking your customary ride. The habit of allowing little disappointments to make you unhappy is a serious fault, which, if not properly overcome, will have an unpleasant effect upon your appearance as well as upon your health.

"It is easy to forget how to smile," continued the April Grandmother with a note of sadness in her voice. "Even in the case of young girls the corners of the mouth seem to turn down more readily than they turn up, and unless the smiling habit is formed at an early age the muscles lose their flexibility and the face acquires a permanently grave expression which makes its owner seem old years before she has reached the end of her second decade.

"The girl who wishes to cultivate a happy expression should take pains to begin each day happily. If there is rain when she awakens she should resolve to be cheery even though Nature is gloomy, and to make the best of whatever disappointments are due to the state of the weather or any other cause. If she can get through the day without frowning or making any pettish remarks pleasant thoughts will lull her to sleep that night and she will be certain to awaken next morning with a smiling face.

"A happy expression never beautifies the face of the girl who habitually gives way to ill temper. Such explosions are not only weakening to the mind and exhausting to the body, but they leave telltale crisscross lines about the brow and the mouth, whereas the girl who can restrain her temper under severe provocation and refrain from replying to a tirade directed against herself is the one who frowns rarely and smiles frequently. She has a happy face because she does not cherish envious or vengeful thoughts, and if she sees anything worthy of praise in another person she is quick to commend it.

"The most lugubrious of all facial expressions belongs to the girl whose extreme self-consciousness leads her to think that she is being laughed at or snubbed by the rest of the world. Unless some genuine friend is able to make an unphilosophical girl realize that her mental attitude is absolute nonsense she is liable to become so morbidly sensitive in time and so thoroughly unhappy that her health will be undermined and whatever beauty she may have been blessed with will quickly fade.

"A young gentlewoman is expected to have a pleasant expression as well as a courteous manner," concluded the April Grandmother, "but she cannot have these attributes of her class unless she carefully cultivates mental serenity."

Wire Netting for Flower Bowls.

IN arranging flowers for a dining room table or in a bowl for the table of a living room it is often very difficult to make them stand up at all. The real beauty of the flowers is apt to be lost because they fall on one another, and when a large bowl is used they will often leave empty spots, unless so many flowers are put in that they are crowded together. All this difficulty can be entirely avoided by using wire netting over the top of the bowl and sticking the stems of the flowers through it. With this netting any kind of flower may be put in the largest bowl and often large masses of one kind of flower are particularly effective, if they are well arranged.

There are round pieces of wire netting made especially for this purpose and sold in many shops, but if one is in the country and cannot find these it is very easy to make them from the ordinary netting that is used for fencing in gardens. Or for very fine stemmed flowers wire mosquite netting can be used. It is a good plan to have one of these tops for each bowl that is used for flowers, and, if possible, to have them in netting of different sized meshes for different flowers. The netting should be cut just a little smaller than the top of the bowl, so it will rest against the sides about half an inch below the top. The wire must be carefully dried when not in use and put in the sun now and then to keep it from getting rusty. Even with care it will sometime rust, but, of course, it can still be used until it breaks and fails to hold the flowers.

Effective Stitchery on Linen for Household Decoration.

DARNING on linen is now a favorite handicraft, the product of which is much used for bedroom hangings and other household decorations. It is also a most attractive way of decorating collars and other costume accessories and especially for children's frocks and aprons.

Coarse linen is used for the household articles and for children's clothes and the finer qualities for collars and jabots. It is much easier to do the work on the coarse linen and much more may be accomplished in a short time when the fabric used is coarse, owing to the difficulty of pulling the threads in the finer qualities.

The threads are pulled in groups of different sizes, according to the pattern which it is desired to make, and then the darning is done with thread of a different color. The work is supplemented with faggoting and with simple stitching of various sorts. Any one who is familiar with hemstitching will find the work comparatively easy. The patterns are all simple and conventional and done in rather strong colors. Red and blue on white linen are effective, white is used on colored linens, especially on rather dark blue and green; gray is effective on pink linen, and for some rooms red is used on blue or brown. Of course, in selecting the shades in which the darning is to be done the coloring of the room in which the piece is to be used is chiefly considered.

Covers, pillows, &c., done in this work are finished with hemstitching or with linen fringe.

NOW that knitting has again come into vogue as "pick-up" employment for odd moments, girls who ply the needles rapidly and skilfully are making all manner of useful dress accessories. For steamer travelling and motoring turban and toque shaped caps are knitted of fine neutral tinted worsted, relieved with a band of some bright color. These caps are tied on with silk or satin ribbon, which pass behind the ears, cross at the nape of the neck and are bowed beneath the chin. With them are sometimes worn veils of Shetland wool knitted in a very loose chain stitch.

Mercerized yarn is largely used for knitted mufflers having shaped neck bands broken with ribbed straight lines, which merge into waved stripes when they join the half yard long chest protecting ends which close under the chin with a fancy button.

Knitted silk is used for mufflers as well as for two yard long automobile scarfs, which are made up in all the popular colors. These silk scarfs, however, do not afford nearly so much protection from the cold as do those of double worsted. They are knitted in one and two tone effects and have ends finished with heavy worsted fringe.

Shawls for veranda use are knitted of Shetland, single and double worsted or mercerized wool. They are from two to four yards long and from one-half to a yard wide, closely or loosely knitted, and have either bordered or fringed ends. Many of the three yard square shawls have fancifully knitted dull hued centres and bright colored borders and fringes, and there are some very attractive looking ones fashioned in a succession of stripes showing the tartan plaid color combinations. These extraordinarily large shawls are difficult to handle while in the course of their making, but they well repay the time spent upon them, as they may be used for both slumber robes and steamer rugs.

Breakfast sacques of loosely knitted wool or Shetland are of short kimono shape or have loose fronts and shaped backs. The daintiest are of white worsted, bordered with pale blue, rose or green, but more practical girls knit them of darker colors and adopt a new model which, blousing slightly at back and front, is drawn into a shaped waist band of broad ribbon matching the standing collar and the cuffs of the small puff sleeves.

Double breasted, heavily ribbed, knitted outing jackets are of gray, brown or black worsted and have hip pockets, cuffs and standing collar outlined with brightly colored bands. Other coats of hip length have fancy stripes running from the shoulders to the lower edge of the garment and from the arms' eyes to the wrist. They are made either single or double breasted and have turned over collars or collarless necks.

Automobile sweaters are now so extremely bulky that to make one is a task not to be undertaken lightly or unadvisedly. To prove really serviceable a worsted motoring coat should cover the knees, and a great many of them extend almost to the hem of the frock. The width need not be increased quite in proportion to the length, however, as these coats are left open at the sides from the hips to the lower edge.

New Hosiery.

STOCKINGS colored to match the gown or some accessory of the costume are the vogue in Paris. While many of those worn are of mercerized cotton, which looks like silk but lasts much longer, they are also of lisle thread, spun silk and silk lisle in open work and embroidered effects.

The fancy for stripes is developed in stockings striped their entire length in half inch bars in lisle and silk in monotone, the two different fabrics contrasting sufficiently to produce the striped effect. A novelty in two colors shows the stripes graduating from about one-quarter inch size in front to hair lines at the sides.

In grenadine hose are striped one-tone effects, in tan, dark blue, ciel, rose, white and champagne, and in lisle are stripes of graduated widths showing combinations of brown and royal blue, of dark red with sea green and of black with white, green, navy blue or taupe.

In both lisle and mercerized cotton are stockings combining plain colored sock lengths, with striped and plaided tops, and there are entire stockings of clan plaid patterns rich in red, green, brown and yellow bars.

Hearing of your wonderful medicine, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, I went at once and got a bottle, and to my great surprise, after taking a few doses, she was completely cured."

NOTICE—We wish to warn the public against being imposed on by unscrupulous dealers who substitute the so-called "Strawberry Compounds" for Dr. Fowler's.

The Origin of "Boz."

The origin of "Boz" is known to most readers interested in Dickens. A younger brother of the novelist was known in the family circle as Moses, in facetious allusion to one of the characters in the "Vicar of Wakefield," and this being pronounced in fun through the nose became "Boses" and so "Boz," which Dickens adopted as his early pen name. "Boz," he once wrote, "was a very familiar household word to me long before I was an author, and so I came to adopt it."

Before the real name of "Boz" became well known somebody invented and circulated the following smart epigram:

Who the Dickens "Boz" could be Puzzled many a curious elf
'Till time unveiled the mystery
And "Boz" appeared as Dickens' self.

Hood wrote punningly, but ungrammatically:

Aren't we glad 'twas "Boz" a tiptop father's Late name took well, but he writes Weller.

Market easier, dealers quoting $6.25 for selects, fed and watered, and $5 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 25 were 2300 cattle, 2025 sheep and lambs, 1525 hogs and 650 calves, while the offerings this morning consisted of 1875 cattle, 1025 sheep and lambs, 850 hogs and 450 calves.

Owing to the continued liberal supplies of cattle coming forward, which are somewhat in excess of the requirements of the trade, and the fact that a large percentage of them are common and inferior grades, an easy feeling continues to prevail in the market, and prices have a downward tendency. The weather was unfavorable, and, as buyers in some cases had ample supplies of beef on hand for a few days, the attendance was rather small, and in consequence trade was slower than usual. Cable advices from Liverpool this morning reported trade in cattle very slow and noted a further decline in prices of ¼c to 1¼c per lb. as compared with those of a week ago; consequently there was no demand from exporters here, and trade in this respect was dull. A few very choice steers sold at 5¼c, but the bulk of the trading was done in choice, at $4.90 to $5; good at $4.50 to $4.75; fair at $4 to $4.25; medium at $3.50 to $3.75; good cows at $3 to $4; bulls at $2.50 to $3.50, and canners at $1.25 to $2 per 100 lbs.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for hogs, and prices since this day week show a further decline of 25c per 100 lbs., notwithstanding the fact that supplies were much smaller, but, as packers were fairly supplied, the demand was not so keen as it has been of late, and sales in consequence were rather slow, and the market quieter. Selected lots sold at $6.50 to $6 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. Cable advices from all the leading markets on Canadian bacon were dull and noted a further decline in prices of 2s to 4s per cwt.

The market for sheep and lambs continues weak, and prices show a further decline of ½c to ½c per lb. since this day week. At this reduction, however, the demand was good from both local and American buyers, and an active trade was done, several carloads being taken for the latter account. Sheep sold at 3½c and lambs at 5½c to 5½c per lb. Calves were scarce, for which the demand was good, and sales were made at prices ranging from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ending Sept. 25 were 4811 cattle for export account and 1890 cattle, 3255 sheep and lambs, 980 hogs and 475 calves, while the offerings for sale on the market to-day consisted of 700 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 175 hogs and 100 calves.

Another Earthquake Due.

Messina, Italy, Sept. 28.—Frank A. Perrit, the American volcanologist, who arrived here yesterday, believes from his scientific deductions, that this part of Sicily will again be the scene of seismic disturbances.

Mr. Perrit said: "Wednesday, Sept. 29th, is the date most favorable for earthquakes or eruptions. At that time, the sun, earth and moon are in a line with each other, and the moon also is at its nearest approach to the earth. This combination occurs frequently, tending to produce gravitational distortion of the earth's form, namely, to change the earth from a sphere to an eclipse. This extra strain often acts upon weak spots in the earth's crust, causing them to give way and thus producing earthquakes or volcanic eruptions.

"On Wednesday it happens that the planet Mars also is nearest to the earth. When the effects are added, the strain will be greater than usual. Thus I consider that Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next will be very dangerous. Possibly nothing very special will occur, but this will simply mean that the earth has resisted the danger that nevertheless existed."

Retailers Want Commerce Board.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—The Dominion Retail Merchants' Association of Canada meets here to-day and Wednesday, and will discuss the establishment of a board of commerce along the lines of the railway commission.

Secretary Trowern says the idea involves the formation of a permanent board of four or five chosen by the Government, to be representatives of retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers. In addition, experts in the lines involved in any case could be appointed by the parties interested.

The object of the establishment of the board is to provide a tribunal to which retailers may appeal in cases where they claim profits allowed by manufacturers are insufficient. The proceedings of the proposed board would be public.

To Protect White Girls.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—That Judge Winchester disapproves of white girls being employed in Chinese restaurants is evident from his remarks to the jury after hearing the evidence in the trial of Wm. Smith, charged with wilfully damaging the Chinese restaurant at 209 York street, by exploding a bomb in the building.

"I feel sorry for those girls," he said, referring to Queenie Oliver and her sister, Mrs. Smith, who had been employed in the restaurant, "and as a police commissioner will see that no white girl shall act as a servant in Chinese restaurants in Toronto in future."

Smith was found guilty in the sessions and remanded for sentence.

Dies After Spree.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Frances E. Cleary, aged 27, died in the hospital Sunday of concussion of the brain. On Saturday evening he was taken to the police cells by a policeman and spent the night there in a semi-conscious condition, supposedly drunk. He remained for twelve hours without medical attendance.

The chief of police denies that the constable struck the man over the head with his baton, and refuses to say whether Cleary was visited in his cell or not. An inquest will be held.

Murdered Children.

Utica, N.Y., Sept. 28.—When arraigned yesterday on a charge of killing two Italian children and wounding a third, Theodore Rizzo sank to the floor in terror.

It is said he has confessed to having taken the children to the culvert for a criminal purpose and then, fearing they would tell, he shot them.

Tudhope Bylaw Carried.

Orillia, Sept. 28.—The bylaw to loan the Tudhope Carriage Co. fifty thousand dollars for twenty years, without interest, was voted on yesterday, and carried by a majority of 741, only 22 votes being cast against it. The Board of Trade and citizens made an organized effort to get the vote out.

St. Catharines' Lady Dead.

St. Catharines, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Lloyd, widow of the late Arthur Lloyd, hardware merchant, a prominent lady of this city, died early yesterday morning. Her death is believed by physicians to be due to lockjaw, caused by injuries she sustained from a fall a week ago.

Triumph of True Love.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 28.—Hundreds are homeless along the coast as a result of last week's storms.

A story of romance that could not be stopped by the floods nor hurricane, comes from Houma. In place of the extensive trousseau which she had prepared for her wedding yesterday, a young woman of Leesville was attired in garments given her by the charitable women of Houma. The groom was barefooted, all his worldly possessions on his back. But the wedding took place at the time planned.

Huge Consolidation.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—The Herald says: "If present negotiations are successful, Canada will shortly have one of the biggest industrial corporations in the world. This project represents nothing less than a $125,000,000 steel and coal consolidation.

"It is the intention of those financiers who recently have made several successful consolidations of industrial companies to bring some of the leading Canadian steel and coal companies under one strong controlling or holding company.

Veterans Land Claims.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—During the last fiscal year the Interior Department issued 5,279 certificates for a total of 1,659,280 acres, but at the close of the fiscal year only 345 veterans had located upon 110,400 acres, of those 166 located in Saskatchewan and 179 in Alberta.

It Leaves the Skin Tingling With Health

There is a wonderful difference in soaps. Have you ever noticed how one kind leaves the skin soft and white while another may leave it red and rough?

Both soaps looked alike, perhaps. But the difference was in the material. Let us tell you what we put into Infants' Delight, then decide if you can continue with common soap.

Ceylon is an island in the Indian Ocean, and from there we bring pure cocoanut oil 12,000 miles to our factory. Then we go to France for vegetable oil, and often pay double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough for your table.

These oils are doubly boiled and then milled by our own special process, after which they fall like flakes of snow into enormous bins.

Then they are crushed under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture. Next they pass through granite rollers and come out in miles of silky ribbons. Finally they are dried eight times and then stamped into cakes.

Could you imagine a more delightful soap than this? It lathers into a rich, creamy foam. It wears as thin as a wafer. It leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as satin. It is the very utmost in perfect soap.

The perfume is the delicate scent of the roses. We pay $100 a pound for pure Otto of Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite—it brings the breath of a million flowers. Use a single cake and learn how delightful it really is—it costs no more than the common, so why not have the best?

How to Massage

Shave some Infants' Delight into a tub of hot water and let it dissolve. Then immerse your body and remain in the water several minutes. Lather the body thoroughly with Infants' Delight—rub it right into the skin, for it is so pure it will only nourish and soothe. Massage well with the finger tips and the palms of the hands and you will find a most pleasant sensation after the bath is finished.

Priest Answers Mr. Blake.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 28.—During the commemorative services in St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery on the afternoon of the 18th, someone entered the vacant church and scattered broadcast, copies of Hon. S. H. Blake's pamphlet on the "Book of Uncommon Discord."

The rector, Rev. Father Dalton, wrote Mr. Blake protesting against the action of Mr. Blake's disciple, and receiving no acklowledgement of his letter, at Sunday night's vespers said Mr. Blake was one of the last of those who endeavored to force a yoke which had resulted in the Puseyite movement early in the last century. He declared the pamphlet contained no scholarship, but was simply a denunciation in execrable taste of Catholic doctrines in language painful to Catholics.

Call Maine Pastor.

Belleville, Sept. 28.—Rev. J. A. Ford, late of Houlton, Maine, has been called to the pastorate of Victoria avenue Baptist Church, this city, and has accepted. He will take up the work at once.

He Was the Same Man.

A prominent merchant of Sheffield recently accosted a gentleman on the street with:

"Good morning, Mr. Johnson. How is coal today?"

"Well," responded the other, "I am not much acquainted with the coal market, but I can ascertain the price if it will accommodate you."

"I beg pardon," laughed the merchant. "I really thought you were Mr. Johnson, the coal dealer. You certainly resemble him."

A few days later the merchant entered a tram car and, seating himself beside a gentleman, exclaimed heartily:

"Well, Mr. Johnson, I'm glad to recognize you today. I made a laughable mistake one day last week. I mistook another man for you and, addressing him very familiarly, asked how coal was. He looked amused and replied that he did not know much about coal, but would inquire if it would accommodate me. Then I looked at him and saw that he was a perfect stranger. It really was laughable, Mr. Johnson, but he looked so much like you."

"Yes," responded the gentleman, looking more amused, "and I am that same party again."

The merchant recognizes no more coal dealers.—London Tit-Bits.

Swinging Arms.

Sir Victor Horsley, lecturing in London lately, explained that our habit of swinging the arms when walking is quite unnecessary. It was, he said, a relic of the days when we walked on all fours. Then we had to use our arms as well as our legs. Although their use serves no purpose when walking upright, we still keep on moving all four limbs alternately in progression.

Sir Victor set forth some new facts concerning the functions of the cerebellum, the mysterious and little understood hind part of the brain. Primarily, the cerebellum must be regarded, said the lecturer, as a sensory organ which has an important part in the correct performance of many of our "automatic" actions. Standing, walking, and running are good examples of such actions, which cannot be accurately carried out without a normal, well-balanced cerebellum.

New-born animals, the lecturer continued, cannot stand; they sprawl, and before they can stand, walk, or run they must acquire this power. For the convenience of life this ability to stand must be secured without the animal having consciously to think what he was doing.

TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Joseph Hunter, Charged With Murder of Wife, Will Re-appear at the Spring Assizes—Attempt to Show Him Insane.

TO COLLECT EVIDENCE

The trial of Joseph Hunter, of Bobcaygeon, on the charge of murdering his wife, was begun yesterday at the Fall Assizes in Lindsay, with Mr. Justice Britton on the bench. In the afternoon it was decided to postpone the trial until the Spring Assizes. It is learned that an attempt will be made by the defence to show Hunter to be insane, and on that ground that he be sent to an asylum. The defence will collect evidence to substantiate that point.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, prisoner's lawyer, read an affidavit pleading for the case to be postponed until the Spring Assizes, owing to the impossibility of obtaining the necessary evidence. The line of the defence will be that the accused is subject to epilepsy, and the evidence to be brought forward will be to substantiate the fact that Hunter when a boy was subject to fits, and it is necessary to obtain the lady who taught him when a boy, Miss Warr, now married, and several other acquaintances of Hunter's boyhood. Mr. Johnston likened this present case to the Moir case at London last year. It is necessary to get the evidence of this school teacher; she would be able to describe the condition of the fits this man took when a boy and see if they are of an epileptic kind.

An effort might be made to show that over-drinking might have caused the epileptic fits, but it will be necessary to trace these fits from his boyhood and to see if they are a continuation of those that took place in his boyhood.

LOCAL OPTION

Campaign in Lindsay Was Opened on Sunday.

On Sunday afternoon the opening shot was fired in the campaign for local option when a mass meeting for men was held in the Academy of Music at 4 o'clock. There was a good attendance. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Newton Smale, who remarked in opening that it was as much a defence meeting as that defence conference held recently across the seas, and wished it to be understood that in the carrying out of this campaign there was no ill will toward any one person but of hostility to a business and to conditions, but to the men engaged in the business our position is one of good will.—Lindsay Post.

BACK TO THE WOODS

Two "Vags" in Police Court Must Get Out of the City.

Benjamin Hobson was charged with being a vagrant at the police court this morning, but he promised His Worship that he would leave town at once if allowed to go. He would go to the north shore and work in the lumber camps. The Magistrate allowed him to go.

James Wilson charged with being drunk in a public place was also allowed to go on his promise that he would at once beat it to the woods.

THE WEST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION TRIAL DEVELOPS A WITNESS WITH A BAD MEMORY

William Ashley Admits This Morning That His Memory Is Bad at Times---Was on the Stand for Over Two Hours---At Yesterday's Session Robert Shepherd Swears to Fooling the Conservative Leaders by Sending Them False Letters ---Was to be Paid to Act as a Detective in the Conservative Interests.

The trial of the West Peterborough election was resumed this morning with a fairly large attendance, which would no doubt have been much larger if there had been any hint of the entertaining evidence given by one witness who was three hours upon the stand.

Walter S. Davidson

The first witness called this morning, testified that he resided in Peterborough and took part in the election. He had no particular position. He was under no person's request or instructions. He handled no money in the election except what he had given Mr. Bryson for clerical work done. Witness had had an extra office staff, with one extra girl who was principally doing election work. He had got Mr. Bryson to do some work for him.

He remembered the small room at the committee rooms where there was a telephone. Witness was assocoiated with J. P. Bryson, Joseph Denno, a man named Duncan, in No. 1 Ward, R. H. Leary and John O'Brien.

J. W. Bryson may have been there once or twice. There were no regularly appointed committees.

The No. 1 Ward chairman was A. H. Stratton and No. 2 Ward chairman was R. H. Leary. He could not remember who were chairmen of Wards three and four. Wm. Scott was chairman of Ward No. 5, he thought. Mr. Bryson was secretary of No. 1 Ward he thought, and Mr. Glover was secretary of No. 5 Ward, he thought. Witness did not remember the others. Witness had been at the committee rooms often at night. He was not given any money to dispense nor ever dispensed any except as he had said, $35 or $40 to Mr. Bryson to give to the parties engaged to do clerical work. He could not say how often he had paid Bryson. He did not get any receipt from Bryson nor did he put in any return for the money. He could not remember the largest amount he had paid Bryson. He did not know how many people were engaged in this way or how they were paid. He never paid Shepherd any money. He had seen Mr. Pope around the committee rooms but had never spoken to him about or knew that he was one of the men doing the work for him. He did not think the amount paid to Bryson was more than $50. This was the only money he had paid out and he had never mentioned it to Mr. Stratton or to anyone else on his behalf.

Witness got the money out of his own pocket and it was paid for work that was done for him. Witness prepared books for the canvassers. Witness understood the importance of getting vouchers for all the money legitimately paid out. Witness could not remember ever having taken any vouchers. He did not know how many men were being paid. Grimison was around the committee rooms but witness had not paid him anything. It struck him that once or twice in the day time he saw Grimison there. Grimison's name was not mentioned as one of the men who were paid for clerical work. Bryson did not tell him who the men were and witness had not inquired.

To Mr. Watson witness said that he had been in the habit of assisting at elections for some time past. He had volunteered his services in this case with no talk with anybody about it. There were a large number in Peterborough who as soon as an election was announced went to work to do what they could.

There was an informal meeting in the committee rooms one night at which the men to look after the wards were selected. He did not think that Mr. Stratton was at that meeting. There were a number of tables, one assigned to each ward. It was a matter of getting and giving information and making a record of it. That was essential work. There was no formal appointment of chairmen. He did not think Mr. Stratton took part in this or knew who one of the chairmen was. Witness was not asked to do the work done by him. He had not been able to keep up with the work and had asked Mr. Bryson to help him out. The work was necessary to be done. There was nothing in that kind of work that was irregular or illegitimate. Had knowledge of the work being done, I did not report the amount I was paying. I was perfectly satisfied that the work was being done. Did not pay Mr. Bryson any money, except for these purposes. I could trust Mr. Bryson and felt that the money was properly expended. If the work had been all done in my office there would have been no need to pay out money to other persons. Did not think it necessary to secure vouchers. Did not report the matter to Mr. Goodwill, the agent or to Mr. Stratton. The money paid was my own money. It was practically a voluntary contribution. As to the charge that I had bribed Aaron Bouskill by the payment of $2 to vote on Oct. 26, there is no truth in it, nor as far as I know as to any of the others. The same denial applies to Wm. Swangee, and to Robert H. Shepherd. Never asked any of these persons to vote. As to the charge of paying money to Mr. Bryson between 5th of Sept. and Oct. 26th, to induce him to vote or to be used in bribing voters, there is absolutely no truth in it. I don't think you could bribe Mr. Bryson. I did not pay Robert H. Shepherd $10 to induce him to vote. Had no talk with him about voters. I did not know till the last few days before the election that Shepherd had been employed by the Conservatives as a detective and spy. I paid J. S. Grimison no money. He was a Liberal worker as long as I can remember him; there was no need to ask him to vote.

To. Mr. Du Vernet—I was asked for money on election day.

Mr. Watson intervened to have the questions directed to specific charges to prevent undue prolongation of the proceedings.

Witness resuming said he was asked for money. I don't know Bouskill and Swangee. Don't know who asked me for money. Can't say that it was in the little room or election day. I knew the work that was being done through Mr. Bryson.

To. Mr. Watson—Don't think that Bouskill and Swangee asked me for money. I gave neither of them or anybody else any money, outside of Mr. Bryson, to be expended in payment of clerical work.

Wm. Ashley

Wm. Ashley testified that he lived in Peterborough. He remembered the election. He had voted that day. Witness knew Alfred Kingscote. The latter had come to him the day before the election. "Kingscote asked me how I was going to vote," said the witness "and I told him that I had not decided."

Kingscote had told him to see him at the committee rooms and when he did so Kingscote gave the witness a note for Mr. R. H. Leary. It contained just Leary's name and that of the witness.

"Have you that note?" asked Mr. Du Vernet.

"No, sir, I destroyed it," replied the witness.

"When did you destroy it?"

"About a week ago."

"Was it after you were subpoenaed?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness continuing said that the note had no sum of money mentioned in it. He had gone to the Committee rooms and had seen Mr. Leary in the little room upstairs. He had through a mistake given Mr. Leary some other bill instead of the note but Mr. Leary had not read it and gave the witness $2. Leary had asked him if his name was on the Voters' List and had been answered in the affirmative.

"Who all were there?"

"There were several people present."

"Was it the last room or north room?"

"It was the room on the right on going upstairs. I saw men coming out and going in there."

Witness said that he was not told what the money was for. He had known Kingscote for some time. He was a tent and awning maker on Water street. Kingscote had come to the witness the day before the election. He had told the witness to vote for the right party.

"Was there any mention made of what the right party was?"

"No, sir."

Witness said he did not think that the note was important.

"Did any one tell you to tear it up?"

"No, sir."

"You tore it up on your own account?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did Mr. Leary get the money that he gave you?"

"From his waist coat pocket. It was a $2 bill folded up."

"What did Mr. Leary say to you?"

"He asked me if I was a voter and if my name was on the list. I answered 'Yes' and Mr. Leary gave me the $2."

Witness stated that he had kept the note until a week or 12 days ago. He had been taken to Mr. R. R.

HAD TO PAY BIG FINE

Otonabee Navigation Co. in Police Court This Morning Charged With Violation of Canadian Shipping Act.

COMPANY PLEADED GUILTY

The Otonabee Navigation Company was fined one hundred dollars and costs, at the police court this morning for having, on August the third carried on the Steamer Otonabee more passengers than allowed by her certificate. The company pleaded guilty through their solicitor, Mr. R. F. McWilliams. The action was brought by the Department of Justice of the Dominion Government which was represented this morning by Mr. E. L. Goodwill, for a violation of the Canadian Shipping Act on the third of August. On that day the "Otonabee" had an excursion from Millbrook and Mr. Robert Hall, the registrar, and collector of customs, had the "Otonabee" arrested at Nassau.

The Government is determined that action will be taken against violation of the Shipping Act. The Act provides that the Master and Owners are the ones in charge, of any steamboat that carries a greater number of passengers than the certificate allows, are liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than one hundred dollars. In the case this morning, only the minimum fine was imposed. The company was given ten days in which to pay it.

WAS DISCHARGED

Charge of Theft Against Angus McDonald Not Proven.

Angus McDonald was charged with stealing about ten dollars from the pocket of Mervin Cowan, on the night of Monday, the 13th.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoner and pleaded not guilty. He elected summary trial.

Several witnesses were heard but the evidence of the complainant was unconfirmed and His Worship discharged the prisoner.

Mervin Cowan, called, said that he lived at Burketon. He was here on Monday, 13th of September, having come to town on the Saturday previous. He met the prisoner between 8 and 9 o'clock on Monday night at the City Hotel. Witness bought him a drink and afterwards a supper at the restaurant. They went out and down to the Queen's Hotel, where they had a drink and then they proceeded towards the Montreal House. On Aylmer street McDonald put his hand in his pocket and took the money.

MISSIONARY NIGHT AT KNOX CHURCH

Miss Ella Warren presided at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Knox church last night. The evening was devoted to missionary endeavour and the programme dealt with the subject to some extent. A quartette composed of Misses Miller, Bartley, Cunningham and Moynes opened the evening with a second number. Miss Warren spoke of the conference at Whitby, at which she was present, giving an interesting review of the proceedings and ideas suggested to her by the conference.

More missionary service and improvement in the work, was urged upon. India, China, Japan and other places needed the gospel and those to take it. India is to-day the greatest burden to the British Empire, to the British christians. The power of prayer was deeply emphasized; without it, work of any kind for the church is useless. The love of Christ must be in our hearts if we are to make missions orany other kind of work a success. Another selection by the quartette was appreciated.

Miss Lottie Chiles, as another delegate to Whitby, addressed the gathering. Accounts of the debate and mock parliament, which were held there, were given. The closing odes were sung after the business was settled. Next Monday is Literary evening and Mr. Gordon Hall will preside.

BODY OF LINDSAY MAN FOUND IN THE SCUGOG LAST NIGHT

Had Not Been Seen Since Saturday Afternoon---Had Remained Home From Work to Visit the Fair---Believed to Have Stumbled on Old Bridge.

Lindsay, Sept. 28.—The disappearance of Angus McDonald, aged 22, who has been missing since Saturday was cleared up last night when his body was found in the Scugog River by Messrs. Mulcahy and A. McDonald near the old foot bridge east of Dundas & Flavelle's Mill. He was an employee of the Rathbun mill and remained away from work on Saturday afternoon to visit the fair, asking his mother to accompany him, but she could not. He was seen at the Fair grounds, but his subsequent actions are unknown. It is thought that he was crossing the old bridge when he stumbled on the steps and fell into the river. Search was made everywhere on Sunday by his friends, who were distressed by a feeling of alarm, occasioned by his absence. His hat was found on the river on Sunday and it was felt that he had been drowned. Dr. Blanchard, coroner visited the spot and viewed the remains and decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The funeral will be held on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Neil Tobin, of Peterborough, is a brother of the deceased.

YORK LOAN SHAREHOLDERS MAY BE PAID BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Toronto, Sept. 28.—After waiting patiently through four years of liquidation proceedings, 114,000 shareholders and claimants against the defunct York County Loan and Savings Company are about to receive their first dividend of 25 per cent., according to the announcement made yesterday by R. Home Smith, assistant manager of the National Trust company, the liquidators.

The company's staff has been writing checks for several weeks for those shareholders whose actual claims are known while the old York Loan office staff of twenty is busy on the accounts of the others. Mr. Smith could not say exactly what the total amount of the first payment would be, but at the time of liquidation the shareholders' claims were figured out to total $1,500,000, which would indicate that the first payment would mean $375,000 in round numbers.

"The first payment will not be all cash," Mr. Smith explained. "There are thousands of accounts on which money was borrowed and all will be deducted on this dividend, so that the second will be all money."

"When will the checks be sent out?" he was asked.

"That I cannot say, exactly. The checks are being made out, but they are not dated. The dividend will certainly be paid before the end of the year, though. As to the amount of payment I cannot even estimate on it at this date."

A. E. Herrington, who has charge of the auditing department, is still working on the 114,000 claims.

"It will be a month before I know what they total up," he told the reporter this morning. "In many accounts we have to deduct for indebtedness and that has proved to be a tremendous job."

Mr. Herrington said further that there were still 1,000 books which had not been handed in and the holders of these books would not participate in the first dividend.

"They may get all of theirs at once, when we make the second payment," he said.

Ald. Turner Advocates Issuing Pamphlet Advertising City

Ald. Turner during his chairmanship of the Reception Committee of the City Council during the past year has learned a few things and among them is that on the occasion of an excursion coming to the city it is simply useless to go down to the station and try, as a humble individual, to welcome the visitors. Profiting by his attempts to give outsiders the glad hand, attempts that were not as successful as Ald. Turner would have desired, he has suggested the preparation of a pamphlet advertising the city, and which could be given to incoming people, enabling them to visit Peterborough's places of interest, the parks, clubs, etc. Mr. F. Dobbin waited on the committee last night and suggested an idea that he had thought of and which he considered might be practical and to the point. The committee has not the money to go ahead with the work, but things will be so arranged that next year's committee can take it up.

Ald. Turner had learned that a pamphlet, setting forth Peterborough's show places, how to reach them, the locations of parks, hotels, churches, would be of great assistance, and would be, in addition, a good advertisement for the city. It could also be sent to societies throughout the Province during the winter, suggesting that prospective excursions make Peterborough their objective point, emphasizing the many advantages this city affords for outings.

Invitation To Citizens To View The Planets To-night

A general invitation is extended by the Royal Astronomical Society to the citizens of Peterborough and in particular to those who are interested in astronomy, to take a trip among the planets to-night. The aeroplane leaves the lawn of the Collegiate Institute at eight o'clock and a very interesting experience is promised. In other words the Society's telescope will be placed at the service of the members and their friends, and as the heavens are particularly beautiful at present, it is expected that a large number will avail themselves of this opportunity. The Moon, Venus, Mars and Saturn can be clearly seen. A special invitation is extended to the students of the Normal School who may be in the city at present.

Early Morning Fire in Hunter St. Terrace Did Slight Damage

About half-past twelve last night, fire broke out in the rear of Mr. W. J. Devlin's house at 262 Hunter street. It was first noticed by Mr. Thos McDonough, who was returning home and who sent in the alarm. The brigade was quickly on the scene. kitchen of Mr. Devlin's house and the one adjoining it on the right were both in a blaze, and Chief Howard and his men certainly did splendid work in getting the fire, which at one time threatened to be a disastrous one, under control. The blaze was soon extinguished, and but little damage was done. The loss is estimated at $200; partly covered by insurance.

FELL FROM STREET CAR

Peterborough Lady Dies From Injuries Received in Accident at Toronto Yesterday Afternoon —Fell From Moving Car.

SKULL WAS FRACTURED

Toronto, Sept. 28.—While standing up waiting to get off a King street car last night Miss Emma Peck, of 123 Empress crescent, was thrown to the pavement and seriously injured, it being feared that she received a fracture of the skull. The accident occurred just at the bend, nearing Beatty avenue, and the swing of the car threw her off her balance. She was thrown out, her head striking the pavement with considerable force. When picked up she was unconscious, and Dr. R. B. Orr of Queen street, west, who attended her at a nearby house, where she had been taken, found that she had received a fractured skull.

The ambulance was called and the unfortunate woman was taken to her home.

Word was received early this morning that Miss Peck had passed away at 2 o'clock, having never regained consciousness. She was the second daughter of Mr. A. H. Peck, Mark St., Ashburnham, and sister of Mr. Edward A. Peck. She had gone to Toronto on a visit to friends.

The remains will be brought here for burial and the funeral will be held on Thursday and will be private.

The News of the terrible accident by which Miss Emma Peck came to her death will be received with the profoundest sorrow and regret by her many friends in Peterborough. Miss Peck was a lady of most amiable qualities, of estimable character and was beloved by all who knew her. The Examiner extends its sincerest sympathy to the members of her family, her relatives and friends in their sudden bereavement.

Death of Mr. Joseph C. Gilman at St. Joseph's Hospital Yesterday Afternoon.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday afternoon at half past four of Mr. Joseph C. Gilman, after an illness of about four weeks' duration, having been a sufferer from typhoid pneumonia. The news of his death came as a great shock to his numerous friends. He was at one time a member of the Strathcona Hockey Club and was a great favourite among the young men with whom he associated His many friends will learn of his demise with the profoundest regret.

WOOD ALCOHOL.

The scarcity of timber suggests the greatest possible economy in the use of wood in order to secure the largest utilization. Our pine timber is becoming so valuable that we cannot afford to allow a chip to go to waste. It is stated that a process has been discovered by which wood alcohol can be produced at as low a cost as seven cents per gallon. If this be true there's money in saw dust, the by-product of sawing, which now goes to waste or worse than waste, poisoning our streams, or is burned. If wood alcohol can be manufactured at seven cents as the initial cost, it will become a serious competition of gasoline, for the purposes for which gasoline is now so extensively employed. The cost of gasoline is increasing, almost daily, and wood alcohol will be welcomed, if for nothing else than for the absence of the disagreeable odour of gasoline. We have tons and tons of saw dust wasted every day, which, with the new discovery, may be conducted to profitable use. In Peterborough, if the seven-cents a gallon alcohol is a fact ,there is room for a new industry.

HUMAN NATURE AT THE POLE.

Various inferences will be drawn from the statement that Commander Peary has given to Gen. Thomas M. Hubbard, his counsel and president of the Peary Arctic Club, "records" in his possession bearing on the truthfulness of Dr. Cook's claim to have visited the Pole. A meeting of the club will soon be held, and then it will be seen what, in the judgment of these supporters, Commander Peary's proofs of a negative amount to.

To some this may look like a definite campaign on Peary's part to discredit Dr. Cook. There is a safe rule of probabilities, however, which should moderate prophecy. That is that the most natural explanation of anything in doubt is more likely to be true than any other, and the least sensational expectation is most likely to be fulfilled. It is possible that Peary proposes to fight Cook to a finish, but some things he has said sound as if he were disposed now to abide by any fair test of Cook's claims, and his reference of the matter to a lawyer and student of Arctic conditions may be a much-needed ladder to get down to terra firma. That Peary needs such a ladder seems to be the general verdict. Nearly ever newspaper comment and every remark heard in conversation attributes his bitterness to pique rather than to the merits of information possessed by him. Everywhere there are references to soreheads and jealousy. Dr. Cook's admirable conduct since he first announced his claim, of course, emphasises the violence of Peary's criticisms. If Dr. Cook is playing a game he is playing it magnificently. But the general verdict is that he is telling the truth and feels that he can afford to keep his temper.

The critics of Peary, however, should not overlook the provocation to hasty speech and even to a chronic jealous dislike of Dr. Cook, whom he used to like and trust. Peary has practically given his life to the search for the Pole. There is no doubt that he has found it. Coming back home in triumph, and believeing he is the only explorer, who has ever stood at the top of the world, he hears, midway on the weary journey, that he has lost instead of won. A man whom he had not considered as a competitor has the honours he was about to receive from an applauding world. This news comes to him in dreary, out-of-the-way places, unconfirmed. No doubt there is as much scandal in the Arctic as elsewhere. The simple life is no safeguard against gossip. Arcadia is full of it—fuller than livelier places. That Peary jumped at a conclusion that he had been robbed shows he has ordinary human qualities. It was not a demigod, even if he wore U. S. Navy buttons, who raised the flag at the Pole last April. Probably he still believes he should have the honours accorded to his fellow-Brooklynite. If it were so, who would blame him for his harsh words? His point of view is worth considering, and his very human disposition to let meum and tuum colour his beliefs. — Buffalo Times.

QUEBEC BRIDGE.

One of the great undertakings of the Department of Railways is the reconstruction of the Quebec bridge. It should be remembered that this is the greatest project of its kind in the world.

The bridge over the Forth is nearly as long in its spans, but it is merely a single track railway bridge, while the proposed Quebec structure will combine railway, street railway, vehicle and foot traffic. Originally the work was undertaken by the Quebec Bridge Company, a non-partisan organisation of gentlemen interested in the completion of the work. The history of the partial construction, and terrible catastrophe of the falling of the bridge is fresh in the minds of the people. After mature consideration the Government decided to take over the project, as they had a right to do under the statute, and an act was passed a little over a year ago placing the matter under the jurisdiction of the Railways and Canals Department. The head of that department recommended the appointment of three of the leading bridge engineers of the world, and to them was entrusted the work of making investigations and drawing plans. They were given the full responsibility of putting their plans into execution and constructing the bridge.

It will be readily understood while speed and cost are two great essentials in this work, that the greatest necessity of all is the perfect safety of the completed structure. The eminent engineers appointed have been investigating and studying in almost every land of the globe, endeavouring to arrive at a conclusion which would place the success of the undertaking beyond preadventure. It is foreseen that such very eminent men might disagree, and provision was made by order-in-council for calling in experts to confer in case of differences of opinion and to assist in arriving at satisfactory conclusions. Such experts have been called upon recently and have conferred with the board of three, with the very satisfactory result that all essentials have been agreed upon.

Plans are now being prepared for cantilever and suspension bridge, and for each of these tenders will be called, and it will then be decided which style of bridge will be constructed, as either of the plans may be considered as perfectly safe.

There has been some criticism as to the time taken to arrive at the present stage, but it is pleasing to note that leading Conservative papers like The Montreal Gazette have expressed strong approval of the care that has been exercised by the Board of Engineers and the Minister of Railways and Canals in making sure that every step taken is amply justified.

Upon completion this bridge will be the greatest in the world, and it will be a credit to the energy, courage and ability of the Canadian people, who not only undertake great things, but are able to bring them to a successful conclusion, and it will likewise be a monument to the enterprise and abiding faith in the future of Canada of the Laurier Government. — Brantford Expositor.

A good head of hair is as much a "crown of glory," for man as it is woman, notwithstanding all the poetry on the subject applied to the female sex exclusively. In the season when flies bite, the bald-headed man can sympathize with the Egyptians who were sorely plagued on account of the children of Israel. Why not try Newbro's Herpicide? Others have been benefitted and are loud in its praise. It cleanses the scalp, kills the germ at the root of the hair and by keeping the scalp sweet, pure and wholesome, the hair is bound to grow as nature intended, regardless of the temperature. WEST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION PROTEST

Hall's office by Mr. R. M. Glover. He was told that Mr. Leary had denied that he had given witness the money. Witness was asked to sign a declaration that he had not seen any money there or been paid any. Witness said he did not sign the declaration.

Cross Examination

Mr. Watson put the witness through an exhaustive cross examination lasting for over an hour and a half.

"You are not the kind of a man that would sell your vote?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"If any one suggested that kind of a thing to you, it would be a personal offence."

"Yes, sir."

"You would treat him accordingly?"

"Yes, sir."

"You would not tolerate it?"

"No, sir."

"You would make it known that you resented it?"

"Yes, sir."

"You never did take money for your vote?"

"No, sir."

"You were not influenced by any money as to how you voted?"

"No, sir."

"There was no mention of your vote?"

"No, sir."

"You did not understand that the money had any connection with your vote?"

"No, sir."

"What is your occupation?"

"I am an artist," replied the witness and followed with the statement that he was a painter and decorator.

"You decorate Court rooms?" asked Mr. Watson, laughing.

"Any kind of rooms?" was the reply.

"How long have you been in this country?"

"Three years."

"What was your occupation in England?"

"I was a stained glass painter."

"Did you ever sell your vote there?"

"No, sir."

"Do you ever refuse money that is offered you?"

"No, sir."

"Do you take other people's money without a consideration?"

"No, sir."

"Why did you think you were given the money in this case?"

"I thought it might have been given to me to drink Mr. Stratton's health."

"You were not quite sure what it was for?"

"No, sir."

"It might have possibly been for drinking Leary's health?"

"Possibly." (Laughter).

"Or, Mr. Burnham's health?"

"Possibly so." (More laughter.)

"You could not tell?"

"I did not stop to think about it?"

"It was rather a joke with you?"

"I don't think so."

"What did you go to the committee rooms for? To get money?"

"No, sir."

"You wouldn't do a thing like that?"

"No, sir."

"You have more self respect?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness was taken over the story of Kingscote coming to him. He reiterated the statement that Kingscote called at his house at noon, the day before the election.

"Did he ask you to vote for Mr. Stratton?" asked Mr. Watson.

"No, sir."

"You did not tell him that you were not going to vote that way?"

"No, sir."

"Had you made up your mind then?"

"Yes, sir."

"You voted accordingly as you had previously made up your mind?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know that the day before the election was a Sunday? What have you to say to that? Do you want to take it back now?" asked Mr. Watson.

This seemed to put a new aspect on the case for the witness and he admitted that if the day before the election was Sunday it was not on that day that Kingscote had called.

"What about your memory?"

"My memory's bad sometimes."

"It must have been on election day that Kingscote called if the day before was Sunday," said the witness.

He went on to state that Kingscote had called at his house and called him out on the verandah. It was between 12 and 1 o'clock. Witness did not think that any one else knew about Kingscote's calling on him. Witness had gone up to the Liberal committee rooms about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He had not voted before then. No one went to the committee rooms with him. He knew how he was going to vote.

"Why did you go there?"

"Just out of curiosity; to see how the voting was going on."

"Did you go to the Conservative committee rooms?"

"Yes, I went there in the morning?"

"Why did you go there?"

"I went there because I had gone to the other place in the afternoon," replied the witness amid loud laughter.

"Have you been drinking?"

"No, sir."

Mr. DuVernet objected to the question.

Mr. Watson replied that it was only on account of the witness' peculiar reasoning that he asked the question.

"His reasoning is not any more peculiar than my learned friend's questioning," remarked Mr. Du Vernet.

"How long were you in the Conservative rooms?" asked Mr. Watson.

"About an hour," replied the witness.

"Did you get any money there?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ask for it?"

"No, sir."

"What did you ask for?"

"I asked for nothing."

"And you got nothing?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness said that he went the same as other people, to see what was going on. He had not been working for Mr. Burnham.

"Who suggested to you at the Conservative rooms that you should go to the Liberal rooms?"

"No one suggested it."

Witness told of going to the Liberal committee rooms. Kingscote was the only person he saw there that he knew. I was an hour at the Liberal committee rooms—no, not so long as that. I walked around the town after I left the committee rooms. Didn't see any one else before I voted. I went to Water street and voted as I had long intended. I have told all that occurred. I voted between half-past four and five. No one went with me to vote and no one sought to influence my vote.

I went to committee rooms about 4 o'clock, and saw Mr. Kingscote. I saw Mr. Leary in the little committee room. I saw men coming out and coming in. I had an idea that money was being given away. It made an effect upon me and that took me in. There were several people there. Didn't know Mr. Leary's name at that time. He didn't ask me my name, but asked me if I was on the voters' list and gave me $2. There was nothing said. I don't know what the $2.00 was given for. I have no idea what the money was for except as a present. It may have been to influence my vote, but it didn't do so because I had already made up my mind. I put the money in my pocket and spent it in the usual way. I handed him a paper—it was a receipted bill—he put it into his pocket or threw it down. I don't think I am telling a fishy story. Mr. Kingscote gave me a piece of paper with my name and that of Mr. Leary on it. He said nothing and I concluded that it was to see Leary.

Justice Magee—"Did he tell you to give it to Mr. Leary?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Watson—"You told me that nothing was said. Is that some of your bad memory?"

Witness, continuing, said it was ten minutes or a quarter to five when I voted. I don't know that there were fifty three votes polled after I had voted. As near as I can remember I voted about half-past four or a quarter to five. I looked at my watch when I went into the committee rooms; I recollect that, after a year, with my bad memory, I looked at my watch and it was four o'clock.

I knew about the reward of $10 offered by the Conservative Association to anyone giving information of wrong-doing, the names of persons committing bribery. I never mentioned to anybody that I had such knowledge before coming into the court. Never spoke to anybody about my evidence.

I recollect being in Mr. Hall's office. Mr. Roland Glover took me there the first time, about a month ago. He called around at my house. He told me that Mr. Leary denied giving me any money. I had never breathed a word of getting money to anybody. He told me my name was on the list of witnesses to be subpoenaed. He took me to Mr. Hall's office in the morning. Only Mr. Davidson, Mr. Glover and myself were present. I did not at that time mention $50. I did not say that if I were paid $50 I would not give evidence and would deny that I received money. No mention was made of money. Mr. Davidson said Mr. Leary denied paying any money. I was asked to sign a declaration that I had not received any money and I would not.

I had another interview at Mr. Hall's office about a week ago. I went because I was sent for. I have told you (Mr. Watson) all that occurred on the occasion of my first visit. Mr. Gates met me on the street and asked me to go to Mr. Hall's office that they wanted to see me, respecting the subpoena. I said I would go. I met Mr. Gates at the corner of the post office. We went in to Mr. Hall's office at 8 o'clock. There were present Mr. Hall, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Gates, and myself, and Mr. Stratton, and Mr. Leary. At that time Mr Gates stated that if he got $200 he would make an affidavit that he received no money from Mr. Leary or Davidson.

Mr. Hall asked Gates if it were correct that if he were paid $400 he would swear that he received no money from Leary or Davidson, and Gates replied that he would make the affidavit Gates gave them to understand in the presence of all that he wanted the $400. Mr. Hall said it was impossible. None of the others said anything, and I went out.

I was asked by Mr. Hall if I would take $200 to make an affidavit. He said "I understand that you want $200." I said that was right, that Gates had said that I wanted $200 to make an affidavit. I didn't get the $200 because they wouldn't give it to me.

To Mr. Justice McMahon—Gates told me that he would get me $200 for making the affidavit.

To Mr. Watson—I first heard about the $200 in the office.

To Mr. Justice McMahon—I don't remember of Gates speaking to me before we went into the office.

To Mr. Watson: There was no declaration presented and I took it that Mr. Hall's saying that the payment of the money was impossible, applied also to myself. Didn't hear Mr. Leary say at that time that he never gave me a cent. Nothing was said about money. I forgot, when I said that I was asked by Mr. Davidson to sign a declaration for $2 and I refused. I would have taken the $200 as a present if I could have got it. I say now that I would not have signed. I did not say in the presence of these people that I would sign a declaration if I were paid $200; I did not say on the occasion of my first visit that I would make an affidavit for $50. I did not expressly say on the second occasion that I would make such an affidavit for $200. Gates and I have talked this matter over. He asked me about the $2; he asked me if it was correct. Gates never told me that we could get a lot of money out of Mr. Stratton. Gates told me he was going to "do me a bit of good." Can't understand why Gates concealed the matter from me till we got to Hall's office. Never gave the matter of the $10 reward a thought.

Mr. Watson put in, as exhibit, the poll book, when witness voted (No. 7) showing that his name was 102 on the list, and that the total number recorded at that poll was 154.

To Mr. DuVernet—Mr. Glover came to see me before I got my subpoena, about a month ago. He called me into the Examiner Office and showed me some papers, and took me to Mr. Hall's office. I went on the second occasion at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Hall asked me if what Mr. Gates said was correct, as to the $200, and I said it was.

The court adjourned for luncheon.

Yesterday's Session.

The afternoon session yesterday commenced at two o'clock and adjourned shortly after 6 o'clock. Only two witnesses were examined and the feature was the testimony of Robert H. Shepherd, who stated that he had been engaged by the Conservatives as a detective and had fooled them by sending them false statements.

Mr. Bryson Testifies

James P. Bryson was the first witness called after the adjournment. He testified that he lived in Peterborough and had been involved in the election as secretary of one of the committees at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms.

He testified that there the committees met upstairs and the downstairs part was kept for meetings. Among those there were Joseph Denno, A. H. Stratton and Robt. Shepherd. The latter was pretending to be a worker there, the witness said. He did not remember Mr. Thornton being connected with No. 1 Ward. It was a very large committee with 20 or 30 members. Mr. Grimison was another member of the committee. Witness had no particular division. Each worker had a small book to himself. The only book that he knew of that the chairman might have would be a Voters' List. He did not know that there was such a book. That was the practice generally. Witness kept no books.

He was in and out of the committee rooms on the day of the election. He had gone around to the different polling divisions to see how the vote was coming in. He had called at the rooms at 8.30 o'clock. There were few of No. 1 Ward there. Witness went to see that the scrutineers and drivers got out and did their work. Witness came back in about an hour or so and went up stairs. He had gone into one of the small rooms to get a certificate for some one, he could not remember whom. This was the north room. Mr. Walter Davidson and some others were there. Witness was back probably half a dozen times during the day. He had gone back more out of curiosity than anything else.

He did not know who was in the last room. He had seen Mr. Stratton standing in the middle of the big room. There was quite a few people around, 40 or 50 or perhaps 100. He could not say at what hour. It was before the polls closed. It was some where around 3 o'clock. He did not pay any attention as to any body going into the small rooms. As far as he knew the door of the east room might have been closed. He did not know what was going on in there. He did not go in there himself.

Did Not Bring Any One With Him

Witness did not bring any one back with him at any time. There was nothing going on downstairs. There were people coming and going all the time. Witness knew Mr. Shepherd. He was not chairman of any of the Ward Committees but he was working there.

"Do you remember a cheque of $7 paid to Frank Pope?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

The cheque which was dated Oct. 17, 1908 drawn on the Bank of Ottawa, reading "pay to the order of Frank Pope $7," and signed James P. Bryson, was produced and after being identified by the witness was put in as an exhibit.

Frank Pope was a young man, said the witness, residing in No. 1 Ward and a voter there. Witness knew him well. Witness handed the cheque to the man to whom it was payable. It was given to Pope at the Committee Rooms, in the large room. Witness could not say who was present. Pope came and asked witness to accommodate him with a loan of $7. He had seen him day after day before. Pope did not bring him an order from anyone. It was just a loan. He gave it to him out of the trust account of his wife. Witness had no account himself. He had general power of attorney of his wife's account. It was sometime on Saturday that Pope came for the loan. He asked for the cash. He wanted $7. It was in the morning. Witness didn't remember anybody being present. Witness never made Pope a loan before, but had paid him money. He had asked for the cash. Witness did not remember how much he asked for. Pope wanted the money that afternoon. Witness could not remember the exact words of the conversation. Witness could not say on what ground Pope had wanted the money. He had asked if he could have a few dollars that afternoon. He said, "I'll really need it this afternoon." Witness wanted to put him off until the next week, but finally gave him a cheque for $7. He did not remember whether Pope came alone or not.

Did Not Advance Money

"Did you advance any money in connection with the election?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"No, sir," replied the witness and he went on to state that he had paid for some work done. He had paid R. H. Shepherd $17 or $20 for going over the Voters' lists, addressing envelopes, etc. Shepherd was paid at the rate of 25 cents an hour, witness thought. He was paid on the street or wherever he happened to meet him. He had never paid him in the Crown Hotel. He had paid him in the committee rooms. He had paid two others in the same way, Thomas Grimison was one of these. Witness thought that Grimison might have been paid $10 or more. It was not on the Saturday that he paid Pope the cheque that Grimison was paid. Frank Pope was the third man who had done this kind of work and he was paid $9 on October 22. He did not remember paying anybody else.

"Where did you get the money from?" asked the counsel for the petitioner.

"From Walter Davidson," was the reply. Witness went on to say that he had gotten money from Mr. Davidson whenever it was necessary to pay expenses. He got it in cash and did not give any receipt for it nor had he put in any statement about it. He had paid out all he got. Asked if he remembered paying Aaron Bouskill $2 witness replied in the negative.

"Will you swear that you did not pay anybody else during the election?"

"Yes, I will swear that," was the reply.

"Do you remember $2 being paid to anybody in your presence?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see Mr. Stratton pay anybody?"

"Which Mr. Stratton?"

"Either of them?"

"No sir, I did not," replied the witness.

"Do you know Mr. R. M. Glover?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you receive from him or pay him any money?"

"No, sir."

"Did Shepherd give you a receipt for the cheque to give to Pope?"

"No, sir."

Witness stated that he had deposited $10 in the bank on October 22 and produced his bank book showing this. He stated that he had received the $7 back from Pope and had added three dollars of his own money to it.

To Mr. Watson.—Have lived nearly all my life in Peterborough. Have always belonged to Liberal party and tried to do my best. Always volunteered my services. Always work for the party whoever the candidate may be. Mr. Stratton did not ask me specially to work for him and committees were appointed at organization meeting—there was a general meeting of workers and each ward appointed its own chairman, some from each ward got together for working purposes. A. H. Stratton was appointed chairman of No. 1 Ward committee and witness as secretary. I directed the general work for the ward with which I was best acquainted. I did as I did in other elections, all I could to promote Mr. Stratton's elections. Mr. Stratton sometimes visited committee rooms but never received reports.

The first floor was open to everybody and no one was excluded from the upper room. The seven dollar cheque was a loan to Frank Pope. The loan had nothing to do with his vote or voting. There was no discussion at the time the loan was made. It was Frank Pope's first vote. He came to committee rooms and I knew that he would vote for Mr. Stratton; he said he would vote for the party at the beginning of October, there was no bribery in the loan to him. Preparing the voters' list was absolutely necessary work; 25 cents an hour was a reasonable rate. Pope said he needed the money, the $7. Nobody suggested that I should loan him the money. On October 22nd there was due him $9 and I paid him that and got back the $7 loan. Can't understand how this matter was made to refer to election. Don't think Mr. Pope worked any after October 22nd. Paid money to Shepherd and Grimison for preparing voters list and addressing envelopes. They were not given money for any other purpose than to pay for the work done. I don't know that this Mr. Shepherd was the detective of that name that Mr. Burnham (in his examination for discovery) swore was employed in his interest. Paid out no money to anybody but these persons. Never paid $2 to Aaron Brunskill to vote, don't know the man, never paid $2 to induce any man to vote nor know of R. H. Leary or W. H. Davidson or Dickson Davidson doing so. Did not pay any money to Wm. Swangle to vote.

There is no truth in the charge that I was paid money to vote or to be spent in treating. The charge that Mr. Stratton paid me to vote, or that R. M. Glover or Walter Davidson did so is false, there is nothing in the charge that I paid R. H. Shepherd $2 to vote. Have no knowledge that R. M. Glover or W. S. Davidson paid Shepherd money to vote. Mr. Shepherd claimed to be a Liberal and was certainly a good worker. Never asked him to vote. There was never any question how he would vote. There is nothing in the charge of paying Shepherd $17 to vote. Can't recollect paying Shepherd money on October 17th. I had no money at that time. Never paid out any money, but for services given. Did not pay Shepherd money on Sept. 21 or Sept. 26th to vote. Did not pay John Grimison between Sept. 5th and October 26th the money to induce him to vote or for treating purposes. I knew Grimison as a Liberal worker in other elections. It was understood that he was to be paid, and he was paid for services given. Never asked Grimison to vote nor Mr. Shepherd nor Mr. Pope. It was not necessary. I expended the money I received, for these purposes and in no other way.

To Mr. DuVernet.—Can't tell the amount of money I got from Mr. Davidson.

To Mr. Watson.—To the best of

Hall's office by Mr. R. M. Glover. He was told that Mr. Leary had denied that he had given witness the money. Witness was asked to sign a declaration that he had not seen any money there or been paid any. Witness said he did not sign the declaration.

Cross Examination

Mr. Watson put the witness through an exhaustive cross examination lasting for over an hour and a half.

"You are not the kind of a man that would sell your vote?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"If any one suggested that kind of a thing to you, it would be a personal offence-"

"Yes, sir."

"You would treat him accordingly?"

"Yes, sir."

"You would not tolerate it?"

"No, sir."

"You would make it known that you resented it?"

"Yes, sir."

"You never did take money for your vote?"

"No, sir."

"You were not influenced by any money as to how you voted?"

"No, sir."

"There was no mention of your vote?"

"No, sir."

"You did not understand that the money had any connection with your vote?"

"No, sir."

"What is your occupation?"

"I am an artist," replied the witness and followed with the statement that he was a painter and decorator.

"You decorate Court rooms?" asked Mr. Watson, laughing.

"Any kind of rooms?" was the reply.

"How long have you been in this country?"

"Three years."

"What was your occupation in England?"

"I was a stained glass painter."

"Did you ever sell your vote there?"

"No, sir."

"Do you ever refuse money that is offered you?"

"No, sir."

"Do you take other people's money without a consideration?"

"No, sir."

"Why did you think you were given the money in this case?"

"I thought it might have been given to me to drink Mr. Stratton's health."

"You were not quite sure what it was for?"

"No, sir."

"It might have possibly been for drinking Leary's health?"

"Possibly." (Laughter).

"Or, Mr. Burnham's health?"

"Possibly so." (More laughter.)

"You could not tell?"

"I did not stop to think about it?"

"It was rather a joke with you?"

"I don't think so."

"What did you go to the committee rooms for? To get money?"

"No, sir."

"You wouldn't do a thing like that?"

"No, sir."

"You have more self respect?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness was taken over the story of Kingscote coming to him. He reiterated the statement that Kingscote called at his house at noon, the day before the election.

"Did he ask you to vote for Mr. Stratton?" asked Mr. Watson.

"No, sir."

"You did not tell him that you were not going to vote that way?"

"No, sir."

"Had you made up your mind then?"

"Yes, sir."

"You voted accordingly as you had previously made up your mind?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know that the day before the election was a Sunday? What have you to say to that? Do you want to take it back now?" asked Mr. Watson.

This seemed to put a new aspect on the case for the witness and he admitted that if the day before the election was Sunday it was not on that day that Kingscote had called.

"What about your memory?"

"My memory's bad sometimes."

"It must have been on election day that Kingscote called if the day before was Sunday," said the witness.

He went on to state that Kingscote had called at his house and called him out on the verandah. It was between 12 and 1 o'clock. Witness did not think that any one else knew about Kingscote's calling on him. Witness had gone up to the Liberal committee rooms about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He had not voted before then. No one went to the committee rooms with him. He knew how he was going to vote.

"Why did you go there?"

"Just out of curiosity; to see how the voting was going on."

"Did you go to the Conservative committee rooms?"

"Yes, I went there in the morning?"

"Why did you go there?"

"I went there because I had gone to the other place in the afternoon," replied the witness amid loud laughter.

"Have you been drinking?"

"No, sir."

Mr. DuVernet objected to the question.

Mr. Watson replied that it was only on account of the witness' peculiar reasoning that he asked the question.

"His reasoning is not any more peculiar than my learned friend's questioning," remarked Mr. Du Vernet.

"How long were you in the Conservative rooms?" asked Mr. Watson.

"About an hour," replied the witness.

"Did you get any money there?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ask for it?"

"No, sir."

"What did you ask for?"

"I asked for nothing."

"And you got nothing?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness said that he went the same as other people, to see what was going on. He had not been working for Mr. Burnham.

"Who suggested to you at the Conservative rooms that you should go to the Liberal rooms?"

"No one suggested it."

Witness told of going to the Liberal committee rooms. Kingscote was the only person he saw there that he knew. I was an hour at the Liberal committee rooms—no, not so long as that. I walked around the town after I left the committee rooms. Didn't see any one else before I voted. I went to Water street and voted as I had long intended. I have told all that occurred. I voted between half-past four and five. No one went with me to vote and no one sought to influence my vote.

I went to committee rooms about 4 o'clock, and saw Mr. Kingscote. I saw Mr. Leary in the little committee room. I saw men coming out and coming in. I had an idea that money was being given away. It made an effect upon me and that took me in. There were several people there. Didn't know Mr. Leary's name at that time. He didn't ask me my name, but asked me if I was on the voters' list and gave me $2. There was nothing said. I don't know what the $2.00 was given for. I have no idea what the money was for except as a present. It may have been to influence my vote, but it didn't do so because I had already made up my mind. I put the money in my pocket and spent it in the usual way. I handed him a paper—it was a receipted bill—he put it into his pocket or threw it down. I don't think I am telling a fishy story. Mr. Kingscote gave me a piece of paper with my name and that of Mr. Leary on it. He said nothing and I concluded that it was to see Leary.

Justice Magee—"Did he tell you to give it to Mr. Leary?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Watson—"You told me that nothing was said. Is that some of your bad memory?"

Witness, continuing, said it was ten minutes or a quarter to five when I voted. I don't know that there were fifty three votes polled after I had voted. As near as I can remember I voted about half-past four or a quarter to five. I looked at my watch when I went into the committee rooms; I recollect that, after a year, with my bad memory, I looked at my watch and it was four o'clock.

I knew about the reward of $10 offered by the Conservative Association to anyone giving information of wrong-doing, the names of persons committing bribery. I never mentioned to anybody that I had such knowledge before coming into the court. Never spoke to anybody about my evidence.

I recollect being in Mr. Hall's office. Mr. Roland Glover took me there the first time, about a month ago. He called around at my house. He told me that Mr. Leary denied giving me any money. I had never breathed a word of getting money to anybody. He told me my name was on the list of witnesses to be subpoenaed. He took me to Mr. Hall's office in the morning. Only Mr. Davidson, Mr. Glover and myself were present. I did not at that time mention $50. I did not say that if I were paid $50 I would not give evidence and would deny that I received money. No mention was made of money. Mr. Davidson said Mr. Leary denied paying any money. I was asked to sign a declaration that I had not received any money and I would not.

I had another interview at Mr. Hall's office about a week ago. I went because I was sent for. I have told you (Mr. Watson) all that occurred on the occasion of my first visit. Mr. Gates met me on the street and asked me to go to Mr. Hall's office that they wanted to see me, respecting the subpoena. I said I would go. I met Mr. Gates at the corner of the post office. We went in to Mr. Hall's office at 8 o'clock. There were present Mr. Hall, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Gates and myself, and Mr. Stratton, and Mr. Leary. At that time Mr Gates stated that if he got $200 he would make an affidavit that he received no money from Mr. Leary or Davidson.

Mr. Hall asked Gates if it were correct that if he were paid $400 he would swear that he received no money from Leary or Davidson, and Gates replied that he would make the affidavit Gates gave them to understand in the presence of all that he wanted the $400. Mr. Hall said it was impossible. None of the others said anything, and I went out.

I was asked by Mr. Hall if I would take $200 to make an affidavit. He said "I understand that you want $200." I said that was right, that Gates had said that I wanted $200 to make an affidavit. I didn't get the $200 because they wouldn't give it to me.

To Mr. Justice McMahon—Gates told me that he would get me $200 for making the affidavit.

To Mr. Watson—I first heard about the $200 in the office.

To Mr. Justice McMahon—I don't remember of Gates speaking to me before we went into the office.

To Mr. Watson: There was no declaration presented and I took it that Mr. Hall's saying that the payment of the money was impossible, applied also to myself. Didn't hear Mr. Leary say at that time that he never gave me a cent. Nothing was said about money. I forgot, when I said that I was asked by Mr. Davidson to sign a declaration for $2 and I refused. I would have taken the $200 as a present if I could have got it. I say now that I would not have signed. I did not say in the presence of these people that I would sign a declaration if I were paid $200; I did not say on the occasion of my first visit that I would make an affidavit for $50. I did not expressly say on the second occasion that I would make such an affidavit for $200. Gates and I have talked this matter over. He asked me about the $2; he asked me if it was correct. Gates never told me that we could get a lot of money out of Mr. Stratton. Gates told me he was going to "do me a bit of good." Can't understand why Gates concealed the matter from me till we got to Hall's office. Never gave the matter of the $10 reward a thought.

Mr. Watson put in, as exhibit, the poll book, when witness voted (No. 7) showing that his name was 102 on the list, and that the total number recorded at that poll was 154.

To Mr. DuVernet—Mr. Glover came to see me before I got my subpoena, about a month ago. He called me into the Examiner Office and showed me some papers, and took me to Mr. Hall's office. I went on the second occasion at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Hall asked me if what Mr. Gates said was correct, as to the $200, and I said it was.

The court adjourned for luncheon.

Yesterday's Session.

The afternoon session yesterday commenced at two o'clock and adjourned shortly after 6 o'clock. Only two witnesses were examined and the feature was the testimony of Robert H. Shepherd, who stated that he had been engaged by the Conservatives as a detective and had fooled them by sending them false statements.

Mr. Bryson Testifies

James P. Bryson was the first witness called after the adjournment. He testified that he lived in Peterborough and had been involved in the election as secretary of one of the committees at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms.

He testified that there the committees met upstairs and the downstairs part was kept for meetings. Among those there were Joseph Denno, A. H. Stratton and Robt. Shepherd. The latter was pretending to be a worker there, the witness said. He did not remember Mr. Thornton being connected with No. 1 Ward. It was a very large committee with 20 or 30 members. Mr. Grimison was another member of the committee. Witness had no particular division. Each worker had a small book to himself. The only book that he knew of that the chairman might have would be a Voters' List. He did not know that there was such a book. That was the practice generally. Witness kept no books.

He was in and out of the committee rooms on the day of the election. He had gone around to the different polling divisions to see how the vote was coming in. He had called at the rooms at 8.30 o'clock. There were few of No. 1 Ward there. Witness went to see that the scrutineers and drivers got out and did their work. Witness came back in about an hour or so and went up stairs. He had gone into one of the small rooms to get a certificate for some one, he could not remember whom. This was the north room. Mr. Walter Davidson and some others were there. Witness was back probably half a dozen times during the day. He had gone back more out of curiosity than anything else.

He did not know who was in the last room. He had seen Mr. Stratton standing in the middle of the big room. There was quite a few people around, 40 or 50 or perhaps 100. He could not say at what hour. It was before the polls closed. It was some where around 3 o'clock. He did not pay any attention as to any body going into the small rooms. As far as he knew the door of the east room might have been closed. He did not know what was going on in there. He did not go in there himself.

Did Not Bring Any One With Him

Witness did not bring any one back with him at any time. There was nothing going on downstairs. There were people coming and going all the time. Witness knew Mr. Shepherd. He was not chairman of any of the Ward Committees but he was working there.

"Do you remember a cheque of $7 paid to Frank Pope?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

The cheque which was dated Oct. 17, 1908 drawn on the Bank of Ottawa, reading "pay to the order of Frank Pope $7," and signed James P. Bryson, was produced and after being identified by the witness was put in as an exhibit.

Frank Pope was a young man, said the witness, residing in No. 1 Ward and a voter there. Witness knew him well. Witness handed the cheque to the man to whom it was payable. It was given to Pope at the Committee Rooms, in the large room. Witness could not say who was present. Pope came and asked witness to accommodate him with a loan of $7. He had seen him day after day before. Pope did not bring him an order from anyone. It was just a loan. He gave it to him out of the trust account of his wife. Witness had no account himself. He had general power of attorney of his wife's account. It was sometime on Saturday that Pope came for the loan. He asked for the cash. He wanted $7. It was in the morning. Witness didn't remember anybody being present. Witness never made Pope a loan before, but had paid him money. He had asked for the cash. Witness did not remember how much he asked for. Pope wanted the money that afternoon. Witness could not remember the exact words of the conversation. Witness could not say on what ground Pope had wanted the money. He had asked if he could have a few dollars that afternoon. He said, "I'll really need it this afternoon." Witness wanted to put him off until the next week, but finally gave him a cheque for $7. He did not remember whether Pope came alone or not.

Did Not Advance Money

"Did you advance any money in connection with the election?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"No, sir," replied the witness and he went on to state that he had paid for some work done. He had paid R. H. Shepherd $17 or $20 for going over the Voters' lists, addressing envelopes, etc. Shepherd was paid at the rate of 20 cents an hour, witness thought. He was paid on the street or wherever he happened to meet him. He had never paid him in the Crown Hotel. He had paid him in the committee rooms. He had paid two others in the same way, Thomas Grimison was one of these. Witness thought that Grimison might have been paid $10 or more. It was not on the Saturday that he paid Pope the cheque that Grimison was paid. Frank Pope was the third man who had done this kind of work and he was paid $9 on October 22. He did not remember paying anybody else.

"Where did you get the money from?" asked the counsel for the petitioner.

"From Walter Davidson," was the reply. Witness went on to say that he had gotten money from Mr. Davidson whenever it was necessary to pay expenses. He got it in cash and did not give any receipt for it nor had he put in any statement about it. He had paid out all he got. Asked if he remembered paying Aaron Bouskill $2 witness replied in the negative.

"Will you swear that you did not pay anybody else during the election?"

"Yes, I will swear that," was the reply.

"Do you remember $2 being paid to anybody in your presence?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see Mr. Stratton pay anybody?"

"Which Mr. Stratton?"

"Either of them?"

"No sir, I did not," replied the witness.

"Do you know Mr. R. M. Glover?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you receive from him or pay him any money?"

"No, sir."

"Did Shepherd give you a receipt for the cheque to give to Pope?"

"No, sir."

Witness stated that he had deposited $10 in the bank on October 22 and produced his bank book showing this. He stated that he had received the $7 back from Pope and had added three dollars of his own money to it.

To Mr. Watson.—Have lived nearly all my life in Peterborough. Have always belonged to Liberal party and tried to do my best. Always volunteered my services. Always work for the party whoever the candidate may be. Mr. Stratton did not ask me specially to work for him and committees were appointed at organization meeting—there was a general meeting of workers and each ward appointed its own chairman, some from each ward got together for working purposes. A. H. Stratton was appointed chairman of No. 1 Ward committee and witness as secretary. I directed the general work for the ward with which I was best acquainted. I did as I did in other elections, all I could to promote Mr. Stratton's elections. Mr. Stratton sometimes visited committee rooms but never received reports.

The first floor was open to everybody and no one was excluded from the upper room. The seven dollar cheque was a loan to Frank Pope. The loan had nothing to do with his vote or voting. There was no discussion at the time the loan was made. It was Frank Pope's first vote. He came to committee rooms and I knew that he would vote for Mr. Stratton; he said he would vote for the party at the beginning of October, there was no bribery in the loan to him. Preparing the voters' list was absolutely necessary work; 25 cents an hour was a reasonable rate. Pope said he needed the money, the $7. Nobody suggested that I should loan him the money. On October 22nd there was due him $9 and I paid him that and got back the $7 loan. Can't understand how this matter was made to refer to election. Don't think Mr. Pope worked any after October 22nd. Paid money to Shepherd and Grimison for preparing voters list and addressing envelopes. They were not given money for any other purpose than to pay for the work done. I don't know that this Mr. Shepherd was the detective of that name that Mr. Burnham (in his examination for discovery) swore was employed in his interest. Paid out no money to anybody but these persons. Never paid $2 to Aaron Brunskill to vote, don't know the man, never paid $2 to induce any man to vote nor know of R. H. Leary of W. H. Davidson or Dickson Davidson doing so. Did not pay any money to Wm. Swangle to vote.

There is no truth in the charge that I was paid money to vote or to be spent in treating. The charge that Mr. Stratton paid me to vote, or that R. M. Glover or Walter Davidson did so is false, there is nothing in the charge that I paid R. H. Shepherd $2 to vote. Have no knowledge that R. M. Glover or W. S. Davidson paid Shepherd money to vote. Mr. Shepherd claimed to be a Liberal and was certainly a good worker. Never asked him to vote. There was never any question how he would vote. There is nothing in the charge of paying Shepherd $17 to vote. Can't recollect paying Shepherd money on October 17th. I had no money at that time. Never paid out any money, but for services given. Did not pay Shepherd money on Sept. 21 or Sept. 26th to vote. Did not pay John Grimison between Sept. 5th and October 26th the money to induce him to vote or for treating purposes. I knew Grimison as a Liberal worker in other elections. It was understood that he was to be paid, and he was paid for services given. Never asked Grimison to vote nor Mr. Shepherd nor Mr. Pope. It was not necessary. I expended the money I received, for these purposes and in no other way.

To Mr. DuVernet.—Can't tell the amount of money I got from Mr. Davidson.

To Mr. Watson.—To the best of

CANADA LOSING ITS EXPORT CATTLE TRADE

Australia's Heavy Underbidding for Europe's Business Cannot be Met.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 28.—Great depression in the cattle and sheep export trade of Canada was revealed when the totals for August were given out by the shipping inspectors of the port of Montreal, which is the principal exporting point.

It was shown that only sixty sheep had passed through Montreal for Europe during the month, as against 1,400 exported during the corresponding month last year. So far this year the insignificant number of 512 sheep has been recorded as having been shipped out of the port of Montreal to Europe, as compared with the total of 4,667 last year. The same state of affairs was shown to exist in the export cattle market. Whereas during August of 1908 the total number of cattle exported from Montreal was 17,902 head, only 1,682 head were exported during the month just closed.

Commenting on these figures, one of the biggest exporters in Canada says that the falling off in sheep exports was due to heavy underbidding from Australia for Europe's business, against which Canada could not hope to compete. Owing to this condition of things it is said to be quite probable that Canadian ranchers will abandon sheep farming, maintaining only enough head to supply the United States market.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

Committee Unable To Assist Central Milling Company

Asked to be Relieved of Tax for School Purposes on Business Assessment — Situation Cannot be Remedied by Council.

COMPANY'S POSITION

The Legal Committee met last night with Ald. Turner in the chair, and Mayor Rush, Ald. Duffus, Metheral, and McIntyre present. Mr. Dan Holland, Secretary of the Central Milling Co., accompanied by Mr. Fisher, a director, appeared on behalf of the company in regard to their assessment. Mr. Holland, in explaining their case, stated that they did not consider that they were being fairly dealt with. The Peterborough Cereal Co. had secured a fixed assessment of $10,000, in 1905, and while the Central Milling Co. had not intended to ask for that privilege they felt that they should be "helped out of the same spoon," that they should be accorded the same assistance, and in the same year asked for a fixed assessment, which was placed at $12,000. The taxes paid by the Peterborough Cereal Co. in 1908 were $195, and by the Central Milling Co., $327, and the latter company has to pay $386.67 for 1909.

Mr. Holland stated that it was the Council's desire to treat the two companies in the same manner, but he held that the taxes did not compare favourably. It was pointed out that while the two by-laws were presented in the same year some months intervened between them, that of the Peterborough Cereal Co. being first. Mr. Holland objected to having to pay school taxes on the Company's business assessment. The Legislature made the land and property liable, but did not include the business tax, and had they done so the Company would not object. When this Company's by-law was presented, the Legislature took a different view of the liability of business assessment for school taxes, and the Peterborough Cereal Co. had their by-law passed escaping it, whereas the Central Milling Co. did not. The only redress would be in amending the by-law. The committee was unable to deal in the matter.

The single tax system was brought up by the letter from Central Canada Citizen asking the city to change the law of the land so that land would be taxed at a higher rate than buildings. The members of the committee were very much in favour of the single tax as at the present time the assessor increases your assessment according to any improvement made, even to a coat of paint of a bow window.

Alderman McIntyre and Duffus moved that the communication from the Central Canada Citizen be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

IRL HICKS' WEATHER SIGNS FOR THE COMING MONTH

Prof. Irl Hicks, in the latest number of his monthly journal, predicts the following weather conditions during October:

A regular storm period extends over the 1st to the 6th, having its centre on the 3rd. The Mercury period is also central on the 4th, extending quite to the 14th. General cloudiness and threatening weather will prevail as we pass from September into October, but these conditions will increase into positive storms of rain, wind and thunder, on and touching the 3rd, 4th and 5th. These storms promise general rains and will wind up with much cooler, autumnal winds and weather. Sections along the north side of the country may possibly have a touch of early sleet and snow, along with the high barometer that is sure to press close on the western flanks of these storms. It will be the proper thing to watch for high northwesterly gales over the great lakes at this period. Frosty nights, when the absence of Mercurial clouds will permit, will be natural in northerly directions from about the 5th to the 8th.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 14th, covering the 12th to 17th. This period embraces Moon in apogee and on the celestial equator on the 13th, and new moon on the 14th. About the 12th decided storm conditions will begin, forming in the west. By the 13th and 14th the temperature will be high, and the barometer will be low and falling in western sections, and from Wednesday the 13th to Sunday the 17th, heavy autumnal storms, with lightning and thunder on and touching the 13th, will pass from west to east across the country. The same period comprises a very marked seismic period, central on the 14th. At this time the planet Saturn is in opposition with Earth and sun, and Uranus and Neptune are in quadrature with earth and sun within a few hours of the same time. This astronomic outlook all within two days of Moon's conjunction with earth and sun on the 14th, greatly increases the probabilities of storms, seismic shakes and general volcanic and auroral manifestations. This is a time when navigators of the north Atlantic and the great lakes exercise care against possible danger. Change to much colder, with high barometer and violent gales will wind up this period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 19th, 20th and 21st. This period finds the moon at greatest declination south on the 19th, which fact will help to incite disturbances of boreal nature, that is, a tendency to cold rains, with atmospheric currents flowing from northerly directions. On the west and northwest tangent of rain areas at this time, it will not be surprising if spurts of early snow and sleet appear, and as precipitation and cloudiness move out of the way to the eastward, fair weather, frosty nights and low temperature generally will spread over the country for several days. We repeat our caution of possible gales over the great lakes at all these October periods, attended by very chilly, disagreeable weather. The moon's first quarter on the 22nd will tend to prolong and aggravate storm and weather inclemencies of this period.

A regular storm period is central on the 26th, extending from the 24th to the 29th. This period is embraced in the on-coming Venus period, and will doubtless show some of the Venus characteristics. Look for falling barometer, high temperature and electrical storms on and next to the 26th and 27th. These conditions will begin to show in western parts as early as the 24th and 25th, but as they advance eastward, very general and positive storms will touch many localities from Tuesday the 26th to Friday the 29th. Careful students of these forecasts will not fail to note that the Moon is on the celestial equator on the 26th, in perigee on the 27th, and full on the 28th. This combination will insure very high to dangerous tides on seas and coasts to the southward. Very low barometric pressure inland, will induce high northeasterly gales along the Atlantic coasts. This is a period in which shippers and navigators on our great lakes should watch for and scrupulously heed all storm indications. See if danger and disaster are not reported from the lakes between the 24th and 29th of October. As stated above, the first stages of these storms will be tropical in character, attended by high temperature and thunder storms; but as the centres of barometric disturbances move progressively east of different longitudes, high barometer, fierce gales and snow squalls will follow from the west and north. Within sixty hours of noon on the 28th preferably before, is another very decided seismic period.

THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART

A girl who wishes to encourage a man will often adopt a course of half-rude chaff. She will disagree with everything he says; she will argue against his pet theories, and she will be so (apparently) independent and self-reliant that he begins to feel frightened; and the moment a man feels frightened because a woman is too clever or too argumentative, all pretty thoughts of tenderness or romance leave his heart.

Also, it is just as much of a mistake to "show off," and "put on side," both of which are methods adopted by some women in order to bring about the subjection of the man, as it is to let shyness and over-retiring diffidence get the upper hand. Neither method is successful with the average young man of to-day. And, after all, it usually is the average young man of to-day, not the brilliant sage or intellectual super-giant, who finds and holds the one very tender corner in our faithful feminine hearts—for, as a rule, feminine hearts are extremely tender and extremely faithful when the Right Man gives them a chance.

And now, having considered the unsuccessful methods of encouraging this most important person—The Right Man—let us discuss those which are more likely to bring about desirable and happy results. Always welcome the Right Man brightly and—show you know how to make the fact quite obvious—that you are more glad to see him than you are to see other people. Never forget to inquire after any little undertakings or aspirations the details of which he may have confided to you on the occasion of your last encounter.

Don't be afraid to make room for him to sit down by your side. Don't try to look extra cheerful when he is talking to another girl—even one touch of subdued sadness is better than this.

If he is musical, and you find pleasure in his singing, don't be afraid to tell him so. If he ardently presses your hand in parting, and by so doing cuts your rings into your flesh, bravely control the pain and smile up into his eyes; and when the day comes that he asks you to go all the way with him down Life's long road, just show how very, very glad you will be to start on the journey.

The New Millinery for Autumn

The Trend of Style Revealed by this Showing of the New Hats

Our energetic preparations for a large autumn trade have crystallized in a showing of surpassing excellence to which you are enthusiastically invited. You'll find that an inspection of these smart and dashing new styles will prove most interesting.

Large Hats will be foremost in favour and more drape hats than ever before will be worn. The new Hats set well down on the head, and are intended to be jammed down over the ears, tilted rakishly at one side, but descending almost to the eyebrows on the other, giving a particularly dashing and chic appearance.

Dark colourings lead. The most popular trimmings comprise aigrettes, paradise plumage, ostrich plumes and fancy feathers. Velvets are much in evidence. Old gold cloth, the more tarnished the more fashionable, is widely utilized.

All in all, this is a season of beautiful and novel hats and our showing includes every effect worthy of your approval. Nor can better millinery values be obtained hereabouts than these we offer.

Immne Disturbances On The Sun Recorded On The Earth

A magnetic storm, a natural phenomenon not apparent to the ordinary observer, has been making its presence known on the magnetic instruments of the country. The magnetic storm was not so pronounced yesterday as was the day before or on Friday, but it still continues to interfere somewhat with the transmission of telegraph messages, principally to long-distance points. No reports of any great damage have reached the Observatory officials, who account for the disruption of the telegraph service by the electrical air-currents following the wires and becoming ground circuits.

"Such electrical disturbances are frequent," said an authority last night, "and are due to the aurora borealis, which is particularly pronounced in high pressure air areas. The column of air is highest in the northern district over Manitoba, and there the most severe effects of the earth currents are noticeable. The northern lights, as the aurora borealis is usually called, are, of course, invisible through the day.—The Globe.

In reference to the above, Dr. Marsh explained the matter to the Examiner by observations, which he has recently made. The heavy magnetic storm accompanied by the Aurora affecting the telegraph lines in the West, in the United States and England, is occasioned by a large solar disturbance that has been passing over the face of the sun during the past few days. Dr. Marsh photographed the sun on Sept. 24, and found several disturbances of over 700 millions of miles in area. This disturbance today is on the western limb, and has almost entirely disappeared. When these large solar disturbances are on the solar meridian very frequently magnetic storms occur. There have been not only large solar disturbances on the meridian, but also large hydrogen proturbances on the eastern and western limbs of the sun.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE

Mrs. R. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes —"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Speaking of "A Knight for A Day" which appeared at The Russell Theatre last week, the Ottawa Citizen has the following to say :

Life is a See-saw, Little Girl in Blue, Whistle as You Walk Out—the very mention of the names of these songs makes one think of their catchy, insinuating airs and inspires a desire to whistle or hum the tunes. These are three of the song hits in A Knight for a Day, the musical comedy which returned to the Russell theatre last evening and which will be the attraction for the balance of the week with Saturday matinee. But it is not the music alone which makes the play such an enjoyable success. There are many good points. A Knight for a Day was one of last season's most popular productions and so it was to be expected that the audience for the return would be a large one in despite of the weather. And it is safe to say that all who braved the rain were sincerely glad that they had done so.

This year's chorus for A Knight for a Day is one of the best singing organizations which has been heard here and is quite an improvement over last season's. The soloists too are excellent. Miss Louie Shepherd is a dainty little lady with pleasing appearance and graceful manners and sings with unusual charm. Her little Girl in Blue and her See-Saw songs won her repeated encores. Another girl with a magnificent voice is heard only for a little, in the grand opera part of the whistling number.

The comedy part of the production falls into the hand of Miss Hilda Thomas as Tillie and George Ovey as Jonathan Joy and they succeeded in making the people forget the weather and everything else except the irresistible desire to laugh. Their elopment scene was a scream and their vocal endeavours also caught the fancy of the audience in no uncertain way. The Whistle as You Walk Out song was repeatedly recalled.

A Whitney production can be relied upon for several things—attractive girls, lavish costuming and mounting and novel staging pictures. A Knight for a Day is no exception. The see-saw scene with its electrical effects is one of the prettiest pictures seen on the stage. In fact nothing is left out to make the play pleasing to the eye as well as to the ear.

THE DEBTORS.

The first appearance in Peterborough of Digby Bell, the well-known comedian, for several seasons, first lieutenant to De Wolfe Hopper, was made last night when Mr. Bell appeared at the Grand, with Miss Kathleen Clifford, and a capable company in "The Debtors," making a most favourable impression upon a large audience. For over two hours and one half the house was permeated with an atmosphere of thorough good humour on the part of the audience, and a steady ripple of merriment, often breaking into a wave of laughter, was a constant accompaniment to the production. Mr. Bell was like an old friend as soon as he made his first appearance, and the other members of his clever company seemed to be taken into the same spirit of good fellowship.

"The Debtor" is a translation by Margaret Mayo of the German version of Charles Dickens' "Little Dorrit," and closely follows the story of the original. There was little of the German in the staging or the lines which were typically Dickens, bubbling over with a good-natured appreciation of the humorous side of human nature. It is staged in three acts and scenes, the first and second in the Marshalsea Prison, and the third in a fashionable hotel at Brighton.

Mr. Bell was most happily cast as "William Dorrit," giving a most pleasing portrayal with his vanity, his love of ease and his pleasant little habit of soliciting "testimonials." He was thoroughly at home in the part and showed it by the clever manner in which he handled the role. Miss Clifford as "Little Dorrit," shared the honours with Miss Bell, the clever comedienne, taking her audience by storm by reason of her realistic portrayal of the lovable little daughter of the aged debtor. No more delightful little actress has appeared in Peterborough than Miss Clifford, and the announcement of her appearance here at any time should be sufficient to fill the house. The other parts were capably looked after and the scenic effects and costumes were worthy of the production.

"The Debtors" captured the audience early in the evening, and long before the curtain fell at the end of the first act audience and actors were one in spirit. At the end of the second act Mr. Bell and Miss Clifford were called back half a dozen times, and the audience would not allow the curtain to stay down until Mr. Bell had made a graceful little speech of thanks.

Peterborough cannot be given too many plays of the standard of "The Debtors".

The next attraction at the Grand is the delightful musical comedy "A Knight for A Day," a play in which Mabel Hite and John P. Slavin made such a tremendous hit in Chicago and New York. It will be seen at matinee and evening performances on Saturday of this week.

WEDDING BELLS

DE LA GRANDEUR—GARVEY.

Lakefield, Sept. 28.—A pretty wedding was celebrated this morning at St. Paul's church, when Miss Mary Garvey, daughter of Mr. Dennis Garvey, of Smith, was united in marriage to Joseph A. De La Grandeur, of Toronto. The wedding was celebrated at 9.30 o'clock, during mass, sung by Rev. Father Phelan. The bride, who looked charming, was assisted by her sister, Miss Mary Garvey, and the groom's brother was best man. A large number of the bride's friends were present and special music was sung by the choir. After the mass the nuptial party retired to the bride's home in Smith, about two and one-half miles from Lakefield, where the wedding breakfast was served. Mrs. De La Grandeur was a charming girl and will be greatly missed by her friends in the vicinity of Lakefield. Mr. and Mrs. De La Grandeur will reside in Toronto.

MR. ROBERT FAIR HAS RETURNED HOME

Mr. Robert Fair, who has recently returned from a visit to Cobalt, Haileybury, and New Liskeard, states that to the stranger Cobalt presents the appearance of a great fall fair, as on all sides white tents appear, some used as homes, but the great majority as temporary hospitals for the accommodation of the many who are stricken with typhoid. The town, owing to lack of sanitation, is scourged by disease at present, and many nurses have been sent there to attend those who have succumbed to the typhus germ. The hospital is overcrowded and there are probably more outside it than within its walls. Haileybury impressed Mr. Fair as a fine town being well laid out and possessing natural beauty and advantages. New Liskeard is likewise progressing rapidly. The mining operations are in full blast, and it is believed that the best strikes have not yet been made.

GREENBACK A GREAT FACTOR IN HUGHEY JENNINGS' SUCCESS

Detroit, Sept. 28.—You can't beat Hughey Jennings's system. Not that his knowledge of baseball is superior to that of other managers; not that the Tigers play better baseball than the other teams, but you just can't beat the Jennings system. The sorrel-topped manager of the Tigers knows the weakness of his men, and he plays it for all it is worth. Judging from the high percentage of the Detroit crowd, the system seldom fails.

Everybody knows the Tigers have won two American League pennants, and are well on their way toward their third successive one. Everybody knows the Detroiters have shared in the receipts of two world's series. Everybody knows that the greatest weakness in the world is love of money. Hughey knows it. If the Tigers are behind, Jennings never fails to drop a hint about "You'll have to get busy, boys, if you expect to get some of that coin again next October." Of course, some of the players are off their stride at bat at times. The Tigers are only human in this respect and are no exception to the rule. It is for the benefit of these men that Hughey carries a few five and ten dollar bills with him to the ball park every day.

In Cleveland recently Jennings forgot his money. The game went nine innings without a decision. It ran into ten and eleven rounds with neither team being returned a victor. Hughey became desperate. He scanned the crowd in the grand stand and finally spied the face of a Detroit travelling man. Hughey beckoned him, told him his tale of woe and asked him for a loan of a ten-spot. Of course the Tiger adherent came across.

In the twelfth Cobb got on first, took second on a sacrifice, and third on an out. Germany Schaefer, now with Washington, picked up his bat. Jennings was coaching on the first base line. The Dutchman had already cracked out three hits. He looked toward first base. He saw Jennings balancing himself on one leg. What else was it that Germany saw? It was something green. No, it wasn't grass. Germany didn't have to look a second time. He knew it was a greenback, one of the several hundred of the kind he had received at the close of the 1907 season, and again last October.

The blood leaped through his veins at a quickened pace. His eye brightened. Rhoades let fly the ball. Crack! Germany's bat met the ball fair and square. The ball shot over second base for Schaefer's fourth hit of the game. Cobb trotted home with the winning run of the game. The sight of the green back had worked like a tonic on the man. It had the effect that Jennings figured it would.

Throw a piece of meat to a starving dog and watch how soon he becomes active. That's the way with the Tigers. They have had the peaches and cream of baseball served to them two years in succession. They like the taste of it, and the sight of a greenback will make their tongues hang out and long for more.

ONE OF TIGER LINE INJURED ALREADY

Don Lyon, Speedy Outside Wing, May be Out of the Game for the Season.

The Tigers hard luck has started again. Last year George Ballard had his collar bone broken in practice about two weeks before the season opened and on Saturday Don Lyon, the speedy outside wing player, had his arm broken just above the wrist, which means that he will not be able to play in the early part of the season and probably not at all. At the Cricket grounds on Saturday, the seniors and intermediates lined up in a practice game and Don was playing his usual position, outside wing. The management was beginning to get elated over the excellent form shown by the players on both teams when the accident to Lyon occurred. He was tackling a husky intermediate, and the pair fell, Lyon's arm being broken.

CLOSING DAYS IN THE BIG LEAGUES

Pittsburg, Sept. 27.—Pittsburg lost an opportunity to clinch the National League pennant to-day when Leifield weakened in the ninth innings of the second game with New York, the visitors scoring five runs and winning by a score of 8 to 7, the locals winning the first game by a score of 6 to 1. Pittsburg needs but one more victory to make them the 1909 champions of the National League. Opportune hits off Crandall in the initial game won for Pittsburg.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—The home stretch in the race for the American League baseball pennant has now been entered and the next few days will decide whether Detroit or the Athletics will wi nthe prize. Philadelphia has still eight games to play and Detroit seven. The home team will meet Cleveland to-morrow. Chicago will follow for five games in three days, and on Saturday and Monday Washington will be here, the latter game ending the season. Detroit has seven games remaining, one with New York, four with Boston, and two with Chicago. Sixteen points separate the leaders and with both winning regularly each day lessens the chance of the Philadelphia team to win out. The Athletics still have hope that New York and Boston will take enough games from the western team to enable Connie Mack's men to finish first.

ARGOS MATERIAL FOR SEASON'S TEAM

After the Argonaut practice last night, Coryell, the ex-Varsity quarterback, was elected captain of the team for the coming season. Coryell will take charge of the team to-night and with his experience in the Intercollegiate should prove a valuable man to the scullers.

The Argos had two teams working out last night for a good hour's practice and the way the men go at it the team will be in the best of shape when the season opens. Rogers, a McGill man, turned out for the first time, while Ryan, the Ottawa College player, will be out to-night. VanBushkirk, the American college player, who played three years ago for the Victorias, is showing up well for the scullers, his tackling being deadly.

Argos have Mert eKnt, Norcross, Corkery, Levack, Murphy, Tommy Hay and Capreol topick half back line from, while for the quarter Coryell will get the position, with Reid, Newport and Parsons to fall back upon. In the scrimmage there is Banty Russell, Pud Kent, Phil Boyd, Baycroft, Hugh Brown and McIntyre, while for the wings there is Bargette, Sinclair, Jeff Taylor, D. Taylor, Barber, Ryan, Rogers, VanBushkird, Grant, Art Kent, John. Livingstone and numerous others.

my knowledge it was under $100 and may not have been as much as $50.

Robert H. Shepherd

Was an elector of Peterborough. Have always supported Mr. Stratton in previous elections. Was at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms, was sub chairman of No. 1 table, No. 1Ward. The Ward was divided into sub-committees. I volunteered my services. Each of 5 Wards had a committee. Among the workers I saw Mr. Bryson, Mr. R. H. Leary, Mr. A. H. Stratton and Mr. R. M. Glover. They were supervising the work. Don't remember Mr. Hay or Mr. Thornton. Went to work two or three days before 21st September. I received from $17 to $20 in money, $7 on Sept. 21st from Mr. Bryson. Nothing was said when it was paid, it was for work done on voters' lists. Mr. Bryson paid me $2 on Sept 26; $2 on October 14th, which I regarded as a loan. I got no other moneys from anybody else. Got no money from Mr. Davidson. Don't know anything about $10.

In answer to a question of Mr. DuVernet, witness identified a letter sent to Mr. R. M. Waddell, enclosing two ten dollar bills as his. He said he sent the letter to Mr. Waddell to throw Mr. Waddell off the scent. It was his own money; he had earned it.

I got no money from Liberal sources except what I have mentioned as getting from Mr. Bryson.

Mr. Du Vernet then took witness over reports he had made to Mr. Waddell. Witness admitted the general truth of the reports. I was working in the interests of Mr. Stratton in dealing with Mr. Waddell, the part of report stating that certain men wanted cash were according to what they said. There would be ten out of every forty or fifty men that wanted cash. Handed the reports to Mr. Peter Gardiner. At the Liberal Committee rooms I went over the lists myself. Did not see at the committee rooms the men who had said they wanted cash. I was working for Mr. Stratton and deceiving Mr. Waddell in some instances.

Another letter was produced by Mr. DuVernet, and witness said what it stated was not true, "that's where I was deceiving Mr. Waddell.

In reference to statements in another letter witness stated that that was part of the game. "I was having a good time all to myself."

"Were you doing what you had been hired to do when you sent Mr. Waddell a copy of your report to the Liberal committee?"

"Yes."

Witness continuing, said he sent the bills to Mr. Waddell to throw him off the scent. It would look better. I thought if I sent the money. I got $10 from Mr. Waddell and $20 from another Conservative. I reported this matter at Liberal headquarters. I reported that I was getting money from Mr. Waddell.

A Little Surprise Sprung

In answer to a further question witness took some papers from his pocket and consulted them as if they were memoranda. Mr. DuVernet took a very lively interest in them and was told by witness that they were his own private property. Mr. DuVernet went up beside the witness on the stand and after getting a glance of the papers tried to get possession of them. Witness objected, claiming that they were private papers, but Mr. Justice McMahon directed witness to give them to Mr. DuVernet who had them filed as exhibits and was no doubt greatly surprised to find among them the following affidavit.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.
IN THE MATTER OF THE DOMINION CONTROVERTED ELECTIONS ACT
—Between—
JOHN HAMPDEN BURNHAM, Petitioner,
AND
JAMES ROBERT STRATTON, Respondent.

I, Robert H. Sheppard of the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Mechanic, do solemnly swear:

That my name was on the voters' list for the City of Peterborough during the Dominion Election held in the West Riding of the County of Peterborough, on the twenty-sixth day of October, A.D., 1908.

During the week previous to the twentieth day of September, 1908, I was down the River Otonabee with John G. M. Wilson, a foreman in the Armature Department of the Canadian General Electric Company, and W. A. Brundrette, at the Angling Club Resort. While I was at the cottage on that occasion the said Wilson asked me to support Mr. J. H. Burnham, and I said that I did not know why I should. He knew that I had always supported Mr Stratton in previous contests. I told the said Wilson that if it was made worth my while I might do so, to which he replied that he would see Mr. Jas. Kendry, who is president of the Liberal-Conservative Association.

While I was at this cottage I also had a conversation with the said Brundrette and he told me that if I could get Mr. Stratton in any way in a trap to "do him up" or in any way that he knew a party that would give me his personal cheque for two hundred dollars. I looked at the scheme with favor and told them that if they could make it worth my while I would be willing to go in with them.

Subsequently I met the said Wilson on the street in Peterborough, and he asked me to call and see him early Sunday afternoon, the twentieth day of September, 1908, and that he had made arrangements with Mr. Kendry to meet us during that same Sunday afternoon at his office at the Auburn Woollen Mills.

I accordingly met the said Wilson at the White House early on Sunday afternoon of the said twentieth day of September, 1908, and we proceeded to go to the Auburn Woollen Mills, and at his suggestion the said Wilson went up George street, and I went up Water street, and we joined each other near the railway bridge that crosses the river on the way to the Auburn Woollen Mills, from Water street.

We both went into Mr. James Kendry's office together and he shook hands with us and seemed to be fully acquainted with the object of our visit.

We got talking about the coming elections, and then I told Mr. Kendry what had transpired down the river at the cottage, and he seemed to feel tickled over the matter, and Mr. Kendry was quite willing and anxious that I should go ahead and get all the information and do anything I could to "do Mr. Stratton up." I then said to Mr. Kendry that if I undertook that work I should expect something for my services because I could not afford to be out my time and money, and Mr. Kendry intimated to me that everything would be alright, and that I would not lose anything by it, and that I would be well paid.

It was arranged that I should pretend to be a supporter of Mr. Stratton, and work in his committee rooms, and get on the committee, and get all the information that I could. I was to supply the information that I got to the said Wilson and to Roland M. Waddell, which I did. During the campaign I was interviewed on numerous occasions by Mr. Roland M. Waddell, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Peter Gardner with regard to who was working in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms, and what was going on, and I gave them the names of a number of parties that were attending Mr. Stratton's committee rooms.

On the twenty-first of September, 1908, I gave Mr. Peter Gardner seven dollars that I told him I received from J. P. Bryson, who was a worker in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms. I never received this said seven dollars or any other sum from the said Bryson, but I paid it out of my own pocket, and out of my own proper moneys, because I wanted to show the said Wilson, Kendry and Gardner that I was doing the work that they wanted me to do. The said Wilson told me that the said Gardner had told him about receiving the said seven dollars.

On September twenty-fifth, 1908, at the White House in the sitting room of the hotel, the said Wilson handed me an envelope containing two ten dollar Bank of Nova Scotia bills, numbered 335,039 and 362,866, for my supporting Mr. Burnham and giving them information as per arrangements with Wilson and Kendry.

On or about the first day of October, 1908, I again gave twelve dollars to the said Wilson and told him at the time that I had received it from the said Bryson. I never received the said twelve dollars or any part thereof from the said Bryson but I paid this twelve dollars to the said Wilson out of my own proper moneys.

I intimated to Mr. Roland M. Waddell that I wanted some money, and he said that he would give it to me in a few days. I discussed with him the work I was doing and he promised assistance in a day or two.

That on the eighth of October, 1908, I received fifteen dollars from Roland M. Waddell near Mason's greenhouse, on Water street, in the following denominations, namely, one ten dollar Dominion Bank note number 066,778, one Dominion note for two dollars number 776,565, and three one dollar Dominion notes numbered respectively 651,732, 625,801 and 527,469. He told me that he could only give me fifteen dollars on that date but that on the following day he would give me ten dollars more which he slipped into my hand in the Munroe House bar, being Dominion Bank note for ten dollars number 068,285, on the ninth day of October, 1908, where he bought the drinks for us.

On October seventeenth, 1908, in the Crown Hotel I gave Peter Gardner eight dollars and told him at the time that I received it from the said Bryson. I never received the said eight dollars or any part of it from the said Bryson, but I paid this eight dollars to the said Gardner out of my own proper moneys. The said Gardner on this occasion bought the drinks for us. I told him to tell Mr. Roland M. Waddell that I wanted some more money.

I accordingly received from the said Waddell on the nineteenth of October, 1908, in the alleyway at the White House, the sum of ten dollars being two Bank of Ottawa five dollar bills numbered 76,220 and 76,508.

On the twenty-first day of October, 1908, I gave the said Waddell the sum of ten dollars, being two five dollar bills, which I told him I had received from Mr. W. S. Davidson.

I did not receive the said sum of ten dollars from the said W. S. Davidson, nor any part thereof nor did I at any time ever ask the said W. S. Davidson for money at any time during the said election. I paid the said sum of ten dollars to the said Waddell out of my own proper moneys.

I tried to get some more money from the said Waddell and he kept promising me, but every time I saw him he fought shy of me.

Mr. Roland M. Waddell wanted me to act as Deputy Returning Officer, and to try and get that appointment if I could. I did not ask any Liberal worker to appoint me Deputy Returning Officer. I was appointed Deputy Returning Officer voluntarily and wholly unsolicited, so far as I was concerned.

I voted for Mr. J. H. Burnham, as I agreed with Kendry, Wilson and Waddell. I would not have done so if they had not agreed to pay me well.

I expected that after the election that I would be handsomely paid for my vote and for the services that I had rendered, and I trusted to the promises and arrangements that I had made with the said Waddell, Kendry and Wilson. Up to the present the said Kendry, Wilson and Waddell have only partly performed their promises, and have not as yet carried out their full arrangements.

When Mr. Stratton's election was protested, I thought that it was most unfair, in view of what had transpired and I voluntarily went to Mr. Stratton's residence and told him what had occurred as is hereinbefore voluntarily set forth in this declaration, believing that he was being unjustly treated.

That I did not before or during the Dominion election holden on the twenty-sixth day of October, 1908, directly or indirectly, by myself or by any other person on my behalf receive agree or contract with the Hon. J. R. Stratton, J. P. Bryson or W. S. Davidson or any person or persons whatsoever for any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, office place or employment for myself or any other person for voting or agreeing to vote, or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting, at said election, or for assisting or working in said election, or for any matter or thing in any way relating to the said election, nor do I know of any person who either before or during the said election, directly or indirectly either by himself or by any other person or his behalf received, agreed or contracted with the Hon. J. R. Stratton, J. P. Bryson or W. S. Davidson, or any other person whomsoever for any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, office, place or employment for himself or any other person for voting or agreeing to vote, or refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting, or for assisting, or for working in said election, or for any matter or thing in any way relating to the said election.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of The Canada Evidence Act, 1893.

Declared before me at the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, this twenty-fourth day of December, A.D., 1908.

A Comm'r, etc.

The above declaration is made in duplicate and I hereby acknowledge that I have this day received the duplicate copy of the above declaration.

Dated at Peterborough, this twenty fourth day of December, 1908.

In reply to Mr. DuVernet witness said this affidavit was prepared in Hall, Medd & Davidson's office. I went there of my own accord. I wanted Mr. Stratton to have assurance of what I had done.

The money, $7, I paid to Mr. Peter Gardiner. I paid to show that I was working in good faith. The ten dollars paid Mr. Waddell on October 21st was my own proper money, the $7 I paid Mr. Gardiner was my own proper money.

On Mr. DuVernet asking how he reconciled that statement with the statement in the affidavit that he had "never received said money or any other sum for said Bryson." Witness stated that the seven dollars he got from Bryson was for his own services in connection with the lists, etc., his own working money. He paid the $17 to Wilson out of his own proper money.

"Did you vote for Mr. Bryson?"

"Yes."

Witness continuing said he was never in the Conservative Committee rooms during the campaign.

"I don't think I would have voted Conservative if I had not got the money."

Play a Double Game

To. Mr. Watson.—I was employed by certain Conservatives to play a double game—to practical deceit. They employed me to go into Liberal Committee rooms on false pretenses. I was paid by three of them. J. G. M. Wilson, W. Brundreth and James Kendry, ex-M.P., to play a false part.

They offered me a consideration and as they did not keep faith with me I took the course I did.

I think Mr. Burnham knew of it. I was asked to go to the Liberal Committee rooms and play the spy. I think it was rather a mean business. I was engaged to get Mr. Stratton in a trap and to "do him up."

I got $20 from J. G. M. Wilson Sept. 25th. The first I was paid was given me in the White House. We were talking election and he handed me an envelope containing two ten dollar bills, Bank of Nova Scotia. I gave the money to Mr. Stratton after the election—six or seven weeks.

The next money I got was from Mr. R. M. Waddell, near the corner of Mason's greenhouses, Water street. It was given to me in bills. He said he would have given me more but he did not have it with him; he would give me more next day. Next day at the Munro House he gave me $10 more with instructions to go ahead and keep up the work.

I got ten dollars more from Mr. Waddell on the 15th, at the White House. This was given me in the alley-way (the bills were shown and identified). I did not spend one cent of the money I received in this way.

To Mr. Justice McMahon.—I was to get $200, promised by A. Brundrette. Mr. Kendry said I would be well awarded for my work. I think Mr. Burnham asked me how I was getting on. I told him I was getting information in the Committee rooms and he told me to go on with the good work.

"Why didn't you get more money?"

"They wouldn't give me any. When I asked for more money I would be referred to Mr. Waddell and he said he had none with him, "he tried to shake me."

I had promised to vote for Mr. Burnham and did as I promised.

I thought Mr. Stratton was being knifed when I heard about the protest and I went to him voluntarily. I was never in the Conservative Committee Rooms during teh campaign. I don't think I would have voted conservative if I had not got the money. The charges that were made in the petition that he had "knifed" persons were incorrect."

Court adjourned at 5.45 p.m. until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

System Poisoning

CONSTIPATION

Do not be satisfied with temporary relief—Cleanse the system and make cure lasting with DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY- LIVER PILLS

Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.

You must also consider the way it affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.

Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, and the most serious diseases imaginable, often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.

There is one treatment which has a direct and combined effect on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They afford relief quickly but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.

Policeman Peter C. Morris, 10 Wascana Ave., Toronto, Ont., states:

"I was troubled for years with habitual constipation and have spent considerable on so-called remedies and can gladly say that I have been completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and shall be pleased to personally recommend them to any person who wishes to interview me."

It scarcely seems wise to trifle with medicines which merely afford temporary relief, when by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, you not only get prompt relief but also a thorough cleansing of the whole excretory system and lasting benefits by the restoration of the health and activity of the liver.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

T.A.A.C. EXPECT TO HAVE STRONG TEAM

Thirty men were out in uniform at the T. A. A. C. practice at Moss Park Rink yesterday. Coach Elliott Maxwell was in charge and put his men through a smart practice of one hour and a half. Running, punting and tackling occupied most of the time, after which two teams lined up against one another.

"Cap" Kidd, a former T.C.S. star, is a candidate for centre half, and looks like the man for the job. Knight, McGiffin, Harstone and Read were tried on the back division. Read is a Rhodes scholar, recently returned from England, where he played with University of Pennsylvania freshmen. Among others were Grant, Johnson, Sherriff, son, the former Trinity back, Forbes, Maguire, Hand Law-

GREENBACK A GREAT FACTOR IN HUGHEY JENNINGS' SUCCESS

Detroit, Sept. 28.—You can't beat Hughey Jennings's system. Not that his knowledge of baseball is superior to that of other managers; not that the Tigers play better baseball than the other teams, but you just can't beat the Jennings system. The sorrel-topped manager of the Tigers knows the weakness of his men, and he plays it for all it is worth. Judging from the high percentage of the Detroit crowd, the system seldom fails.

Everybody knows the Tigers have won two American League pennants, and are well on their way toward their third successive one. Everybody knows the Detroiters have shared in the receipts of two world's series. Everybody knows that the greatest weakness in the world is love of money. Hughey knows it. If the Tigers are behind, Jennings never fails to drop a hint about "You'll have to get busy, boys, if you expect to get some of that coin again next October." Of course, some of the players are off their stride at bat at times. The Tigers are only human in this respect and are no exception to the rule. It is for the benefit of these men that Hughey carries a few five and ten dollar bills with him to the ball park every day.

In Cleveland recently Jennings forgot his money. The game went nine innings without a decision. It ran into ten and eleven rounds with neither team being returned a victor. Hughey became desperate. He scanned the crowd in the grand stand and finally spied the face of a Detroit travelling man. Hughey beckoned him, told him his tale of woe and asked him for a loan of a ten-spot. Of course the Tiger adherent came across.

In the twelfth Cobb got on first, took second on a sacrifice, and third on an out. Germany Schaefer, now with Washington, picked up his bat. Jennings was coaching on the first base line. The Dutchman had already cracked out three hits. He looked toward first base. He saw Jennings balancing himself on one leg. What else was it that Germany saw? It was something green. No, it wasn't grass. Germany didn't have to look a second time. He knew it was a greenback, one of the several hundred of the kind he had received at the close of the 1907 season, and again last October.

The blood leaped through his veins at a quickened pace. His eye brightened Rhoades let fly the ball. Crack! Germany's bat met the ball fair and square. The ball shot over second base for Schaefer's fourth hit of the game. Cobb trotted home with the winning run of the game. The sight of the green back had worked like a tonic on the man. It had the effect that Jennings figured it would.

Throw a piece of meat to a starving dog and watch how soon he becomes active. That's the way with the Tigers. They have had the peaches and cream of baseball served to them two years in succession. They like the taste of it, and the sight of a greenback will make their tongues hang out and long for more.

ONE OF TIGER LINE INJURED ALREADY

Don Lyon, Speedy Outside Wing, May be Out of the Game for the Season.

The Tigers hard luck has started again. Last year George Ballard had his collar bone broken in practice about two weeks before the season opened and on Saturday Don Lyon, the speedy outside wing player, had his arm broken just above the wrist, which means that he will not be able to play in the early part of the season and probably not at all. At the Cricket grounds on Saturday, the seniors and intermediates lined up in a practice game and Don was playing his usual position, outside wing. The management was beginning to get elated over the excellent form shown by the players on both teams when the accident to Lyon occurred. He was tackling a husky intermediate, and the pair fell, Lyon's arm being broken.

CLOSING DAYS IN THE BIG LEAGUES

Pittsburg, Sept. 27.—Pittsburg lost an opportunity to clinch the National League pennant to-day when Leifield weakened in the ninth innings of the second game with New York, the visitors scoring five runs and winning by a score of 8 to 7, the locals winning the first game by a score of 6 to 1. Pittsburg needs but one more victory to make them the 1909 champions of the National League. Opportune hits off Crandall in the initial game won for Pittsburg.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—The home stretch in the race for the American League baseball pennant has now been entered and the next few days will decide whether Detroit or the Athletics will wi nthe prize. Philadelphia has still eight games to play and Detroit seven. The home team will meet Cleveland to-morrow. Chicago will follow for five games in three days, and on Saturday and Monday Washington will be here, the latter game ending the season. Detroit has seven games remaining, one with New York, four with Boston, and two with Chicago. Sixteen points separate the leaders and with both winning regularly each day lessens the chance of the Philadelphia team to win out. The Athletics still have hope that New York and Boston will take enough games from the western team to enable Connie Mack's men to finish first.

ARGOS MATERIAL FOR SEASON'S TEAM

After the Argonaut practice last night, Coryell, the ex-Varsity quarterback, was elected captain of the team for the coming season. Coryell will take charge of the team to-night and with his experience in the Intercollegiate should prove a valuable man to the scullers.

The Argos had two teams working out last night for a good hour's practice and the way the men go at it the team will be in the best of shape when the season opens. Rogers, a McGill man, turned out for the first time, while Ryan, the Ottawa College player, will be out to-night. VanBushkirk, the American college player, who played three years ago for the Victorias, is showing up well for the scullers, his tackling being deadly.

Argos have Mert eKnt, Norcross, Corkery, Levack, Murphy, Tommy Hay and Capreol topick half back line from, while for the quarter Coryell will get the position, with Reid, Newport and Parsons to fall back upon. In the scrimmage there is Banty Russell, Pud Kent, Phil Boyd, Baycroft, Hugh Brown and McIntyre, while for the wings there is Bargette, Sinclair, Jeff Taylor, D. Taylor, Barber, Ryan, Rogers, VanBushkird, Grant, Art Kent, Johnson, Livingstone and numerous others.

my knowledge it was under $100 and may not have been as much as $50.

Robert H. Shepherd

Was an elector of Peterborough. Have always supported Mr. Stratton in previous elections. Was at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms, was sub chairman of No. 1 table, No. 1 Ward. The Ward was divided into sub-committees. I volunteered my services. Each of 5 Wards had a committee. Among the workers I saw Mr. Bryson, Mr. R. H. Leary, Mr. A. H. Stratton, and Mr. R. M. Glover. They were supervising the work. Don't remember Mr. Hay or Mr. Thornton. Went to work two or three days before 21st September. I received from $17 to $20 in money, $7 on Sept. 21st from Mr. Bryson. Nothing was said when it was paid, it was for work done on voters' lists. Mr. Bryson paid me $8 on Sept 26; $2 on October 14th, which I regarded as a loan. I got no other moneys from anybody else. Got no money from Mr. Davidson. Don't know anything about $10.

In answer to a question of Mr. DuVernet, witness identified a letter sent to Mr. R. M. Waddell, enclosing two ten dollar bills as his. He said he sent the letter to Mr. Waddell to throw Mr. Waddell off the scent. It was his own money; he had earned it.

I got no money from Liberal sources except what I have mentioned as getting from Mr. Bryson.

Mr. Du Vernet then took witness over reports he had made to Mr. Waddell. Witness admitted the general truth of the reports. I was working in the interests of Mr. Stratton in dealing with Mr. Waddell, the part of report stating that certain men wanted cash were according to what they said. There would be ten out of every forty or fifty men that wanted cash. Handed the reports to Mr. Peter Gardiner. At the Liberal Committee rooms I went over the lists myself. Did not see at the committee rooms the men who had said they wanted cash. I was working for Mr. Stratton and deceiving Mr. Waddell in some instances.

Another letter was produced by Mr. DuVernet, and witness said what it stated was not true, "that's where I was deceiving Mr. Waddell."

In reference to statements in another letter witness stated that that was part of the game, "I was having a good time all to myself."

"Were you doing what you had been hired to do when you sent Mr. Waddell a copy of your report to the Liberal committee?"

"Yes."

Witness continuing, said he sent the bills to Mr. Waddell to throw him off the scent. It would look better. I thought if I sent the money. I got $10 from Mr. Waddell and $20 from another Conservative. I reported this matter at Liberal headquarters, I reported that I was getting money from Mr. Waddell.

A Little Surprise Sprung

In answer to a further question witness took some papers from his pocket and consulted them as if they were memoranda. Mr. DuVernet took a very lively interest in them and was told by witness that they were his own private property. Mr. DuVernet went up beside the witness on the stand and after getting a glance of the papers tried to get possession of them. Witness objected, claiming that they were private papers, but Mr. Justice McMahon directed witness to give them to Mr. DuVernet who had them filed as exhibits and was no doubt greatly surprised to find among them the following affidavit.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.
IN THE MATTER OF THE DOMINION CONTROVERTED ELECTIONS ACT
—Between—
JOHN HAMPDEN BURNHAM, Petitioner.
AND
JAMES ROBERT STRATTON, Respondent.

I, Robert H. Sheppard of the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Mechanic, do solemnly swear:

That my name was on the voters' list for the City of Peterborough during the Dominion Election held in the West Riding of the County of Peterborough, on the twenty-sixth day of October, A.D., 1908.

During the week previous to the twentieth day of September, 1908, I was down the River Otonabee with John G. M. Wilson, a foreman in the Armature Department of the Canadian General Electric Company, and W. A. Brundrette, at the Angling Club Resort. While I was at the cottage on that occasion the said Wilson asked me to support Mr. J. H. Burnham, and I said that I did not know why I should. He knew that I had always supported Mr Stratton in previous contests. I told the said Wilson that if it was made worth my while I might do so, to which he replied that he would see Mr. Jas Kendry, who is president of the Liberal-Conservative Association.

While I was at this cottage I also had a conversation with the said Brundrette and he told me that if I could get Mr. Stratton in any way in a trap to "do him up" or in any way that he knew a party that would give me his personal cheque for two hundred dollars. I looked at the scheme with favor and told them that if they could make it worth my while I would be willing to go in with them.

Subsequently I met the said Wilson on the street in Peterborough, and he asked me to call and see him early Sunday afternoon, the twentieth day of September, 1908, and that he had made arrangements with Mr. Kendry to meet us during that same Sunday afternoon at his office at the Auburn Woollen Mills.

I accordingly met the said Wilson at the White House early on Sunday afternoon of the said twentieth day of September, 1908, and we proceeded to go to the Auburn Woollen Mills, and at his suggestion the said Wilson went up George street, and I went up Water street, and we joined each other near the railway bridge that crosses the river on the way to the Auburn Woollen Mills, from Water street.

We both went into Mr. James Kendry's office together and he shook hands with us and seemed to be fully acquainted with the object of our visit.

We got talking about the coming elections, and then I told Mr. Kendry what had transpired down the river at the cottage, and he seemed to feel tickled over the matter, and Mr. Kendry was quite willing and anxious that I should go ahead and get all the information and do anything I could to "do Mr. Stratton up." I then said to Mr. Kendry that if I undertook that work I should expect something for my services because I could not afford to be out my time and money, and Mr. Kendry intimated to me that everything would be alright, and that I would not lose anything by it, and that I would be well paid.

It was arranged that I should pretend to be a supporter of Mr. Stratton, and work in his committee rooms, and get on the committee, and get all the information that I could. I was to supply the information that I got to the said Wilson and to Roland M. Waddell, which I did. During the campaign I was interviewed on numerous occasions by Mr. Roland M. Waddell, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Peter Gardner with regard to who was working in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms, and what was going on, and I gave them the names of a number of parties that were attending Mr. Stratton's committee rooms.

On the twenty-first of September, 1908, I gave Mr. Peter Gardner seven dollars that I told him I received from J. P. Bryson, who was a worker in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms. I never received this said seven dollars or any other sum from the said Bryson, but I paid it out of my own pocket, and out of my own proper moneys, because I wanted to show the said Wilson, Kendry and Gardner that I was doing the work that they wanted me to do. The said Wilson told me that the said Gardner had told him about receiving the said seven dollars.

On September twenty-fifth, 1908, at the White House in the sitting room of the hotel, the said Wilson handed me an envelope containing two ten dollar Bank of Nova Scotia bills, numbered 335,039 and 362,366, for my supporting Mr. Burnham and giving them information as per arrangements with Wilson and Kendry.

On or about the first day of October, 1908, I again gave twelve dollars to the said Wilson and told him at the time that I had received it from the said Bryson. I never received the said twelve dollars or any part thereof from the said Bryson but I paid this twelve dollars to the said Wilson out of my own proper moneys.

I intimated to Mr. Roland M. Waddell that I wanted some money, and he said that he would give it to me in a few days. I discussed with him the work I was doing and he promised assistance in a day or two.

That on the eighth of October, 1908, I received fifteen dollars from Roland M. Waddell near Mason's greenhouse, on Water street, in the following denominations, namely, one ten dollar Dominion Bank note number 088,778, one Dominion note for two dollars number 776,555, and three one dollar Dominion notes numbered respectively 631,732, 025,801 and 527,469. He told me that he could only give me fifteen dollars on that date but that on the following day he would give me ten dollars more which he slipped into my hand in the Munroe House bar, being Dominion Bank note for ten dollars number 088,285, on the ninth day of October, 1908, where he bought the drinks for us.

On October seventeenth, 1908, in the Crown Hotel I gave Peter Gardner eight dollars and told him at the time that I received it from the said Bryson. I never received the said eight dollars or any part of it from the said Bryson, but I paid this eight dollars to the said Gardner out of my own proper moneys. The said Gardner on this occasion bought the drinks for us. I told him to tell Mr. Roland M. Waddell that I wanted some more money.

I accordingly received from the said Waddell on the nineteenth of October, 1908, in the alleyway at the White House, the sum of ten dollars being two Bank of Ottawa five dollar bills numbered 76,229 and 76,508.

On the twenty-first day of October, 1908, I gave the said Waddell the sum of ten dollars, being two five dollar bills, which I told him I had received from Mr. W. S. Davidson.

I did not receive the said sum of ten dollars from the said W. S. Davidson, nor any part thereof nor did I at any time ever ask the said W. S. Davidson for money at any time during the said election. I paid the said sum of ten dollars to the said Waddell out of my own proper moneys.

I tried to get some more money from the said Waddell and he kept promising me, but every time I saw him he fought shy of me.

Mr. Roland M. Waddell wanted me to act as Deputy Returning Officer, and to try and get that appointment if I could. I did not ask any Liberal worker to appoint me Deputy Returning Officer. I was appointed Deputy Returning Officer voluntarily and wholly unsolicited, so far as I was concerned.

I voted for Mr. J. H. Burnham, as I agreed with Kendry, Wilson and Waddell. I would not have done so if they had not agreed to pay me well.

I expected that after the election that I would be handsomely paid for my vote and for the services that I had rendered, and I trusted to the promises and arrangements that I had made with the said Waddell, Kendry and Wilson. Up to the present the said Kendry, Wilson and Waddell have only partly performed their promises, and have not as yet carried out their full arrangements.

When Mr. Stratton's election was protested, I thought that it was most unfair, in view of what had transpired and I voluntarily went to Mr. Stratton's residence and told him what had occurred as is hereinbefore voluntarily set forth in this declaration, believing that he was being unjustly treated.

That I did not before or during the Dominion election holden on the twenty-sixth day of October, 1908, directly or indirectly, by myself or by any other person on my behalf receive agree or contract with the Hon. J. R. Stratton, J. P. Bryson or W. S. Davidson or any person or persons whatsoever for any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, office place or employment for myself or any other person for voting or agreeing to vote, or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting, at said election, or for assisting or working in said election, or for any matter or thing in any way relating to the said election, nor do I know of any person who either before or during the said election, directly or indirectly either by himself or by any other person or his behalf received, agreed or contracted with the Hon. J. R. Stratton, J. P. Bryson or W. S. Davidson, or any other person whomsoever for any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, office, place or employment for himself or any other person for voting or agreeing to vote, or refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting, or for assisting, or for working in said election, or for any matter or thing in any way relating to the said election.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath, and by virtue of The Canada Evidence Act, 1893.

Declared before me at the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, this twenty-fourth day of December, A.D., 1908.

A Comm'r, etc.

The above declaration is made in duplicate and I hereby acknowledge that I have this day received the duplicate copy of the above declaration.

Dated at Peterborough, this twenty-fourth day of December, 1908.

In reply to Mr. DuVernet witness said this affidavit was prepared in Hall, Medd & Davidson's office. I went there of my own accord. I wanted Mr. Stratton to have assurance of what I had done.

The money, $7, I paid to Mr. Peter Gardiner. I paid to show that I was working in good faith. The ten dollars paid Mr. Waddell on October 21st was my own proper money, the $7 I paid Mr. Gardiner was my own proper money.

On Mr. DuVernet asking how he reconciled that statement with the statement in the affidavit that he had "never received said money or any other sum for said Bryson." Witness stated that the seven dollars he got from Bryson was for his own services in connection with the lists, etc., his own working money. He paid the $7 to Wilson out of his own proper money.

"Did you vote for Mr. Bryson?"

"Yes."

Witness continuing said he was never in the Conservative Committee rooms during the campaign.

"I don't think I would have voted Conservative if I had not got the money."

Play a Double Game

To Mr. Watson.—I was employed by certain Conservatives to play a double game—to practical deceit. They employed me to go into Liberal Committee rooms on false pretenses. I was paid by three of them. J. G. M. Wilson, W. Brundreth and James Kendry, ex-M.P., to play a false part. They offered me a consideration and as they did not keep faith with me I took the course I did.

I think Mr. Burnham knew of it. I was asked to go to the Liberal Committee rooms and play the spy. I think it was rather a mean business. I was engaged to get Mr. Stratton in a trap and to "do him up."

I got $20 from J. G. M. Wilson, Sept. 25th. The first I was paid was given me in the White House. We were talking election and he handed me an envelope containing two ten dollar bills, Bank of Nova Scotia. I gave the money to Mr. Stratton after the election—six or seven weeks.

The next money I got was from Mr. R. M. Waddell, near the corner of Mason's greenhouses, Water street. It was given to me in bills. He said he would have given me more but he did not have it with him; he would give me more next day. Next day at the Munro House he gave me $10 more with instructions to go ahead and keep up the work.

I got ten dollars more from Mr. Waddell on the 15th, at the White House. This was given me in the alley-way (the bills were shown and identified). I did not spend one cent of the money I received in this way.

To Mr. Justice McMahon.—I was to get $200, promised by A. Brundrette. Mr. Kendry said I would be well awarded for my work. I think Mr. Burnham asked me how I was getting on. I told him I was getting information in the Committee rooms and he told me to go on with the good work.

"Why didn't you get more money?"

"They wouldn't give me any. When I asked for more money I would be referred to Mr. Waddell and he said he had none with him, "he tried to shake me."

I had promised to vote for Mr. Burnham and did as I promised.

I thought Mr. Stratton was being knifed when I heard about the protest and I went to him voluntarily. I was never in the Conservative Committee Rooms during teh campaign. I don't think I would have voted conservative if I had not got the money. The charges that were made in the petition that he had "knifed" persons were incorrect."

Court adjourned at 5.45 p.m. until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

System Poisoning
CONSTIPATION
Be not satisfied with temporary relief—Cleanse the system and make cure lasting with DR CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS
Constipation begins with the bowels but it does not end there.
You must also consider the way it affects the liver, the kidneys, the digestive system and in fact the whole human body.
Headaches, backaches, aching limbs, indigestion, biliousness, kidney derangements, and the most serious diseases imaginable, often have their beginning with constipation of the bowels.
There is one treatment which has a direct and combined effect on the bowels, the liver and the kidneys and gets these organs into good working order in remarkably quick time, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.
They afford relief quickly but they do more than that. They positively cure constipation and insure lasting regularity of the bowels by setting the liver right.
Policeman Peter O. Morris, 10 Wascana Ave., Toronto, Ont., states:
"I was troubled for years with habitual constipation and have spent considerable on so-called remedies and can gladly say that I have been completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and shall be pleased to personally recommend them to any person who wishes to interview me."
It is scarcely seems wise to trifle with medicines which merely afford temporary relief, when by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, you not only get prompt relief but also a thorough cleansing of the whole excretory system and lasting benefits by the restoration of the health and activity of the liver.

T.A.A.C. EXPECT TO HAVE STRONG TEAM

Thirty men were out in uniform at the T. A. A. C. practice at Moss Park Rink yesterday. Coach Elliott Maxwell was in charge and put his men through a smart practice of one hour and a half. Running, punting and tackling occupied most of the time, after which two teams lined up against one another.

"Cap" Kidd, a former T.C.S. star, is a candidate for centre half, and looks like the man for the job. Knight, McGiffin, Harstone and Read were tried on the back division. Read is a Rhodes scholar, recently returned from England, [illegible] formerly played with University of Pennsylvania freshmen. Among the players were Grant, Johnson, Crooks, Sherriff, son, the former Trinity quarter-back, Forbes, Maguire, Hargraft and Law-

OLD TIME GUN PLAY

Stranger Held Up Frequenters of Saloon and Demanded Money—James Quinn Reached for Wad and Robber Fired.

TWO MEN ARE DEAD

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—Two are dead and one other is in the hospital in this city suffering from bullet wounds as a result of a hold-up in a saloon at York road and Lymington street, in the northern part of the city late Monday night.

The dead men were James Quinn, 23 years old, and Henry F. Saylor, aged 33. John J. Cassidy, aged 37, was not badly hurt.

Young Quinn and two customers were chatting in the well-lighted saloon, when a stranger walked up to the bar. Quinn found himself looking into a revolver. The man was tall and well built and was dressed in dark clothes. A soft hat was pulled over his eyes and a black handkerchief was bound across his mouth and chin. His shoes and trousers were covered with mud.

"Everybody, hands up," was his first command.

"Say, aren't you kidding?" asked Quinn.

"Nix," said the robber, turning the revolver until he covered each man.

"Hand out some money, open that cash drawer," he commanded.

"I guess you are in earnest," said Quinn, as he walked to the drawer behind the bar. Quinn opened the drawer, but the robber called out: "Hurry up, you."

Quinn grabbed a handful of bills, about $47, when the man fired. The bullet struck Quinn in the abdomen.

The police have a theory that the robber thought Quinn was looking for a revolver. Cassidy and Saylor both ran for the door. The robber swung around and said: "Stand where you are. You are not going out to bring the police down on me."

Cassidy says he stopped, but was shot in the side. What happened to Saylor is not fully known, but he was shot under the heart and died yesterday.

PEARY'S CHARGES

One Is That Cook's Eskimos Say He Was Not Out of Sight of Land.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 29.—Commander Peary's statement against Dr. Cook includes the following charges: "That Cook's Eskimos say he was not out of sight of land; that Cook has brought back his records; that Cook could not have traveled the 1,700 miles between Annotok and the pole and return to Jones Sound in one sleighing season; that his equipment was inadequate; that Cook's glass mercurial horizon could not have withstood the cold; that Prof. Marion and Capt. Bartlett have brought back duplicate records of Peary's march; that Cook's sledge could not have stood the journey; that his snowshoes were "impracticable," that Cook left his records at Etah so as to purposely last; that no man who had carried the flag to the pole would have left it with a stranger; that Cook could have carried his belongings to Upnavik, that Whitney could have returned on the Jeannie for the records and didn't."

Too Dry In West.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29.—Owing to the unusually fine weather prevailing this month, reports are coming in from the country of a great scarcity of water. Sloughs and wells are drying up and threshers are severely handicapped, in some instances having to team nine or ten miles for water.

Amherstburg, Sept. 30.—Captain Thornton Balfour met with a serious accident. The tow line broke and hit him on the head, causing concussion of the brain.

THE KING IS MEDIATOR

His Majesty Is Against Upper House Rejecting the Budget—If This Happens, However, There Will Be a General Election in January, When the Revision of the Voters' Lists Will Be Completed.

London, Sept. 29.—Should the House of Lords reject the budget a general election will be held in January, by which time the new registry of voters will be ready. This announcement was semi-officially made last night.

There is a growing feeling among the Liberals, however, that the Upper House will not take this drastic step. One of the influences making for peace is the King, who is adverse to having an acute constitutional issue raised. Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne are also believed to favor the House of Lords passing the budget.

The more ardent tariff reformers, on the other hand, demand its rejection, and it is expected that their representatives in the Lords, led by Lord Milner, will urge this policy.

The Upper House in the meantime is further aggravating the Liberals. Lord Lansdowne last night, while persuading the Lords not to reject the Irish land bill, promised to support the drastic amendments to this measure when it reaches the committee stage.

IMPORTING GOLD

Canada Received $800,000 Withdrawn From New York Market.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—Gold to the amount of $800,000 was received in Montreal yesterday, of which $500,000 was for the Bank of Montreal and $300,000 for the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The gold was withdrawn from the New York market, where the banks have large available reserves for monetary contingencies, and will be available for domestic requirements.

The return of this gold to this country is coincident with an increasing demand for funds throughout Canada.

Apart from the general stimulation in practically all channels of trade and commerce throughout the Dominion, which would naturally call for a greater volume of money than a year ago, it is customary at this time of year to prepare for a rush of exports.

This rush usually sets in a month and a half or two months before the closing of navigation. It is evident the banks are preparing for the situation.

Banquet to Pugsley.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 29.—Dr. Pugsley was given a big reception at the Liberal banquet in his honor last night. He spoke in praise of the Liberal members of New Brunswick, naming each.

Passing on to his recent tour of the west, he compared the progress shown in twelve years since his last visit. As to Vancouver, he saw no reason why is should not reach across the Pacific and grasp a large share of the trade there.

Coming back to New Brunswick, however, and notwithstanding the progress of the west, he was prouder of his native province than ever. He was more convinced than ever that eastern ports were to receive greater impetus from western prosperity.

Board of Commerce Wanted.

Montreal, Sept. 29.—The Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants' Association decided at their fifth annual convention, held here yesterday, to ask the Federal Government to appoint a board of commerce, to which all matters of trade may be submitted.

The board's local president, J. G. A. Filion, delivered the opening address and ex-President Green of Belleville replied.

M. E. Trowern, secretary, Toronto, read his report, which declared that the association was destined to be one of the greatest importance to the retail trade of Canada.

Electrify All Railroads.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—An ordinance providing that all steam railroads entering Chicago shall be electrified after Jan. 1, 1912, within eight miles of the city hall, was introduced on Monday night in the city council. It was referred to the committee on local transportation.

It is said that compliance with such an ordinance would mean an expenditure of $150,000,000.

Co-Education Immoral.

Paris, Sept. 28.—The French episcopal has issued a pastoral letter warning Catholic parents in France that the teaching in the public schools jeopardizes the faith of their children. The latter condemns especially co-education, saying that the "mixture of the two sexes is contrary to morality and unworthy a civilized people."

Killed Wife With Axe.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 29.—After making his six children go to bed at his home here, John Klema, a Hungarian shoemaker, killed his wife in an adjoining room with an axe yesterday morning. He escaped, but was captured after several hours. There had been a quarrel over money matters.

Walking on Tracks, Is Killed.

Ingersoll, Sept. 29.—Alexander E. Todd, a stonemason residing near Beachville, was instantly killed Monday night while walking on the C.P.R. tracks toward home.

BIG UNION PLANNED

Executive of Labor Body Wants Foreign Unions in Canada Investigated by the Government — Committee Will Meet Railway Brotherhood and Provincial Workmen to Consider an Amalgamation.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—Interesting references and recommendations pertaining to the military scare; to the status of foreign labor organizations in Canada; to the question of immigration and other matters, appears in the reports and addresses made at the first annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Labor, which opened here yesterday. Some 60 delegates are here with President J. W. Patterson of Ottawa, in the chair.

The executive committee's report drew attention to the work of foreign labor organizations in Canada, and asked the convention to consider the advisability of inviting the Government to enquire into their operation. Imperial defence, it was stated, was at present looming large before the people, and a recommendation was made that the convention place itself on record as declaring in favor of voluntary military service, as represented by our militia system, and not a regular army, and, approving of a naval policy consistent with the needs and resources of the country, but preserving complete Canadian autonomy in the matter of control. All warships or military equipment should be manufactured in Canada.

The attention of the convention was drawn to the drastic way in which the American alien labor law is operated.

The committee gave notice that it would ask the convention to petition the Government to make the Lemieux or Industrial Disputes Act applicable to all industrial disputes.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes and the P.W.A. regarding amalgamation. This would make a national body 20,000 strong.

Two important resolutions were laid on the table, to come up for discussion. One refers to the question of military bands joining international bodies, and the other has a proposal to tax foreign employes of foreign corporations.

Ship Founders; Eight Drown.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—Eight men were drowned and seven had a narrow escape from death by the foundering of the Norwegian coal steamer Gere, six miles from the winter quarter lightship, fifty miles south of the Delaware Capes.

The only boat had been swept clear and was floating away and there was nothing for the men to do but jump into the sea. The strongest swimmers struck out for and reached the drifting boat, and after a two-hour struggle made it seaworthy. The weakest of the swimmers and two that could not swim went down one by one.

Street Car Accident Fatal.

Winnipeg, Sept. 29.—Robert Rolph, 77 years of age, was knocked down by a street car on Main street Monday night and died yesterday. He was one of the oldest residents of the city. He was born in London, Eng., but migrated to Canada with his parents in 1837, his father being quartermaster of the 70th Regiment.

He started in the grocery business in Quebec, but afterward moved to Montreal and later to Toronto. During the raid of 1866 he served on the Niagara frontier. Coming to Winnipeg in 1879, he started as an auctioneer.

Half Million Increase.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—The Bank of Ottawa is to increase its capital stock by $500,000. Expansion of the bank's business and the necessity, therefore, of additional capital is given as the reason.

The present paid-up capital of the bank is $3,000,000. The authorized capital is $5,000,000.

The new stock is to be divided among present shareholders. There will be 5,000 shares issued, face value $100, but each share will be issued at $200 per share.

Taft to Aid Irrigation.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 29.—In a speech on the conservation of national resources, delivered here yesterday President Taft declared he would ask Congress to authorize the issuance of $10,000,000 in bonds to complete irrigation projects already begun in the west and on which work has been stopped for lack of funds. This has been the hope of many settlers in the arid regions.

Six Killed In Wreck.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Six men were killed and a dozen seriously injured early yesterday when an outbound passenger train crashed into the rear end of a stock train at 12th and Rockwell streets.

The victims were stock men, many of whom were sleeping in the caboose of the stock train. Four cars were telescoped and the wreckage took fire.

Parcel Post to Mexico.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—A Canadian parcel post service to Mexico will be inaugurated on Friday next.

Hitherto the lack of a parcel post service has militated considerably against the development of trade with Mexico in some lines where samples could conveniently be sent by mail.

The delegates declared that this was regarded in America as an insult to the flag, and he suggested that Ambassador Reid be instructed to apologize.

In reply, Mr. Asquith said the display of any flag in a licensed saloon was illegal, and that the Union Jack had been ordered removed on a similar occasion.

Church Should Pay Too.

Stratford, Sept. 29.—The case of the City v. A. Brandenberger, charged with conducting a moving picture show without a license, was heard yesterday morning. He was fined $50 and costs, or one month in jail. A peculiar feature presented was that churches conducting illustrated picture festivals should pay license fees also.

"Then I have one more important question to ask, venturing to remind you first that I have acted solely in your interest. If such a step as you contemplate should be my deathblow it is because of my love for you and Rhaetia. Tell me, your majesty, this one thing. If it were proved to you that the lady you know as Miss Mowbray was not only not the person she pretends to be, but in all other respects unworthy of your love, what would you do?"

"You speak of impossibilities."

"But if they were not impossibilities?"

"In such a case I should do as other men do—spend the rest of my life in trying to forget a lost ideal."

"I thank your majesty That is all I ask. I suppose you will continue your journey?"

"Yes, as far as Felgarde, where I hope to find Lady Mowbray and her daughter."

"Then, your majesty, when I've expressed my gratitude for your forbearance, even though I've failed to be convincing, I'll trouble you no longer."

The chancellor rose painfully, with a reminiscence of gout, and Leopold stared at him in surprise. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"Only that, as I can do no further good here, with your permission I will get out at the station we are coming to and go back home again."

The emperor realized what he had not noticed until this moment—that the train was slackening speed as it approached the suburbs of a town. His conversation with the chancellor had lasted for an hour, and he was far from regretting the prospect of being left in peace. More than once he had come perilously near to losing his temper, forgetting his gratitude and the old man's years. How much longer he could have held out under a continued strain of provocation he did not know. So he spoke no word of dissuasion when Count von Breitstein picked up his soft hat and buttoned his gray coat for departure.

"I've passed pleasanter hours in your society, I admit," said Leopold when the train stopped. "But I can thank you for your motives, if not your maxims, and here's my hand."

"It would be most kind of your majesty to telephone me from Felgarde," the chancellor exclaimed, as if on a sudden thought, while they shook hands, "merely to say whether you remain there or whether you go farther or whether you return at once. I am too fatigued to travel back immediately to Schloss Breitstein and shall rest for some hours at least in my house at Kronburg, so a call will find me there."

"I will do as you ask," said the emperor. Again he pressed the chancellor's hand, and it was very cold.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

When Leopold arrived at Felgarde he went immediately to the hotel which he had designated as a place of meeting. But no ladies answering to the description he gave had been seen there.

He returned at once to the railway station.

The telegram was still in the hands of the station master, to whose care it had been addressed. This diligent person professed to have sent a man through the Orient express from end to end calling for Miss Helen Mowbray, but calling in vain. He had no theory more plausible to offer than that the lady had not started from Kronburg or else that she had left the train at Felgarde before her name had been cried. But certainly she would not have had time to go far if she were a through passenger, for the Orient express stopped but ten minutes at Felgarde.

It was evident throughout the short conversation that the excellent official was on pins and needles. Struck by the emperor's features, which he had so often seen in painting and photograph, it still seemed impossible that the greatest man in Rhaetia could be travelling thus about the country in ordinary morning dress and unattended. Sure at one instant that he must be talking with the emperor, sure the next that he had been deceived by a likeness, the poor fellow struggled against his confusion in a way that would have amused Leopold in a different mood.

With a manner that essayed the different mean between reverence due to royalty and common everyday politeness, good enough for an ordinary gentleman, the station master volunteered to ascertain whether the ladies described had gone out and given up their tickets. A few minutes of suspense dragged on. Then came the news that no such persons had passed.

Here was a stumbling block. Since Helen Mowbray and her mother had apparently not traveled by the Orient express, where had they gone on leaving the hotel at Kronburg? Had they, after all, misled Baroness von Lyndal as to their intentions for the purpose of blinding the emperor, or had they simply changed their minds at the last minute, as women may? Could it be possible that they had changed them so completely as to return to Schloss Lyndalberg, or had they chosen to vanish mysteriously through some back door out of Rhaetia, leaving no trace which even a lover could find?

Leopold could not help recalling the chancellor's revelations, but dismissed them as soon as they had crept into his brain. No matter where the clew to the tangle might lie, he told himself that it was not in any act of which Helen Mowbray need be ashamed.

He could think of nothing more to do but to go dismally back to Kronburg and await developments or, rather, to stir them up by every means in his power. This was the course he finally chose, and just as he was about to act upon his decision he remembered his carelessly given promise to Count von Breitstein.

There was a telephone in the railway station at Felgarde, and Leopold himself called up the chancellor at Kronburg.

"My friends are not here. I'm starting for Kronburg as soon as possible, either by the next train or by special," he announced after a faraway squeak had signified Count von Breitstein's presence at the other end. "I don't see why you wish to know, but I would not break my promise: that's all. Goodby. Eh? What was that you said?"

"I have a—curious—piece of—news for you," came over the wire in the chancellor's voice. "It's—about the—ladies."

"What is it?" asked Leopold.

"I hinted that I had more information which I could not give you then. But I am in a different position now. You did not find your friends in the Orient express."

"No," said the emperor.

"They gave out that they were leaving Rhaetia, but they haven't crossed the frontier."

"Thanks. That's exactly what I wanted to know."

"You remember a certain person whose name can't be mentioned over the telephone buying a hunting lodge near the village of Inseleden, in the Buchenwald, last year?"

"Yes; I remember very well. But what has that to do with my friends?"

"The younger lady has gone there without her mother, who remains in Kronburg with the companion. It seems that the present owner of the hunting lodge has been acquainted with them for some time, though he was ignorant of their masquerade. You see, he knows them only under their real name. The young lady is a singer in comic operas, a Miss Jenny Brett, whose dossier can be given you on demand. The owner of the hunting lodge arrived at his place this morning, motored into Kronburg, where the young lady had waited, evidently informed of his coming. She invited him to pay her a visit at her hotel. He accepted and returned the invitation, which she accepted."

"You are misinformed. The lady was never an opera singer, and I'm certain she would neither receive the person you mention nor go to visit him."

"Will you drive out to the lodge tonight when you reach Kronburg and honor the gentleman with an unexpected call?"

"I will, d—n you, but not for the reason you think!" cried the emperor. It was the first time in his life that he had ever used strong language to the chancellor.

He dropped the receiver, flung down a gold coin with his own head upon it (at the moment he could have wished that he had no other) and, waving away an offer of change, rushed out of the office.

Under his breath he swore again, the strongest oaths which the rich language of his fatherland provided, anathematizing not the beloved woman, maligned, but the man who maligned her.

There would be death in the thought that she could be false to herself and her confession of love for him. But, then, it was unthinkable. Let the whole world reek with foulness, his love must still shine above it white and remote as the young moon.

This old man, whose life would scarce have been safe if in his emper-

"I will, d—n you, but not for the reason you think!"

or's present mood the two had been together—this old man had a grudge against the one perfect girl on earth. There was no black rag of scandal he would not stoop to pick out of the mud and fly as a flag of battle, soothing his conscience—if he had one—by saying it was for "Rhaetia's good."

Telling himself that these things were truths, Leopold hurried away to inquire for the next train back to Kronburg. There would not be another for three hours, he found, and as nothing could have induced him to wait three hours, or even two, he ordered a special. There was a raging tiger in his breast which would not cease to tear him until he had seen Helen Mowbray, laid his empire at her feet, received her answer and, through it, punished the chancellor.

The special, he was told, could be ready in less than an hour. The journey to Kronburg would occupy nearly three more, and it would be close upon 9 before he could start with Count von Breitstein for the hunting lodge which he had promised to visit. But the chancellor would doubtless have his electric carriage ready for the desired expedition, and they could reach their destination in twenty minutes. This was not too long a time to give up to proving the old man wrong, for to do this, not to find Helen Mowbray, was Leopold's motive in consenting. She would not be there, and the emperor was going because she would not. He wanted to witness Von Breitstein's confusion, for humiliation was the bitterest punishment which could possibly be inflicted on the proud and opinionated old man.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

"Tell the truth when desired, spice with prevarication when necessary and never part with the whole truth at one time, since waste is sinful," was one of the maxims by which the chancellor guided his own actions, though he did not give it away for the benefit of others, and he had made the most of that prudent policy today.

He had told his emperor no lies, even through the telephone, where forgetfulness may be pardonable, but he had arranged his truths as skillfully as he arranged his pawns on a chessboard.

It was said by some who pretended to know that Count von Breitstein had had a Jesuit for a tutor; but, be this as it might, it was certain that when he had a goal to reach he did not pick his footsteps by the way. A flower here or there was apt to be trodden down, a small life broken, a reputation stained, but what of that when Rhaetia's standard was to be planted upon the mountain top?

Supposing he had said to the emperor after his promise of plain speaking: "Your majesty's journey today is a wild goose chase. I happen to know that those you seek are still at their hotel in Kronburg. When I heard from my brother Egon that they were leaving Schloss Lyndalberg suddenly and secretly I went immediately to Kronburg and called upon the ladies. My intention was to frighten them away by telling them that the fraud was found out and they had better disappear decently of their own accord unless they wished to be assisted over the frontier. They actually dared refuse to see me, alleging as an excuse the sudden illness of their companion, which had prevented their leaving Kronburg, as they intended. While I was awaiting this answer I learned that some person was telegraphing from the railway station to the hotel manager inquiring if the Mowbrays had gone. I guessed this person to be your majesty and ventured to use my influence strongly with the manager, so successfully that I was permitted to dictate the reply and obtain his promise that the matter should be strictly confidential. I judged that your majesty had meant to take the Orient express, but had missed it, and, as you telephoned from the station, I had no doubt that you intended to follow either by the next train or by a special. Soon I learned that no special had been ordered by any one. I ascertained the time of the next train and sought your majesty in it. Had my eloquence then prevailed with you I should have urged your return with me, and thus you would have been spared the useless journey to Felgarde. As you remained

Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, Ontario

They report Bug Death has made an excellent record in each of the past two years. The potatoes on which the Bug Death was applied were more vigorous in growth and greener in appearance throughout each of the seasons than those on which other applications were made.

DO YOU WANT BETTER CROPS?

Of course you do.—Well, the way is clear. Use Bug Death and you'll not only have a heavier crop, but larger potatoes of better quality.

Write or call and we'll tell you some more good things of this celebrated Bug Killer and Fertiliser, both in one.

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of the uterus, and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully until I began taking your medicine. It has also helped other women to whom I have recommended it."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ontario.

Gardiner, Me.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Maine.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

obstinately faithful, however I considered myself fortunate to have you out of the way, so that I could hurry back, and, unhampered by your suspicions, set about learning still more facts to Miss Mowbray's discredit or inventing a few if those which undoubtedly existed could not be unearthed in time."

Supposing that Count von Breitstein's boasted frankness had led him to make these statements, it is probable that Rhaetia would not long have rejoiced in a chancellor so wise and so self sacrificing.

It was well enough for the old man to declare his willingness to retire if his master desired it, but he had counted, as people who risk all for great ends do count, on not being taken at his word. He loved power because he had always had it, and without power life would not be worth the living. but it was honestly for the country's sake and for Leopold's sake rather than his own that he desired to hold and keep his high position. Without his strong hand to seize the helm should Leopold's fail for some careless instant he conscientiously believed that the ship of state would be lost.

He had done his best to disillusion a young man tricked into love for an adventuress. Now neither as chancellor nor friend could he make further open protest unless favored by fate with some striking new development. There were nevertheless other ways of working, and he had but taken the first step toward interference. He meant, since worse had come to worst, to go on relentlessly, and he would hardly have considered it criminal to destroy a woman of the type to which he assigned Helen Mowbray, provided no means less stringent sufficed to snatch her from the throne of Rhaetia.

There were many plans seething in the chancellor's head, and Egon's help might be necessary. He might even have to go so far as to bribe Egon to kidnap the girl and sacrifice himself by marrying her out of hand before she had a chance to learn that the emperor was ready to meet her demands. Egon had been attentive to Miss Mowbray. It might well be believed even by the emperor that the young man had been madly enough in love to act upon his own initiative, uninfluenced by his brother.

The chancellor's first act on parting with Leopold was to telegraph Captain von Breitstein to meet the train by which he would return to Kronburg. Therefore on arriving at the station he was not surprised to see Egon's handsome face prominent among others less attractive on the crowded platform.

"Well?" questioned the young man as the old man descended.

"I'm sorry to say it is very far from well. But between us we shall, I hope, improve matters. You have kept yourself au courant with everything that has happened in the camp of the enemy?"

"Yes."

"Is anything stirring?"

"Say 'any one,' and I can answer you more easily. Who do you think has arrived at the hotel?"

"The devil, probably, to complicate matters."

"I've heard him called so, but a good looking devil and devilishly pleasant. I met him in his motor, in which he'd driven into town from his new toy, the hunting lodge in"—

"What! You mean the Prince"—

"Of Darkness, you've just named him." Egon gave a laugh at his own repartee, but the chancellor heard neither. His hard face brightened. "That's well," said he grimly. "Here we have just the young man to see us through this bad pass if he's as good looking as ever and in his usual mood for mischief. If we can interest him in this affair, he may save me a great deal of trouble and you a misalliance."

"But your wedding present to me"—began Egon blankly.

"Don't distress yourself. Do what you can to assist me, and, whatever the end, you shall be my heir, I promise you. Is the prince at the hotel now?"

"Yes. He had been to call on you at your town house, he stopped his automobile to tell me, and, hearing from me that you would be back this evening, he decided to stay all night at the hotel, so that he could have a chat with you after your return, no matter at what hour it might be. I believe he has left a note at your house."

"I will go to him, and we can then discuss its contents together," said Count von Breitstein, and the chauffeur who drove his electric carriage was told to go to the Hohenlangenwald hotel.

The prince, who would, the chancellor hoped, become the deus ex machina, was engaged in selecting the wines for his dinner when Count von Breitstein's card was sent in. He was pleased to say that he would receive his visitor, and, Egon having been sent about his business, the chancellor was shown into the purple drawing room of the suit reserved for royalty.

As he entered a young man jumped up from an easy chair, scattering sheaves of illustrated papers, and held out both his hands, with a "Welcome, my dear old friend!"

It would have been vain to scour the world in quest of a handsomer young man than this one. Even Egon von Breitstein would have seemed a mere good looking puppet beside him, and the chancellor rejoiced in the physical perfection of a prince who might prove a dangerous rival for an absent emperor.

"This is the best of good fortune!" exclaimed Count von Breitstein. "Egon told me you were here, and without waiting to get the note he said you had left for me I came to you straight from the railway station."

"Splendid! And now you must dine with me. It was that I asked of you in my note. Dinner early, a serious talk and an antidote for solemnity in a visit to the Leopoldhalle to see Mlle. Felice from the Folies Bergere do her famous fire and fountain dance. A box, curtains half drawn, no one need know that the chancellor helps his young friend amuse himself."

"I thank your royal highness for the honor you suggest, and nothing could give me greater pleasure if I had not a suggestion to venture, in place of yours, which I believe may suit you better. I think I know of what you wish to talk with me, and I desire the same, while the business I have most at heart"—

"Ah, your business is my business, then?"

"I hope you may so consider it. In any case it is business which must be carried through now or never and is of life and death importance to those whom it concerns. How it's to be done or whether done at all may depend on you, if you consent to interest yourself, and it could not be in more competent hands. If I'd been given my choice of an assistant out of the whole world I should have chosen your royal highness."

"This sounds like an adventure."

"It may be an adventure and at the same time an act of justice."

"Good. Although it was not in search of an adventure that I came to you, any more than it was the hope of game which brought me on a sudden impulse to my little hunting lodge, still I trust I have always the instinct of a sportsman."

"I am sure of that, and I have the less hesitation in enlisting your good will because it happens that your bird and mine can be killed with one shot."

"Chancellor, you excite my curiosity."

The old man smiled genially, but under the bristling brows glowed a flame as of the last embers in a dying fire. "Upstairs," said he, "is a pretty woman, a beauty. She claims the name of Helen Mowbray, though her right to it is more than disputable. Her love affairs threaten a public scandal."

"Ah, you are not the first one who has spoken of this pretty lady since I crossed the frontier this morning," exclaimed the young man, flushing. He paused and bit his lip before going on, as if he wished to think or regain self control, but at last he laughed not altogether lightly. "So the lady most talked about for the moment in all Rhaetia is under the same roof with me."

"Fortunately she is close at hand," said the chancellor. "To you more than to any other I can open my heart in speaking of our great peril. This girl has drawn the emperor into a fit of moon madness. It is no more serious than that, and were she out of the way he would wake as from a dream. But this is the moment of the crisis. He must be saved now or he is lost forever and all our hopes with him. Blessed would be the man who brought my poor master to his senses. I have tried and failed. But you could do it."

"I?"

"The sword of justice is ready for your hand."

"That sentence has a solemn ring. I don't see what you want me to do. But what sort of woman is this who has bewitched your grave Leopold?"

"Beautiful and clever as women are clever, but not clever enough to fight her battle out against you and me."

The prince laughed again. "All isn't my metier to fight with women. I prefer to make love to them."

"Ah, you have said it! That is what I beg your royal highness to do."

"How am I to get at her when Ley paid stands guard?"

"He will not be on guard for some hours."

"Ha, ha! You mean me to understand that there's no time to waste."

"Not a moment."

"What is the girl like?"

"Tall and slender, pink and white as a flower, dark lashed and yellow haired, like an Austrian beauty; eyes gray or violet, it would be hard to say which for a man of my years, but even I can assure you that when the lady looks down, then suddenly up again under those dark lashes, it's something to quicken the pulse of any man under sixty."

"It would quicken mine only to hear your description if you hadn't just put a maggot in my head that tickles me to laughter instead of raptures," said the prince. "Tell me this—has this girl a tiny black mole just over the left eyebrow, very fetching, and when she smiles does her mouth point upward a bit on the right side, like a fairy signpost showing the way to a small round near almost as good as a dimple?"

The chancellor reflected for a few seconds and then replied that unless his eyesight and his memory had deceived him both these marks were to be met with on Miss Mowbray's face. He did not add that he had seen her but once and at the time had not taken interest enough to note details, for it was plain that the prince had a theory as to the lady's real identity and to establish it as a fact might be valuable.

"Is it possible that you've already met this dangerous young person?" he asked eagerly.

"Well, I begin to believe it may be so. I'll explain why later. Thereby hangs a confession. At all events, a certain lady exactly answering the description you've given is very likely in this neighborhood. I've heard that she was shortly due in Kronburg, and it was in my mind when deciding suddenly to spend a few days in the woods for the sake of seeing you that I might see her also before I went home again. As a matter of fact, the lady and I have had a misunderstanding at a rather unfortunate moment, as I'd just imprudently taken her into my confidence concerning—er—some family affairs. If it is she who is masquerading in Rhaetia as Miss Mowbray and turning your emperor's head, it may be that she's trying to revenge herself on me. She's pretty enough to beguile St. Anthony, let alone a St. Leopold, and she's clever enough to have thought out such a scheme. Our small quarrel happened about four weeks ago, and I've lost sight of the lady since. She disappeared, expecting probably to be

They Help Your Stomach Out

And Save You a World of Wretchedness

A stomach that cannot digest a good meal is certainly a sore trial. It has been responsible for almost everything in the way of human misery, up to suicide.

The trouble in most cases is that the stomach and other digestive organs lack vigor. Not enough of the juices necessary to digestion are secreted, nor does the stomach work up the food properly.

The worst of it is that there is not sufficient nourishment taken out of the food to restore the system's vigor, and the trouble goes from bad to worse. The stomach needs help.

"Little Digesters" meet the need exactly. One "Little Digester" after each meal will ensure perfect digestion, provided, of course, that the food is good and wholesome.

"Little Digesters" are guaranteed to cure Indigestion, and Dyspepsia, or your money will be refunded.

followed, but she wasn't. The only question is, if she's playing Miss Mowbray, where did she get the mother? I've heard there is a Mowbray mother."

"There's a faded Dresden china shepherdess that answers to the name," said the chancellor dryly. "But these mantelpiece ornaments are easily manufactured."

The prince was amused. "No; she wouldn't stick at a mother if she wanted one," he chuckled. "And, while she was about it, she has apparently annexed a whole family tree. The black mole and the scar dimple—you're sure of them, chancellor? Because, if you are"—

"Oh, I am practically certain!"

"Then the more pieces in the puzzle which I fit together the more likely does it seem that your Leopold's Miss Helen Mowbray and my Miss Jenny Brett are one and the same."

"Miss Jenny Brett?"

"Did you never hear the name?"

"If I have I've forgotten it."

"Chancellor, you wouldn't forget if you were a few years younger. Jenny Brett is the prettiest if not the most talented singer ever sent out from Australia, the fashionable home of singers. She is billed to sing at the Court theater of Kronburg in a fortnight, her first engagement in Rhaetia."

"You are right. It may well be that she's been having a game with us—a game that we can prevent now, thank heaven, from ending in earnest."

"Oh, yes; we can prevent that."

"Your royal highness met the lady in your own country?"

"N-o. It was in Paris at first, but I'm afraid I induced her to accept an engagement at home. We were great friends for awhile, and really she's a charming creature. I can't blame myself. Who would have guessed that she'd turn out so ambitious? By Jove, I can sympathize with Leopold. The girl tried to twist me round her finger and, I verily believe, fancied at one time that I would offer her marriage."

"It must be the same girl. And the emperor has offered her marriage."

"What? Impossible! But—with the left hand, of course, though even that would be unheard of for a man in his"—

"I swear to your royal highness that if he isn't stopped he will force her on the Rhaetian people as empress."

"Gad—little Jenny Brett! I didn't half appreciate her brilliant qualities."

"Yet I would wager that she appreciated yours."

The prince shrugged his shoulders. "I believe she really cared something for me—a month ago."

"Then she still cares. You are not a man whom a woman can forget, though pique or ambition may lead her to try. I tell you frankly I believe that Providence sent your royal highness here at this moment, and my best hopes are now pinned on you. You—and no one as well as you—can save the emperor for a nobler fate. Even when I supposed you a stranger to this lady who calls herself Helen Mowbray I thought that if you would consent to meet her and exercise your fascinations there might be hope of averting the danger from my master. Now I hope everything. I beg, I entreat that our royal highness will send up your name and ask the lady to see you without delay. She will certainly receive you, and when the emperor learns that he has done so it may go far to disillusion him, for, pardon me, your royal highness has a great reputation as a lady killer. Still more valuable would be, however—indeed, he would be cured of his infatuation forever—if—if"—

"If what?" inquired the young man, tired of the chancellor's long winded uneasiness and beating about the bush.

"If you could persuade her to go out to your hunting lodge. Then Leopold and Rhaetia would be saved by you. What could be better? What could be more suitable?"

"What, indeed," echoed the prince, "for every one concerned except for Jenny Brett?"

"Considering the havoc she has worked among us all, need she be considered before the interests of a great country and, perhaps I may hint, an innocent and lovely royal lady whom this girl is doing her best to humiliate?"

"I'm hanged if she need be so considered! Anyhow I'll do what you ask. I'll send up my card, and then we'll see what happens."

The prince took from his pocket a small gold case sparkling with jewels, a trifle which advertised itself as the gift of a woman. Out of this came a card, with a crown over the name in the fashion of his country and some others. An equerry waiting in an adjoining room was summoned, the card given to him, passed on to a hotel servant, and then for five minutes, ten minutes, the old man and the young one waited, talking of a subject very near to both their hearts.

At last, when they had no more to say, word came that Lady Mowbray and Miss Mowbray would see his royal highness.

"The value of a well regulated mother!" laughed the young man, who had not troubled to inquire for Lady Mowbray. "Well, whatever comes of this interview, chancellor, I shall presently have something to tell you."

"The suspense will be hard to bear," said Count von Breitstein, "but I have perfect faith in you. We understand each other completely now, but I'm growing old, and the past few days have tired me sorely. Remember, I pray you, all that's at stake and do not hesitate for an instant. Have no false scruple with such a person as this. The emperor will soon arrive in Kronburg. He'll lose no time in trying to find the girl, and once they've had another meeting all our plans, all our precautions, may be in vain. He searches for her to offer his crown."

"I'll send up my card."

The prince listened and did not smile as he went out.

He had bidden the chancellor await his return in the salon of the royal suit, which was always kept at his disposal when he appeared in the neighborhood, as he often did since purchasing the hunting lodge a few miles out of Kronburg in the forest.

Other foreign royalties or lesser princes from the provinces occasionally occupied the apartments also, and this handsome royal highness of today was not the only one whom the chancellor of Rhaetia had visited there. He knew by heart the rich purple hangings in the salon, with the double wolf head of Rhaetia stamped in gold at regular intervals on the velvet, and he sickened of their splendor now as the moments dragged and he remained alone.

When half an hour had passed he could no longer sit still on the purple velvet sofa, but began walking up and down, his hands behind him, scowling at the full length oil painted portraits of Rhaetia's dead rulers, glaring a question into his own eyes in the long, gold framed mirrors—a question he would have given his life to hear answered in the way he wished.

Three-quarters of an hour had gone at last, and still the chancellor paced the purple drawing room, and still the prince did not come back to tell the news.

Had the young man failed? Had that siren upstairs beguiled him, as she had beguiled one stronger and greater than he? Was it possible that she had lured the whole secret of their scheme from the prince and then induced him to leave the hotel while her arch enemy fumed in the salon, awaiting his return?

But, no; there were quick footsteps outside the door. The handle was turned. At least his royal highness was not a traitor.

As the chancellor had confessed, he was growing old. He felt suddenly very weak. His lips fell apart, trembling, yet he would not utter the words that hung upon them.

Fortunately the prince read the appeal in the glittering eyes and did not wait to be questioned.

"Well, I've seen the lady and had a talk with her," he said in a voice which was, the old man felt, somehow different in tone from what it had been an hour ago.

"And is she the person you have known?"

"Yes, she's a person I have known. It's—it's all right about that plan of yours, chancellor. She's going with me to the lodge."

"Heaven be praised! It seems almost too good to be true. When does she go?"

"At once—that is, as soon as she can get ready. She will dine with me, and my equerry will stop behind and eat the dinner I had ordered here."

"Magnificent! Then she will go with you alone? Nothing could be better. The presence of the alleged mother as chaperon would be a drawback."

"Oh, no chaperon is needed for us two. The—er—mother remains at the hotel with a la—a companion they have, who is ill. It was—er—somewhat difficult to arrange this matter, but I don't think the plot I have in mind now will fail, provided you carry through your part as smartly as I have carried mine."

"You may depend upon me. Your royal highness is marvelous. Am I to understand that the lady goes with you quite of her own free will?"

"Quite. I flatter myself that she's rather pleased with the invitation. In a few minutes I and the fair damsel will be spinning away for a drive in my red motor—you know, the one which I always leave at the lodge, to be ready for use whenever I choose to pay a flying visit. I shall keep her out until it's dark to give you plenty of time, but before starting I'll telephone to my chef that, after all, I shan't be away and he must prepare dinner for two."

"I also will send a telephone message," said the chancellor.

"To Leopold?"

"Yes, your royal highness. This time there will be no uncertainty in my words to him. They will strike home, and even if he should not be intending to come to Kronburg tonight they will bring him."

"You are sure you know where to catch the emperor?"

"He'll telephone me from Felgarde when he has found those he sought are not there, as he will, and I must be at my house to receive and answer his message. It will soon be time now."

"Very well; all that seems to arrange itself satisfactorily," said the prince. "Our motor drive can be stretched out for an hour and a half. The lady will then need to dress. Dinner can be kept back till half past 8, if it would suit your book to break in upon us at the table. My dining room isn't very grand, but it has plenty of light and color and wouldn't make a bad background for the last act of this little drama. What do you say, chancellor? I've always thought that your success as a stage manager of the theater of nations was partially due to your eye for dramatic effects."

"Such effects are not to be despised, considering the audience we cater for in that theater."

"Well, I promise you that for our little amateur play tonight in my private theater the footlights shall be lit, the stage set and two or three principal puppets dressed and painted for the show before 9. I suppose you can introduce the leading man by that time or a little later?"

The bristling brows drew together involuntarily. Count von Breitstein was working without scruple against the emperor for the emperor's good, yet he winced at his accomplice's light jest, and it was by an effort that he kept a note of disapproval out of his voice.

"Unless I much mistake, his majesty will order a special train as soon as he has had my message," said he. "That and everything else falling as I confidently expect, I shall be able to bring him out to your royal highness' hunting lodge a little after 9."

"You'll find us at the third course," prophesied the prince.

"Naturally the emperor's appearance will startle your visitor," went on the chancellor, keenly watching the young man's extraordinarily handsome face. "She would not dare take the risk and drive out with you, great as the temptation would no doubt be, did she dream that he would learn of the escapade and follow. Indeed, your royal highness must have found subtle weapons ready to your hand that you so soon broke through the armor of her prudence. I expected much from your magnetism and resourceful wit, yet I hardly dared hope for such speedy, such unqualified success as this which now seems assured to us."

"My weapons were sharpened on my past acquaintance with the pretty lady," explained the prince; "otherwise the result might have been postponed for as many days as I have delayed moments, though at last the end might have been the same."

"Not for Rhaetia. Every instant counts. Thanks to you, we shall win, for, actress as this girl is, she'll find it a task beyond her powers to justify to a jealous man this evening's tete-a-tete with you."

"If she tests those powers in our presence, we can be audience and admire her histrionic talents," said the prince pleasantly, though with some faint, growing sign of constraint or perhaps impatience. "There's no doubt in my mind, whatever may be the lady's conception of her part, about the final tableau. And, after all, it's with that alone you concern yourself, eh, chancellor?"

"It's that alone," echoed the old man.

"Then you would like to go and await the message. There's nothing more for us to arrange. Au revoir, chancellor, till 9."

"Till 9."

"When the curtain for the last act will ring up."

The prince held out his hand. Count von Breitstein grasped it and then hurried to his electric carriage, which had been waiting outside the hotel. A few minutes later he was talking over the wire to the emperor in the railway station at Felgarde.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

LEOPOLD thought it rather more than possible that by the time of his return to Kronburg the chancellor would be as anxious to wriggle out of his proposal to visit the prince's hunting lodge as he had been to have it accepted a few hours before.

"He shan't escape his humiliation, though," the emperor told himself. "He shall go, and he shall beg forgiveness for his suspicions in sackcloth and ashes. Nothing else can satisfy me now."

Thinking thus, Leopold looked sharply from the window as his special slowed into the central station at Kronburg along the track which had been kept clear for its arrival. No other train was due at the moment; therefore few persons were on the platform, and a figure in a long gray coat, with its face shadowed by a slouch hat, was conspicuous.

The emperor had expected to see that figure, but vaguely he wished there were not so much briskness and self confidence in the set of the massive head and shoulders. The young man believed absolutely in his love, but he would have been gratified to detect a something of depression in the enemy's air which he might translate as a foreknowledge of failure.

MAGISTRATE'S SKIN DISEASE CURED

Magistrate F. Rasmussen, of 211, Marquette Street, Montreal, writes to the Zam-Buk Co. as follows:—

"Gentlemen,—For many years I was troubled with a serious eruption of the skin, which was not only unsightly, but at times very painful. I first tried various household remedies, but all these proved altogether useless.

"I then took medical advice. Not one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but I was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I noticed a report from a Justice of the Peace who had been cured of a chronic skin-disease by Zam-Buk, and I determined to give this balm a trial.

"After a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with it. I have the best reasons for this conclusion; because, while everything else I tried—salves, embrocations, washes, soaps, and doctors' preparations—failed absolutely to relieve my pain and rid me of my trouble, three boxes of Zam-Buk have worked a complete cure.

"In my opinion Zam-Buk should be even more widely known than it is, and I have no objection to you publishing this letter."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A SECOND LIFE

"If I only had another chance!"

How often are these despairing words uttered when a man feels his strength ebbing, his vital forces depressed, his health undermined—often as the result of his own errors or follies—and he realizes the infinite possibilities which might lie in his grasp, could he indeed receive in Shakespeare's phrase, "a second life."

Happily for the world, this other chance, this "second life" is to be had for the asking by means of that which has been aply described by a famous physician as "the last word science has spoken" on the subject of such remedial agents, and to which by virtue of its health-giving properties, the name of Vitol—meaning life "health-producer"—has been given.

Tonic Food for the Brain and the Nerves

So potent is its force that it will not only restore the health and vigour which have been lost, but, if persevered in, will in addition impart the highest measure of nervous and physical vigour of which the individual is capable; for there is a maximum capacity of health for everyone, though he may not hitherto have had the fact impressed upon him. Doctors endorse this and daily prescribe Vitol in increasing quantities. The constituents which give this power are known to every physician, and one has testified to the supreme merits of Vitol as

A Revitalizing Force

after wasting illness and as a restorer of health, not only in nervous diseases (with their innumerable symptoms of discomfort and distress, including loss of memory, insomnia, irresolution, weakness of the will, &c.), but also in anæmia, digestive disturbances and consumption.

GRAND RALLY

WE WONDER if it ever occurred to the boys of Peterborough that the selling of papers was a stepping-stone to a successful business career in future years.

DO they recognize the fact that this little business offers them an opportunity to

MAKE

100 Per Cent ?

or in other words, to double the money invested in selling the EXAMINER to transient buyers.

BOYS buy the EXAMINER at one cent each and sell it for two cents each ; or in the case of weekly patrons, they pay six cents per week and receive ten cents from the subscriber, thus making a profit of 62 2-3 per cent.

DO you know of any business in the city that pays such profits with as little chance for bad debts ?

IT only requires a Boy to HUSTLE, the same thing that is required when he gets into a bigger business world.

OF course we do not mean to say that the Boy, to become a successful business man, must be a newsboy, but we do say that the successful newsboy has gained an experience that is of much service to him in after years.

BOYS

THE

EXAMINER

A NEWSBOY'S EXPERIENCE IN A LARGE CITY. Why can't a local Boy be benefitted proportionately ?This story is taken from the Saturday Post :

MONEY IN NEWSPAPER ROUTES.

Another boy was only thirteen when his father died, leaving two hundred dollars insurance, a widow and four younger children. The insurance money was loaned out to a neighbour at six per cent., as a sort of reserve fund, and while the widow did plain sewing, the boy carried newspapers morning and evening. After three months' experience with this work he borrowed twenty-five dollars and purchased the smallest newspaper route in town. Vigorous canvassing for new customers made that route so productive that in six months he paid back the loan. The lender offered another loan of fifty dollars, which the boy took, buying two more routes. These were covered by boys hired to do the work, however, because he felt that all his energy must go into the original route, so that he would at least be certain of good returns from that. Principles of management learned by this plan made him so successful that in less than five years he owned every newspaper route in his town. His mother's two hundred dollars was still intact, and his brothers and sisters going to school. A legacy of two hundred dollars fell to the family. This, with the original two hundred dollars and another hundred the boy had saved, was paid on a home costing twenty-eight hundred dollars, the balance to be cleared off at the rate of twenty-five dollars a month. Three furnished rooms were rented at a total of about twenty-two dollars monthly, and this money, it was agreed, should never be spent. Newspaper routes, odd jobs and the mother's contributions kept the family and paid the instalments. In four years the income from furnished rooms, put away in the bank, grew to more than one thousand dollars. The mortgage was finally cleared off, and the boy, now nearly twenty-one years old, started to get an education at the high school.

THERE are a number of Boys in Peterborough making four and five dollars per week, not necessarily all selling the Examiner, but some easily make three dollars per week selling the Examiner exclusively.

Boys! Be Boys of Business

Get in the game. It won't hurt you, but will give you a right start. You will have money of your own to save or buy useful needs with.

BOYS ! Take your spare time between four and six o'clock and see what success you will have between now and Christmas.

NEWSBOYS' BONANZA

Boys, figure this proposition out for yourselves. Be ambitious. Good newsboys are always taken care of and recommended for future positions.

The case was given to the jury at noon. The evidence showed that on the night of August 16, White and two companions named Mugford and Truscott, met the Italian at King and Catharine streets, and that White and Lorenzo got into an argument. White was seen to follow the foreigner into the road, where Lorenzo pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired several shots. They all missed White, but his face was burned with the powder. New Catholic Dioceses.

London, Sept. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A despatch from Rome says that as a result of the first plenary council of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada proposals have been made to the Vatican for the creation of new dioceses, especially in the western provinces, including one the bishop of which would reside in Regina. The sub-division of the dioceses in the eastern provinces is also suggested. If a redistribution took place the diocese of Ottawa would probably be split up into dioceses, the provincial border being taken as the ecclesiastical boundary. Such division is more likely in consequence of the French-Canadians' claim for a diocese and bishop of their own.

INDIANS GATHERING WILD RICE FROM THE BEDS AT RICE LAKE

Harvesting is Nearly Completed and Grain Has Become so Ripe a Strong Wind Will Blow it From the Stalks---Delightful Season at the Lake.

Keene, Sept. 29.—This is the third week of the annual harvest of the Indians of the Hiawatha and Alderville reserves, and quite a number have been engaged in gathering in the winter's supply. Many have been camped on Sugar Island, while others are farther down the lake. The rice will soon be very ripe and after the first heavy wind the grain will be blown from the stalks. The gathering of the rice is one of the most interesting events in the affairs of the Indians of this district and in some respects is a sort of holiday. The collecting of the grain is practically concluded and the Indians are engaged in parching, winnowing and "jumping" the grain.

Only a few of the people that visit the lake in summer realize the interest there is attached to this work and the Indians are so accustomed to it that they do not appreciate it. The autumn weather is probably the most delightful of the whole season and yet there are few if any visitors.

Citizens Gazed At Some Of The Planets Last Night

A large number of citizens availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by the outdoor meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, last evening, to view the Heavens at close range.

Two telescopes were set up at the front entrance to the Collegiate Institute, and for the space of three hours a steady stream of people took their turn at the sights afforded.

The telescopes were operated by Mr. D. Easson and Mr. H. B. Collier, who kindly answered the numerous questions asked, as well as directed the gazer to the special features of the planet under observation.

The evening was a most profitable and interesting one to all who were fortunate enough to be present. To the majority this was the first time they had ever seen through a telescope and the novelty added to the interest of the knowledge obtained.

The powerful telescopes enabled the viewer to approach the moon, as near as 2,000 miles, thus affording a clear view of the many configurations thereon, such as the mountain ranges, the many extinct volcanoes, the old ocean beds, etc. To many this was a sight never to be forgotten.

Saturn, that giant planet with the wonderful ring about it, was a grand sight, the shape under the telescope proving so different to what appears to the naked eye.

The great polar ice cap on Mars and the peculiar markings, (supposed to be the great canals of a vast irrigation scheme) were plainly visible, and, of course, evoked much interest.

The Council of the Society met during the early part of the evening, and made plans for the ensuing fall and winter. A number of very prominent astronomers and public men have already consented to address the Society here, and the brightest prospects are before the Peterborough centre. The opening meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 12th, when an illustrated talk will be given by Mr. G. Parry Jenkins, F.R.A.S., President of the Hamilton Centre.

Among the list of lecturers appear the names of Warner the famous telescope manufacturer, and Stupart, "The Weather Man" of Canada. The visit of Mr. Stupart will undoubtedly prove most interesting as his name is familiar from one end of the Dominion to the other.

As a considerable number of citizens have signified their intention of joining the Astronomical Society, a card to Miss Estelle Foy, the Secretary, will bring all necessary information relating thereto.

Charged The Wrong Man With The Theft Of The Italian's Grapes

Richard Graham pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing a basket of grapes from the Italian fruit dealer between George and Aylmer Sts. on Saturday night. He was discharged.

The complainant was in his shop when the accused called and bought a package of cigarettes. He went out walked down the street, turned round and came back. He picked up a basket of grapes and ran away. Witness followed him but did not catch him.

Richard Graham swore that on coming out of the store he walked up George St. In this statement he was corroborated by Howard Innes.

Jopling Brothers Committed For Trial And Given Bail

Fred and aHrry Jopling, of Bridgenorth, who appeared before Magistrate Edmison this morning in the County Police Court, were committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter. No evidence was received this morning, the Crown being content with what was heard last Friday. The case was argued by Mr. R. E. Wood, for the prosecution, and Mr. D. O'Connell for the Jopling boys. Magistrate Edmison found the evidence sufficient to warrant a committal and they will appear at the Fall Assizes. The accused were admitted to bail at $2,000 each and two surities each of $2,000.

Application To Unseat Ald. Turner Was Dismissed To-day

The proceedings to unseat Alderman J. J. Turner, Jr., came up before His Honour Judge Huycke this morning. No evidence was offered, the relator, Mr. Alfred Kingscote upon the advice of his counsel, withdrew the application to unseat Mr. Turner, and an order was accordingly made by His Honour, dismissing the application without costs to either party.

It appears that although the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons is registered as partners, the sons are only nominal partners, and J. J. Turner, Sr., is the owner of the whole business. It is, therefore, doubtful whether Alderman Turner was subject to disqualification the same as if he was an actual partner. It was also considered that he had not wilfully been guilty of n infraction of the law.

Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared for the relator, Mr. Alf. Kingscote, and Mr. F. D. Kerr, for Ald. Turner.

Witnesses To-day Who Say They Got Money at the Liberal Committee Rooms---Admit That They Were Sent for and Visited Mr. W. H. Moore's Office Last Night and This Morning---More Evidence Heard This Morning in What are Known as the Leary Charges----Yesterday Afternoon's Evidence Was Along the Same Line.

This morning's session of the West Peterborough Election trial was devoted principally to the hearing of further evidence in what are referred to as the "Leary charges."

When court opened at ten o'clock Mr. Watson objected to the method of conducting the case adopted by Mr. Du Vernet. He wished to have each case taken up and the evidence heard pro and con and judgment either given or reserved as their Lordships thought fit. He thought that it was decidedly unfair and unjust to his client that the counsel for the petitioner should go on in this way. It was impossible for him to keep all the evidence that was brought forth in his mind if Mr. Du Vernet continued as he had been doing.

Anthony Mongour

Anthony Mongour, the first witness called this morning was at the Liberal committee rooms between 4 and 4.30 o'clock. He had walked up stairs and came down. He saw some people up there conversing. He had gone into the small room. He saw a man there whom he did not know. There was a lavatory there that was why he had gone in there. Nothing was said to him there.

"Has anybody seen you about this case?" asked Mr. DuVernet.

"No, sir."

"Has any one spoken to you about it?"

"No, sir."

"I'll submit this question if your Lordships approve," said Mr. Du Vernet. "Did you get anything there?"

"Dont' answer that question," admonished Mr. Watson.

Their Lordships ruled that the witness should not answer.

To Mr. Watson witness said that he walked up and came down again. There were a lot of people down stairs. There was also many people, between a dozen and three dozen up stairs. He did not know Mr. Davidson or Mr. Leary.

He had not seen Mr. Stratton there. He had gone into the lavatory. He had only seen the large room and the lavatory there.

Sidney Pope

Sidney Pope testified that he lived in Peterborough and is a labourer. He was entitled to a vote at the last election. He knew the Liberal committee rooms and was there on the morning of election and also in the afternoon. He was there in the afternoon and got $2 there from "Bob" Leary. He had gone up stairs into a little room where Mr. Leary was. Mr. Leary put a box on top of a $2 bill and witness had picked it up and gone out. Mr. Leary had walked away after putting the money down. Mr. Leary had quite a wad of bills. Witness thought that he had pushed the door through when he went in. He was around in the morning with Harland and Pritchard. Harland was talking and he had heard some one, whom he did not know, say, "Come back in the afternoon, it would be all right." It was not the man who put the money down. He had gone to the polls and voted. He had gone away in a buggy which was outside the rooms. Harland, Pritchard and himself were in the vehicle. He thought he voted on Aylmer street, and then had gone home, returning to the committee rooms about 3 o'clock. He went alone but saw Harland and Pritchard there. Witness hung around. He had heard that money was going and when he saw a man come out of the little room he had gone in and got the money as he had already described. Harland and Pritchard were wondering about the big room. After getting the money he hung around the room until the polls were closed.

The next he had heard about the matter was sometime after when he heard there was going to be trouble. A man named Wills had told him. Wills told him that he had his name down. Witness signed an affidavit. A man named Fieres had called on him and told him that Rollie Glover wanted him and that it might be a better job. Mr. Stratton had asked witness if he got any money and he replied, "No." He was then taken to an office on Hunter street where he had signed an affidavit. He thought Mr. Davidson was there. Fieres had not told him anything about the declaration. There was nothing said about what had taken place in the Committee rooms. Witness had been delivering bills, newspapers, etc., for Mr. Glover.

An affidavit which witness identified as one he had signed was produced.

Cross-Examination

To Mr. Watson, witness said that he had been here three years.

"I am from London," he said, "and I am proud of it."

"Why do you say you are proud of it?"

"Because London is just as good as Canada," said the witness. "A lot of people in town say, 'Oh, you are only a Londoner."

"Its a wonder you don't get back there," remarked Mr. Watson.

"Were you not fed at the soup kitchen?"

"No, sir, I was not. I boarded with my brother and I have paid my board all back now."

ELEVEN CHARGES DISMISSED

After luncheon, Mr. Du Vernet announced that he had no further evidence to offer in respect of ELEVEN CHARGES AND THEY WERE DISMISSED.

The charges dismissed were No. 18, in regard to bribing of A. Bouskill, by R. H. Leary, W. S. Davidson, Dickson Davidson, or Jas. P. Bryson, 98, re bribery of J. P. Bryson 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, re alleged bribery of R. H. Shepherd, by Walter Davidson, J. P. Bryson, 105, re bribery of Frank Pope; 106, re bribery of J. F. Grimison.

Witness admitted that he was hard up around election time. He had been taken to Mr. Stratton's office and had told Mr. Stratton that he had not got $2 from Mr. Leary. Mr. Stratton said, "You never received any money, did you?" and witness had answered "No."

"Are you a man that will tell a lie easily?"

"I won't tell a lie easily."

"If it's in your iterest to lie, you will?"

"Yes," replied the witness, amid loud laughter. "Yes, just so," said Mr. Watson.

Pope was examined as to his going to Mr. Davidson's office. He had told Mr. Davidson that he had not received any money. He had told other people that he had not got it and when he was telling them that he was telling them lies.

"How many lies have you been telling?"

"Not many."

"About fifty?"

"No, sir, I don't think fifty."

"Fifty lies would make a pretty good liar," remarked Mr. Watson.

Witness knew Gates and had been knocking about at election time with him.

He said that he first reached the committee rooms in the morning. He did not know at what time exactly.

Looking For Money

"You were looking for money if you could get it?" asked Mr. Watson.

"Well, it was a temptation to a man who had only five or ten cents. I had never seen money passing around in the Old Country."

"You must never read the newspapers."

"You had made up your mind that you would sell your vote if you could?"

"Is that right?"

"Yes, that right," admitted the witness.

"When did you first make up your mind?"

"On Monday when I heard there was money floating around."

"Did any one ask for your vote?"

"It might have been a month or three weeks before."

"Who did he ask you to vote for?"

PUBLIC OPINION STRONGLY IN SYMPATHY WITH MRS. ROBINSON

People of North Ontario Consider That She Should be Set at Liberty---Husband Made Her Life Miserable---Irresponsible for Her Crimes.

Examiner Special:

North Bay, Sept. 29.—The death sentence pronounced upon Mrs. Robinson of Warren at the Sudbury Assizes on the charge of murdering the illegitimate infant children of her daughters has aroused an intense feeling of sympathy throughout northern Ontario. In North Bay the feeling is strongly in favour of complete executive clemency and freedom for this suffering woman, who has lived in a domestic hell for years with a brutal husband. So general is the interest taken in the case that the sentence is almost the sole topic of conversation on the streets and in business places, with the unanimous sentiment favouring action in Mrs. Robinson's behalf. It is said that the unfortunate woman was confronted with a situation with which she was unable to cope, and in a fit of humiliation and disordered mentality, committed the deeds for which she was irresponsible.

ACQUITTED GIRL IS NOW HAPPY BRIDE

Miss Grace Henderson of Gananoque Wedded to Lover Who Stood by Her in Trouble.

Gananoque, Ont., September 29.—Miss Grace Henderson, formerly a bookkeeper for the Thousand Islands Railway Company, who was last week honourably acquitted of the charge of embezzling $2,500 from her employers, was married on Saturday to Mr. John Marshall, of Chicago, Ill., and has gone to that city to make her home. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson by relatives and intimate friends of the parties. Rev. John P. Kehoe, rector of St. John's church, officiated.

Miss Henderson was one of Gananoque's most popular young ladies and her acquittal last week of the unjust charges brought against her received approval everywhere. Throughout her troubles Mr. Marshall, who formerly lived in Gananoque, stood loyally by her, and his gallantry has won its reward.

A BUGLE BAND

Reported One Will be Formed in Connection With Collegiate Cadet Corps.

The Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute, it is learned, are making preparations to organize a bugle band. The matter has been under consideration for some time, and up to the present a drum has been used at drill, Wallace Armstrong performing. It has been of such service and has aided the cadets to such an extent that it was felt that a small bugle corps would be a good acquisition.

The exact details have not been made known, but it is understood that a number of bugles and drums will be secured, and the boys will have a band for their drills which are being held in the Armouries under Lieut. J. E. Hodgson.

Wesley Douglas Turned Mother and Brothers Out of Doors, Locked Himself in and Put Bullet Into His Brain—Has Been Despondent for Some Time.

ALD. J. J. TURNER,
Chairman of Legal and Reception Committee, Retains His Seat Around Council Board.

DIED IN A FEW MOMENTS

Examiner Special.

Hastings, Sept. 29.—Wesley Douglas, a well known young man of Alnwick township, who lived six miles from here, committed suicide at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon by blowing out his brains with a revolver. The young man had been in poor health for some time and this is assigned as the reason for his rash act. After dinner yesterday he chased his mother and the other members out of the house and then went upstairs and shot himself. On their return they found him dead.

Douglas was one of the young men arrested last spring in connection with a charge of stealing muskrat traps from the Indians, and was tried before County Police Magistrate Edmison, of Peterborough. The deceased created comment on that occasion by his peculiar style of dress.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

AEROPLANES MAKE FLIGHT IN NEW YORK

New York, N.Y., Sept. 29, 1909.—The Curtiss Hudson-Fulton Aeroplane made its maiden flight at seven o'clock this morning, successfully describing a semi-circle above the field to Governors Island. Wilbur Wright subsequently made a flight in his aeroplane at Governor's Island passing over the top of castle Williams and making a complete circle of the island.

BIT OF ROMANCE

Girl Wrote Her Name on Peach Basket and Marriage Resulted.

Examiner Special.

Anderson, Sept. 29.—When Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Abel, whose marriage took place recently at Coalhutta, Ga., arrived in this city this evening and were tendered a reception by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Abel, they were showered with peaches and a peach basket occupied a part of the dining table. It was all because Mrs. Abel, formerly Miss Lulu Waterhouse, five years ago wrote her name on a peach basket, which fell into the hands of Mr. Abel while he was clerking in a local store. He advised Miss Waterhouse and correspondence continued until yesterday, when Mr. Abel went to Chicksmauga Park, where he met his bride, and they were married a few hours later at her home. Mr. Abel is a travelling salesman.

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION.

It is estimated that over a million visitors are in New York witnessing the joint celebration of the discovery of the Hudson river and its navigation by the first steamboat. The memory of Fulton is being eulogized as that of the first steamboat navigator. As a matter of fact a man named Symington navigated a loch in Scotland with a steamboat of his own construction in 1788, and among his passengers on the first trip were such distinguished men as Lord Brougham and Robert Burns, the poet. However, no one is officially challenging the assertion that Fulton was the original steam navigator. It is noteworthy in this connection, however, that at the time Fulton introduced steam navigation in America, his financial backer was Governor Livingstone and the precaution was taken to patent the invention. At first it was regarded very much in the same spirit as the present experiments in aerial navigation, and practical men scoffed at the idea that it would ever become a commercial success. Within a couple of years some of those who scoffed at Fulton inaugurated a steamboat line of their own, and were sued for infringing the patented rights held by Livingstone and Fulton. The latter got a decision in their favour and got most of the rival companies out of business. At the present time there are rumours that the Wright brothers, aeroplane inventors, claim exclusive rights on that class of flying machines, and history may repeat itself.

The Hudson-Fulton celebration is of world-wide interest as contrasting the wonderful improvement in transportation conditions since the Half Moon sailed up the Hudson three hundred years ago and since the Clermont steamed up the same river a century ago. While the Lusitania, the Celtic and the British battleship Inflexible are being compared with the Clermont exhibitions of aerial navigation are to be given by Curtiss and Wright. Perhaps one hundred years from now there will be a similar celebration at which the aeroplanes of the present day will be compared with the mammoth flying machines of that era, and the contrast may be relatively as remarkable as that between the Lusitania and the Claremont.—Ottawa Citizen.

THE DUKES AND THE BUDGET.

The Hamilton Herald thus discusses the Dukes and the Budget:

Hard is the luck of the British Unionist party in being handicapped by its dukes. They are a heavy load for the party to carry. Since the Lloyd-George budget was introduced they have done almost as much to popularise it as have Lloyd-George and the other Liberal leaders. If the dukes—that is to say, the great land owners—had shown magnanimity and intelligence in their discussion of the budget, they might have helped to check its popularity. But they have behaved like spoiled children whose wants have been denied. They have railed at Lloyd-George; they have wailed about the prospect of their being obliged to curtail some of their luxuries; they have stopped guinea subscriptions to local charitable and sporting objects; in short they have made themselves objects of general derision. 'Pity the poor dukes' is a saying heard everywhere.

"The childish rage and petulance of many of the great landowners has served only to throw into stronger relief the facts about the privileges which they enjoy — the enormous London holdings of the Dukes of Bedford and Norfolk and other noblemen—land upon which the taxation is merely nominal; the vast untaxed parks and pleasure grounds, which ought to be under cultivation; the heavy colliery royalties which burden the coal industry. When such facts are set forth by Liberal speakers and writers, the spirit of petty selfishness displayed by many of the great landowners in this budget agitation helps to deepen the impression which it is the business of the Liberal party to make.

There is no end to the instances of injustice which the Liberals are using in their defence of the budget. One case the Herald printed yesterday—that of the Marquis of Anglesey, who derives an income of $480,000 a year from rents in Burton, and pays annually only $300 of local taxes on his property. At a meeting held at Rhonda, in Wales, recently, one of the speakers complained that there was no open space for playgrounds for the children in the district because the district council was too poor to procure any, and yet one of the colliery pits in the district was paying no less than $20,000 annually in royalties to people who had never seen the pit, much less the coal." Another speaker instanced a case where $250,000 had been sunk by a company in a colliery and in building workingmen's homes. The quality of the coal produced," he said, "did not enable the company to pay the workmen a living wage and make a decent profit. An appeal was made to the landlord for an abatement in the royalties paid. The colliery books were shown to prove the contention of the company that the condition of things was as represented. The landlord, however, firmly refused to make any concessions, with the result that the company went into bankruptcy, the workmen were unemployed and had to tramp elsewhere for work."

"Here is a striking illustration of the difference between the status of the landowner and the worker. The giant ocean steamer Mauretania consumes 1680 tons of coal a day. To shovel this coal into her furnaces the labour of 333 stokers is required. The pay received by the small army of workers for handling the coal is £53—say $265. The coal is mined on land owned by the Marquis of Bute, who receives a royalty of 1s. 3d. for each ton mined. His Lordship would therefore receive £105—say $525—for the coal required to drive the Mauretania through the waves for one day, or just about double the money received by the 333 stokers who handle the coal.

Such a division of earth's bounty seems hardly fair. And when those who are the beneficiaries of the system under which the division is made raise a loud cry for help when it is proposed to tax their easy-got wealth for the benefit of the community, even many of those who wish them well are apt to be rather amused or disgusted."

Children Had Eczema

SUFFERED AGONY UNTOLD

Treatment prescribed had no effect—DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Many a mother's heart has been torn by the suffering of her little one who has fallen a victim of eczema. Only such mothers appreciate to the full the value of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes:

"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure of eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment, and we hope more people will learn about it so that their poor little ones may be saved from suffering."

Chafing and irritation of the skin, from which nearly all babies suffer more or less, is a frequent source of eczema. There is no treatment for chafing so satisfactory as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Pore-clogging, unsanitary powders are being discarded by all who have once learned the value of this great Ointment in keeping baby's skin soft, smooth and healthy.

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home in the treatment of pimples, barber's itch, scalds and burns, poisoned skin, sore feet and every form of itching skin disease. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

CONTINUATION OF THE ELECTION TRIAL

and in the second place I would not have taken it if I had," replied the witness amid laughter from the audience.

"It's a case of sour grapes," remarked Mr. Watson.

"Sam Wainwright got me to take me to vote at the corner of Hunter St.," continued the witness.

"Did you know then that Wainwright was working for Mr. Stratton?"

"No, sir, not then."

"Did you know it before you voted?"

"Yes sir, I found it out on the way to the polls."

"Why did you vote for Mr. Stratton?"

"Because I had promised Wainwright that I would vote for the first man that caught me in the morning."

"Did you ask Wainwright for anything?"

"No, sir."

"He did not suggest anything?"

"No, sir."

Witness said that he had told some of Mr. Burnham's friends that he would vote for the party that caught him first.

"Where were they on election day?"

"They must have been canvassing in other places or else have been asleep."

Mr. Watson examined the witness again in connection with his statement of receiving money from Mr. Leary.

"Didn't you know that it was a subterfuge?" asked Mr. Watson.

The witness didn't seem to understand the meaning of the question.

"How did it strike you?"

"It did not strike me at all. I just took it," he replied.

Witness said that Mr. Leary told him to take the money.

"All this is something new," said Mr. Watson. "Why did you not say anything about this before?"

The witness explained that he had forgotten it. He would not however swear that Mr. Leary told him to take the money.

"Would you make a false statement under oath?"

"No, sir."

"Do you remember taking an oath before Mr. Goodwill?"

"Yes, sir."

Witness was asked to explain and stated that he had gone to Mr. Davidson's office and was there perhaps half an hour. Roland Glover had taken James Rider there with him. Witness could not say what month it was. He saw Mr. Walter Davidson there and thought that Mr. Hall came in afterwards.

Asked as to what he had said in Mr. Davidson's office witness replied at first that he could not remember having opened his mouth there, but then said that he had spoken to Rider.

"What did you say to Rider?"

"I think I said, "It's a fine day."

Dir Mr. Davidson say anything?"

"Yes, sir, he said, "have a cigarette,' and I had one."

Mr. Watson rebuked the witness for his levity at this stage.

Alsept continuing said that Mr. Davidson had said to him, "Come on with me down the street, I'll not keep you long," and witness had gone with him to Mr. Goodwill's office. Before leaving he said the declaration was read out by Mr. Davidson. It was to the effect that the witness had not been in the committee rooms on election day and never received any money there. Witness said that Mr. Davidson had asked him if he had been in the election rooms and he had replied, "no."

Admits He Told Falsehood

"You told a falsehood then?"

"I told a falsehood."

"Why did you sign that paper?"

"I signed it because I was told that if I did not sign it I would get two years in prison."

"Who told you that?"

"Rich-Fieres told me that."

"When did he tell you?"

"I can't just remember. It was before I signed that paper."

"He met me at the corner of Hunter and George streets," continued the witness. "There was no one else there. He told me that Rollie Glover wanted to see me. I asked him what for and he replied, about the election. I told him that if Mr. Rollie Glover wanted to see me, he knew where to find me. He said that Mr. Glover wanted me to sign a statement. I said, "does he?" He said, "Do you know that in taking the money you are supposed to have taken, you are making yourself liable to two years in prison. You hall better go and sign the papers," and I went and signed them."

"You knew that was nonsense?"

"I did not know anything about elections."

"Did you ask anybody about your being liable?"

"I may have spoken to one or two Englishmen about it."

The affidavit was read over to the witness and he stated that it was true except the part that said he was not in the election rooms and did not receive $2 there. He would swear that he did not receive $2 for his vote however.

Alsept stated that he had not talked over the case with Ashley but that he had talked to Gates about it.

"Men on both sides asked me to vote? Labouring men like myself would come up and say, "Why don't you vote for Stratton." I told them oyu vote for Stratton." I told them that there was lots of time."

"I heard there was money knocking around and that was good enough for me," remarked the witness.

"Did you wink at them?" "No, sir."

"A wink is as good as a nod to a blind horse," remarked Mr. Justice McMahon.

"You are a pretty easy mark?" said Mr. Watson to the witness.

"I am alongside of you fellows," admitted Pope.

Questioned as to his going to the Liberal committee rooms, he said he did not see Mr. Stratton or Mr. Davidson there. He had seen Mr. Leary strolling around in different parts of the building at different times. He thought Mr. Leary was there all the time between 3 and 5 o'clock. Witness imagined that there were from 30 to 70 people in the big room upstairs. Witness did not remember seeing a telephone in the small room. He would not swear that there was more than one person going into the little room while he was looking around. He had seen quite a few going into the room where the lavatory was.

Witness explained that he had gone into the room because he had heard that there was money knocking around and to see if he could get it there. He was not sure of the time but thought it was before 4 o'clock. It might have been after that hour.

"No one suggested to you to go in?"

No one, sir."

"Who was in there, when you got in?"

"No one but Mr Leary."

"Mr. Leary is a reputable, hard-headed business man?"

"Yes, sir. I have always found him a gentleman."

"Did you speak to Mr. Leary?"

"I don't remember."

"Did he speak to you?"

"I dont' think he did."

"Sort of Quaker meeting," remarked Mr. Watson.

"Did you wink at him?"

"No, sir."

"Did he wink at you?"

"No, sir."

"Had Mr. Leary ever spoken to you before about a vote?"

"No, sir."

"How long were you in the room?"

"About two minutes."

"What happened?"

"Mr. Leary had a roll of bills in his hand, holding them out in front of him like any business man."

"Mr. Leary put a bill under a paste board box and I shifted it, picked up the bill and came out."

"Was that like stealing it."

"No, sir, he would not have put it there if he had not wanted me to get it."

"Don't you think your story is a funny one?"

"No, sir, it's the truth."

"Mr. Leary turned his back on me and when I shifted the box he turned around again."

"So you took the money when his back was turned?"

"Yes, sir."

"Nothing was said on either side?"

"No, sir."

"A pantomime," suggested Mr. Justice McMahon.

"Yes, an interesting one," remarked Mr. Watson.

Witness was cross-examined about taking the affidavit.

"You knew that you were taking a false oath when you made it?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you have told falsehoods not under oath."

"Yes, sir."

Witness admitted that he had been in Mr. W. H. Moore's office last night. Mr. Burnham was there and witness' brother and Mark Harland.

William Swanger—I live at 129 Rubidge street. I was a voter at the last election, and did vote. I was in the Liberal committee rooms the Saturday night before the election, about seven o'clock. Mr. Bouskill was with me. I was there about an hour and a half. I saw Mr. O'Brien, who spoke to Mr. Bryson before he introduced me. Mr. Bryson never mentioned any money at all. I was at the main committee rooms after the voting. Nobody spoke to me about the matter afterwards.

Mr. DuVernet asked witness as to having been spoken to about his evidence, and Mr. Watson objected.

Mr. DuVernet—"There has been systematic tampering with witnesses, and ——"

Mr. Watson—"Oh, come, now; that is contrary to the facts, and if it were true similar declarations are admitted by the petitioner, in his examination for discovery."

Mr. Du Vernet—"We shall have this matter thoroughly sifted."

Mr. Watson—"And I shall see that it is done."

Witness resuming said he had made an affidavit to the effect that he had received no money as he had not done.

To Mr. Watson: I would not sell my vote nor take money. I would not vote on a promise of money. If a man offered me money for my vote I would not take it. If he said he would give me money for my vote I would tell him he had the wrong man. Mr. Bryson never promised me money for my vote. He made no suggestion that I was to have money for my vote. Neither he nor anybody else ever paid me money for my vote.

To Mr. Du Vernet—"No sum of money was mentioned."

Aaron Bouskill was called, but his evidence was ruled out.

Mr. Du Vernet stated that he would not call Grimison, but on his stating that he proposed to call more witnesses in respect of the Leary charges, Mr. Watson objected, that this was unfair to his client and to the persons charged to postpone so long the opportunity to test the credibility of witnesses for and against, who might contradict each other.

Mr. Justice McMahon, on Mr. Du Vernet's assurance that he had only four or five charges in reference to Mr. Leary's actions on Monday afternoon of election day, allowed the charges mentioned to be gone further into.

Harry Butler: "I was at Liberal committee rooms on election day. Some man introduced me to Mr. Leary and after an interval he took me into a little room and placed a $2 bill under a card board box and I took it. This was before I voted."

To Mr. Watson—"I was not asked whether there was any truth in the charge. I did not deny that the charge was true in the presence of Mr. Davidson or Mr. Dark. I was looking for money on election day. The money was not for my vote. I don't know what it was for. I had no idea what it was for. It might influence my vote. Nobody spoke to me about a vote Mr. Leary did not speak to me about money. Nobody spoke to me at the committee rooms about my vote. I voted in the afternoon. It was after four o'clock that I saw Mr. Leary. I voted after that at Mr. Spry's. I never spoke to Mr. Leary. A stranger to me said: "Mr. Butler—Mr. Leary. Cannot say how many were in the room. Mr. Leary didn't say a word before or after entering the small room. After I had got the money. Mr. Leary came running after me and called me. Mr. Charles Williams was with me and there were several persons on the street, and he asked me if I had voted, and I didn't answer his question. I got into a buggy and went to vote.

Mr. Watson pointed out that there were only five votes polled after witness had voted. Continuing, he said to Butler:

"Who was discussing your evidence with you?"

"I was in Mr. Moore's office this morning, with him and Mr. Jones, talking over my evidence."

"Who sent you there?"

"I don't know."

"How did you get the idea of going?"

Somebody sent word to me to the Canadian General Works, that I was wanted at Mr. Moore's office, and I went."

Court adjourned for luncheon.

YESTERDAY'S SESSION

Yesterday afternoon's session which lasted three hours was occupied with the hearing of evidence in the charges which affect Mr. R. H. Leary and all the testimony in this connection had not been heard when adjournment came. The attendance was the largest that has yet been present.

Arthur Alsept's Evidence

Arthur Alsept who said that he lived at 699 Harvey street, north, was the first witness called after adjournment.

"I was a voter at the last election," he continued. "I voted between 9.30 and 9.45 o'clock in the morning. I was in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms about 3 o'clock on the day of the polling. I got $2 from Robert S. Leary there. I met a man near the corner of Simcoe and Water streets, who said, 'Arthur, there is a man up there who will give you $2.' I told him that I had voted. He said, 'No matter, go and get it.'" I went into the committee rooms and went upstairs. Mr. Leary came out of the small room and went into the large one. I heard him say, 'Who is he?' and some one said, 'Here is another one.' Mr. Leary said, 'Send him in first.' I went into the room. Mr. Leary said, 'I don't give you anything. It is under there.' I lifted up something like a book case and found a $2 bill which I picked up and put in my pocket. I paid my grocery bill with it."

"Who was the man who told you?"

"I think it was a man nsemd James Jordan."

"How did you know where to go?"

"Jordan told me that it was upstairs."

Witness continuing said that he was asked to sign a declaration at the office of Hall, Medd & Davidson. A man named Farrish had asked him to go and see Rollie Glover. He had gone to see him and Mr. Glover had taken him to Mr. Stratton. The latter asked him if he got any money and witness had replied in the negative. Witness did not say anything about getting money from Leary, to Mr. Stratton. He was taken over to the office of the lawyers. Mr. Walter Davidson had got him to sign the declaration which had been read over to him. It was on a Saturday, witness said. He had not mentioned to anybody about the affair, but James Gates.

To Mr. Watson.—The witness said that he was not an acquaintance of Ashley's. He had come from London four years ago from the coming April. "There's a lot of you from London," remarked Mr. Watson.

"Had you voted before?" he asked the witness.

"I never voted before in my natural life," remarked the witness amid laughter.

"Or your unnatural life, either?" asked Mr. Watson.

Witness went on to say that he did not know what the $2 was given to him for. He did not think that it was given to him for the purpose of voting.

He had not given anybody any information about the affair, although he may have mentioned it to Gates.

"When was this?"

"Last Wednesday."

"You had never mentioned the matter before you had taken the declaration?"

"No, sir."

Took it Because He was Hard Up

"Why did you take the $2."

"Because I was hard up," replied the witness with such emphasis that a ripple of laughter ran through the court room."

"You were not anxious to get a dishonest dollar?"

"No, sir."

"Did you think that that was a dishonest dollar?"

"No, sir, I did not. If I thought I could have got $1,000 in the same way I would have gone and got it."

"Did you think that the man was honestly giving it to you?"

"Yes, sir, I thought it was honestly giving it to me."

"It had nothing to do with your vote?"

"No, sir."

"Did you think it was given for any improper purpose or offered for any improper purpose?"

"No, sir."

"You thought you were honest in taking that money?"

"Yes, sir, I was conscientiously honest in taking the money."

"Where did you meet Jordan that day."

"At the Bank of Montreal corner of Simcoe and Water streets."

"What time was it?"

"Twenty minutes past two o'clock."

"How do you know?"

"I looked at the post office clock as I was passing."

"You remember that?"

"Yes, I remember that."

"Did you make a note of it?"

"Yes, in my head."

"Will you swear that it was exactly 20 minutes after two o'clock?"

"Well, it might have been 19 minutes, 55 1-2 seconds after."

"Don't try to be smart," admonished Mr. Watson.

"Would you say that it was not nineteen minutes after?" he continued.

"I would unless the clock was a minute slow," replied the witness.

"Were you at the Conservative committee rooms before the election?"

"No, sir."

Examined again as to his going to the Liberal rooms on election day Alsept said that he did not speak to any one when he went in. He saw many people in the big room but did not know many. When he got up stairs, he said, he heard some one say, "Here's another one here." It was one of a group of Englishmen standing there that said it.

"Who was that said to?" asked Mr. Watson.

"To Mr. Leary, I think."

"You won't swear that it was to Mr. Leary?"

"No, I won't swear that it was to him."

"Where was it?"

"In the larger room. Mr. Leary stepped outside of the small room into the larger one."

"Mr. Leary said, 'You had better let him go first, then,' continued the witness.

"Who were those men," asked Mr. Watson.

"Pritchard, Harland, Sid Pope and I don't know the other."

"I went into the little room," went on the witness, "Mr. Leary said, 'I do not give you anything. It is under there.' I lifted up something like a book case and found a $2 bill, picked it up and went down stairs and out on to the street."

"As fast as you could go?"

"You bet," replied the witness.

"Did you vote that day?"

"Yes, sir."

"At what time?"

"As near as I can remember between 9.30 and 9.45 o'clock."

"Did you know that a record is kept in the committee rooms of those who had voted?"

"No, sir."

"Were you asked whether you had voted or not?"

"No, sir."

"Did anyone ask you to vote?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who asked you?"

"Sam Wainwright."

"Who is Sam Wainwright?"

"He drives the steam roller for the town, that's all I know."

"When was it?"

Mark Harland.

Mark Harland testified: I live in Peterborough; was here during the election and voted. Was at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms on election day, in the afternoon. I received two dollars that day from Mr. Leary. It was rumoured around the town that there was money going, and as I was hard up I went. Mr. Leary put two dollars under a cardboard box. Mr. Leary asked me my name. He took the $2 bill from a roll. All he said was to ask me my name. I had not seen anybody about my vote. I had voted early in the morning. Did not hear Mr. Leary speak to any of the others. I was at Mr. Stratton's committee room early in the morning. I was told there was money going.

To Mr. Watson—My recollection is not very good about some points of the case. Never had a vote before. I didn't agree to vote for money. Nobody promised me money to vote for Mr. Stratton. I was in the committee rooms early in the morning, and no suggestion or promise was made to me before I voted. At the time I voted I didn't expect to get any money. Was in the rooms an hour or two. Can't recall anything that took place while I was in the rooms. After voting went back to committee rooms and stayed about an hour. At that time and up to 12 o'clock I did not see Mr. Leary or Mr. Walter Davidson, or Mr. Dickson Davidson. Saw Mr. Stratton, but had no conversation with him. Went home at twelve and returned about 3 o'clock. No one went back with me. I stayed till nearly five o'clock. Did not see Mr. Walter Davidson or Mr. Dickson Davidson. Saw Mr. Leary. Was back only about ten minutes before I got the money. The money had nothing to do with my vote. I did not know that there was a report made at the committee room of my having voted. Mr. Leary asked me my name in the small room. The door was shut. I voted in Ward 1. After he had asked my name he put a $2 bill under cover of card board box, and I took it. He told me to take it. I swear now that he told me to take it. My recollection is not very good on a matter that happened twelve months ago. I voted at the corner of Aylmer and Lake street; No. 1 ward, at McGill's store. When I voted Mr. Pritchard was there and Sidney Pope. Pritchard voted there, and Pope on Rubidge street.

Mr Leary, before he turned his back, told me to take the money. I live in Oshawa. Have been in the city twenty-six hours. I never breathed this matter to a living soul before I got into the witness box. I am positive I voted. I swear to it.

To Mr. Du Vernet—Men were waiting to enter the small room.

John Pritchard. Am living in Peterborough; know Mark Harland and Alsept. Was present with them in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms in the morning; saw Harland there in the afternoon; there were a lot of men up stairs. I saw nobody go into the small room. I went to vote with Mr. Harland, at McGill's store, between ten and eleven. I heard there was money passing round. I got none. I saw two going in who were strangers to me.

I made a declaration at Messrs. Hall, Medd & Davidson's office. Mr. Hall was present when the declaration was made. Nobody ever spoke to me about giving evidence. I have told many persons that I had got money, because I was jealous of having not got it, when others did.

To Mr. Watson—I did not see any money passed around.

To Mr. Du Vernet—I don't know Mr. Leary. I may have told forty or fifty persons that I had got money, but not after I had taken the declaration.

To Mr. Watson—The charge that Robert Leary, Walter Davidson, Dickson Davidson, and J. R. Stratton paid me two dollars to vote is not true. I was not paid money by anybody. I voted according to my principles, without any other inducement. Saw only two men go into the small room together; they were the only two men I saw go in. I came to see some of the Liberal workers to see about my getting back to Lakefield. I did not see Harland or Alsept going into the smaller room.

Mr. Watson read the following paragraph from the declaration of witness, who had been working in Lakefield, made before A. P. Poussette on June 3rd, 1909:

7.—That about a week after the election I got a note from Farrish to meet him at the White House, so as to furnish me with work. When I got there I found they wanted to get me to swear that I had got money from Mr. Stratton or from some of his agents during the election, or if I knew of any one who got money. One of the parties with Farrish produced a roll of bills and wanted me to swear that Mr. Stratton, or some of his agents had expended money. I told them I did not know of any money being improperly expended. They bought beer freely and tried to force me, as I thought, to make a false affidavit.

"Is that true?"

"It is."

They wanted me to swear that Stratton or some of his party had spent money after I told them that I did not know of money being spent.

Matthew Clancy's Evidence

Matthew J. Clancy testified that he was at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms during the time of the election and was there on election day. He was there, he said, on three of four occasions during the afternoon. The earliest time that he was there was about three o'clock. He had seen Mr. Leary there in the outer committee rooms and had seen him go into the committee room on the West side of the building. That room was frequented by pretty nearly everybody, he thought. People went in and out of the room frequently. The door of that room was open. He saw Mr. Hall, Mr. Stratton and others go into that room. He had also seen people go into the room on the east. He thought the number he saw going in there would be under twenty-five. The door of that room was shut. He had noticed some men follow Mr. Walter Davidson into that room and had noticed one party going in with Mr. Stratton. This was, he thought Mr. Jobbitt, a Grand Trunk conductor. The people going in there were generally taken in by some body and most people he thought were taken in by Mr. Davidson.

To Mr. Watson, the witness said that he had seen Mr. Davidson going into the small room. He knew that there was a large room and two small rooms upstairs but did not know of a lavatory being connected with one of those small rooms. He knew that there was a telephone in one of the rooms. As far as he knew anybody could go upstairs that wanted to. The door of the east room was not opened except when some one went in or came out. In the west room he had seen Messrs. Stratton, Hall, Davidson, O'Brien, Mahoney and others. He did not know what was in the east room.

Anthony Mongeur

Was called and Mr. Du Vernet asked him if he had been at the committee rooms on election day and if he had received any money there.

Mr. Watson strongly objected to his evidence, being admitted on the ground that it involved a fresh charge of which they had no knowledge. Mr Du Vernet submitted that he was calling the witness merely to give corroborative evidence.

Their Lordships decided that the matter should stand over and accordingly the witness stood down.

Banks Got No Money

Albert L. Banks was the last witness called before adjournment. He testified that he lived in Peterborough [illegible] at the first election [illegible] was adjourned at 5 o'clock until 10 o'clock this morning.

22 CHILDREN IN 27 YEARS

Skowhegan, Maine.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, of Canaan, announce the birth of a daughter, their twenty second child in twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Dickey was married when fourteen years of age and Mr. Dickey was only a few years her senior.

Of the twenty-two children, not one has ever suffered from a serious illness.

Here is health and strength and bodily vigor personified. The parents are well—therefore there have been no weak, puny, peevish children.

The health of the child depends much on the health of the parents. Thus, there is the necessity of expectant mothers especially paying great attention to their general health.

During these trying times, a "Fruit-a-tives" tablet before meals and at bedtime will regulate the bowels and kidneys, keep the stomach sweet, sharpen the appetite, assist digestion, strengthen the vital organs and invigorate the entire system.

"A KNIGHT FOR A DAY," GRAND OPERA HOUSE, SATURDAY, OCT. 2. MATINEE AND EVENING

With its "classy" music, its picturesque staging, clever comedians and winning chorus, "A Knight for a Day" comes to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, Oct. 2. The production is the offering of Mr. B. C. Whitney, who gave the piece its first presentation at the Whitney Opera House in Chicago, where it has been and still is playing to crowded houses. The famous American Beauty Chorus is a feature of this attraction, being composed of a group of the handsomest and best singing girls obtainable, who have been drilled under the direction of Mr. Gus Sohlke. The piece is interspersed with tuneful music written by Mr. Hubbell, and is said to be the best he has yet placed to his credit. He has written a succession of tunes, all of which will be whistled, and he has orchestrated them with a taste and neat fantasy which give them a value above that possessed by the average musical comedy. "I Didn't Think I'd Do It, but I Did." "I'd Like Another Situation," "Life is a See-Saw"; "The Little Girl in Blue," and "Whistle When You Walk Out"; all will know the widespread popularity that is enjoyed by catchy music of this variety. A splendid stage mounting has been given the piece and a competent cast will interpret the various roles.

Sweet Girl Graduates in B. C. Whitney's Big Musical Success "A Knight for a Day," at the Grand, next Saturday, Oct. 2. Matinee and Evening. Plan opens to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Compiled List Of Deaths On July 4th In The United States

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The seventh annual compilation of deaths and injuries resulting from the celebration of the Fourth of July is issued by the Journal of the American Medical Association here. It says that the fact that the celebration was spread over three days this year, since the Fourth came on Sunday, may be partly responsible for the increased number of tetanus cases, the total being nearly double that of last year.

Except in a few progressive cities which passed prohibitory or restrictive ordinances, however, there seems to have been a relaxaton of authority regarding the use of fireworks, chiefly in Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. More serious has been the absence or non-enforcement of restrictions in the use of blank cartridges, which, of course, accounts for the increase of tetanus cases.

Tetanus antitoxin, although extensively used, was still not employed as much as it should have been, either as a preventive measure or after active symptoms began.

Although the numbers of dead and of injured are larger than or as large as last year, there is, nevertheless, abundant evidence of an increasing public sentiment in favour of more rational methods of celebration. Two more cities—Washington and Cleveland—passed and enforced prohibitory ordinances, and Chicago enforced a restrictive ordinance, with the result that no casualities were reported for Washington, only four slight injuries for Cleveland and less than half the usual number of accidents and no deaths for Chicago. These results show that prohibitive measures are more effective than mere restrictive ordinances, although restrictive measures are much better than doing nothing.

Besides the 125 deaths due to tetanus, 90 persons were killed by various forms of fireworks, making a total of 215 deaths, an increase of 52 over last year, and 57 more than in 1906. Seventeen were killed outright this year by firearms, 16 were killed by explosions of powder, 7 by giant firecrackers, 7 by toy cannon and 7 by various causes such as blood poisoning by skyrockets, chemicals, etc., while 37 were literally burned to death by fire from the so-called "harmless" varieties of fireworks.

There were 5,092 non-fatal injuries this year, or 368 less than last year. There were 16 people totally blinded this year, being five more than last year, but nine less than the highest number in 1905. There were 36 who lost one eye each, 41 who lost legs, arms, or hands, while 176 persons lost one or more fingers.

The giant firecracker holds the first rank as a cause of mutilating wounds and is responsible for the majority of losses of eyes, hands and fingers during the annual celebration of the Fourth. In the awfulness of its destruction, the giant firecracker is equalled in few instances only by the explosives of home-made cannon. This year 1,614 accidents, including seven deaths and 9 cases of lockjaw, were due to the giant firecracker.

Firearms caused 341 accidents, including 17 killed and 4 cases of lockjaw. The percentage of deaths was 6.1. Of the total number thus injured, 132 were struck by stray bullets from the reckless shooting of firearms by others, and 5 deaths resulted. Toy cannons caused 427 injuries, including 7 killed and one case of tetanus.

WEDDING BELLS

HALL-MILLS.

St. John's Church was the scene of an exceedingly pretty wedding this morning at half-past ten, when one of Peterborough's fairest young daughters was united to a prominent young lawyer of this city. It was the marriage of Miss Daisy Mills, only daughter of Captain Joseph Mills, 451 Hunter street, to Mr. Basil D. Hall, of the law firm of Hall, Hayes and Hall. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, M.A., rector of St. John's church, in the presence of about one hundred invited guests. The beautiful edifice never looked prettier than it did this morning. It was very tastefully decorated with cut flowers, the predominant ones being white asters. A rope of flowers was prettily arranged across the main aisle, marking off the guests' seats.

The wedding music was played by the organist, Mr. R. J. Devey. He played Wagner's bridal music while the guests came into the church, and as the bride entered the church, he played "Hail to the Bride," from Lohengrin. At the conclusion, as the party was leaving the church Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered.

The bridal procession was led by the ushers, Messrs. G. K. Rackham, W. S. Morelock, of Guelph, and J. I. Grover, of Norwood. Little Grace Conway, cousin of the bride, in white silk, and Master Samuel Mills, her brother, untied the floral rope to allow the party to pass. Following the ushers were the two bridesmaids, Miss Madeline Wilson and Miss Grace Reinhardt, of this city. Miss Wilson was prettily attired in pink silk with black picture hat, and Miss Reinhardt, in white silk, with black picture hat. Both carried pink asters. Then came the bride leaning on the arm of her father. She looked charming in a dress of white liberty satin, with trimmings of real Irish lace and cut with cabouchons of pearls. She wore the bridal veil and carried white asters, the gift of a dear old friend, Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour. The only ornament worn was a gold brooch, which the bride's mother wore on her wedding day. Master Lorne Conway, cousin of the bride, acted as page, and Miss Ethel Morrison, cousin of the groom, made a pretty maid of honour. She was gowned in white silk. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Gerald Hall.

Mrs. Mills, mother of the bride, wore Primrose satin, with bands of lace embroidered with gold, with a black hat and black feather boa.

Mrs. H. P. Claringbold, grandmother of the bride, was attired in black silk.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's father. Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train for a honeymoon trip to Montreal and Quebec. Mrs. Hall travelled in a suit of navy blue broadcloth with a grey hat. Upon their return they will reside on Hunter street.

STUBBS—MILBURN.

A very pretty late September wedding was solemnized last night at "Hillcrest," Smith, the residence of Mr. T. T. Milburn, when his daughter, Stella M., was united in marriage to Mr. J. H. Stubbs, also of Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Bedford, of Lakefield. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn vines and leaves and white asters. The bride, who was unattended, entered the drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's march played by her sister, Miss Maggie Milburn. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the friends of the young couple, and at its conclusion a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs will reside in Smith on the 7th line. Both the young people are well known and their many friends extend to them their best wishes for a bright future.

HUTCHISON—MOORE.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's church this morning at seven o'clock, when Miss Eva Mabel Moore, eldest daughter of Mr. Chas. Moore was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Bruce Hutchison of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robt. Pogue in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. They were unattended.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mr. John Crane. Crane.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hutchison left on the 8 o'clock train for Toronto and other points. On their return they will reside on Rubidge St.

Percy Lesueur, former goal keeper of the Ottawa Stanley cup hockey team, is branching out in a new line. Lesueur who is now located at Haileybury, is getting out a book on hockey. It is already in the printer's hands and the first copies will be on the street in a week or two. Lesueur's book will contain illustrated articles by Alf. Smith, Fred Taylor, Harvey Pulford, Marty Walsh, Russell Bowie and Paddy Moran on how their respective positions should be played, also the rules and history of the great winter game. Lesueur will play goal during the coming season on one of the Temiscaming league teams. They are all after him, but he has not yet signed with any .

MR. JAS. BUSHNELL GOT FIRST PRIZE

For Best Gentleman's Driver and Equipage at Lindsay Fair.

Mr. Jas. Bushnell had the honour of carrying off first prize in the best gentleman's turnout at the Lindsay Fair. The Post refers to this contest as follows:

The gentleman's turnout followed after the first heat of the 2.40 race, and could be numbered among the afternoon's features. Several horses and outfits were shown and formed a very interesting sight. The outfits taking first and second prizes were very well chosen by Dr. Sinclair as they well deserved it. Both outfits were neatly got up, the buggies polished and the harness well cleaned.

The winners were—1st, Mr. James Bushnell, of Peterborough; 2nd, Mr. B. McGill, of Janetville.

To Live Long Be Good Natured

Octogenarian Says a Sunny Smile Will Help to Keep Spark of Life Glowing.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 29.—How can a man live to be 100 years old?

Seymour Andrews, a wealthy retired merchant of Centralia, Ill., 85 years old, who says he is the oldest resident born son of Illinois, says it is a simple problem. He outlined a programme by which, if followed, he says any man may hope to be a centenarian. His remarks, interested members of the Western Association of California Pioneers, who yesterday celebrated the fifty-ninth anniversary of the admission of California to the Union at the Grand Pacific hotel.

"Men die too early in life nowadays," he began, "and I am going to tell you how to live to be 100 years old."

Here is the old man's programme:

Don't worry.
Live a plain life.
Don't brood over the next life.
Be a moral man.
Don't be a temperance crank.
Drink whiskey and beer, too, but be moderate.
Use tobacco, smoke cigars, or a pipe and chew the weed.
Eat and drink everything you care for.
Don't hurry through life.
Don't work too hard.
Eight hours' sleep is sufficient.
Don't swear—that leads to other evils.
Be careful of your health.
Take exercise aplenty.
Be good natured—not a "grouch."

"Isn't that a simple plan?" he asked. "Look at me. I am 85, but there are no gray hairs in my head. I am still active; younger, too, than many who have not lived so long. I never have an ache or pain, and I live a comfortable life. But I never swore an oath in my life."

THE PRUDENTIAL, ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES, OPENS A BRANCH OFFICE IN THIS CITY.

Almost every one has heard of or knows something of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, Home Office, Newark, N. J., often called the Gibraltar life insurance company, because of its use of the Rock of Gibraltar as a trade-mark.

This big company has established a branch office in this city and is conducting business in both branches of insurance, Industrial and Ordinary.

About thirty-four years ago Industrial insurance was unknown in the United States. Introduced on this continent by John F. Dryden, founder and present chief executive of The Prudential, the industrial plan at once found favor with the public.

This life insurance is applicable to every member of the family, from one year of age to seventy.

The premiums are collected weekly from the homes of the insured and are from three cents per week upward, according to the amount insured for, thus bringing the benefits of life insurance protection within the means of the wage-earning population.

Much of the thrift and economy of this same wage-earning population may be traced to Industrial insurance. The habit of saving required to meet the weekly premiums unconsciously, but surely, inculcates similar habits of thrift and saving in other directions.

In the Ordinary branch all the popular forms of Life and Endowment policies are issued, in amounts from $1,000 up, and the cost is the lowest consistent with the liberal provisions of the policy and the high grade of life insurance afforded. As an investment a Prudential policy offers superior advantages.

The high standing of The Prudential makes it possible to do business satisfactorily, because there can be no doubt of a Prudential promise.

The Prudential has seven and three-quarter millions of policies in force, representing nearly a billion and a half of insurance.

In extending its field of operations to this city The Prudential offers a splendid opportunity for our young men to obtain profitable employment. Progress and promotion will be quick if hustle and ability are shown. Any young man desirous of making money and building up a successful future should consult The Prudential's representative here.

Prudential Agents will be glad to furnish full and complete information concerning the plans of The Prudential to any one. You should take an interest in life insurance, for it may make a big difference in your family's happiness some day.

SUPPLY OF WINTER APPLES IS FAIR

Local Dealer Finds Crop Slightly Better Than Last Year.

The apple crop throughout the adjoining counties is, according to a man who has recently travelled through them, more promising than last year, although he does not believe the winter varieties are as plentiful as two years ago. The Northern Spy, Bell Flower, etc., and other hard apples are a little more plentiful than a year ago and the buyers as usual have carefully gone through the townships buying up all the fruit they could. The price reported by a local fruit dealer will be approximately the same as last year and those who annually lay in a store of winter apples will likely find the price no easier than last year.

RACED FOR PORT WITH CARGO ABLAZE

Captain of the Lord Londonderry Gives Account of Fight With Burning Sulphur.

Examiner Special.

Belfast, Sept. 29.—In the course of the Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the steamer Lord Londonderry, which was abandoned on fire on June 24, while on a voyage from Huelva, Spain to Georgia, Captain Hugh Sampson gave a graphic account of his vessel's 150-mile race to the nearest port.

Captain Sampson said he had on board a cargo of 3,400 tons of sulphur. On the second day out it was reported that the bunker coal was on fire. He went through the bunkers, saturating the coal with water, but discovered that it was the cargo that was burning. Had they poured water on the ore it would have burst like lime and scattered fire all over the ship. They endeavoured to smother the fire and headed for Lisbon, intending to beach the vessel and flood the hold.

The cargo was entirely on fire from bottom to top. The bilge pumps were choked. Near midnight on June 24 he slackened the speed of the vessel to lessen the draught, and then continued on to Lisbon until about noon on Jue 25, when the engines were stopped owing to the firemen having to leave their quarters. The fumes of burning sulphur were very strong, and it was impossible for anyone to work near them.

They discovered that the vessel was breaking in two at the bridge, and decided to take to the lifeboats.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BUNTING WILL FLY IN SMOKY CITY

Pittsburg Wrests Pennant From Chicago Cubs, Who Have Held It for Two Successive Years—Toronto Team Disbands.

AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

Pittsburg, Sept. 29.—The Pittsburg Baseball Club yesterday clinched the 1909 pennant of the National League though the local team was defeated by New York by a score of 13 to 9. Philadelphia's victory over Chicago assured the pennant for Pittsburg.

A wild demonstration was enacted on Forbes' Field at the close of the game. Before the game Manager Fred Clarke of the Pittsburg team, was presented with a purse of gold amounting to $600, the gift of local baseball enthusiasts. Mayor Wm. A. Magee, of this city, made the presentation speech.

To-day's game was a hitting contest, with the visitors having the better of the argument. Score:

	R	H	E
Pittsburg	9	12	3
New York	13	13	2

Batteries — Willis, Philippi, Brandon, Moore and Gibson; O'Connor, Ames and Wilson. Umpires—Emslie and Johnstone.

At Chicago—

	R	H	E
Chicago	2	7	0
Philadelphia	3	8	0

Batteries—Reulbach, Schwenck and Archer; Moore and Dooin. Umpires—Brennan and O'Day.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

New York, Sept. 29.—Detroit's last appearance in New York this season was marked by a 5 to 0 victory, the visitors thus making it three out of four on the series and maintaining their lead of .016 over the Athletics. Both Donovan and Wilson pitched gilt-edged ball, the Detroiter receiving superior support and being invincible with men on bases. Two of New York's errors helped Detroit to runs, the visitors also using two of Wilson's bases on balls to advantage. Score:

	R	H	E
Detroit	5	4	1
New York	0	5	3

Batteries—Donovan and Stanage, Wilson and Blair. Umpire—Perrine and Evans.

ATHLETICS ALSO WON.

Philadelphia, Sept. 28.—Philadelphia defeated Cleveland this afternoon, 7 to 0. Young's curves were hit hard and he was taken off the rubber at the end of the sixth inning. Score:

	R	H	E
Philadelphia	7	9	2
Cleveland	0	5	3

Batteries — Morgan and Lapp; Young and Joss and Easterly. Umpires—Sheridan and Kerin.

LEAFS DISBAND.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 28.—(Special.)—The Maple Leafs have all dispersed and wandered. Newton and Pfeffer left for their respective homes last night, while this afternoon there was a grand hustling for trains after the game was over. Play was called a little earlier than the scheduled time and 6.35 o'clock saw the last Toronto to man at the station gate with the pasteboard tagged 'home and mother.' Joe Kelly, of course, remains here and did not even taken part in this afternoon's game except to bat out in practice though not in uniform.

By innings:

Baltimore .. ..1 1 1 0 1 0 0 1 x—4
Toronto .. .. ..0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1

VARSITY SQUAD IS STRONG

Toronto, Sept. 29.—The Varsity Rugby squad was out again yesterday afternoon and Jack Newton gave them another light running and passing practice. The university opens on September 28, and then the practices will begin in earnest. Now they are just getting themselves into shape for the real work, which will begin on that date. Gordon Jones was the new man out yesterday. Gordon played four games with the seniors last year and got his colours. He is a good man, and can play just about any place on the wing line. Last year he played middle and inside wing and scrimmage. He has a unique history in Varsity Rugby, having been on three Mulock cup championship teams and last year's inter-collegiate champions. Not a bad record for four years' football. The team this year looks like certain sure champions on paper. The back division will be: Full, "Red" Dixon; outside halves, "Hughie" Gaul and "Smyrle" Lawson; centre, Captain "Jack" Newton. All of these men played last year, and after the stiff battles they went through should work together like one man this season. The quarter is still to be chosen, as Coryell has almost given up hope of coming back. "Billy" Folds, the quarter for the seconds, looks like the man if Coryell does not play. The scrimmage looks familiar with "Bull" Ritchie and Hume, outside, and Jimmie Bell in the centre. They are a trio that can't be beaten. Ritchie and Hume have not been out yet. The former will be in town early next week, and it is whispered that Hume is quickly getting into shape. The inside wings will also be the same, George Kingston and Muir, Kingston has already been out, and Muir will be back by the 28th. Gordon Jones will play one of the middle wings, and McDonald has decided to try for outside, although last year he played the half-way position. Both these men are sure of their places, so that there are only two wing men and a quarter back to be unearthed.

LONDON ADMIRES GIBSON WHO HAS MADE GOOD WITH PIRATES

"Gibson will prevent Detroit winning the world's championship," said De Wolf Hopper, the great comedian to The Advertiser, this afternoon. Mr. Hopper will appear in "The Matinee Idol," his latest vehicle, at the Grand this evening.

He is a thirty-third degree baseball fan, and it was quite easy to get him to talk on the baseball situation. He is an ardent admirer and personal friend of John J. McGraw, the Giant's manager, and as such is a rooter for that team. However, his loyalty to the Giant's work does not prevent him taking a keen interest in baseball, and the players of other teams.

ADMIRES GIBSON.

He is an admirer of the London catcher "Mooney" Gibson, and declared that the London boy would be a big factor in keeping the Tigers away from the championship.

"The Pirates have a great team, a hard-hitting, hard-working team," said Mr. Hopper. "They are sluggers and hit the ball hard. Their pitchers are as good, if not better than Detroit's, but upon Gibson will fall the bulk of the defensive work. He will have to keep that fast bunch of runners Hughie Jennings has close to the bases and steady the whole team. He can do it, and I look for his great work to keep the Tigers from the flag.

"I am for the Giants, of course. I am a personal friend of McGraw, and Mathewson and Mr. Brush, and so I am loyal to that team. We did not win the flag, but we kept the Cubs from doing that, so we are happy.

GENERAL NEWS OF INTEREST FROM ONTARIO RUGBY CENTRES

Clarence Kidd will likely be centre half of the T. A. A. C. senior team. He is big and fast and gives great promise. He learned the game at Port Hope.

After the Argonaut practice on Monday night Warren Coryell, the ex-Varsity quarterback, was elected captain of the team for the coming season. Coryell will take charge of the team to-night. Newport, who played quarter last year, will likely make the second team.

President A. R. Denison of the Ontario Rugby Football Union has offered two cups for competition this season between the senior and junior clubs respectively. President Denison takes a very keen interest in the doings of his union, and, unlike the leaders of some similar organizations, is not a figurehead by any means. The trophies are to become the property of the clubs winning them this season.

George Kennedy made his first appearance of the season with the Ottawa Football Club Monday. He played centre scrimmage, and will hold down that position during the balance of the season. Kennedy has been playing football for twenty years, but is still active and husky. Doc Sherriff was a witness at the workout and may be induced to get in the game once more. Nick Bawlf will likely play full-back, and Convey, of the second team, will be tried at outside wing. Martin Kilt being moved back to quarter. Little hope is held out for Jack Ryan's reinstatement, while Bert Stronach refuses to play. Dr. Hendry and Harry Griffith have not yet consented to referee and umpire Saturday's game.

Thirty men were out in uniform at the T.A.A.C. practice at Moss Park rink on Monday. Coach Elliott Maxwell was in charge, and put his men through a smart practice of one hour and a half. Running, punting, and tackling occupied most of the time, after which two teams lined up. Kidd, the cover point of last season's hockey team, was out for the first time, and played a dashing game on the half line. Knight from University of Pennsylvania, shows a good pair of hands and a great burst of speed. McGiffin, DeGruchy, Hargraft, and Rob Reid are the other candidates for the back division. Lawson, the old Trinity quarter, is out for the place, and seems to be in great shape already. Among the wings out were "Bun" Johnston, Grant, Maguire, Crooks, Shirriff, Allen, and a big crowd of juniors.

T. C. S. FIRSTS TO PLAY COLLEGIATES

On Saturday Afternoon at Riverside Park—Fast Game Assured.

The followers of the Collegiate Rugby team will see them in action against the fast twelve who constitute the Senior squad of the T.C.S., Port Hope. The game should be a hummer and if the local kids can hold the visitors they will spring a pleasant surprise on their friends. The T.C.S. are practising daily and this game will give them a chance to get into finished shape for the opening of the inter-scholastic league. A large crowd should be present to encourage the Collegiate team as they are putting up a good article of ball.

HOCKEY

It was learned on good authority this morning that a Midget hockey seven will again be entered in the intermediate O.H.A. series this winter.

The team will prove to be nearly as fast as last year's seven, as a couple of members from an outside town have entered their names beside those of Randal, F. Cote, W. Cote, W. Stoddard, R. Blomfield, Newton and Taylor.

"The cup, which was won by last year's players, will be defended to the last," so states a member of the coming season's team.

A meeting for organization will be held at an early date.—Lindsay Post.

Mary and Matrimony.

By Cecilia A. Loiseaux.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

"I KNOW just how you feel, Dick, but I don't see how it can be helped. When I became engaged to you we agreed that it would have to be a long engagement."

"It's been three years now, Mary, and I call that a long time. And you seem to have no idea of ending the wait at all. Now—you aren't forgetting to care, are you, Mary?"

Mary's lip trembled as she looked at him.

"I care as much—more—than ever," she said. "You don't understand. You see, I have been papa's housekeeper since I was fifteen, and I simply can't leave him alone."

"He is perfectly willing, Mary. Sometimes I think he is anxious for you to marry. He doesn't want to feel as if he were in the way of your happiness."

"That's just it!" cried Mary. "Dear old dad! He'd sacrifice his own interests for me any day. I won't have it."

"Mary, how old is your father?"

"Fifty."

"And healthy?"

"Perfectly. We're all proud of our health."

"He's likely to live out his threescore and ten then."

"I hope so, and if you mean that you wish he would die, Dick Lane"—

"Easy, Mary; easy. Personally I'm very fond of your father. That's one reason why I am so anxious to get into his immediate family. But, let's see, unless some unforeseen accident occurs I shall be obliged to wait for you at least twenty-five years." He held up a warning hand as Mary started to speak. "Don't you see that we're no nearer the goal than we were three years ago? Don't wait to find a solution of the problem, dear. Marry me now and we'll solve it together."

Mary rose impatiently.

"What's the use of talking that way? You know I can't. I've thought and thought, but there doesn't seem to be any other way out. Father flatly refuses to live with us—says it's better not—and I can't leave him. That's why I sent for you. I've made up my mind that it isn't fair to keep you waiting, so I am going to break our engagement." She looked at him bravely, though her eyes swam with tears and her chin quivered.

Dick stared a moment and then began to laugh, which, under the circumstances, was the worst thing he could have done. Mary's eyes began to blaze, and the tears disappeared.

"It's a joke, is it?" she blazed. "Well, it's time it was broken. Here is your ring. I'm sorry for your wasted time, and, since you are so anxious to be married, I hope you will find some one who will have you right away."

She slipped from the room, and not until he heard the door of her room slam did Dick recover from his amazement. Then he laughed again and, putting the ring in his pocket, left the house.

"Poor little Mary!" he mused. "Well, I see that I'll have to get her father to help."

Mary, watching him stride up the street whistling "Mary, Mary, Long Before the Fashions Came," sank into her big chair and wept.

"He wanted it broken! He wanted it broken!" she wailed.

Once admitted to the inner office Dick took the leather chair which Mary's father indicated with his foot, accepted a cigar and lit it.

"Is this a business call or just a visit?"

"Both. I've been up to see Mary."

"Strange. Anything doing? Will Mary marry?"

"She says she won't. In fact, she has just given me back my ring. I say she must, and I want you to help me."

"Of course I can't force my daughter to marry you if she does not want to," grinned Mr. Arnold.

"Yes, you can—if you go about it right. You see"— And he briefly outlined his talk with Mary. Mr. Arnold smoked fiercely while the young man talked, and then they went over a detailed plan together.

When the young man finally left, the elder shook his hand heartily.

"I'll do my best, Dick. Mary's a good daughter, but she'll make just as good a wife, and I'll divide."

That evening Mary came to the dinner table red eyed and white faced. Little by little her father drew the story from her. When she had finished he said: "I'm glad of it, Mary. I never would have asked you to give him up, but I am thankful that you can see for yourself." He did not say what she could see. "And now that it's all over I don't mind telling you that there are as good fish in the sea as have been caught so far. Now, Dick—well, he's so slow! And then—But that's over now, so cheer up, daughter, and fall in love with some one else."

"Oh, I can't ever do that!" went Mary. "I shall take care of you all my life."

"Tut! Tut! Just put your mind to it and you can do it. I am anxious to see you marry and be happily settled, Mary. Of course I didn't say so, because I could see that you didn't really care for Dick. If you had cared you'd have married him two years ago. But now that he's gone"—

Mary gasped and stooped for her napkin, sitting up again with a red face. Not care for Dick! Perhaps Dick thought that too.

"And, aside from that," went on her father. "I have been engaged to Marian Howard for a year, and I know how you will feel about keeping me waiting too long. Of course I should not think of marrying again while you are with me."

Mary thought she must faint. The room went round and round, and then she heard a voice, which must have been her own, stiffly congratulating her father, heard him say something the words of which she could not distinguish, and then she was up in her own room.

"Oh," she moaned, "what shall I do? No one wants me. Papa is going to marry again, and even he thinks I do not care for Dick. I must have acted terribly for papa to think that. And why didn't he tell me that he wanted to marry? I'd have been glad of it, for then I could have married Dick and would not have needed to worry about papa at all. Oh, it is cruel! And now it is too late. No wonder Dick stopped caring if I acted like that—like they seem to think I have." She sobbed miserably.

"I like Marian Howard. I have always wished I could have her with me. I'd like to live with them, but they don't want me either. Papa has said time and again that such combinations are always unhappy, and so I must go away somewhere."

She sobbed herself to sleep that night after hours of wretched reflection and almost desperate thinking. She did not go down to breakfast, but when she heard her father leave the house she went downtown and drew all of the money which she had in the bank. Then she bought a ticket for New York.

At noon her father, seeing how wretched she looked at dinner, felt like a brute and came very near to spoiling the whole thing. But she slipped away too quickly to give him time to commit himself, and when he was sure she was in her room he called Dick cautiously up over the phone.

"I guess you'd better come over. I've made a beastly mess of the thing," he said. Then he called up to Mary that he had to go back to the office and told her not to sit up for him and cleared out, feeling like a coward.

This was the chance for which Mary was waiting. Hurriedly she finished packing her suit case, wrote an agonized note to her father, and, after dressing herself in the long coat and dark veil which fleeing heroines always wore in the plays she had seen, she let herself quietly out at the front door and reached the car. A young man jumped off the outgoing car, looked at her sharply and then swung up the steps of the ingoing car after her, but she did not notice.

"Was this what her father had meant in his telephone message?" thought the young man. Well, he had made a mess of it.

It was raining by this time—a dreary little drizzle—and when Mary alighted at the union station she would have fallen on the slippery steps had not some one seized the suit case and caught her arm firmly. When she had regained her balance the man did not let go, but slid his grasp down to the cold, wet hand.

"Let me go! What do you mean?" she gasped, and then she knew. She began to cry.

"Mary, Mary, so contrary, come on home again," said Dick gently. "We didn't mean to go so far as this, dear, in our little plot."

"We—our plot! What do you mean? Did you and father fix all this up for a trick? And—and"— To Dick's great surprise and relief she began to laugh. He had expected tears, anger, even rage. And then he began to feel foolish.

"I guess I got just what I deserve. I was blind as a bat," she said. "When do you want me to marry you, Dick, if you can forgive me enough to want me at all? Dick, you didn't think that I had really stopped caring, did you?"

Mary's father was in the drawing room when they got home and came out into the hall to meet them. "We've been out walking," said Dick blandly.

"Yes, I see," said Mr. Arnold, ignoring the suit case and Mary's unusual apparel. "Fine night, isn't it?"

TIGERS IN INDIA.

Strange Hindoo Beliefs Concerning the Man Eaters.

In India the traditions of folklore are numerous and strange. Among those pertaining to the tiger the following are the most peculiar: The uneducated Hindoo (and he is in the great majority) believes that the ghost of a man killed by a tiger rides on the head of the beast that slew him to warn him of danger and to guide him to new victims. It is declared that God provides for the tiger's daily wants to the amount of 1 rupee a day—that is to say, if the tiger kills a calf worth 6 rupees he will not be allowed another victim for five days.

Eating the flesh of a tiger is supposed to give one great courage and alertness, but the whiskers must first be singed off the beast or his spirit will haunt the man who fed off him, and he is likely to be turned into a tiger in the next world.

The following incident really occurred in a small Indian village in the interior: One of the villagers was unfortunately killed by a tiger. The police investigated the accidental death and rendered this verdict: "Pandu died of a tiger eating him. There was no other cause of death. Nothing was left of him save his bones and some fingers, which probably belonged to either the right or left hand."—Washington Star.

The World Went Round.

When Bloggins senior on the occasion of his annual party was obliging his guests with "'Tis Love That Makes the World Go Round," Master William Bloggins seized the opportunity to retire for a few minutes behind the Japanese screen with his sire's half-smoked cigar.

The applause unbridled, Master Bloggins was observed by one of the company to be looking far from well. His face had taken on the hue of putty, and his eyes stood out like small hail stones.

AUTUMN!

FATHER TIME CLIPS THE WINGS OF THE DAYS.

CONDUCTOR SAW MRS. TURNER ON NEW YORK CENTRAL TRAIN

Toronto, Sept. 30.—"I saw her on that train that day." With these words spoken in answer to a question from Assistant County Crown Attorney Monahan, at the inquest into the death of the Authers infant at the morgue last night, Edwin O. Parrish, conductor of the New York Central Railroad, identified Mrs. Turner, charged with the murder of the child, as a woman whom he had helped off the very train from which the body of the infant had been thrown.

The witness gave his evidence in a quiet and convincing manner, and every effort of counsel for the prisoner failed utterly to shake him.

Parrish was the third witness called, and his evidence struck the first note of interest that has been heard since the inquest was opened a week ago.

Later Harry Gmelin of Niagara Falls, who has lived with the prisoner for a number of years told the story of their goings and comings. As his evidence drew to a close the prisoner who had sat quietly throughout the hearing flushed noticeably, and as she was being led from the room by Police Matron Mrs. Whiddon, she collapsed into the arms of two police officers, with a cry that was half sob and half a moan. In an ante-room she was quickly revived, but was not again brought back to the court-room.

Mrs. Jennie Swazie, who keeps the boarding-house where Harry Gmelin, heretofore supposed to be Mrs. Turner's husband, and who lived with her for years as such, boards, told of Mrs. Turner's appearance at her house in September, with yet another baby which she took away and the whereabouts of which is a mystery.

Conductor Parrish told of the movements of his train on the Thursday, Sept. 16, the day on which the body was thrown from the window of one of its cars, as it was on its way to Lewiston from Niagara Falls, on the early afternoon trip.

"Can you say if you ever saw this lady before?" asked Mr. Monahan, indicating Mrs. Turner.

"I think I have," replied the witness. "I'm pretty sure I have."

"When?"

"On that train, that day."

Asked what fixed the incident in his mind, Parrish described how the train had stopped at Lewiston, and told of helping Mrs. Turner to alight from it.

He described her clothes and later identified a black hat and tailor-made suit as like those which she had worn. He seemed anxious not to overstate his identification, but was sure of both the time and the woman.

On cross-examination, T. C. Robinette, K.C., strove to shake him. He asked if he had not been shown a photo of the woman, but Parrish replied that he had not. He asked if she had been pointed out to him, but this also was answered in the negative.

Asked how he came to notice this one woman out of the hundreds that he saw daily, he replied:

"When she came down the platform she was very pale, but she was smiling. She smiled the same way just now," he added.

The very ghost of a smile here flittered across the prisoner's face, wavered, her lips trembled irresolutely and her hand was raised nervously to her mouth, which again took on the almost plaintive droop which had marked it as her most attractive feature since she has been seen in the courts.

ACTION IS DISMISSED

Chief Justice Meredith, Without Even Hearing the Case For the City of Hamilton, Delivers Judgment Allowing It to Contract For Hydro-Electric Power—Courts Have No Right to Interfere.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.—After several years' struggle, Hamilton is free at last to enter the Government's project for cheap electric power. The legal entanglements that R. S. Morris, stock broker, attempted to rear in the way of the council applying to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for a supply of power, were brushed aside yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice Sir William Meredith. C. J. Holman, K.C., who, with City Solicitor Waddell, represented the City Council, was not even called upon to present an argument, and his lordship dismissed with costs the action brought by Mr. Morris to prevent the council taking power from the commission.

"I think whoever attacked the Hydro-Electric bylaw went far afield to find grounds for this action," was one of the caustic observations made by his lordship.

Geo. S. Kerr, K.C., who represented Mr. Morris, did not even attempt to show that there had been bribery and corruption, as he charged in his statement of claim, and although T. J. Stewart, M.P., and Ald. Wright admitted making the statements he had termed as misrepresentations with regard to the power situation, when the question was before the ratepayers last June, Mr. Kerr did not try to substantiate his claim that they were misrepresentations.

Mr. Kerr confined his case to two points, that the voters' lists used last June, when the ratepayers turned down the Cataract contract and voted for a contract with the commission, were improper lists, because they contained the names of electors as well as ratepayers, and secondly, that the council was bound by the contract with the Cataract Power Co., put through by last year's council.

His lordship found that the lists used were proper and that the voting was regular and continued:

"Then, with regard to the other point raised by Mr. Kerr, the right of the council to enter into a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission, in view of the contract entered into by the council of 1906 with the Cataract Company, which is perhaps the most substantial part of the case, I think it is quite clear that there is no power in the court to overrule the action or the judgment of the council with regard to the matter of entering into a contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

"Apparently the Cataract Company is not suing for its account. If it did sue for it, the question would be immediately raised, and having regard to the course of litigation and the importance for the question, it might be two or three years before final judgment would be reached in the case, even if the view of Justice Anglin prevailed as to the effect of the contract. What would be the result? It would be that this corporation would have been tied from getting power from anybody in the meantime, without any right to avail itself on any opportunity that was afforded in the meantime to enter into a contract with somebody else. It seems to me that upon the plainest business principle, as well as according to the law, it was for the council to determine whether it was expedient in the condition of matters which existed to enter into this contract or not, that having in good faith come to the conclusion, the ratepayers having sanctioned their doing it also, which appears to be an essential to the right of their entering into a contract, this court has no right, no power, no jurisdiction to interfere with the judgment and acts of the council.

"The Legislature has left to the council, elected by the ratepayers, the business that the council should do, and I think it would be a most unfortunate thing if judges, without any special training or aptitude for dealing with the large commercial business matters, which engage the attention of councils, should assume to supersede their judgment as to the expediency of any course proposed to be taken upon such questions as these.

"In my opinion the action fails and must be dismissed."

"I hope your majesty will forgive the liberty I have taken in coming to the station without a distinct invitation to do so," were the chancellor's first words as he met the emperor. "Knowing that you would almost certainly arrive by special train, I came down from my house some time ago that I might be on hand without fail when you arrived to place my electric carriage at your service. I thought it probable that you would not have sent to the palace and therefore it might save you some slight inconvenience if I were on the spot. If you will honor my poor conveyance"—

"Don't let us delay our business for explanations or compliments, if you please, chancellor." The emperor cut him short brusquely. "I counted on your being here with your carriage. Now for the hunting lodge in the woods."

As he spoke his eyes were on the old man's face, which he hoped to see fall or change, but there was no visible sign of discomfiture, and Von Breitstein made no attempt to excuse himself from making the proposed visit. Evidently nothing had happened during the hours since the message by telephone to change the chancellor's mind.

"Yes, your majesty," came the prompt response. "Now for the hunting lodge in the woods. I am ready to go with you there, as I always have been and always shall be ready to serve you when I am needed."

It was on Leopold's tongue to say that it would be well if his chancellor's readiness could be confined to those occasions when it was needed, but he shut his lips upon the words and walked by the old man's side in frozen silence.

The carriage was waiting just outside the station, and the moment the two men were seated the chauffeur started noiselessly and swiftly.

Both windows were closed to keep out the chill of the night air, but soon Leopold impatiently lowered one, forgetting the chancellor's old fashioned hatred of drafts, and stared into the night. Already they were approaching the outskirts of the great town, and, flying past the dark warehouses and factories of the neighborhood, they sped toward the open country.

The weather, still warm the evening before—that evening of moonlight not to be forgotten—had turned cold with morning, and tonight there was a pungent scent of dying leaves in the air. It smote Leopold in the face with the wind of motion, and it seemed to him the essential perfume of sadness. Never again would he inhale that fragrance of the falling year without recalling this hour.

He was half mad with impatience to reach the end of the journey and confound the chancellor once for all, yet as the swift electric carriage spun smoothly along the white road and landmark after landmark vanished behind tree branches laced with stars something within him would at last have stayed the flying moments had that been possible. He burned to ask questions of Von Breitstein, yet would have died rather than utter them.

It was a relief to the emperor when after a long silence his companion spoke, though a relief which carried with it a prick of resentment. Even the chancellor had no right to speak first without permission from his sovereign.

"Forgive me, your majesty," the old man said. "Your anger is hard to bear, yet I bear it uncomplainingly because of my confidence that the reward is not far off. I look for it no further in the future than tonight."

"I, too, believe that you won't miss your reward," returned the emperor sharply.

"I shall have it, I am sure, not only in your majesty's forgiveness, but in your thanks."

"I'll forgive you when you've asked my pardon for your suspicions and when you've found Miss Mowbray for me."

"I have already found her and am taking you to her now."

"Then you actually believe in your own story? You believe that this sweet and beautiful young girl is a fast actress, a schemer, a friend of your notoriously gallant friend and willing to risk her reputation by paying a late visit unchaperoned to him at his hunting lodge in the woods? You are, after all, a very poor judge of character if you dream that we shall see her there."

"I shall see her, your majesty, and you will see her unless the madness you call love has blinded the eyes of your body as well as the eyes of your mind. That she is now at the lodge I know, for the prince assured me with his own lips that she had promised to motor out alone with him and dine."

"You mean he told you that his friend the actress had promised. I'll stake my life even he didn't dare to say Miss Mowbray."

"He said Miss Brett, the actress, it's true, but when he called upon her at her hotel, where he and I met to discuss a matter which is no secret to your majesty, he asked for Miss Mowbray. And the message that came down I heard. It was that Miss Mowbray would be delighted to see his royal highness. This left no doubt in my mind that after giving out that she would leave today the lady had remained in Kronburg for the express purpose of meeting her dear friend the prince, the handsomest and best dressed young man in Europe—after your majesty, of course. And it was quite natural for her to hope that, as she was supposed to be gone and you were following her, this evening's escapade would never be discovered."

"Please spare me your deductions, chancellor," said the emperor curtly, "and pray understand now, if you have not understood before, that I am with you in this expedition not to prove you right, but wrong, and nothing you can say will convince me that the prince's actress and Miss Mowbray are one. If we find a woman at the hunting lodge it will not be the lady we seek unless she has been kidnaped, and as you will presently be obliged to eat every word you've spoken the fewer such bitter pills you provide for yourself to swallow the better."

Thus snubbed by the young man whom he had held in his arms, an imperious as well as an imperial infant, the old statesman sought sanctuary in silence. But he had said that which had been in his mind to say, and he was satisfied. Meekness was not his metier, yet he could play the part of the faithful servant, humbly loyal through injustice and misunderstanding, and he played it now, because he knew it to be the one effective role. He sat beside the emperor with bowed head and stooping shoulders which suggested the weakness of old age, his hands clasped before him, and from time to time he sighed patiently.

As they glided under the dark arch of the Buchenwald Leopold spoke again.

"You have led me to suppose that our call at the hunting lodge will be a surprise visit to the prince. That is the case, isn't it?"

Count von Breitstein would have preferred that the question had not been asked. He had intended to convey the impression which the emperor had received, but he had not clothed it in actual statement. Luckily the prince was as clever as he was good looking, and he could be trusted as an actor otherwise the old man would have been still more reluctant to commit himself.

"Were our visit expected we should not be likely to find the lady," said he. "The prince and I are on such friendly terms, your majesty, that he didn't mind confessing he was to have a pretty actress as his guest. He also answered a few questions I asked concerning her freely and frankly, for to do so he had to tell me only what the world knows. How could he dream that the flirtations or the visits of a Miss Jenny Brett could be of the slightest importance to the emperor of Rhaetia? Had he guessed, however that the entertainment he meant to offer her might be interrupted naturally he would have taken some means to protect her from annoyance."

"This night's work will give him cause to pick a private quarrel with me if he likes," said the emperor, convinced of the chancellor's good faith.

"I don't think he will choose, your majesty. You are in a mood to be glad if he did, I fear. But, no; I need not fear. You will always remember Rhaetia and put her interests before your own wishes."

"You weren't as confident of that a few hours ago."

"Even then I knew that when the real test should be applied your majesty's cool head would triumph over the hot impulse of youth. But, see; we're passing through the village of Inseleden, fast asleep already, every window dark. In six or seven minutes at this speed we shall be at the lodge."

The emperor laughed shortly. "Add another seven minutes to your first seven and we shall be out of the lodge again, with Chancellor von Breitstein a sadder and a wiser man than he went in."

Meekness was once more the part for the old man to play, and, raising his hands, palm upward, in a gesture of generous indulgence for his young sovereign, he denied himself the pleasure of retort.

The hunting lodge in the wood, now the property of the chancellor's accommodating young friend, had until recently belonged to a Rhaetian semi-royal prince who had been compelled by lack of sympathy among his creditors to sell something and had promptly sold the thing he cared for least. The present owner was a keen sportsman and, though he came seldom to the place, had spent a good deal of money in repairing the quaint rustic house.

Years had passed since the emperor had done more than pass the lodge gates, and now the outlines of the low rambling structure looked strange to him silhouetted against a spangled sky. He was glad of this, for he had spent some joyous days here as a boy and he wished to separate the old impressions and the new.

Two tall chimneys stood up like the pricked ears of some alert crouching animal. The path to the lodge gleamed white and straight in the darkness as a parting in the rough black hair of a giant. The trees whispered gossip to each other in the wind, and it seemed to Leopold that they were evil things telling lies and slandering his love. He hated them and their rustling, which once he had loved; he hated the yellow eyes of the animal with the pricked ears, glittering eyes which were lighted windows; he hated the young prince who owned the place, and he would have hated the chancellor more than all had not the old man limped as he walked up the path, showing how heavy was the burden of his years as he had never shown it to his emperor before.

The path led to a hooded entrance, and, ascending the two stone steps, the chancellor lifted the mailed glove which did duty as a knocker. Twice he brought it down on the oak panel underneath, and the sound of metal smiting against wood went echoing through the house with an effect of emptiness and desolation.

Nobody came to answer the summons, and Leopold smiled in the darkness. He thought it likely that even the prince was not at home. A practical joke had been played on the chancellor.

Again the mailed fist struck the panel. An echo alone replied. Count von Breitstein began to be alarmed for the success of his plan. He thanked the night which hid from the keen eyes of the emperor—cynical now, no doubt—the telltale vein beating hard in his forehead.

"Don't you think, chancellor, that, after all, you'd better try to take me to some more probable as well as more suitable place to look for Miss Mowbray?" he suggested, with a drawl intended to be as aggravating as it actually was. "There doesn't appear to be any one about. Even the caretakers are out courting perhaps."

"But listen, your majesty," said Von Breitstein when he knocked again.

Leopold did listen and heard the ring of a heel on a floor of stone or marble.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

It was a jager clad in green who opened the door of the hunting lodge and gazed apparently without recognition at the two men standing in the dark embrasure of the porch.

"We wish to see his royal highness, your master," said the chancellor, taking the initiative, as he knew the emperor would wish him to do.

"His royal highness is not at home, sir," replied the jager.

Leopold's eyes lightened as he threw a glance of sarcastic meaning at his companion, but Iron Heart was undaunted. He knew very well now that this was only a prelude to the drama which would follow, and, though he had suffered a sharp pang of anxiety at first, he saw that his royal friend was playing with commendable realism. Naturally when beautiful young actresses ventured into the forest unchaperoned to dine with fascinating princes the least that such favored gentlemen could do was to be "not at home" to an intrusive public.

"His imperial majesty the emperor."

"You are mistaken," insisted the chancellor. "His royal highness is at home and will receive us. It will be better for you to admit us without further delay."

Under the domination of those eyes, which could quell a turbulent reichstag, the jager weakened, as his master had doubtless expected him to do after the first resistance.

"It may be I have made a mistake, sir," he stammered, "though I do not think so. If you will have the kindness to walk in and wait for a few minutes until I can inquire whether his royal highness has come home or will come home"—

"That is not necessary," said the chancellor. "His royal highness dines here this evening. We will go with you to the door of the dining room which you will open for us and an

Gin Pills passed the Stone

513 James St., Hamilton.

"Four years ago I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and loins, great pain and difficulty in urinating. The pain was greatest in the region of the bladder, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony, and I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor. Doctors could do nothing to help me. My wife read in the paper about Gin Pills and sent for a box.

From the very first I felt that Gin Pills were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent. In six weeks the Stone in the Bladder came away and the pain stopped entirely. I have had no return of the trouble and have not lost a day's work on account of it. I cannot express myself strong enough when I speak of what Gin Pills have done for me. When I remember how I suffered, and how now I am healthy and well and strong and able to do a full day's work, I feel I should speak and tell other sufferers of my experience and of the wonderful merits of Gin Pills."

They all took the summer complaint and were very sick with it. The baby would take fits, and after trying many remedies, which were of no use, I suggested we should try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. After giving them one bottle I found a great change, and now my little ones are as well as ever. We have never been without it since, and I have recommended it to my friends."

Mrs. S. A. Harrison, Napanee, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure to send you this testimonial of what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done in our family. My daughter's little girl, three years old, took summer complaint and was nearly dead. After all other remedies failed I thought of your remedy. The first dose gave relief and the third cured her. My son had diarrhoea and a few doses stopped it right away. I advise all mothers to have a bottle of Dr. Fowler's on hand all the time. It is a grand medicine for young and old, and I cannot recommend it too highly in all trouble where the bowels become too loose. A few doses will check the trouble at once."

Save 25 Bars of Soap

Ordinarily you use at least one bar of laundry soap every week—more than fifty bars in a year.

That's twice as many as you need, for Taylor's Borax Soap goes twice as far as any other soap.

Please prove this for yourself—we invite the test. Try one bar of this soap with one bar of any other. See which soap lasts the longest—learn which is the cheapest.

We know what the result will be, for we have made this same test many times over—our soap lasts twice as long.

Taylor's Soap

Don't think that all soaps are alike—there is a wonderful difference in Taylor's Borax Soap. Let us show you some of the ways in which this soap differs from others.

First we use only the purest cocoanut oil from the Isle of Ceylon. Then we boil it doubly long and mix in the borax. While boiling we run thousands of gallons of clean water through the soap which carries away all impurities.

We require twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 people is needed. We crush every bar under a weight of 30 tons to press out the moisture. We put every bar through an ageing process equal to standing six months in your pantry. So you don't have to age this soap.

When finished the bar is hard and firm, so it wears much longer. The borax softens the water which also reduces the amount of soap by almost half that ordinarily required.

This pure soap is utterly harmless to the skin—it leaves the hands whiter and softer than ever before. If it is so harmless to the skin, then think how harmless it must be to the clothes.

This soap comes to you absolutely pure with the creamy tint of the cocoanut oil. It lathers with the greatest abundance and leaves the clothes as pure and white as the foamy suds itself. Try a bar this day—it costs no more than common soaps but does more than any soap you have ever known.

announce nigg two gentlemen wish to see him."

With this all uncertainty in the mind of the jager was swept away. He knew his duty and determined to stand by it, and the chancellor saw that if the master had given instructions meaning them to be overridden at least the servant was sincere. He put himself in the doorway and looked an obstacle difficult to dislodge.

"That is impossible, sir!" he exclaimed. "I have had my orders, which are that his royal highness is not at home tonight, and until I know whether or not these orders are to stand nobody, not if it were the emperor, should force his way."

"Fool, those orders are not for us, and it is the emperor who will go in." With a step aside the chancellor let the light from the hanging lamp in the hall shine full upon Leopold's face, hitherto masked in shadow.

His boast forgotten, the jager uttered a cry of dismay, and, with a sudden failing of the knees, he moved and left the doorway free.

"Your majesty!" he faltered. "I did not see—I could not know. Most humbly I beg your majesty's gracious pardon. If your majesty will but hold me blameless with my master"—

"Never mind yourself, and never mind your master," broke in the chancellor. "Open that door at the end of the hall and announce the emperor and Count von Breitstein."

The unfortunate jager, approaching a state of collapse, obeyed. The door of the dining room, which Leopold knew of old, was thrown open, and a quavering voice heralded "His imperial majesty the emperor and the Herr Chancellor Count von Breitstein."

The scene disclosed was as unreal to Leopold's eyes as a painted picture—the walls of pompeiian red, the gold candelabra, the polished floor spread with the glimmering fur of polar bears and in the center a flower decked table lit with pink shaded lights and sparkling with gold and crystal; springing up from a chair which faced the door, a young man in evening dress; sitting motionless, her back half turned, a slender girl in bridal white.

At sight of her the emperor stopped on the threshold. All the blood in his body seemed rushing to his head, then surging back upon his heart.

The impossible had happened.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE prince came forward. "What a delightful surprise!" he said. "How good of you both to look me up! But I wish my prophetic soul had warned me to keep back dinner. We have just reached the third course." And his eyes met the chancellor's.

"All the same," he went on, "I beg that you will honor me by dining. Everything can be ready in a moment, and the bisque eccrevisso"—

"Thank you," cut in the emperor. "We cannot dine." His voice came hoarsely, as if a fierce hand pinched his throat. "Our call is purely one of business and a moment will see it finished. We owe you an explanation for this intrusion." He paused. All his calculations were upset by the chancellor's triumph, for to plan beforehand what he should do if he found Helen Mowbray dining here alone with the prince would have been to insult her. His campaign had been arranged in the event of the chancellor's defeat.

Now the one course he saw open before him was frankness.

To look at the girl and meet guilt or defiance in her eyes would be agony; therefore he would not look, though he saw her, and her alone, as he stood gazing with a strained fixedness at the prince.

He knew that she had risen not in frightened haste, but with a leisured and dainty dignity. Now her face was turned to him. He felt it as a blind man may feel the rising of the sun.

He wished that she had died before this moment; that they had both died last night in the garden while he held her in his arms and their hearts beat together. She had told him then that she loved him, yet she was here with this man—here of her own free will, the same girl he had worshiped as a goddess in the white moonlight twenty-four hours ago.

The thought was hot in his heart as the searing touch of iron red from the fire—the same girl!

His blood sang in his ears a song of death, and for an instant all was black around him. He groped in black chaos where there was neither light nor hope, and dully he was conscious of the chancellor's voice saying, "Your majesty, if you are satisfied, would you not rather go?"

Then the dark spell broke. Light showered over him as from a golden fountain, for in spite of himself he had met the girl's eyes—the same eyes, because she was the same girl—sweet eyes, pure and innocent and wistfully appealing.

"My God!" he cried. "Tell me why you are here, and whatever you may say I will believe you, in spite of all and through all, because you are you, and I know that you can do no wrong."

"Your majesty!" exclaimed the chancellor. But the emperor did not hear. With a broken exclamation that was half a sob the girl held out both her hands, and Leopold sprang forward to crush them between his ice cold palms.

"Thank heaven!" she faltered. "You are true! You've stood the test. I love you."

"At last, then, I can introduce you to my sister Virginia," said the crown prince of Hungaria, with a great sigh of relief for the ending of his difficult part.

CHAPTER TWENTY

THEY were alone together. Adalbert and Count von Breitstein had stolen from the room and had ceased to exist so far as Leopold and Virginia were concerned.

"I'll tell you now why I'm here and everything else," she was saying, but the emperor stopped her.

"Ever since I came to myself I wanted no explanation," he said. "I wanted only you. That is all I want now. I am the happiest man in the universe. Why should I ask how I came by my happiness? Virginia! Virginia! It's a more beautiful name even than Helen."

"But listen," she pleaded. "There are some things—just a few things—that I long to tell you. Please let me. Last night I wished to go into a convent. Oh, it was because I loved you so much! I wanted you to seem perfect as my hero of romance, just as you were already perfect as an emperor. To think that I should have been far away out of Rhaetia by this time if Miss Portman hadn't been ill! Dear Miss Portman! Maybe if we'd gone nothing would ever have come right. Who can say?

"You know, my brother came to our hotel this afternoon. When his card arrived we couldn't tell whether he knew our secret or not, but when we had let him come up we had only to see his face of surprise. He was angry, too, as well as surprised, for he blurted out that there were all sorts of horrid suspicions against us, and mother explained everything to him before I could have stopped her even if I would—how I had not wanted to accept you unless you could learn to love me for myself and then how I had been disappointed. No, don't speak; that's all over now. You've more than atoned, a thousand times more.

"Dal explained things, too, then—very different things—about a plan of the chancellor's to disgust you with me and how he (Dal) had played into the chancellor's hands because, you see, he thought he was acting wisely for his neglected sister's sake and because he had really supposed an actress he knows was masquerading as Miss Mowbray. Very imprudently he'd told her that some day there might be something between you and his sister. She knew quite well, too, that the real Mowbrays were our cousins; so, you see, as she and he have quarreled, it might have been an easy and clever way for an unscrupulous woman to take revenge. Dal would have gone and perhaps have said dreadful things to the chancellor, who was waiting downstairs for news, but I begged him not. From being the saddest girl in the world I'd suddenly become the happiest, for the chancellor had told Dal and Dal had told me that you had followed Helen Mowbray to ask her to be the empress. That changed everything, for then I knew you really loved her, but just to punish you for what I suffered through you last night I longed to put you to one more test. I said 'Let the chancellor carry out his plot. Let me go with you to your hunting lodge.' At first Dal wouldn't consent but when I begged him he did, for generally I can get my way with people, I warn you.

"That's all, except that I hadn't realized how severe the test would be until you came in and I saw the look in your eyes. It was a dagger of ice in my heart. I prayed heaven to make you believe in me without a word. Oh, how I prayed through all that dreadful moment and how I looked at you, saying with my eyes, 'I love you; I am true!' If you had failed me then it would have killed me, but"—

"There could be no but," the emperor broke in. "To doubt is not to love. When a man loves he knows. Even out of darkness a light comes and tells him."

"Then you forgive me—for tonight, and for everything, from the beginning?"

"Forgive you?"

"And if I'd been different, more like other girls, content with a conventional affection, you wouldn't have loved me more?"

He took her in his arms and held her as if he would never let her go.

"If you had been different I wouldn't have loved you at all," he said. "But if things had been different I couldn't have helped loving you just the same. I should have been fated to fall in love with Princess Virginia of Bassenburg-Drippe at first sight, exactly as I fell in love with Helen Mowbray."

"Ah, but at best you'd have fallen in love with Virginia because it was

"We shall never be old."

your duty, and you fell in love with Helen Mowbray because it was your duty not to, which makes it so much nicer."

"It was no question of duty, but of destiny," said the emperor. "The stars ordained that I should love you."

"Then I wish," and Virginia laughed happily, as she could afford to laugh now, "that the stars had told me last summer. It would have saved me a great deal of trouble. And yet I don't know," she added thoughtfully "it's been a wonderful adventure. We shall often talk of it when we're old."

"We shall never be old, for we love each other," said the emperor.

THE END.

RHEUMATISM
Is caused by the evil influence of poisoned blood, Uric Acid, and other impurities. Nothing so completely dispels these poisons as Ferrozone. It makes new blood, imparts vitality and vigor, enabling the system to throw off every trace of Rheumatism. For a Sure Cure try
FERROZONE
A case showing how Ferrozone acts is illustrated by the following from Mrs. H. Wright, of Enfield, N.S.:
"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss, and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale, and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat, and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better, and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone, and my cure was complete."
If Ferrozone doesn't help you, and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c boxes. Better try Ferrozone.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance:—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $100 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

GRAND RALLY

BOYS

WANTED

THE

EXAMINER

WE WONDER if it ever occurred to the boys of Peterborough that the selling of papers was a stepping-stone to a successful business career in future years.

DO they recognize the fact that this little business offers them an opportunity to

MAKE

100 Per Cent ?

or in other words, to double the money invested in selling the EXAMINER to transient buyers.

BOYS buy the EXAMINER at one cent each and sell it for two cents each ; or in the case of weekly patrons, they pay six cents per week and receive ten cents from the subscriber, thus making a profit of 62 2-3 per cent.

DO you know of any business in the city that pays such profits with as little chance for bad debts ?

IT only requires a Boy to HUSTLE, the same thing that is required when he gets into a bigger business world.

OF course we do not mean to say that the Boy, to become a successful business man, must be a newsboy, but we do say that the successful newsboy has gained an experience that is of much service to him in after years.

A NEWSBOY'S EXPERIENCE IN A LARGE CITY. Why can't a local Boy be benefitted proportionately ? This story is taken from the Saturday Post :

MONEY IN NEWSPAPER ROUTES.

Another boy was only thirteen when his father died, leaving two hundred dollars insurance, a widow and four younger children. The insurance money was loaned out to a neighbour at six per cent., as a sort of reserve fund, and while the widow did plain sewing, the boy carried newspapers morning and evening. After three months' experience with this work he borrowed twenty-five dollars and purchased the smallest newspaper route in town. Vigorous canvassing for new customers made that route so productive that in six months he paid back the loan. The lender offered another loan of fifty dollars, which the boy took, buying two more routes. These were covered by boys hired to do the work, however, because he felt that all his energy must go into the original route, so that he would at least be certain of good returns from that. Principles of management learned by this plan made him so successful that in less than five years he owned every newspaper route in his town. His mother's two hundred dollars was still intact, and his brothers and sisters going to school. A legacy of two hundred dollars fell to the family. This, with the original two hundred dollars and another hundred the boy had saved, was paid on a home costing twenty-eight hundred dollars, the balance to be cleared off at the rate of twenty-five dollars a month. Three furnished rooms were rented at a total of about twenty-two dollars monthly, and this money, it was agreed, should never be spent. Newspaper routes, odd jobs and the mother's contributions kept the family and paid the instalments. In four years the income from furnished rooms, put away in the bank, grew to more than one thousand dollars. The mortgage was finally cleared off, and the boy, now nearly twenty-one years old, started to get an education at the high school.

THERE are a number of Boys in Peterborough making four and five dollars per week, not necessarily all selling the Examiner, but some easily make three dollars per week selling the Examiner exclusively.

Boys! Be Boys of Business

Get in the game. It won't hurt you, but will give you a right start. You will have money of your own to save or buy useful needs with.

BOYS ! Take your spare time between four and six o'clock and see what success you will have between now and Christmas.

NEWSBOYS' BONANZA

Boys, figure this proposition out for yourselves. Be ambitious. Good newsboys are always taken care of and recommended for future positions.

G.T.P. Ready Next June.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—It can now be officially stated that the Grand Trunk Pacific will be completed by June 1 next, passengers and freight being carried from the head of Lake Superior to within sight of the Rocky Mountains. The announcement was likewise made that the G.T.P. will have a grade through the Rockies of four-tenths of one per cent.

At the sixth annual meeting yesterday, the election of officers resulted: C. M. Hays, president; E. J. Chamberlain, vice-president and general manager; directors: Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, Alfred W. Smithers Maurice, George Carr Glynn, Frederick Firebrace, Rt. Hon. Lord Wolby, William Wainwright, M. M. Reynolds, W. H. Biggar, E. H. Fitzhugh, A. Allan, E. B. Greenshields, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, E. B. Wood and J. R. Booth.

C.N.R. Hauling Wheat.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—The amount of wheat marketed on the Canadian Northern Railway in the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta has averaged 400,000 bushels daily during the past two weeks, and during one particular day the amount ran up to no less than 438,000 bushels.

D. D. Mann, vice-president of the C. N. R., who was at the Windsor last evening, also stated that the number of cars loaded and moved on the same railway en route for Lake Superior indicate an increase of no less than 66 per cent. over 1908, and added that the bushels of wheat received on the Canadian Northern during September will exceed nine million.

Province Lost Good Thing.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—Jas. A. Brooks, on behalf of the purchasing syndicate, confirmed last evening the report that the Young and O'Brien property of seventeen acres, purchased in July from the Ontario Government for $10,500, had passed into the hands of some Montrealers for about $400,000.

The original owners, A. J. Young of North Bay, and M. J. O'Brien of Renfrew, expended $2,480 on the property which now passes into the hands of Dr. Miller Hersey, James A. Brooks, Alex. Pringle, James Robinson, ex-M.P. for Northumberland, N.B.; Shirley Ogilvie, John P. Black, Lieut.-Col. Smart and Victor E. Mitchell.

Another Election Protest.

Georgetown, P.E.I., Sept. 30.—The trial of the election petition against A. L. Fraser, Conservative M. P. for King's, has opened. There are 200 witnesses to be examined.

One man got $5 from a mysterious stranger, who threw money on the ground before him, and another found that someone had secretly placed a case of liquor in his wagan. He did not discover his good fortune till half a mile from town, where the liquor was distributed among the boys. Another had some mysteriously placed in his granary.

He claims to have made the first discovery of nickel west of Sudbury, and shows assay certificates of ore going 4.24 nickel and 33.22 iron. Samples containing iron alone assayed 42.28.

Change In Quebec-Levis Ferry Co.

Quebec, Sept. 30.—The Quebec-Levis Ferry Co. have lost their contract, and the ferry business will be run for the next fifteen years by a French-Canadian syndicate, headed by Dr. J. F. Demers, of Levis. Arrangements are now being made to build two summer boats in Levis, and Dr. Demers sails for England on Oct. 8, to make arrangements for the building of three winter boats. The scheme involves an expenditure of about $300,000.

U.M.W. Leaders to Be Arrested.

They will be charged with conspiracy against the Dominion Coal Co.

Three Years In Pen.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.—The chief justice sentenced Joe Lorenzo, who shot at Tom White, to three years in the penitentiary. His lordship said he believed that Lorenzo intended to shoot White, and had it not been the jury's recommendation to mercy, the sentence would have been very much heavier.

Convocation at Queen's.

Kingston, Sept. 30.—Special convocation will be held at Queen's next Wednesday, with addresses by Hon. D. C. Fraser, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, who will receive a degree; Hon. G. W. Ross and Rev. Dr. Gordon of Winnipeg.

Orator Obstructed Streets.

Winnipeg, Sept. 30.—The appeal of T. Bettsworth and others against conviction for obstruction of the streets by oratory was dismissed by Justice Mathers. Bettsworth contended he was discriminated against, as Salvation Army meetings were not interfered with.

CENSURE FOR PEARY.

Hard Words Are Used to Characterize the Explorer.

New York, Sept. 30.—The Herald publishes opinions on the polar "feud," from the editors of such representative dailies as The Chicago Record Herald, Chicago Journal, Washington Post, Washington Star, New Orleans Picayune, Buffalo Express, Baltimore News, Cincinnati Times Star, Baltimore American, Washington Herald, St. Louis Post Despatch, Louisville Courier Journal, and San Francisco Call, and all are inclined to censure Commander Peary. Such words as "churlish," "selfish," used to term Peary's behavior in refusing to bring back Cook's records. The San Francisco Chronicle says editorially, "There is no generosity in Peary's endeavor and no courtesy to his opponent. He is in the game not for sport, but for money, and the verdict of the country is that Dr. Cook is a gentleman and Peary a cad, and that without reference to whether either of them reached the north pole, that Dr. Cook reached the spot which the instruments he carried indicated as the north pole. The contrary belief as to what Peary did there has ceased to cause much curiosity. Nobody cares whether he got to the north pole, but there would be much satisfaction if it were known that he would now go there and stay there. It is a good place for him."

Philadelphia Cheers Cook.

Philadelphia, Sept. 30.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, came to this city last night at the Academy of Music, and received a great reception at the hands of a great crowd at the Pennsylvania railroad station. His ride to the Bellevue Hotel, and up to the City Hall was a continuous ovation.

Dr. Cook's right hand it literally flayed with so much hand-shaking, and he is now compelled to offer his left hand.

Blythe Again Escapes.

Toronto, Sept. 30.—Once more Walter Blythe is snatched from the gallows. The Court of Appeal in a unanimous judgment delivered yesterday granted him a new trial on the ground that Judge Riddell, who sat at the trial, should have charged the jury that if they found that Blythe was, at the time of the assault upon his wife, in such an intoxicated condition as not to be able to appreciate the quality of his act, the jury should find him guilty of manslaughter, and not murder.

It has been intimated that G. T. Blackstock, K.C., who prosecuted the case for the crown, has made such representations to the Attorney-General, that when Blythe comes up for trial, Nov. 18, the charge against him will be reduced to manslaughter. Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright says, however, that no one has any authority for any such statement, and that no such course has been decided by the Department.

The order of the court annulling the death sentence was immediately taken so that Blythe now never has been legally condemned to death.

Aeroplanes' Flights.

New York, Sept. 30.—Wilbur Wright circled the great statue of Liberty at the entrance of New York harbor in his aeroplane yesterday, while in the upper city two huge dirigible balloons fell ingloriously to earth.

Wilbur Wright made three sensational flights and Curtiss made one brief, though successful, test flight of 30 seconds' duration. Capt. Baldwin, with his dirigible landed in the Hudson River less than an hour after the start, while Tomlinton, after remaining in the air from 11.36 a.m. until 1.30 p.m., came to earth near White Plains, 22 miles from his starting point, after the oil tanks began to leak.

Sugar and Paper From Corn.

Pittsburg, Sept. 30.—It is reported that at a factory erected at Murrysville by Pittsburg capitalists to test the value of a process for the manufacture of sugar, paper pulp, and renatured alcohol from Indian corn, sugar equal to that made from Southern cane, and the best grades of book and printing paper are being produced, at about one-half the present cost

Spain Celebrating.

Madrid, Sept. 30.—Madrid was beflagged and illuminated last night in celebration of the success of the Spanish army in Africa, which were crowned yesterday by the occupation of Mount Guruga, the Moorish stronghold.

Crowds fill the Puerta del Sol and the surrounding streets, acclaiming the news which marks a glorious ending of the war and the early return of the troops.

Fell on Circular Saw.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.—Alfred Bayton fell on a circular saw in a mill at Caledonia yesterday. His right arm was cut off just below the shoulder, and another cut that required 75 stitches runs from under the pit of his left arm across his back, part of the shoulder being cut off. One leg is also badly cut. He was on the operating table at the City Hospital for three hours, but may recover.

Accident Fakirs Sentenced.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—Yesterday was sentence day in the court of King's bench. Nicolo Delgrasset was given ten years for the attempted murder of a countryman.

The men who were implicated in the big conspiracy to defraud public utility companies by faking up accidents, were also sentenced. Aloff got five years, Shykofsky two and a half years, and Callsoff one year.

Alderman Holds Seat.

Peterboro, Ont., Sept. 30.—Proceedings to unseat Ald. J. J. Turner of Peterboro were dismissed yesterday by Judge Huycke, the petitioner, A. Kingscote, presenting no evidence.

The alderman was charged with taking contracts from the city while a member of the council.

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the offerings consisted of 1200 cattle, 400 sheep, 400 lambs, 650 hogs and 150 calves. Cattle prices have advanced 25c to 50c per hundred pounds since Monday, in spite of liberal offerings, but an active trade was done.

The market for sheep was steady under a fair demand, and sales at 3½c per lb. The demand for calves was very good, but supplies were small. Sales were made at $2 to $10 each. Can't Prevent Canadians Crossing.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 30.—There is nothing in the law which can prevent the 600 or more Canadian men and women from coming to this side of the river daily to work in American shops and offices, even though the Canadians maintains residences in the Dominion.

That is the opinion given by Daniel J. Keefe, commissioner general of immigration, in reply to the inquiry of the common council.

MR. WATSON SETS THE "GATES" A-JAR

James Gates, Mr. Burnham's Star Witness, Unhinged---Mr. Justice McMahon, After Hearing Part of His Astounding Story, Declares Him Utterly Unworthy of Belief----Gates Testifies to Having Been Paid $50 to Provide Witnesses for Mr. Burnham for Use in the Protest Proceedings---This Part of His Story Corroborated by Documentary Evidence Prepared by Mr. Burnham.

Wednesday afternoon's proceedings at the trial of the West Peterborough Election petition was the most interesting and entertaining of any session of the court. In the first place, immediately after luncheon developed what may be regarded in sporting parlance, as first blood for the respondent. Mr. Du Vernet, counsel for Mr. Burnham, the petitioner, announced that he had no further evidence to offer in respect of eleven charges, of bribery against R. H. Leary, W. S. Davidson and J. P. Bryson. Close upon this the star witness of the petitioner, James Gates, who was given fifty dollars by Mr. Burnham, paid by cheque on the Bank of Nova Scotia, by Mr. Moore, agent for the petitioner, to procure evidence, came into the box or rather took possession of the court. He had an air of swagger and self conceit which was not belied during the course of his examination, for he even took occasion to criticise the manner of conducting Court proceedings in Canada, in dictating things that would not be allowed in an Old Country Court of Justice. He also condescended to put the cross-examining counsel right, to make him know his place. His catholicity of condescension extended also to Mr. Justice McMahon—on the latter asking him a question whose nature could not be caught in the "press gallery" —which in the witness' opinion was evidently improper—the witness was heard to say, "Your Lordship, that question has no bearing upon the point." The witness showed a deplorable looseness of ethics asserting without a blush that he would take a false oath if he were well paid for it. His manner of giving evidence often stirred the court room to laughter, which their Lordships so evidently shared that they could not consistently reprove the spectators. But his witness box buffoonery at last palled; taken in conjunction with the astoundingly contradictory character of his testimony, it led to his own undoing, for in the middle of his cross examination by Mr. Watson, Mr. Justice McMahon intimated to the latter that it was unnecessary to waste the time of the court, by further examination of the witness. No weight could be attached to his evidence, as he was willing to swear that white was black and it was not necessary to bring any witnesses to contradict his evidence. The public interest in the case seems to be cumulative, the attendance at Wednesday afternoon's session being the largest at any time since the opening of the case on Monday morning.

W. J. Meharry

Was the first witness after luncheon. He remembered being in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms on the afternoon of election day but could not describe the little room. He had not been in there. He had seen several people going in there but knew nothing about what was going on inside.

Charles Williams

Charles Williams said that he was a labourer at the Canadian General Electric Works. He was at the Liberal Committee rooms on election day with Mr. Harry Butler. It was between 4 and 5 o'clock. He said he walked up into a room more out of curiosity than anything else. He saw some faces he knew but he did not know the names. He saw some men coming out of a little room. He saw Butler going into the room and was there a few minutes. Witness himself had gone into the room immediately after. He saw Mr. Leary there. The latter put a $2 bill on the table and covered it with a card board box and witness picked it up. He had been asked where he voted. He went down stairs and the same gentleman had followed Butler down stairs. He and Butler got into a rig and were driven off to vote. Witness had been asked to sign a declaration and had refused. He had been asked to go and see Mr. Stratton.

To Mr. Watson, witness said that he was working yesterday morning. He had not seen anybody about his evidence. He had not told anybody what he knew. He did not know Gates nor did he know who subpoenaed him. Word had been sent to him at noon at the C.G.E. that he was wanted to give evidence and he had come straight up. He had gone to the Liberal Committee rooms out of curiosity. He might have been upstairs half an hour and left there about 4.30 o'clock. He had never seen Mr. Davidson there, that he could swear to. He had not known Mr. Davidson until he came to see him. He did not know anyone that he saw at the committee rooms by name. He did not know Ashley, Alsept or Harland. He saw Mr. Leary in and out of the large room. He had been introduced to Mr. Leary, who said, "All right, I'll see you in a few minutes. He had said that to Butler and himself. There was quite a few in the big room, 40 or 50 he thought, sitting around, smoking and talking. Mr. Leary spoke first when he went in. He said, "Are you Mr. Williams," and witness said, "Yes." He asked where witness voted and he had replied "at McGill's store." He explained that Mr. Leary had put the money down on the table, partially covered it over with a paste board box and witness had picked up the money. Afterwards Mr. Leary had looked at his watch and said, "We have to hurry up." Mr. Leary had followed him down on to the street and had put him and Butler into rigs in which they were taken to vote. Witness said he did not vote then. He had voted in the morning.

"You were prepared to play a trick?"

"Well, I did so."

Witness said that he had gone to vote with his brother in the morning. He had been in the Conservative committee rooms in the afternoon. No one there had suggested that he go over to the other rooms. Butler was there with him. Witness had not been in the Conservative rooms in the morning. He went there some time between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He had been talking to Alex. Hutchinson in the Conservative rooms. Money was never mentioned. He had not been talking about it to Butler. He did not go there to get money but perhaps he might have taken it if he could have got it. Witness had seen seven or eight men come out of the little room at the Liberal rooms. Witness maintained that he had not sold his vote. He and Butler had talked about it going home that day.

He had been at Mr. Moore's office that afternoon (Wednesday) witness admitted. He went there at 1.30 o'clock. Mr. Moore and Mr. Jones were there. There was no one else there. No one took him there. He might have been there ten minutes.

DIRECTORS HAVE A SURPLUS OF $808.37 FROM THE FAIR

Peterborough Fair Directors Held a Meeting Last Evening--Are Much Pleased With Results---Exhibition Was the Best Ever Held Here---Dates of Next Year's Show Will be September 14th, 15th and 16th.

The Peterborough Fair directors held a meeting last evening and wound up the business in connection with this year's fair. The President, Mr. R. H. Leary, was in the chair, and the following members were present: Messrs. Geo. Elliott, William Collins, J. J. Turner, Sr., S. A. Oke, W. Conway, J. H. Garbutt, Cruikshanks, and the Secretary, Mr. F. J. A. Hall.

Mr. Leary stated that it must be a matter of great satisfaction to the directors to know that their hard work of the year had been crowned with success. The fair had been the best that was ever held, financially and otherwise.

Mr. Hall presented a statement of receipts and disbursements. The receipts were $4,524.50, and the disbursements were $3,716.23, leaving a balance on hand of $808.37. There were 12,050 paid admissions.

The dates for next year's Fair were fixed as September 14th, 15th, and 16th. The suggestion of Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., to have a four days' Fair did not meet with general favour, although the matter was not definitely decided, it having been thought better to leave the matter until there was a larger number present. The accommodation that is provided is not conducive to extending the Fair to four days.

The accounts were read by the Secretary and recommended to be paid.

A public meeting to consider a proposition to purchase the fair grounds will be held early in October.

The meeting then adjourned.

MAINE IS FLOODED

Widespread Damage to Railway Property and Crops—Number of Towns Isolated and Farmers Driven From Lowlands.

ONE DEATH ALREADY

Portland, Me., Sept. 30th.—North Maine is being swept by a flood which already has resulted in one death, caused widespread damage to railway property and crops, isolated a number of towns and driven scores of farmers from the low lands. Forty guests of the Silver Lake Hotel at Kaithadi Iron Works are camping on the hills for fear the hotel will be swept away. The rains of the past week have swollen the rivers to freshet pitch. Millions of feet of logs are jammed above the railway bridge and are a menace to villages below. Chas Keefe, an engineer on the Bangor & Arostook Railway, was killed yesterday, when his train crashed into a washout.

Large New Gasoline Yacht For Viamede's Guests in 1910

Mr. and Mrs. William Graham, of "Viamede" returned yesterday from Toronto, where they purchased a new gasoline launch, which they will place at the service of their guests next summer. It is a speedy, trim craft, built not only for comfort, but for a certain amount of speed, and as it will easily accommodate about 25 persons, the guests of Viamede are assured of a good time during the summer season of 1910. Mr. Graham states that the past summer was the most successful they ever experienced and despite the handicap of a late beginning of the regular season Viamede had a large number of visitors, larger than ever before. This summer resort was rebuilt last spring and on commodious, cool and cosy lines and has won many patrons during the past few years. The proprietor will begin early to make preparations for an even better season next year and they fully expect that the lakes will continue to grow more popular as it becomes more widely known.

MOTHER'S BODY FOUND FLOATING IN RIVER BY HER LITTLE SONS

They Had Paddled Out to Tow in What They Believed to be a Bundle of Rags, and Were Horrified at the Sight That Met Their View.

Examiner Special.

Detroit, Sept. 29.—Playing about the river bank yesterday, the two young sons of Mrs. Peter Yax discovered what they supposed to be a bundle of rags floating down in midstream. The boys decided they would bring the strange bundle ashore, and procuring a small boat, paddled out after it. As they drew near the bundle suddenly turned over, and the children were horrified to behold their mother's dead face peering at them from just beneath the surface.

Screaming with fright at what they believed to be some terrible illusion, the little fellows hurried the boat back to shore, and told what they had witnessed. A hasty search showed Mrs. Yax to be missing from her home nearby, and the searchers turned their attention to the river. The body was towed in, but life had been extinct for some time. The woman was subject to heart disease, and it is supposed fell into the river when suffering from a sudden seizure.

Young Englishman in Court for Being Drunk.

An Englishman of Lakefield came to the city yesterday afternoon and was unable to return until to-day. He said that he was suffering from an ailment and went into an hotel where he took a drink of whiskey and port wine, which apparently did not agree with him. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. His Worship allowed him to go and he departed with many thanks.

Evidence in Rebuttal of Some of Petitioner's Charges Heard This Morning---Witnesses Swear That Mr. Leary Was in North Monaghan at Time He Is Alleged to Have Been Paying Out Money in the Committee Rooms----Respondent is Setting Up an Alibi in These Charges---James Harrison Was in the Little Room and Got No Money and Saw None There---Wouldn't Go To Solicitors' Office To-day

At this morning's session of the West Peterborough Election trial the petitioner finished his evidence in connection with what have been referred to during the sittings as the "Leary" charges and evidence for the respondent on those charges was commenced.

Several witnesses swore to Mr. Leary being at May's School house in North Monaghan at the time that witnesses earlier in the case had said he was paying them in the committee rooms.

James Harrison

The first witness called, said, "I live in Peterborough. I was at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms on election day, about three o'clock. I saw policeman Meharry there. I left there about four o'clock. I was in the big room and also the small room. I saw two or three going in. There was nobody there when I went in. Mr. Leary came in later. I was about five or six yards from the door of the small room. I saw no card box there. I went into the lavatory. I was told afterwards that it was Mr. Leary who came in.

To Mr. Watson.—"Have been here four years. Have no connection with the others who gave evidence. It may have been half past four when I left committee rooms."

To Mr. Justice cahon.— " I had a vote."

To Mr. Watson.—I voted as near five o'clock as possible. I strolled about after leaving the rooms. Just before I left I saw a man who I was afterwards told was Mr. Leary. I don't know whether what I was told was right or wrong. I did not see Mr. Stratton there. I saw two or three men go into one of the little rooms. I was sitting at south side of little room. I have had three subpoenas. One was given me last night and one this morning. I was not at Solicitor's office and wouldn't go, I wanted nothing to do with solicitors.

Mr. Watson.—"You might have got $50."

Witness.—"I don't want $50 that way."

To His Lordship."I went into the small room to get to a lavatory."

Thomas Nicholls was called upon and did not answer; Robert Nicholls appeared at the call but was not required.

Mr. DuVernet announced that he had no further evidence to offer on charges 7, 11 and 187, referring to Gates and Ashley and Mr. Watson asked to have these charges dismissed.

Their Lordships decided that they would hear evidence upon the other side in regard to a general group of charges, involving Alsept, Ashley, Harland, Sidney Pope, Butler and Williams and Mr. Watson proceeded to call witnesses, the first being

Arthur McClellan

Who stated that he lived in Peterborough and had been here fourteen years. Witness was at Babb's Lane, No. 2 Ward in the West part of the town on election day. He was there all day, except perhaps half an hour. He left there at about a quarter to three and came to the Royal Bank. Witness was outside scrutineer. He reached the Bank a few minutes before 3 and stayed there a few minutes, going back to the polling subdivision. He would reach there 5 or 10 minutes after 3 and was there the rest of the day. Witness saw Mr. R. H. Leary that day at his polling division in Babb's Lane. This was a few minutes after he had returned. It was between 10 and 20 minutes after three. Mr. Leary drove out and asked how the vote was coming in and drove away. He could not say whether there was anybody with him or not. There was no question about it being Mr. Leary. His division was just an average one. Witness had looked after the canvassing in that division. Nothing illegal or wrong had occurred there. He was quite sure of that.

To Mr. Du Vernet. —Witness said that he had never heard Liberals complain of how the election was being conducted.

"You are not the kind to do duty work? There on Saturday night? Couldn't say he saw Leary there. Outside scrutineer. Mr Leary was chairman of ward, but witness would not be positive who appointed him scrutineer. He had got poll books at the committee rooms but could not say from whom. It might have been from Mr. O'Brien or Mr. Leary. Mr. O'Brien was looking after the rooms. Mr. Leary was looking after getting the votes. Witness had only been away from the polling sub-division about half an hour. It was about seven minutes to 3 that he reached the bank. He could not swear whether Mr. Leary had brought any one up with him or not. He could not swear that he got out of the rig. Witness reported to Mr. Leary names of those who had not voted up till then. He would not say if Mr. Leary had stayed five minutes or not.

George N. Gordon

Said he was a barrister in Peterborough and partner of Mr. O'Connell's and was practising here at the time of the election. Mr. Gordon was inside scrutineer at Mr. May's School house in North Monaghan and was there all day. He knew Mr. R. H. Leary and had seen him in North Monaghan that afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock. It was between 10 and 15 minutes after 4 o'clock witness would say. Witness could not say how long Mr. Leary stayed there but he thought he was there 10 or 15 minutes. It might have been longer. Witness had talked to Mr. Leary. He thought it had taken him about half an hour to drive out in the morning. The distance might be about four miles. Mr. Leary reached the place about 10 or 15 minutes past 4 o'clock. Witness recollected looking at his watch to see how long he would have to stay there. He did not remember seeing Mr. Leary arrive there.

To Mr. Du Vernet, the witness said that he had acted as scrutineer on one previous election. He had no idea of the distance from the polling place to the committee rooms. He thought it was over 3 miles and perhaps 4 miles. There were votes polled after the time Mr. Leary was there. He thought there were three votes polled afterwards.

Mr. Gordon explained that he had come into the court room yesterday and had heard a witness say that Mr. Leary paid him after 4 o'clock. He had remarked that that was impossible as Mr. Leary had been out in North Monaghan at that time. That was why he had been called. He could not tell what time he left the polling sub-division. He could not say what time he reached the committee rooms.

A map was produced to show the distance from the committee rooms to May's School house but it turned out to be a map of the city and was useless for the purpose.

Arthur Morgan

Said that he had lived in Peterborough all his life and recollected election day. He was driving a rig for Mr. Leary and was with him at times. He started out at 10 o'clock with the rig, getting in at the committee rooms. Mr. Leary went with

UNKNOWN MAN THREW HIMSELF FROM BRIDGE OVER THE NIAGARA

Two Men Saw Him Make the Plunge and His Body Enter the Water---No Clue to His Identity and Remains Have Not Yet Been Recovered.

Examiner Special.

Niagara Falls, Sept. 30.—Jumping off the upper steel arch bridge into the Niagara River, an unknown man plunged to death yesterday morning. There is no clue to his identity. The tragedy was witnessed by two electricians from the Canadian Power Co., Norman Robido and Frank O'Neil, who were crossing the bridge and who saw the man make the plunge. They rushed to the side of the bridge and saw the body enter the water, into which it disappeared for a few seconds. It rose, face upwards, but the features were not plainly discernible. The hair was dark, and the clothing of dark material. For an hour after his suicide, the dead man's hat, a black derby, remained where it had blown near an abutment of the bridge. Before it could be recovered, the wind blew it into the river, and this clue to the suicide's identity was lost. Up to an early hour this morning the body had not been recovered.

HOW PROTECTION OF WOOL WORKS OUT IN THE U. S.

(Weekly Sun.)

La Follette's Magazine gives a striking comparison of how the American wool grower is treated on the one hand and the American woolen manufacturer is dealt with on the other, under the new United States tariff:

Long, coarse combing wool, of the kind grown in the Middle West, is, La Follette's says, entered as class 11, and is charged a duty of 12c per lb., washed or unwashed, when imported into the United States. Experts estimate that the scouring of the wool, in preparation for weaving, will cause a shrinkage of 17½ per cent., and that 50,000 lbs. of wool will make 36,300 lbs. of cloth. The duty on 50,000 lbs. of wool, at 12c per lb., is $6,000; that is the measure of protection the farmer in the Middle West receives on his product. The protection on clothing made from this wool, in the interests of the clothing manufacturer, is 44c per lb., and on 36,300 lbs. of cloth would figure out at $15,972.

The wool-grower gets $6,000 worth of protection on 50,000 lbs. of wool; the manufacturer gets nearly $16,000 worth of protection on 36,300 lbs. of cloth made from that wool. The difference between six and sixteen comes out of the farmer's pocket when he buys clothing for himself and family. And that is about the way it will figure out here if Canadian manufacturers succeed in their efforts to get more protection for our woollen industry.

INTERNATIONAL UNIONS AND INTERNATIONAL PEACE.

(Weekly Sun.)

Objection was made at the recent annual convention of the Manufacturers' Association to the connection between labour unions in Canada with like organizations in the United States. The objection appears to be based on the statement, made on different occasions, that American officers in these international organizations use their positions to foment industrial troubles in Canada to the end that American industries may profit at the expense of Canadian rivals. Very much the same statement was made in the United States by American corporation interests, when a Canadian, who happened to be an officer of an international locomotive engineers' organization, superintended a railway strike in Georgia.

The basis of the objection is about as flimsy in one case as it is in the other. Labour has been organized on both sides of the line for the purpose of securing a fair share of the rewards from the joint efforts of labour and capital. Leaders of the movement see clearly enough that the interests they represent are the same in Canada as they are in the United States, and that labour forces on both sides of the line will be stronger by union than they will be if each side is left to fight its own battle. Heads of corporations, Canadian and American, see this also, and hence it is that the latter are endeavouring to create suspicion among Canadian labourers on the one hand and among American labourers on the other.

PETITIONER'S CHARGES HEARD THIS MORNING

him after dinner at 1 o'clock. They drove around to the different polling divisions in the city. This took an hour or so. They got back to the committee rooms around half past two or three. Witness had left Mr. Leary at the committee rooms. Witness next took Mr. Leary out at a quarter to 4. Witness drove Mr. Leary out to Babb's Lane. We had to go to May's School house I did not think we would have time. He had been ordered by Mr. Leary to come to the committee rooms at a quarter to four. Witness had looked at the post office clock coming down from East City. They had left the Committee rooms at once.

He had gone to May's School house and stayed 15 or 20 minutes there. Mr. Leary drove back and got back at about ten minutes to 5 o'clock. They were on the way going out and coming in. They called at several polling places going out and at one coming back. He did not remember what these places were. He did not remember what particular place he had stopped at coming back. Babb's Lane was one of the places visited on the way out. It was not on the straight road to May's School house. He had given the exact times that they left and came back to the committee rooms. Witness could not say whether Mr. Leary had remained in the committee rooms when he left him there or not. Witness had not been in the upstairs committee rooom that afternoon. Before taking Mr. Leary out at a quarter to 4 he had driven David Conroy over to East City and came back. Witness thought the distance from the committee roooms was two miles and a half. Their horse at that time was pretty well "dished in." In the state the horse was in, it would take half an hour to drive the distance if they had gone straight out.

Mr. Du Vernet put the witness through an exhaustive examination as to how he fixed the different times. He did not succeed in shaking his evidence as to the times mentioned, although the witness admitted that he might have remained at the committee rooms until 4 o'clock instead of a quarter to 4 as he had said.

R. R. Hall

I am a practising barrister, was member of Parliament for Peterborough for one term and was somewhat active in last election. I had not anything to do with organization. My work was principally in connection with the public speaking. I was in the committee rooms, practically every Saturday night. The room down stairs was used for public meetings. It was about the size of this court room. The room above is the same size. The stairs are on the Western end of room. The upstair room is pretty large, it was provided with tables devoted to the five wards in the city. Some nights there would be from 75 to 200. Don't know anything about the organization. I was in committee rooms on election day. went down to rooms before nine o'clock and was practically there all day, in the roms upstairs. I was there to see whether the matter of scrutineers was attended to. There were voters' lists in the large rooms and the two small rooms. The number of persons present during the day varied from 35 to 100, especially during the afternoon. I was in either the one small room or other, in and out practically the whole day. There was nothing like a row of men waiting to enter the rooms as described by witness, it was quite impossible. When I came back from luncheon at a little after two, I think Mr. Leary was there. He left the committee rooms at about 3 o'clock. He went out to see how the vote was being polled in No. 2 Ward before going to North Monaghan. I fix the time by a conversation with Mr. Leary as to the possibility of his visiting the Ward and going to North Monaghan. He came back about half past three from visiting the polls. He gave his report to me. He was there about fifteen minutes. We went to the West room, to discuss the matter of his report from the Ward. This occupied the greater part of the time after he came back. He left at a qurter to four.

Mr. Watson.—Six witnesses swear that Mr. Leary was there between four and half past four.

Mr. Hall.—There's not a particle of truth in it.

Witness continuing said, "I don't know Ashley or Alsept or Gates or any of these persons. I saw Meharry there. I noticed him particularly because I knew him to be a Conservative and was surprised to see him there. Don't recollect seeing Bartlett then. The others there were W. S. Davidson, Dickson Davidson, John O'Brien, Mr. Leary, Jimmy O'Brien, J. D. Clarke and others. Didn't see any money. I heard that people were sent to the rooms for money. I was spoken to about money but said there was no money going. Mr. Elgin Myers was down stairs with voters' list to show where electors voted. The first occasion I had knowledge of Ashley was on Sept 21st. He and Gates came to my office. I had heard that Gates was anxious to sell himself and as the protest term was near I felt that information might be desirable. The first time I saw Gates he came alone and introduced himself. He said he heard there was money going in connection with the protest. He said he was a very important witness. He said I am going to swear that I got $5 from Mr. Davidson in Mr. Stratton's presence and that I got $2 from Mr. Leary at the Committee rooms. He said he would refrain from giving evidence if he got $400. I told him he had better see Mr. Stratton and make his proposition to him. He called a day or two after and asked if Mr. Stratton was in town. I told Frank Farren that if he saw Gates he was to tell him that Mr. Stratton was in town.

James Gates and William Ashley came to the office. Mr. Stratton and I were there. Ashley said that he, too, would swear falsely if he got $200. Messrs. Davidson and Leary were in Mr. Davidson's office. Gates said that if he got $400 he was willing to make an affidavit that he was offered no money, got no money, or saw no money paid, and if not he would swear that he got $5.00 from Mr. Stratton and Mr. Davidson, and $2 from Mr. Leary. Ashley said that if he got $2 he would take an affidavit that he got no money or saw none paid, and if not he would swear that he got $2 from rM. Leary. I told them that Mr. Davidson and Mr, Leary were in Mr. Davidson's office, and that I thought they had better make the proposition to them as they were interested. Gates said that he had no objection and I went out and found Mr. Davidson and Mr. Leary in the office adjoining. They came in and Gates and Ashley repeated their proposition to them. "I said to Mr. Davidson, "You are interested; what have you to say about it?" Mr. Davidson said "There's not a word of truth in it. I wouldn't give ten cents." Mr. Leary said the same. I said to Gates that his proposition was impossible. Gates got up and said, "Come on Ashley. Good evening. We will meet you at the sessions with a bunch of Englishmen that will surprise you."

"Mr. Hall stated that he had not prepared an affidavit for Gates or Ashley and as far as he had known there was none. Gates had said nothing about getting $50 from Mr. Moore, and he had not known about it until he heard Gates' evidence yesterday.

Cross Examination.

Mr. Du Vernet, in cross-examination, asked about the declarations

"You went out into the country with a bunch of declarations and a Justice of the Peace the day after you got the statement of particulars?"

Mr. Hall stated that he had taken out four declarations.

"How many were there altogether?"

"Quite a number."

"In the neighbourhood of 100?"

"I would say so."

"The particulars were indefinite," he explained," and we thought we should get more information."

"You know that was improper?"

"No, sir."

"Mr. Watson intimated that Mr. Burnham had done the same thing. "One declaration from one witness." remarked Mr. Du Vernet.

"Then money has been paid for declarations; it has been made the subject of some very caustic remarks," said Mr. Justice McMahon.

Mr. Du Vernet examined Mr. Hall as to the meeting with Gates, and Ashley.

"Were you trying to entrap them?"

"I was trying to get at the truth."

"Don't you think you had had a pretty rotten defence when you had to adopt such means?"

"I wanted to find out the truth."

"You thought it advisable?"

"I thought it expedient, yes."

"When Gates made that proposition to you, why didn't you kick him out of the office?"

"I had heard Gates was at the head of a ring of Englishmen, and I wanted to find out something about his character and disposition." Mr. Hall stated that he might have pointed out to some people the punishment for accepting a bribe if he had been asked by them about it. He explained that he had had Mr. Davidson and Mr. Leary present at his office because they were interested in Gates' story, and he thought they should hear of it.

Questioned about his duties at the committee rooms on election day. Mr. Hall said that he had no duty that was compulsory, but he was there to see that the drivers and scrutineers got out to do their work. He had been in both the small rooms up stairs and also in the big room. He had seen Mr. Stratton there. The latter was down stairs, he thought, between 4 and 5 o'clock, and upstairs before that time. Mr. Hall recollected doing some work in the east room with Hugh Darke and others.

At this point Court adjourned for luncheon at 1.05 o'clock.

PACKING APPLES FOR SHIPMENT

From Farm and Dairy.

(The Toronto Globe.)

A despatch from Glasgow by the Canadian Associated Press reports complaints against the packing of apples from Canada for the British market. The largest fruit dealer in the north of Scotland asserts that formerly the low grade apples were packed in the bottom of the barrel, which necessitated the opening of both ends. This year they are packed in the middle, and every barrel must be emptied for inspection. The despatch adds that Canadian apples hold the first place in the Glasgow market, and when honestly packed they command the best prices.

These complaints should increase the zeal of all Government officials in Canada having to do with the fruit trade. It is not only a scandal and a disgrace to Canada that a Canadian fruit mark cannot be accepted as honest on the British market, but it is also ruinous to Canadian trade. Every inspector and every honest fruit merchant should join hands in a persistent effort to expose and punish the dishonesty of such as bring the trade into disrepute.

Publicity is a great deterrent. Every instance of bad packing or false marking should be punished severely and published widely. The experience of The Globe in a suit for libel brought by a dishonest packer several years ago resulted in an amendment of the Ontario law so as to allow as privileged the publication of such official announcements. Advantage should be taken of that amendment to put the fear not only of a fine but also of public reprobation on all who for dishonest and selfish purposes destroy business confidence either in Canada or abroad. No leniency should be shown to such short-sighted dishonesty, either by the officials, by the courts, or by the Press.

FRUIT PACKING AND MARKETING

From Farm and Dairy.

One of the sessions of the American Pomological meeting in St. Catharines, Ont., was devoted to fruit packing and marketing and was in charge of Mr. A. McNeill, Chief, Fruit Division, Ottawa. The chief referred briefly to the co-operative fruit growers' associations of Canada. He said that the best one is the St. Catharines Cold Storage and Forwarding Company. There has been much progress in co-operation in the past 15 years. "Box-packing" was dealt with by Dr. S. W. Fletcher, of Blacksburg, Va. A paper on "Co-operation in Fruit Products" by Mr. J. B. Dargits, Campio, Cal., was read at the meeting, the writer not being present. Mr. Dargits is secretary of the California Fruit Exchange. An example of the value of co-operation was told by Mr. Robt. Thompson, St. Catharines, Ont. These three papers will be published in part or in full in a later issue.

THE "GATES" A-JAR

He had not signed any paper there. Mr. Leary did not ask any one on the street, whether Butler or the witness had voted, as far as he remembered. Witness denied that he had told any body that there was no truth in the charge. He was not asked if the charge was true. Some one had read the charge out and asked witness to sign it.

Ernest Bartlett

Ernest Bartlett, the next witness remembered being in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms on election day and being upstairs. There were, he said, a number of men in a row waiting to get in a small room upstairs. He had seen three men go in. The door was opened to let them in one at a time. The witness had seen Mr. Gus. Hay go in first. A few minutes after Mr. Leary came to the door and let a man in. The door was closed. He had gone over to the men who were waiting and had asked them questions.

"The witness started to tell what they had said but Mr. Watson objected and he was not allowed to give the conversation.

"Was any money offered you?" asked Mr. Du Vernet.

"No, sir, I was not there for money."

In answer to a question witness said that there were 10 or 12 men in the line and there were more the second time he visited the rooms. He informed Mr. Du Vernet that he was foreman of the news room at the Times office.

"T. Mr. Watson, the witness said that he had gone to the Liberal rooms about three o'clock in the afternoon.

"Why did you go there? As a spy?" asked Mr. Watson.

"No, sir, I went there because I had been told that money was being paid out there and that there was a tough crowd there."

Witness said that he saw Messrs. Walter S. Davidson, Gus Hay and R. R. Hall there but did not remember seeing Messrs. Glover, Bryson, Jesse Irwin or Mr. Conroy there.

He reiterated his statement that there was a number of men in a row close together at the door of the room." They seemed eager to get into the room," he said.

"How did you know they were eager? Did you see the eagerness in their faces?"

"Yes, sir, and by their actions."

"Like sardines in a box," suggested Mr. Justice McMahon."

"I give you fair warning that a dozen witnesses say that no such thing occurred in the committee rooms," said Mr. Watson.

"I don't care what you say or they say. I'm telling the truth," returned the witness.

Witness said that he stayed there a minute or two the first time and had started up street to the committee rooms to tell them there what was going on when he met P. C. Meharry and had gone back with him.

"Do you think that was honourable conduct?" asked Mr. Watson.

"Certainly so," remarked Mr. Du Vernet.

"My learned friend is speaking for his client?" said Mr. Watson.

"I speak for myself, absolutely," returned the counsel for the petitioner.

Witness said that it was about 3.30 o'clock when he left the Liberal rooms the last time.

Wrong Man Called

"It was the case of the wrong Mr. Mitchell with the next witness.

Robert J. Mitchell was called and testified that he had not been in either of the committee rooms during the election.

The witness was dismissed. Mr. Du Vernet remarking that he was evidently the wrong man.

T. D. MacGregor

T. D. MacGregor, the next witness stated that he was a general contractor and had called at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms at 4.30 o'clock on election day. He had gone up stairs for the purpose of finding out where he voted. He had seen groups standing about in the committee rooms. In one room was Mr. Dickson Hall with the voters' list and a telephone. He saw another room, the door of which was closed but he had not seen anybody going in there.

To Mr. Watson, the witness said that he had not noticed people standing in line as at a theatre. He did not remember having seen Mr. Leary there.

James Gates' Story.

James Gates was next called.

To Mr. Du Vernet the witness said that he was not a voter at the last election. He was at the Liberal Committee roms on election day. He knew Mr. Leary and had seen him there on election day. He had not seen him until nearly four o'clock. Mr. Leary had placed a two dollar bill under a card board box, and witness had taken it and put it in his pocket.

The witness was cross-examined at great length by Mr. Watson and the audience was convulsed with laughter at some of the replies made by the little English witness.

"How long have you been in this country?" asked Mr. Watson, in beginning the examination.

"Twenty-seven months."

"Where did you come from? from London?

"No, sir; from Chel[illegible]."

"What did you do?"

"I am a galvanized iron worker."

"I understand you have had considerable police court experience?"

"That's my business. It's got nothing to do with this case."

"You had police court experience?"

"Yes, sir."

"As a defendant?"

"No, sir; as summonsing officer for the Chelsea Temperance Labour Loan Society."

"As defendant??"

"No, sir; as prosecutor." (Laughter.)

"I suppose you picked up quite a bit there, then?"

"I did not pick up anything."

"Well, you learned something then?"

"Well, learned is not picked up," remarked the witness.

"You did learn something, then; where do you keep it?"

"Right here in this little bump," said the witness, tapping his head while the audience laughed.

"Don't wink at me; it makes me laugh," remarked Mr. Watson to the witness.

"You have been taking an active interest in this matter?"

"No, sir."

"You have been subpoenaing witnesses?"

"One witness."

"Whom did you subpoena?"

"I don't know who it was."

"What did you take to him?"

"The declaration and one dollar."

"The what?"

"I mean the subpoena."

"Who gave it to you?"

"Mr. Moore did."

"Oh, you have seen Mr. Moore? How often?"

"Not more than three times."

"When did you see him last?"

"Last evening."

"See him to-day?"

"No, not to-day."

"No?"

"No. I did not see him to-day."

"How long were you with him last night?"

"I was settling up accounts."

"What accounts?"

"Oh, pay for the witnesses."

"You paid the witnesses?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you start paying witnesses?"

"On Monday."

"What have you been paying them?"

"A dollar a day. I had a list of them."

"Have you got your list with you?"

"Yes; I have it; you can see it," said the witness, fishing in his trouser pocket and producing the document in question, which Mr. Watson examined and then laid it down on the table behind him.

Witness Gates put in an objection to this.

"It's not fair," he said, "to have everybody looking over that."

"They wouldn't allow it in England. Not half what's going on here."

"Who's looking over it?" asked Mr. Watson.

"Mr. Stratton picked it up and looked at it. I saw him," said Gates.

His peace of mind was restored when Mr. Watson picked up the document again.

"When were you first in Mr. Moore's office?"

"I never took notice of the date."

"Some months ago?"

"It may have been a month ago."

"You have been in with Mr. Burnham?"

"No, sir."

"What were you doing at election time?"

"Nothing at all."

"How long before?"

"Two or three days."

"What were you working at before?"

"I was working twelve months for the American Cereal Quaker Oats Co."

"Were you out of work after election?"

"Yes, sir; maybe a fortnight."

"Did you vote in the Old Country?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you the kind of a man that would sell his vote?"

"I did not have a vote here."

Would Take Money For His Vote.

"Would you take money for your vote?"

"If the money was all right I would take it. You bet your life."

"That's the way the sort that came out with you would do," remarked Mr. Watson.

"You have been in charge of these immigrants?" he asked the witness.

"I don't want any insinuations from you about immigrants," said Gates, indignantly.

"I paid my passage out here."

"You would sell your vote?"

"I would sell it to-morrow to the highest bidder."

Witness intimated that he would do that in Canada.

"Perhaps he wants to put himself on the same plane as other people," suggested Mr. Justice McMahon.

"Exactly, sir," agreed Gates, beaming genially upon His Lordship.

"Would you do it if you were Irish or Scotch?"

"I might be doing the Highland Fling if I were Scotch," remarked the witness.

"You wanted $400?"

"That's not in this charge."

"Didn't you want $400 from Mr. Davidson or Mr. Hall, or Mr. Stratton?"

"That's not in this charge," reiterated the witness.

"Are you a sort of lawyer?" Mr. Watson wanted to know.

"I have had a little education."

"I want to know if you tried to get $400 from them?"

"Or did they try to get rid of me for $400?" asked Gates in turn.

"You told them that if they gave you $400 you would make an affidavit that you never got money or were in the room on election day?" Who were in the room?"

"Mr. Hall and Mr. Stratton, on the last occasion. I was asked to go there on July 16."

"Asked to go where?" asked Mr. Justice McMahon.

"I was asked a question and arrangements made to have me attend at Mr. Hall's office on Sept. 14."

"Asked by whom?"

"Frank Fairen."

"You were asked to go?"

"On the 13th I was asked to go to Mr. Hall's office on the 14th of September."

Witness said that he had been in Mr. Hall's office on Sept. 14, 15, 16, and 21.

"Who were there on the 21st?"

"Mr. Hall, Mr. Stratton, Ashley, and me."

"At what time?"

"In the evening."

"About what time?"

"About 8 o'clock."

"You stated that if you were given $400 you would make an affidavit swearing that you received no money from R. H. Leary or W. S. Davidson, and that you were paid no money and saw no money paid to Roland H. Curtis or Mickie Murray?"

"I said yes, according to our previous arrangements."

"Did you say that you would make an affidavit, which, if made, would be false?"

"Yes, sir."

Would Make False Affidavit.

"You would make a false affidavit if you got $400?"

"Yes, sir," said the witness unblushingly.

"That would be a good, large sum," suggested Mr. Watson.

"Yes, for Mr. Burnham to get ahold of," answered Gates.

"I would have given it to Mr. Burnham."

Mr. Watson repeated his question.

"Yes, and I would have given it to Mr. Burnham," replied the witness.

"You would be proud of it?"

"If the $400 came back; yes, sir."

"That's the kind of a man you are?"

"Exactly."

"You'll swear falsely for money?"

"Yes, sir, if there's plenty of it."

"What are you laughing at? This is no laughing matter," the counsel for the respondent reminded the witness.

"You are laughing because you are trying to catch me, and I'm laughing because you haven't done it up to now," retorted Gates."

"That's your impression of the nature of an oath?"

"Yes, in Canada."

"You were just the same before you came here?"

"No, sir."

"You have got worse since?"

"I am afraid so."

"You couldn't get much worse?"

"Yes, sir. I think so."

"Do you know that a man who makes a false oath commits perjury?"

"I did not do so."

"Ashley was present at the interview?"

"Yes, sir."

"At the time when you asked for $400 did Ashley say that he would also make an affidavit that he never received any money if he were paid $200?"

"Yes, sir; I think he did."

"Your interests are alike?"

"No, sir; I don't think they are."

"You have no doubt that he would have made the affidavit?"

"That's his business."

"You were told by Mr. Hall that it would be impossible to make such payments?"

"No, sir."

"Ashley says you were."

"I don't care what Ashley says."

"You will contradict him in that?"

"Yes, sir."

'On the day that you told them you would make an affidavit if you got $400 what did Mr. Hall or Mr. Stratton say?"

"Mr. Hall said: 'I am expecting Mr. Leary. I'll see if he has arrived.' He went and opened a door and then said, 'Oh, here you are!' Mr. Leary and Mr. Davidson had been there listening to our conversation. Mr. Hall said to them, 'What do you think of the story?' and they replied: 'Wouldn't give ten cents for it.' I tapped Ashley on the shoulder and said, 'They don't mean to give us the money. They have been fooling us,' and we walked out of the room."

"You were disappointed?"

"I guess so."

"Getting rather sore?"

"Certainly not."

"You did not expect the money?"

"It hardly looked feasible that we'd get it."

"You thought it too much?"

"Not at all too much to leave this country."

"You said that you'd leave if you got $400?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are your promises made to break?"

"Yes, sir."

"You have no honour?"

"Not much."

"You have no regard for an oath?"

"It's all according to who I'm dealing with."

"When you found that you couldn't get the money you tried to get even?"

"I don't think so."

"We'll Meet at the Sessions."

"You recollect saying, "Come on, Ashley. We will meet you at the sessions with a bunch of Englishmen that will surprise you?"

"No, sir."

"When you found that you could not get the money you said that?"

"No, sir. I said "Come on, Ashley," and then "Good evening, gentlemen. Me and Mr. Ashley will meet you at the sessions."

"And you prepared accordingly?"

"With the truth, yes, sir."

"How do you distinguish; will you tell a lie as freely as the truth?"

"For nothing?" asked the witness, amid loud laughter.

"Oh, you draw the line there. You won't tell a lie for nothing?"

"No, sir; not for nothing."

"If there was anything in it you would?"

"Rather."

"You did not forget what you said?"

"I remembered that."

"You did not intend to forget?"

"I knew that I would be here."

"Did you intend to get even with them?"

"I don't know what 'get even' is. It's not in the dictionary."

"Did you tell them that you would knock them out, or words to that effect."

"No, sir."

"You were under subpoena then?"

"Yes, sir."

"Before then you had been subpoenaed, and, notwithstanding that you would have made that affidavit?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you hear about other people's stories?"

"I had nothing to do with them. I never heard their stories."

"You did not know whether their stories were true or not?"

"That's best known to themselves."

"You talked to them?"

"We talked about the $2.00."

"You saw Alsept?"

"I saw him once at Mr. Moore's office."

"See Mark Harland there?"

"No, sir."

"You told Mr. Moore about the cardboard story?"

"What card board story? I did not tell it to Mr. Moore."

"Whom did you tell it to?"

"No one. We talked about it among ourselves. Men who had come through the same trick."

"You told them the story about the money being put down and the box put over it?"

"No, sir. I did not need to tell them. They knew about it."

"What time did you go to the committee rooms on election day?"

"Five and twenty minutes to three."

"How long did you stay there?"

"Until 2 or 3 minutes after 4."

"You must have looked at your watch?"

"The clock had not long struck."

"You left two or three minutes after?"

"As near as I can recollect."

"Had you got the money before the clock struck?"

"No, sir."

"You left how soon after?"

"Straightaway."

"What conversation did you have with Mr. Leary?"

"None before I went in."

"Did you know him?"

"Yes, sir; I knew him from going to Kingston with the 48th Battery."

"There was not a word before you went in?"

"No, sir."

"Who spoke first when you went in?"

"Mr. Leary."

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'I suppose you have done it.'"

"What next?"

"I said, 'Good day, Mr. Leary.'"

"Did you answer him, yes or no?"

"No, sir."

"What then?"

"He Hid It and I Found It."

"He put $2.00 down and walked away. He turned his back so that he would not see me take it. He hid it and I found it."

"He hid it while you were looking?"

"Yes, sir."

"That was a funny way of hiding it. Did he say anything about money?"

"No, sir."

"Did you say anything about money?"

"No, sir, not a word."

"Were you told to take it?"

"No, sir."

"Then why did you take it?"

"Because they all got it."

"How do you know they did? Did you see them get it?"

"No, because they shut the door so I shouldn't see it."

"You did not see any one getting money?"

"No, sir; they were too artful."

"You take an interest in this on account of public morals, I suppose? Are you a friend of Mr. Burnham's?"

"No, sir; not any more than I am of Mr. Stratton's; not as much, perhaps; as I am of Mr. Stratton's, because my wife works for his wife."

"I hope she is better than you," remarked Mr. Watson.

"My wife is a lady," retorted the witness.

"You picked up the $2.00 and slid out?"

"Yes, sure."

"You weren't asked if you were a voter?"

"No, sir."

"No one had asked you to vote?"

"No, sir."

"No one offered you money?"

"To vote?"

"Yes, to vote?"

"They had no occasion to. I hadn't a vote."

"You got it easy?"

"Yes, very."

"Did any one else offer you money?"

"No, sir."

Was Paid Fifty Dollars.

"Did any one else ever pay you any money in connection with the election?"

"Am I bound to answer that question, my Lord?" the witness asked.

Mr. Justice McMahon directed him to answer.

"I am telling the truth," Gates said; "I have been paid."

"Who paid you?"

"Mr. Burnham."

"Himself?"

"No, Mr. Moore."

"When did he pay you?"

"I can't say."

"Before the election?"

"No, sir."

"Since the election?"

"Yes, since the election."

"How much did he pay you?"

"Fifty dollars."

"Where did you get it?"

"At the Bank of Nova Scotia. That's where I cashed the cheque."

"After you had been subpoenaed?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did he pay it for?"

"For my statement."

"You told him that you would have to have it?"

"No, sir."

"There was no bargain?"

"No, sir."

"Who else was there?"

"No one except myself and Mr. Moore."

"The first time you went in?"

"No. The second time."

"How long were you there the second time?"

"I think the statement took about half an hour."

"How soon afterwards were you there?"

"After I had signed the statement."

"What did you go back for?"

"I went out with Mr. Moore to sign the statement."

"You went back and got your cheque?"

"Yes, sir."

"Fifty dollars?"

"Yes."

"Pretty easy that time?"

"Yes."

"What did he give it to you for?"

"For making my statement."

"Did you ask for it?"

'No, sir; it had been arranged that I should be paid $50."

"Had you been talking to Mr. Burnham before that?"

"No, sir."

"When did Mr. Burnham interview you about it?"

"I am not quite sure. I think it was arranged for me to go and see Mr. Burnham and make a statement."

"Who was that arranged with?"

"I can't say; I don't know the gentleman."

"Was that Bartlett?"

"I don't know Bartlett."

"Who was it?"

"I don't know; I could point out the gentleman if he was here."

"How long was it before you made the statement?"

"Two days before."

"You made an appointment to see Mr. Burnham and Mr. Moore."

"Yes, sir."

"In consequence of that you saw Mr. Burnham at Mr. Moore's office?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was Mr. Burnham present when you got the $50?"

"No, sir."

"You had to tell Mr. Burnham and Mr. Moore about the arrangements that had been made?"

"I should think that the other party told them."

"At that time you had a talk about the fifty dollars?"

"No, sir."

"How did Mr. Moore know then?"

"He must have known it."

"During the first interview with Mr. Moore, did you speak of money that time?"

"No, sir.

"When did you first speak to Mr. Moore about money?"

"When he wrote the cheque out."

"What did you go back to his office for?"

"For the fifty dollars."

"I'd like to see the cheque," remarked Mr. Watson.

"It has been produced," replied Mr. Du Vernet.

"I have not seen it. Let me see it, please," answered the counsel for the respondent.

In the meantime he proceeded with the cross examination.

"What date was it?"

"Some time in March," replied Gates, producing a bank book from his pocket, and examining it. "I made a deposit of $20 on the 30th of March. I think it was then.

"Very Nice, Wasn't It?"

"You got that money for half an hour's work?"

"Yes, sir. Very nice, wasn't it." I would like to do another this afternoon."

"One good turn deserves another?"

"Yes, sir."

"You have to stand behind them?"

"That's what the money indicates."

"How often have you seen Mr. Burnham to talk with him?"

"I met him on the street sometimes and there would be a nod."

"How much money have you received from Mr. Burnham or the rest of them?"

"$1 per day subpoena."

"How much from Mr. Kendry?"

"I don't know Mr. Kendry."

"That fifty dollars induced you to make the statement?"

"It's a true statement."

"You might not have made it without receiving the $50?"

"No, sir I might not have. I am not making statements for nothing."

"Where did you go to sign the statement?"

"To a lawyer's office around by the post office."

"Don't you know whose office it was?"

"No, sir, I don't know the lawyers in this town and I don't want to."

"As soon as I signed the statement," witness said, "I swore to it."

"That was a statement under oath?"

"I took my oath that it was true."

"You said that you would make a false statement for $400. Would you make it for $50?"

"No, sir, I could have got $100 for it and nothing would have been said. I supposed I asked too much."

"$400 is your price?"

"Yes, $400 is my price."

"You would not make a false affidavit for less?"

"No, sir."

"That's the price of your conscience."

"Yes, sir."

"I'd like to know if you have been getting more money since?"

"I wish I had. No chance, sir."

"What was to be done for you if this thing succeeded?"

"Dollar a day, sir."

"What was said about you getting anything more?"

"Nothing has been said."

"You don't expect more?"

"Not a fraction."

"$50 covers all that?"

"I came here, free gratis to speak the truth."

"Oh, don't say anything about the truth," said Mr. Watson disgustedly.

"What do you expect?"

"Nothing whatever."

"If you get angry you go a long way?"

"I count as one, sir. I'll meet anything my own weight."

The cheque spoken of by the witness as accompanied by his statement was produced and identified.

"Who wrote this statement?"

"Whose hand writing is this?" asked Mr. Watson reading from the statement. "William Fieres, Johon Pritchard, Joseph Pope, Mark Harland, Arthur Alsept. Gates says these men were all in J. R. Stratton's committee rooms and all got money. He knows the first two got it and is certain the others got it."

"Not me," replied the witness.

"Did you tell them that?"

"I guess I told them that they all got it."

Gates statement in which he made a number of charges as to what he had seen and heard around the Liberal Committee rooms was read.

"Have you told all that took place on election day?"

"Yes, sir."

"But in this affidavit you speak of other charges."

"I saw Leary there more than once."

"When first?"

"About 4 o'clock."

No Weight Attached to His Evidence

At this stage of the proceedings, Mr. Justice McMahon stopped the cross-examination.

"No weight should be attached to this man's evidence," remarked His Lordship. "He has admitted that for a consideration he is willing to swear that black is white. $400 was his limit for making a false affidavit. I don't think I would put any reliability on his testimony or believe anything that this man says."

"I was just joking," witness said to His Lordship.

"It would be a pretty serious joke on any other occasion than an election trial," said His Lordship.

Mr. Du Vernet asked and was granted permission to ask some further questions.

Mr. Watson objected on the ground that his cross-examination had been cut off because the witness had not been considered as reliable.

"He is trying to rehabilitate him," suggested Mr. Justice McMahon.

"When was this matter of $400 first mentioned," asked Mr. Du Vernet.

"Between me and Fairren."

"After you were subpoenaed."

"Yes, sir."

"Witness continuing said that he had been going across to Burnham street when Mr. Fairren drove along and asked him to get into the rig as he was going in the same direction. Mr. Fairren had said to him that he, witness, was mixed up in the election business. Witness had replied, "Yes, some one has let the cat out of the bag and they have got my name." Mr. Fairren said, "It's too bad to have poor Leary dragged into this." Witness had replied, "What do you want me to do. Shoot myself or drown myself?" and Mr. Fairren had asked him how much he wanted to get out of the country. Witness said that he met Fairren again on the 13th of September and he had told him to go up to Hall's office. He had gone there and Mr. Hall had told him that he couldn't give him the money. Witness had said that he might go to Vancouver or that place where it is supposed to be summer all the year round. He could not think of the name of the place in giving his evidence and some one in the court room suggested California which was evidently the correct answer. Mr. Hall had suggested that instead of going away he might come over to their side, say "yes" for their "yes" and "no" for their "no."" He said, the witness testified that there would be six in addition to himself that would swear the same.

"Witness had asked him, "If I get five years for perjury will the six of you go down with me," and Mr. Hall had laughed and asked him to come the next day.

The witness stated that he had gone next day and Mr. Hall had suggested that he need not go away at all and that he might attend the court room and if he was not paid his money he need not appear at all.

"I dont' think it proper to proceed further," said Mr. Justice McMahon.

"The witness has said that he could be bought."

"It's on account of my learned friend joking with me," said the witness.

Mr. Du Vernet asked the witness a few questions about the statement that he had made for Mr. Burnham and then Gates was dismissed.

"It is not necessary to call any evidence to contradict his testimony," stated Mr. Justice McMahon before the court adjourned at 5 o'clock.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

SUITORS IN A RACE BETTER SWIMMER WINS

Ohio Girl Makes Her Two Sweethearts Swim River Four Times as Test to Pick Future Husband.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 30.—Miss Nettie Holmes, living with her parents at Cable, near Cincinnati, says that when you've got two sweethearts and you like them both equally well, why, the only thing to do is to put them to a test and take the winner. That's what Miss Nellie did.

Her two suitors were James Taylor and Wilbur Jenkins, each twenty-one, and both having good jobs and good chances for advancement.

But that did not suit Miss Nettie. She told them to go out and swim the Ohio River four times, twice across and twice back, and that the winner should come to her, and that would settle it for all time.

They went; they swam: Jenkins conquered, winning not only by a nose, but by three minutes. His friends carried him to his home and he is now in bed recovering from the efforts of the swim, for the Ohio is almost one mile wide at Cable.

Taylor is sorry he lost, but says that that settled it, and that he is now going to hunt up another girl and love her.

Miss Nettie didn't go near the river during the contest, but those at the house say she looked out the window and jumped for joy when she saw that Jenkins was the winner. Definite arrangements for the wedding have not been made.

THE BEST HERITAGE

Good health is one of the first requisites to success. Prolonged application to any subject cannot be sustained without well fed nerves.

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Pure fresh air, exercise, and eating the simplest foods will produce this desired result.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportions than any other cereal.

GOOD SHOWING OF HORSES

The annual Fall Show of the Lakefield Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 28th and 29th on the new grounds of the society. The first day, which had all the weather conditions which the directors could hope for, was the formal opening day for making entries and placing exhibits. Wednesday, which was the principal day for the attendance of the public, opened out rather discouragingly. All morning the weather probabilities indicated rain, and before 12 o'clock showers began to fall, and continued more or less during the afternoon.

President Wallace had been hoping all morning that the sky would clear, for he had special reasons for wishing for big gate receipts this year, the principal one being the extra expenditure this year occasioned by the building of the fine new grand stand and new judges' stand.

"It looks rather discouraging, Mr. President; but the farmers say they want rain badly, so you must make the best of it."

"Oh, I hope it will be all right yet. I wanted our fair day to be held after the Peterborough Fair and between the Lindsay and Bobcaygeon dates, but the directors, with one exception, thought we had better stick to our old dates, and so we are. I've done my best to make it a success, and I believe it will be."

And the energetic president hustled over the field, keeping busy all the way.

A strong chilly air was also blowing, suggestive of the bleak cold days of winter, but the good farmers of the district were loyal to their Fair and did not allow the weather conditions to prevent their attendance.

At one o'clock the crowd came slowly, but grew in numbers, even as the showers grew heavier, and by two o'clock the attendance was such as to gladden the hearts of president and directors.

Entries Larger, Receipts Slightly Less.

In point of entries, the Fair was a record-breaking success, the total number being 1043 as compared with 833 last year. This increase was very encouraging to the directors, who looked upon the increase of entries as an indication that they had the confidence and support of the district.

The total receipts amounted to $330, being only a few dollars less than last year's receipts.

In all classes the entries were larger. There was an exceptionally good showing of horses in the carriage classes and roadsters, Clydes, Hackneys and light horses.

A splendid showing was also made in cattle, especially the Durhams.

Cotswold sheep made a fine showing and was the subject of favourable comment by the judges.

The Main Building.

The industrious ladies of Lakefield and surrounding district made their mark in the main building. The space devoted to ladies' work was a leading feature of the interior displays. Some really interesting specimens were shown, indicating that the ladies were as expert with their needles and their ingenuity as the men are with their scientific farming.

The main building also contained the display of grains, roots, fruits flowers, vegetables, bread, cheese and honey. The root and garden crops were bumpers.

The display of apples was excellent, and the varieties numerous. A collection of St. Lawrence was especially fine.

A display of grapes by Mr. Payne, of Lakefield, was very fine, showing a number of the choicest varieties.

Tomatoes, beets, carrots, corn, potatoes and turnips were all splendid samples.

New Grand Stand and Judges Stand.

Notwithstanding the heavy expenditures that the Lakefield Society have been called upon to make during the past two years by the purchase of new grounds and erection of new buildings, they have not been deterred from other necessary outlays. The new grand stand erected this year is 85 feet by 16 feet wide, and will seat about 400 people. It is well and substantially built and presents a good appearance. Under the grand stand, comfortable quarters have been provided for the poultry display which is quite an improvement on the frame arrangement.

The new judges' stand is neat and attractive and provided with a suitable roof and outlooks all around the race track.

Carriage Horses.

A number of handsome horses were shown in this class.

The awards for the best single horse in harness and buggy, 15¼ hands and over, were as follows: 1st, Hon. J. R. Stratton; 2nd, R. Deyell; 3rd, J. Staples.

For the best single horse in harness and buggy, under 15¼ hands, the prizes were awarded as follows: 1st, T. Madill, 2nd, Roland Denne; 3rd, W. Darcy.

In the class for road and saddle horses, the prizes were awarded as follows:—1st, Roland Denne; 2nd, Hon J. R. Stratton; 3rd, A. B. Mann

Trials of Speed.

The races were conducted in a very creditable manner and with general satisfaction. The judges were Messrs. Hughes-Charles and H. C. Winch, of Peterborough, and Dr. Munro, of Warsaw.

Free-For-All Race.

Prizes $15, $10 and $5, following was the result:—
V. Nichols, "Herkelaw".... 5 5 5 5
G. Dunford, "Queen Bouta". 4 4 4 4
E. W. Jones, "Lulu Chimes" 3 3 2 2
Dr. Johnston, "Harry Direct" 1 1 3 1
Chas Fife, "Tom Tariff" .. 2 2 1 3

Green Race.

Prizes $5, $3 and $2. The following was the result:—
W. Northey, "Maud" 1 2 1
A. Graham, "Black Mack" 4 3 3
W. Pulkinghoon, "May Sphinx" 2 1 2
—. Jones, "Nettie L." 3 4 4

During the first heat of this race, Mr. Pulkinghorn, the driver of "May Sphynx," was thrown from his seat but fortunately escaped uninjured. A young colt had got on the track and was run into, causing the upset. "May Sphynx" kept on running, driverless, and retained her position in the race until she came round the track again and was caught by her driver, who cleverly jumped to his seat and drove her under the wire to second place.

Novelty Race.—Prizes $3, $2 and $1—1st, R. Hendren; 2nd, C. Graham; 3rd, E. Scott.

Potato Race on Horseback.

Prizes $2.50, $1.50 and $1.00. This was a novel and amusing event. Potatoes were to be taken from one box at one end, rider to dismount, remount, drop potatoes in box at other end by dismounting, and keep on until all the potatoes were changed. The following are the names of the contestants and prize winners:—

1. R. Hendren, 2nd prize.
2. A. B. Mann, 1st prize.
3. J. Snelgrove, 3rd prize.
4. N. Milburn.
5. H. Dean.

Mile Race for Men.—Four contestants entered for this race, which resulted as follows:

First, Albert Smoke, and Z. Jacobs, 3rd, M. McDonald. The fourth man, Arthur Dodd, quit. Time, 5 minutes.

The track was in good condition all day, the showers of rain appearing to improve rather than injure its soft, sandy surface.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

There was a falling off in the number of special exhibits at the Lakefield Fair this year, which was rather a reflection on the enterprise of the business men of the village. There are enough good stores and factories in the village to have made creditable displays of their wares, which would have been an attraction to the crowds of visitors in attendance. A number of Peterborough firms, as usual, took advantage of the opportunity to advertise their goods in a conspicuous manner. Prominent among these was:

The Grafton Clothing Company.

Representatives of this enterprising Peterborough clothing house had arrived quite early in the morning of Wednesday, and picked out a conspicuous grounds from which to make a display of their clothing. They had succeeded in erecting an attractive water-proof tent near the exit to and from the main building where the crowds were largest. But the rain put a stop to their enterprise and forced them to abandon the interesting display of clothing, which they had brought. Not to disappoint the people, Mr. Herb. Conway and his assistants, who had charge of the work, utilised the time at their disposal in circulating the Company's effective advertising features—pass books, buttons, cards, booklets, etc., and so did good service in adding to the accumulating popularity of Grafton & Co's high-grade clothing. All around the grounds on fences, show buildings, grand stand and grounds their large bulletin board in fancy colored letterings attracted the eyes of visitors.

As usual, Grafton & Co. gave three special prizes for the three best teams of general purpose horses. The first prize was a tweed suit, second prize a pair of worsted pants, third prize a pair of tweed pants.

The "Daylight" Clothiers of Peterborough.

Messrs. Lang & Maher, of the "Daylight" Clothing Store, 409-411 George St., came all the way from Peterborough bright and early, on Wednesday morning to exhibit their new form-fitting styles of fashionable fall clothing for men and boys. This firm are great on "Sovereign" brand and "Fit-rite" brand of tailored clothes. They have made their business reputation on the fabrics and fits they have sold to the farmers, as well as the town folks of Peterborough district. It was the intention of the firm to have made a strong display of these goods, but by the time they had their own natty clothing annex erected, the deluge of rain stopped further progress. Outside, they had the judges' stand, the main building, gates, fences, etc., decorated with the attractively painted sign boards, descriptive of their clothing, methods and prices. Mr. Lang and his salesman, Mr. Wesley, had the glad hand ready for their many friends in this section.

The Singer Sewing Machine.

Mr. J. W. Stuart, the well known district representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, made an exhibit in the main building, which was a constant attraction of the ladies. Mr. Stuart is so well known around Lakefield that his exhibit was continually thronged with people, anxious to learn all about the new weather oak machine just introduced, and the new darner. He was kept busy demonstrating the many excellences of these and in having out his catchy advertising booklets, fans, pins, picture cards, etc.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy New Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In no less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by Jury & McDermid, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One dollar bottles guaranteed.

WEDDING BELLS

HENDERSON—WILSON.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Mrs. M. A. Wilson, 220 Wolfe St., when her daughter was married to Mr. Norman Henderson of St. Catharines. Miss Wilson was married in her travelling suit of amethyst sedan cloth with blouse of heavy silk net, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith, amidst a profusion of asters and smilax, was witnessed only by the immediate relatives of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson went on a trip to Montreal and after Oct. 15th will be at home to their friends at 35 Henry St., St. Catharines.

SNIDER & HICKEY WILL MAKE THE FIREMEN'S NEW UNIFORMS

Fire, Water and Light Committee Let the Contract Last Night—Would Not Permit Firemen to Use Benefit Fund for Furniture.

ANOTHER CONTRACT LET

The Fire, Water and Light committee during a short session last night, let two contracts, one to Snider and Hickey, tailors, for 12 new uniforms for the firemen, and 12 extra trousers, at $300, and the other was to R. J. Sturgeon for a sink at the fire hall in connection with the electrical apparatus at $69. Provision was made for a number of new lights on several streets throughout the city but it is not likely that they will be placed in position for a few months.

Ald. Buller was in the chair, and Mayor Rush, Ald. Morgan, Hicks and Turner were present. Ald. Turner asked that the arc lamp on Gilmour St. be removed and be replaced by incandescent lamps to be strung along the street. A petition fully signed has been forwarded to the committee and as the street was very dark, Ald Turner asked that the change be made.

"Well it is no darker than the Cricket place over in West City," said Ald. Morgan and he intimated that he would help Ald. Turner get the Gilmour St. change if the latter would reciprocate for two incandescents on Cricket Place. Ald. Turner was agreeable if the lights were needed. Ald Morgan's memory recalled several other places where a lamp or two would make a decided improvement.

Ald. Turner moved that the lighting system on Gilmour St. be changed and also that the two be placed on Cricket Place for Ashburnham and an incandescent on Roger St. at the C.P.R. tracks, three on Lansdowne St., east of Lock St. The motion was carried, providing the money was available.

Chief Howard reported eight arc lamps out during September, and on motion they were charged to the account of the Peterborough Light and Power Co.

Contracts Awarded.

The tenders for new uniforms for the members of the fire brigade were opened. The advertisement had called for 12 new suits and 12 extra pair trousers. The tenders were as follows:

Snider and Hickey $300.00
Ed. Huff 324.60
Wm. Fowler 312.00

Merrell and Meredith for different weights of cloth presented prices accordingly, their lowest being $309. On motion of Ald. Hicks and Morgan the tender of Snider and Hickey was accepted, the cloth and work to be according to specifications.

The other contract was for the installing of a sink in the fire department to be used in the preparation of the batteries used in the wiring system. The tenders were as follows:

Geo. Hutchison $80
McGregor and Reid 72
R. J. Sturgeon 69

The contract was awarded to R. J. Sturgeon on motion of Ald. Hicks and Turner.

Chief Howard stated that the firemen had requested him to ask if they could use their benefit fund to purchase some furniture for the hall and also that the committee by a grant add to that sum. The committee were a unit in their opinion that the firemen certainly needed more furniture at the fire hall. Ald. Morgan, however, was opposed to cutting into the benefit fund. Ald. Hicks agreed with him, stating that it would establish a precedent which might be followed again and again with the result that there would be no fund left and it never would increase under those circumstances. He was willing that a grant be made for new furniture but "do not touch the fund." Ald. Buller stated that nothing could be done this year, but early in 1910 provision could be made to increase the comfort of the fire hall.

PLACING LAMPS

Chief Howard Thinks City Would Get Most Value for its Money if Arc Lamps Were Over Centre of Streets.

Chief Howard is of the opinion that this city could get greater service from its street lighting system if the lamps were suspended above the centre of the streets from a wire stretched between two poles. He also states that the cost would not be very much.

The committee is well pleased with the change that was made by putting the lamps out on arms and it is believed that it would be even better to place them above the middle of the streets. It is likely that a test will be made in some places in order to secure the best service from the lighting system.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE ELOPERS ARE CAUGHT.

The elopement of a pair of lovers by moonlight in the big musical gaiety "A Knight for a Day," which comes to the "Grand" next Saturday for matinee and evening, is reported to be one of the most laughable situations ever seen in comic opera. The gentleman who is the knight of laughter and song in the piece, helps his lady love, the "servant lady" get away from the first floor of the dormitory of a young ladies' seminary, by means of a ladder, after he has taken her belongings, including a trunk, several packages and a parrot, to the ground by the same route. The course of true love is not allowed to run smooth here any more than in real life though, and the elopers are caught as they are about to get away.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE

Held in St. Luke's Church, Toronto, for the Late Mrs. Davidson.

Yesterday being the festival of St. Michael and All Saints, a memorial service was held in St. Luke's church, Toronto. It was in memory of the life and work of the late Mrs. susannah Sarah Davidson, for many years President of the Women's Auxiliary, and a prominent member of St. Luke's church. The sermon was preached by His Lordship the Bishop of Algoma, who came to Toronto especially for that purpose, as Mrs. Davidson, in her life time, was particularly interested in the work of that diocese.

The late Mrs. Davidson was the mother of Rev. Canon Davidson, of this city.

DOES WONDERFUL THINGS THO' BLIND

Veteran is Independent, With Never a Glimpse of Light Since War.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Sept. 30.—Stricken blind when he was a member of the famous "Iron Guards" in the Civil War and given his honourable discharge by reason thereof, Mr. V. B. Kostenbauder is to-day almost as active as when he left for the war, a boy in his teens. Without knowing that he was sightless, the casual observer would stamp him as a man of exceptional vision for one of his years.

The loss of his sight was followed by an increased development of his other senses. In season it is nothing unusual to see him up in the chestnut and hickory trees, giving them a vigorous whipping, and then getting down and industriously picking up the nuts.

He spades his own garden and hoes his vegetables as well as a man of sight, and is always well kept and the pride of the village. He picks cherries and berries as easily as one not so handicapped, and not infrequently walks from Mainville, his home, to Bloomfield or Catawissa, four miles. He does all the chores about the place, feeding his stock and sawing the wood. Blessed with a happy disposition, life has lost none of its joys for him.

SIX HUNDRED TONS BARNACLES

South Dakota's Hull Rises After Bottom Is Scraped.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Six hundred tons of barnacles have been taken from the bottom of the armoured cruiser South Dakota at the Mare Island Navy Yard, making the vessel's hull rise four and a half inches in the water. The barnacles fastened themselves to the ship's bottom during a recent trip to the South Sea Islands. Naval authorities were astonished on learning of the immense weight of the incumbrance, which interefered with the ship's speed.

OPENING OF THE CONCERT SEASON

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME ARRANGED BY ST. ANDREW'S LADIES' GUILD

The Opening Concert of the season will be given by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church on Thursday, October 7th, promises to be a very pleasing one. The talent secured includes Harold Jarvis, the noted Detroit singer and Helen Wyrick Shafor, also of Detroit, of which the Mail and Empire has the following to say: "Mrs. Shafor's reading was the opening scene of the first act of "Iagomar," and she displayed the possession of considerable dramatic power and mimetic ability in her impersonation of the three characters of Parthenia, her mother, and Polydor.' —The Mail and Empire, Toronto.

ANTI-FAT CURE MADE AGED PAUPERS THIN

Peculiar Experiment in Yorkshire Workhouse Results Much Better Than Expected.

London, Sept. 30. — Remarkable dietetic experiments have been conducted in a Yorkshire workhouse during the last few months with the object of reducing the superfluous weight of two aged but exceedingly fat paupers. With such success has the "cure" been carried out that in sixteen weeks the patients have lost each forty-two pounds and at the same time gained in health and strength.

For fifteen years Henry Williamson and Joseph Kemp have been inmates of the Keighley Workhouse. Both men possessed insatiable appetites and suffered from ailments which prevented them from taking exercise or doing much work which led to a steady increase in girth. Kemp, who is sixty years old, at one time weighed nearly 280 pounds and Williamson, who is seventy-seven, became so stout that he could only walk with difficulty.

Dr. W. M. Gabriel ultimately decided that for the benefit of their general health they would have to undergo an anti-fat cure, and the old men were placed on a special dietary.

The patients were placed in an isolation ward of the workhouse infirmary and after a few days fell in with the doctor's proposal.

Three meals a day were allowed them, the dietary including brown bread, green vegetables, watercress and stewed fruit. Potatoes, sugar, and fat in any form were strictly forbidden. The efficacy of Dr. Gabriel's treatment exceeded expectation. Kemp now weighs 216 pounds while Williamson has dropped from 248 pounds.

The public are doubtless aware that in my recent purchase of the residential property known as "Cordah", the West-End Greenhouses were included. The tenant's term having expired, I have taken over these greenhouses under my own supervision, and solicit a continuance of the patronage of the public.

ON WRONG TRAIN

Old Gentleman Took Train for Toronto Instead of for Lakefield.

The Examiner has received a letter from Mrs. Elliott, whose father, Mr. Colby, was referred to in an article as having been lost in Toronto. The item was received as a despatch from Toronto, but was not used. The next day, however, it was taken from one of the city papers, and seemed so general that it was accepted as authentic. Mr. Elliott bought him a ticket to Lakefield from Toronto, and on arriving in Peterborough the old gentleman took the wrong train at the G. T. R. station. The statements made by the Toronto press, Mrs. Elliott states, are untrue and unkind.

A BIG POTATO

Weighed Twenty-four Ounces—Grown at Pine Grove Factory.

It is a proud potato hill that produces a tuber weighing exactly 24 ounces. One pound and a half was the weight recorded by a mammoth potato, grown by Mr. Robert Little, cheese maker, at the Pine Grove cheese factory. It measure eleven inches around its smallest circumference, and the largest measurement was 19 inches. It was practically a whole meal in itself. There was nothing of the fall fair variety about it, as none of those seen on the agricultural hall shelves in this district could compare with it; at least as far as the agricultural editor has observed this year.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE'S CHAMPION

Bench Manager Has Most Trying Worries In World

Connie Mack Declares His Position Is More Nerve-Racking Than That of Active Leader—Troubles Are Not Known to the Fan.

SHOWS THE EFFECTS

Sitting on the bench and directing plays in the storm and stress of a big league battle for a pennant is named by Manager Mack of the Philadelphia American League club, as about the hardest way in the world for a man to earn a living.

Mr. Mack's club is now engaged in a fight with Detroit for the championship of the American League. If he is successful he later will be called on to fight with Pittsburg for the world's championship.

The strain he is daily undergoing shows now on the lean manager's face. His features are seamed and lined, his eyes are worn and surrounded by heavy, dark shaded rings. His cheeks are pinched to the point of emaciation, and with all the fury that his nerves undergo every day it is a marvel that human endurance can stand the strain.

Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago Nationals, three times champions of the National league and twice winners of the world's title; Fred Clarke, leader of Pittsburg when the Pirates won three pennants in a row; Hughey Jennings, who took the lowly Detroit team and made it a two-time pennant winner, and Fred Lake, of Boston, are all having their troubles and sleepless nights, too, but they all possess one advantage that is denied to Mr. Mack.

They Get Into Action

They get into action, and in this manner are able to let off some of their surplus steam. Clarke and Chance are star players on their clubs, and Jennings and Lake get out on the lines and assist in the coaching.

But Mr. Mack is never seen by the public. He is one of the great bench managers of the old days. Just before the game starts he slips quietly out on the bench, he has a word with his captain or catchers and finds out which pitcher seems to be in the best condition to pitch. He reaches his decision, selects the battery and from that time on not a play in the game but calls for his personal direction.

There used to be many such managers, but the times have gradually done away with them. Perhaps motives of economy started the preference for a manager, who could also play a position. Results were achieved by these men. Chance and Jones, of Chicago, both great players, won pennants. Then coaching managers like Jennings and McGraw came into prominence, and there are many of them now.

Has Seen Three Roles

Manager Mack has been seen in all three roles. First as a player with Pittsburg, National League, he was promoted to the place of playing manager. When he left the National League to go to the Western League at Milwaukee he caught and managed at first, but later stopped playing, though he did put on a uniform and go out on the coaching line.

But when he went to Philadelphia Mr. Mack decided that he had done with playing with the spangles, and henceforth would be the general who should direct the play from the obscurity and discomfort of the bench.

"I thought I was making my job easier," said Mr. Mack, explaining his decision, "but I didn't know. I have never worked harder in my life, never been under more of a strain, never felt more exhausted at the end of my day's work than I am just at present.

"The man on the stand or in the bleachers, the player on the field, even doesn't know what it means for the leader of the team in the midst of all the turmoil and mental anguish that come to a man as he watches his team out there trying to win the game according to lines he has mapped out.

"There is responsibility there. The way baseball is financed to-day, the financial risks are big. It takes heavy receipts to run a ball club, and the only way to get them is to have a winner.

"To some extent, the manager of a club is like the manipulator of the market in a big stock deal. He must think quickly. Others are dependent on him. Let him go wrong and they are hopelessly up against it.

He Must Think Quickly

"Out there on the seats are the thousands of spectators cheering and yelling. If you are out of town they are frankly against you, and no device or rooting, shouting or insults calculated to upset your men is going to be withheld to influence the battle adversely to your interests.

"Suppose you are at home. Even then the big crowd disquiets you. Their loyal rooting constantly impresses on you a sense of duty not to fall down. It is a constant, unceasing struggle to give them the victory for which they are calling.

"Then the players and coachers of the other team are ever there with the sort of talk and comment aimed to upset you and put your system of team play in bad.

"This must be watched, in addition to the developments of the play itself; and, moreover, a manager must know his men, their physical condition and their temperament. Some men stiffen under fire, some weaken. Some cannot stand certain kinds of weather; some are good against one team, helpless against another.

"I love baseball. There is no other calling for me. I shall probably be a bench manager as long as I am in the game, but I don't beguile myself into the delusion that I have picked an easy life. I don't think many men have more troubles in their means of earning three meals a day than I do."

ADDIE JOSS THINKS HIGH BALL GONE

This Style Delivery Has Lost Its Effectiveness, Star Twirler Declares.

Addie Joss, baseball pitcher par excellence in the Summer time and sporting editor in the off season, is of the opinion that the day of successful high ball pitching is a thing of the past.

"There was a time," says Joss, "when it was the accepted theory that one of the requisites of the first-class pitchers was ability to keep the ball around the batter's neck.

"That is true when the man at bat is trying to pull off the hit and run play. Formerly, when the twirlers kept their fast ball high, it was pie for the batter to either step back or in, as the occasion required, and push or puff the ball in the direction he wanted it to go. With the low ball it is different, as the batter cannot guage the ball any too well, and finds it a difficult matter to place it.

"It is particularly hard for the batter to follow a low ball on a dark day, as was shown in the second game of the world's series between New York and the Athletics on the Polo grounds. 'Chief' Bender, who was on the mound for Connie Mack's men, is a pitcher who, when right, has a tremendous amount of speed. The Athletics managed to score a few runs for Bender early in the game, and with this lead there was no chance for the Giants to catch up.

"Bender had the advantage of the gathering gloom, and this, coupled with the ability to keep his fast ball low, proved a stumbling block for the aggressive Giants. Members of both teams say the big fellow was unhittable on account of this, which goes to show how much harder it is to hit the low ball than the high one."

"HUMANITY" OF THE GUILLOTINE

Paris at present is discussing the guillotine and what many regard as the painless death it inflicts; the consensus of opinion being that death comes the moment the head falls. The name "guillotine" came from Dr. Guillotin, a humane man, born in Saintes, France, in 1738. He died in 1814, deeply regretting the undeserved celebrity given to his name because he had carelessly expressed the wish that all criminal classes might be equal before the executioner, and that there might be but one form of capital punishment, as rapid and as painless as possible. Before the revolution men were "beheaded" by a blow in the neck struck by the blow of a sabre in point of fact their necks were gouged open, and the amount of panneted out was greater or less according to the awkwardness of the executioners.

In 1791 the Assembly adopted the principle proposed by Dr. Guillotin and the clause was inserted in the penal code of France that "all persons condemned to death shall have their heads cut off." But the cutting machine was hard to find. To bring about the adoption of his project Dr. Guillotin cried out, "With my machine I will make your heads jump off in the twinkling of an eye and you will not feel it!" The innocent doctor used the term "my machine" to designate the machine favoured by him, but public malignity snatched the words from his lips and jeeringly gave his name to it.

"The machine was not adopted definitely until March 20, 1792; and then Dr. Louis, not Dr. Guillotin, forced its acceptance upon the people. The people called it the red maiden; and as Dr. Louis was the instrument of its acceptance it was named for him "Little Louise" (Louisette), "Little Louise," being the feminine of Louis But "guillotine" sounded more technical and the name "guillotine" prevailed.

Under the revolution the red maiden was place on a platform to enable the populace to see the executions better. Of late the public has been shut out; capital executions have been private.

RAISE GOOD CROPS BUT BAD CHILDREN

Farmers of Middle West Not Paying Enough Attention to Their Boys and Girls.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 30.—Farmers in the Middle West are so wrapped up in the production of wheat and corn and in growing meaty steers and fat porkers that they are likely to neglect the upbringing of their children. Such is the conclusion of Prof. William A. McKeever, of the Kansas State Agricultural College. He is preparing a set of bulletins telling the farmers how to raise better sons and daughters.

Prof. McKeever is sending his bulletins broad cast, from Manhattan, Kan., where they are printed mostly through subscriptions of business men of the State.

"We have special courses in poultry raising, pig raising and horse breeding," he said in one of these bulletins, "while parents go right on in the good old way of rearing children by guess, hearsay and superstition As a consequence, the first children in many families are used for experimental purposes and though they may be well born, their prospects of a useful career are often blighted forever."

Prof. McKeever believes in the doctrine of work for children, coupled with parental attention, as the general basis of rearing a better crop of sons and daughters. Obedience, he finds, is generally regarded as the first virtue for a child, but obedience without the most intelligent direction is worse than untrammelled liberty. He feels that appreciation is lacking of the dignity of quiet home life.

Prof. McKeever's bulletins cover topics in the rearing of children in small towns and on farms.

WHIPS GROWN SONS

Old Wim-et-ka-ma Bumps Her Boys' Heads Together.

Riverside, Sept. 30.—Wim-et-ka-ma, an old squaw, while en route to British Columbia, found it necessary to exert her authority as mother because two of her sons who were with her insisted in settling a difficulty between them by fighting it out. The mother was in a hurry to make a good camping place before dark, and insisted upon the young men to postponing the scrap. Upon their refusal to heed her request she jumped from her horse and took the men by their bushy hair and bumped their heads until both of them lay limp on the ground. When they had recovered sufficiently to mount their horses the outfit proceeded again toward British Columbia. The squaw is sixty-one years of age and the sons are twenty-five and twenty-eight, respectively. This is not the first time that the aged mother has fought for peace in her family. She has a reputation in British Columbia of having whipped, with her fists, a number of her tribesmen, and by the authorities across the line she is encouraged in her method of quieting the troublesome.

SOIL FOR STRAWBERRIES

From Farm and Dairy.

For best results the soil for strawberries should be made ready the year before the plants are to be set. The preparation the soil receives before the strawberry plants are set very often determines whether the venture will be a success or not. A good heavy coating of manure, well composted or a good crop of vetch should be turned under. This will put a good supply of humus into the soil and aid in holding the moisture. Follow this with some highly cultivated crop to kill out the noxious weeds. The ground may now be allowed to lie until spring then plowed deeply.

Deep plowing is very desirable, as this is the last opportunity to cultivate deeply during the life of the bed. If the ground can be pulverized to the depth of fifteen inches so much the better. As soon as the ground is plowed follow with the disk, as the clods are much easier broken up now than if put off until they become dry. If the ground does not break up mellow, disk it down and then turn it over and disk again. Follow the disk with the smoothing harrow, then the smoother or leveler, leaving the surface perfectly smooth. When the ground is very cloddy it is advisable to crush the clods with a roller, taking care not to pack the soil too firmly. Where the soil is very sandy it should be thoroughly firmed, as the plants will root much better than if left loose. Ground with numerous air spaces such as are found in cloddy soil, forms a very poor bed for setting plants, as has been found out by experience.

If turf land is to be used for strawberry culture it would be advisable to cultivate to some such crops as potatoes or corn the preceding year. This will break up the sod and put it in good condition to receive the plants. Sod land is often infested with numerous insect pests which are disastrous to the newly set plants. By cultivating to some other crop first the insects will be given a chance to starve out.

PLAYING RUGBY

Strong, active wing men can disorganize an offense. Often they tackle the runner before the line of scrimmage is reached. Breaking through does not necessarily depend upon brute strength. Mental ability, skill in avoiding attempts to block and rapidity of movement are necessary.

A defensive wing should aim to keep his opponent at arm's length until the ball is scrimmaged The defense may use hands and arms, and should employ this advantage. Usually the line charges when the ball is put inplay, arms stiff and body low. The opposition is brushed aside and the runner is unprotected. Another plan is to grasp the outside arm, when the opponent will pull back, jerking his man through. If the opponent is playing low he may be caught by the head and pushed or pulled either way.

Forwards should vary the attack. It is necessary to get the jump on the other fellow. Don't charge too high.

Learn to block and prevent the opposition getting at your backs. Either shoulder or hip can be used and both have variations. Blocking with the arms borders on holding. To block effectively one must remain close to the man he is blocking. Knowing by the signal where the play will go the blocker has an advantage over the other fellow, which is of value.

When the ball is snapped the blocker must lunge, striking his man with his shoulder if possible. He must keep his feet in such position that he will not be jerked forward on his face and should his opponent evade the shoulder he should be given the hip.

A blocker can so wrap himself around his man that the latter can do nothing, his movements being checked long enough to permit the runner to get away.

The straight arm is invaluable in an open field. When about to be tackled the runner shoots out his free arm, palm open, meeting the charge of the tackler with the arm rigid and often hurling him aside to such an extent that he is rolled on his back.

The arm should be directed at the breast if the tackler is running high, or at his head or shoulder if running low. The runner should conceal his intent until the last minute and then put weight in his arm.

"THE OLD ORGAN"
A most pathetic drama showing the great love of a husband for his wife and child. How he loses his wife in a drowning accident, and how years afterward he returns as a blind man and finds his little daughter by the playing of the "Old Organ" by his mother.

"AN AFFAIR OF HONOUR"
This is one of Pathe's very funny comedies. It shows how two fellows in love with the same girl get mixed up and try to fight a duel. If you want to see fun come to the Royal and see "An Affair of Honour".

THE KENTUCKY PLANTER
This is a special picture of Southern Life, showing the terrible vengeance of the White Caps on a Tobacco Planter, how they nearly succeeded in their vengeance, but didn't and how the planter with the aid of his pretty daughter got even with them. It is one of the latest and best pictures of Life in Southern States in days gone by.

A FLURRY IN WHEAT

Out of a Clear Sky a Sudden Fall of Short Tenders Is Precipitated in Pit, and Cable Goes Tearing Up —Weaker Bear Operators Lose— Easterners Is Believed to Have Made a Large Sum of Money.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The wheat squeeze which disturbed the ennui of speculative routine with a 14-cent advance in the September option on the Board of Trade here yesterday was the clearest cut of any corner in many years. The so-called Patten deal of last spring was an open secret long before final delivery day, but what happened yesterday came out of a clear sky.

For a month there had been practically nothing doing in September option, which closed Wednesday at $1.06 and sluggishly slept through most of yesterday's session lightly above that figure. There was known to be a short interest out, but that control of the long side had been secured was undreamed of by those not in the deal. The trader or traders in control are said to have held about 1,000,000 bushels, while the scattered short interest ran between five and ten millions.

No colossal winnings or losses are involved, although some of the weaker shorts were hard hit when "shoestring" resources are considered. The efforts of some of these to extricate themselves during the last frenzied half hour were described by a spectator as pitiful. A small sum multiplied into comparatively heavy losses with distressing rapidity.

September wheat was at $1.07 when the riot of the shorts began. Conditions had been bearish and although September had held sturdily in price, shorts still believed the break would come. Receipts in the northwest continued heavy and Europe refused to buy, a situation usually followed by lower prices. As the final moment of the trading month drew near and the break did not materialise, the true condition of affairs became apparent.

One of the most influential traders on the board waited until the top had been reached, and then delivered the actual wheat at $1.31 — 100,000 bushels of it. Little wheat came out until $1.18 was reached. At this figure and above a neat profit was garnered. Deliveries amounted to 315,000 bushels "going to scattered interest." It was necessary to extend the delivery period three times before the last account was squared.

The hour for delivery of actual wheat is from 1.30 to 2 p.m. It was 3.45 before the last transfers had been made.

While several firms are reported to have profited by the deal, common report credited control of September to an eastern man. This trader is said to have bought around a dollar, and to have recouped nicely the sum lost two years ago in an attempted squeeze, which failed. He is likewise said to have been the man who made July shorts come to his terms at New York last summer. In some quarters it is insisted that the deal which ended yesterday was manipulated by Chicago interests. Confirmation of either story is not obtainable.

Earl Grey at Calgary.

Calgary, Oct. 1.—Earl Grey and party arrived from the south shortly before noon yesterday on the private car Cornwall, and were met by R. B. Bennett and Dean Paget, representing the Canadian Club, and Mayor Jameson. Quite a large crowd gathered, and the city is decorated with flags. Escorted by a guard of the 15th Light Horse, His Excellency drove to the Young Men's Club, where he was the guest of the Canadian Club at luncheon. He left for Edmonton yesterday afternoon.

London, Oct. 1.—The Canadian Associated Press has high authority for stating that changes in the G.T.R. directorate are imminent along the lines referred to in the cable of January 23 last, when it was said President Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson would probably retire.

TORONTO WOMEN CIRCULATE PETITION FOR MRS. ROBINSON

International Campaign Is Inaugurated by Toronto Suffrage Association in Behalf of Woman Who is Sentenced to Hang.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—In the unusual circumstances of the case of Mrs. Robinson, accused of murder and sentenced to be hanged early in November, a petition is being circulated by Dr. Augusta Stowe Gullen, asking for a new trial.

The fact that the verdict of the jury was twice given for acquittal is a substantial ground for the request, and it is the view of the petitioners that official steps should be taken at once to interest the public and to intercede for Mrs. Robinson to prevent the extreme penalty being enforced.

Should it be found impossible to get a new trial, steps will be taken according to a resolution adopted last night by the Toronto Suffrage Association, to place all data relating to the lamentable case before His Excellency the Governor-General, accompanied by a request for pardon.

Mrs. Swift feared that the public misconceive the attitude of the association and imagine that the action was merely sentimental or a condoning of the murder of illegitimate children.

Dr. Stowe Gullen made it clear that no such motive was present. The case was one for scientific care and treatment and not for hanging. There could be no reasonable doubt of the insanity of a woman under the stress of such circumstances. The woman might be hanged before the man who compelled her to commit the deed was brought to trial.

WORLD'S BIGGEST SHIP.

Britain's Eighth Warship the Neptune Is Launched.

Portsmouth, Eng., Oct. 1.—The Neptune, Great Britain's eighth battleship of the Dreadnought class, or her eleventh, including the three battleship cruisers, was successfully launched here yesterday by the Duchess of Albany. The bulkheads of this super-dreadnought are so heavily armored that experts consider her practically unsinkable by a torpedo.

The Neptune was commenced at Portsmouth, Jan. 9, of this year. She has a displacement of 20,250 tons, length 510 feet, and beam 86 feet. She is consequently ten feet longer and two feet wider than any of her predecessors. She exceeds the Dreadnought type by 2,270, and the Bellerophon type by 1,650 tons. She has turbine engines of 24,000 indicated horsepower, giving a speed of 21 knots an hour.

The Neptune has been described as "the last word" in battleships. Her ten twelve-inch guns will be of the fifty calibres pattern, which has a greater range and penetration than the twelve-inch guns now in use, and in addition she will carry four-inch guns for repelling torpedo attacks. The Admiralty considers her the most powerfully armed vessel thus far built.

Several American admirals have made pilgrimages to Portsmouth in the hopes of seeing something of the Neptune. They have, however, been generally disappointed, as the Admiralty is keeping the improvements incorporated in her a secret.

Seven Men Injured.

Glace Bay, N.S., Oct. 1.—After a shooting affray between strikers and Dominion Coal Co. police, seven strikers had to have bullet wounds dressed.

A little to the westward of No. 3 mine, is the seashore, and along the cliffs facing the sea [illegible] seams of coal. These are of little or no economic value. From these seams, boys and poor people had been digging some coal, and carrying it away in bags.

The land is included in the Dominion Coal Co.'s leases, and the officials had forbidden digging coal from these seams. Along this headland is a favorite resort of idle persons. Two boys were seen taking a bag of coal from the cliff, and four policemen armed with revolvers, proceeded to arrest them. A crowd gathered, and commenced jeering the policemen.

The police fired first in the air and then into the crowd. One man had his ear shot off. The wounded men were arrested on a charge of "unlawful assembly."

Postoffice Takes Wireless.

London, Oct. 1.—The Government has completed arrangements to take over all the coast stations of the Marconi wireless system, excepting the long-distance stations at Poldhu and Clifden, which the company retains for its projected trans-Atlantic service.

The Government pays £75,000, and also the right to use all existing patents and all improvements made during the next fourteen years.

The Marconi stations will now be operated for communication equally with all ships, irrespective of their wireless system. The postoffice is taking over also all the Lloyds' wireless stations.

The Admiralty has long urged the vital importance of vesting the control of wireless telegraphy in the postoffice.

Too Harsh With Autoists.

St. Catharines, Oct. 1.—Automobilists from Buffalo, New York, Toronto and Hamilton will be interested to learn that Judge Carman has suspended Constable A. B. Tufford, on instructions from the Attorney-General's Department, pending the investigation of charges to the effect that Tufford arrested for fast driving, an automobilist who gave the constable a ride to his home, picking him up on the road. In another case it is said an automobilist was held up in Beamsville by Tufford, hailed before the magistrate and fined. Then Tufford telephoned to the constable at the next town, Grimsby, giving the time the automobile left Beamsville. On this information the autoist was arrested at Grimsby and fined the same.

The annual estimates of the receipts and expenditures of the Township for the year 1909 were then prepared and passed as follows:

This, therefore, shows that it will be necessary to loan the sum of $1,295.06 for general township puposes for the year 1909. On a total assessment of $675,833, a rate of 1 4-6 mills on the dollar would raise the sum of $1,216.49. These estimates were then approved, and By-lay No. 614, to levy a county rate of three mills on the dollar, and a township rate of 1 4-5 mills on the dollar, were then introduced, regularly passed, signed and sealed.

Requisitions for county rates to be levied in 1909 were received, as follows: County purposes, $1,516.06; County House of Refuge, $404.02; Co. School, $86.40; total, $2106.48.

These levies were then approved and By-law No. 615, to levy the sum, as required above, was introduced, regularly passed, signed, and sealed.

A communication was then read from the Council of Cavan Township, requiring the Township of N. Monaghan to make an additional levy on account of the Cavan "Line Swamp Drain."

This was referred to the Reeve, who was instructed to confer with the Township Solicitor as to whether the Township of N. Monaghan can or cannot be compelled to incur any additional liability in connection with this matter.

Council then adjourned until the 16th day of October next, to meet in the City of Peterborough, at 2 p.m.

Fascinating Rita Leon Was Killed In Motor Car Mishap

The Most Successful and Piquante Actress on the Berlin Stage for Past Six Years—Married an Admirer of Rank and Has Lived Happily.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT

Berlin, Oct. 1.—Baroness Clemens von Radowitz, who was Rita Leon, the darling of German theatre-goers, for whose smile all the gilded youth were ready to slay one another, was killed recently in a motor car accident. The Baroness, one of the most beautiful and elegant women in Europe, was travelling with her husband from Marienbad to Paris. Near Amberg, in Franconia, the car, running at high speed, swerved and dashed into a tree. The Baroness was thrown out and killed instantly; the chauffeur's collar-bone was broken, but Baron von Radowitz and his valet escaped injury.

Fascinating, Piquante, Daring.

The Baroness's death caused the deepest regret in Berlin, for Rita Leon was the most fascinating, piquante and daring actress who has delighted German audiences in ten years. She interpreted the title roles of French plays, like "The Girl from Maxim's," and of French operettas with so much coquettishness and danced with such natural grace that she was irresistible. Theatrical managers vied to engage her at any salary; small wonder, for when Rita Leon appeared, the theatres were sold out for weeks in advance. The frivolity she displayed in some of her French characters verged on the outre, but she coupled her daring actions and words with such sweetness and grace that her severest critics were disarmed.

After six years on the Berlin stage Rita Leon's star waned. Alphons Roehil, the spendthrift and roue, disappeared, leaving debts amounting to millions. He had been a friend of Rita's, and actresses, jealous of her, seized the moment of his disappearance to declare publicly that she ruined him. Promptly she shook the Berlin dust from her little shoes and continued her triumphs in the provinces, where she commanded huge salaries.

Won From Stage by Cupid.

Then, most unexpectedly, she left the stage forever. Less than four years ago her friends and her enemies were surprised to receive cards embellished with a coronet by which the lovely Rita informed them she was about to marry a scion of one of Germany's most aristocratic families, the young Baron Clemens Von Radowitz, nephew of the German Ambassador at Madrid.

Baron von Radowitz belonged to the famous Saxonia corps at the University of Gottingen, where he was educated. He is a grandson of the late Consul Jacob von Gerson, who was amiable enough to leave him a vast fortune on the sole condition that up to the day of his marriage only the interest on the capital should be paid. When the young baron married he was to receive the whole of the great bequest. So nothing stood in the way of the marriage, which was pushed on with such haste by the infatuated nobleman that Rita Leon could not keep her many theatrical contracts.

The Baron's family opposed the marriage and tried mightily to get his enchantress out of the way. But the Baron's love conquered; they were married at the Jesuit church in Vienna.

The young couple dwelt happily, surrounded by every luxury, in Paris, the home of her choice. Rita proved a devoted wife, and the fatal accident near Amberg ended an ideal union. Admirers of the Baroness, as an actress, are taking steps to erect a monument to her in the cemetery where Jenny Gross, Mozart and other famous musicians and actresses rest.

Woman Blames Her Wedding On Pre-Nuptial Surprise Party

Flirtation When She Was But Sixteen Led to a Marriage Which She Now Seeks to Annul —Mother Wanted Her to Marry.

IS SEEKING DIVORCE

That a surprise party flirtation led to her marriage at the age of sixteen with Philip Diamond was in effect the testimony given yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Aspinall, of Brooklyn, by Mrs. Helen Diamond, who sought to have the marriage annulled.

The plaintiff is now eighteen and resides with her mother, Mrs. Esther Well, at No. 303 South Third street, Brooklyn. Two years ago, the girl said, she met Diamond at a party given by a friend. He was attentive to her and insisted upon escorting her home, much against her wishes, she declared.

Diamond Was Persistent.

From that time until her marriage, the young wife testified, Diamond was a frequent caller at her home. If it happened that he was unable to see her for any length of time he always acknowledged his regret, Mrs. Diamond, said, by sending her so many boxes of candy that she was obliged to call in her girl friends to help eat them.

Finally, according to the plaintiff's testimony, Diamond began to send her rings and other pieces of valuable jewelry, much of which was set with the stones that bear his name. Mrs. Diamond said that in spite of this subtle method of courtship, she felt that a marriage with the defendant would not be desirable.

She refused to receive the jewelry, telling her lover that she did not care for him and that they could never be anything but friends. Just as she was about to jilt him forever, the girl said, her mother became interested in Diamond. The two had fervent confabs together, and it was not long before Mrs. Well told her daughter that, in her opinion, the defendant had all the qualifications of a model husband.

Mother Threatened Suicide.

Mrs. Diamond said she did not give her consent to marry until her mother had threatened to commit suicide if she persisted in her intention to throw away Diamond's affection. The young folk were married on Aug. 4, 1907, and Mrs. Diamond left the house of her mother. But she couldn't get used to married life, she said, and often returned home.

Now, Mrs. Well, according to the testimony of her daughter, was not only anxious that Helen should marry Diamond but she also wanted the girl to live with him. Finally, the plaintiff said, she threatened to disappear forever if her mother would not allow her to leave the defendant and return home. Mrs. Well, fearing that her daughter would carry out her resolve, reluctantly gave her consent. The suit was started a short time after Mrs. Diamond came back to her mother.

Decision was reserved.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN

Examiner Special.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross continent 2 to 6; warm wave 1 to 5, cool wave 4 to 8. This disturbance was expected to cause radical weather on the Pacific slope first days of October, the weather features growing milder as it neared the Atlantic coast. Frosts were expected in eastern provinces and northeastern states first few days of the month.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 8, cross Pacific slope by close of 9, great central valleys 10 to 12, eastern states 13. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 8, great central valleys 10, eastern states and provinces 12. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 11, great central valleys 13, eastern states and provinces 15.

This disturbance will be of great force and very dangerous on land and sea. It will be mild on the Pacific slope about 8, begin to grow more fierce in the great central valleys about 10, and become a furious storm in the eastern states and provinces about 12. About later date next incoming disturbance will be a storm of great force on the Pacific slope. Between 11 and 15 a hurricane will organize on the Carribean sea and will probably be in the seas off our southern coasts from five to ten days. That hurricane, about the time it turns to a northeastern course, will induce a great cold wave west of Manitoba and that cold wave will cause killing frosts over the great central valleys far down into the cotton belt.

A cold wave will follow this disturbance. I would expect it to reach Manitoba near Oct. 11, and the States a few days later, but its time depends on the movements of the gulf hurricane. While the hurricanes move in a westerly direction the cold waves do not come southward, but begin their southeasterly march about the time the hurricanes turn toward the northeast.

A great fall in temperatures and a large amount of rain may be expected Oct. 4 to 16, and the month will average unusually cold after October 11. The time is not far away when the farmers, all the time knowing what the crop weather will be twelve months in advance, will plant now to fit the coming crop-weather conditions. Knowing that October will be cold—as next month will be—he will sow his winter wheat early in September in order that it may get a good growth before the October cold comes on. Then, if April and May are to be very dry he will set his wheat drill deep so as to put the grain down to the moisture. If January and February are to be unusually warm so that the soil will freeze at night and thaw in the day he will plant his wheat deeply. If the season is to be wet he can use his uplands for wheat, and if dry he will sow no wheat on high, rolling lands. Southern winter grains are differently affected.

The corn, oats, grass, hay, farmers will know where and how to plant and sow. The amount of rain during the crop season entirely changes the method of planting and sowing, and it is settled that we are to know; approximately, the amount of rain that will come to each section and what is of utmost importance what month and what time in the month most rain will fall. I successfully gauged the corn crop early the past season. Had the great speculators been in possession of the knowledge I gave out in advance about the great damage the August drouth would do to the corn crop, they would have made fortunes out of it. The August drouth put the price of corn up more than ten cents a bushel and that, on two and half billion bushels means $250,000,000.

CUPID AND GHOSTS.

A Vacation in the Country That Didn't Effect a Cure.

By DONALD ALLEN.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

It had been decided in family conclave to send Hilda to the country for the summer.

Hilda was not in a decline. Her appetite was good. What troubled her father and mother was to find that Hilda was in love.

John Wayne, her father, was a lawyer of note, and when the "case" was put into his hands by the mother he handled it like a lawyer. In this instance he constituted himself counsel, judge and jury, and the verdict was that Miss Hilda was to be packed off to the home of a maiden aunt in the country for three months.

The mother doubted, but the father was confident. Hilda had only reached the childish age of nineteen. This affair was only a trifle. Aunt Judith was an old maid and had no sympathy with such nonsense and would give the girl sage advice. That conclave, consisting mostly of the father, settled things in half an hour. There is popular complaint about the law's delay, but there are times when it moves very swiftly.

Hilda was not told in so many words why she was packed off to summer with the geese and bumblebees and milkweeds, but she had her suspicions. She knew nothing whatever of law, but she at once set to work to beat the lawyer. Aunt Judith was alert and watchful and unsympathetic and held Cupid in contempt, and that was where her case was weak. Within a week of Hilda's arrival, by means of the towheaded boy on the next farm, the girl was receiving and sending letters.

The aunt had figured it out to herself that her niece would sulk for about four weeks and that she would have to read her at least a dozen lectures. She was thus agreeably disappointed when Hilda did not sulk.

Out in the orchard, under an apple tree, rested an old soap box. Twice a week the towheaded boy came skulking across the fields to leave letters under that box and take away those he found there. He was receiving 10 cents a letter, and he had a career before him. The soap box was not quite as romantic as a silver chest would have been, but it was a fairly safe postoffice.

By and by a letter told that Walter Allen would have his two weeks' vacation beginning at a certain date and that a certain event might be expected to happen. This letter was worth an extra dime to Hilda, and she conscientiously left the same under the box when she replied. She also sang so often and was so cheerful in and out of the house that Aunt Judith held a conclave with herself and amusingly announced to the audience that wasn't there:

"I have delivered only three lectures on the foolishness of calf love and the duty of children to their parents, but they have been sufficient to open the dear girl's eyes and make a different being of her."

An hour before dark one summer evening Hilda was asked if she wanted to carry a berry pie to a poor old woman living in a cottage half a mile down the road. Hilda did, and she was humming to herself as she set out. It was by this very road that within a day or two she might expect ——. But she had to carry that berry pie very carefully and not expect too much.

Between her aunt's home and the old woman's was a deserted farmhouse standing close to the highway. Windows and doors were gone, the roof falling in and the yard grown up to weeds. The towheaded boy could have told Hilda that it was a haunted house and that ghosts had been seen trooping in and out.

One can't simply hand in a berry pie to a poor old woman and then rush away. She must be questioned about her rheumatisms and other ailments and cheered up to live another twenty years. By the time the good Samaritan was ready to say goodby it was dark. She hadn't paid any attention to the inkiness and the slatherine clouds, and she had hardly gone ten rods when a big raindrop struck her cheek. She began to run, but the drops came faster and faster, and by the time she had reached the deserted house she was drenched and thought only of finding shelter until the worst of the storm was passed.

Hilda thought of ghosts as soon as she was under shelter, but, owing to the leaks in the roof, she had to move back until she was against the wall of what had once been the large front room of the house. There she cowered and trembled and shook and wept. If she was a heroine she didn't know it.

Ten—twenty—thirty minutes passed and then a ghost walked. Despite the noise of the downpour, Hilda heard that ghost plow its way through the tangled and sodden weeds before the door and enter. It shook itself like a wet dog. It muttered. The water from its soaked garments dripped on the floor. The girl had never divided the ghost family into wet and dry, but now she heeded no outsider's appearance that she was in the presence of a wet ghost. She was speechless with terror until she heard the ghost softly moving in her direction to get away from the [illegible] Hilda then audibly screamed out:

"Are you a ghost?"

"Yip. Are you?" came the reply.

"There—who are you?"

"And who are you?"

"Oh, Walter, it must be you!"

It was not a ghost that reached out a cold, wet hand and found her in the darkness, and it was not in ghostly whispers that they began to talk. Walter had left the train at the depot three miles away to walk across the country to the home of the towheaded boy, where board had already been secured for him. He had blundered into this house.

It was an hour after his arrival before the storm passed away and left the road almost knee deep in mud and water. Hand in hand the couple set out. Sometimes they waded through puddles, and sometimes it was only slick mud. Sometimes they fell, and sometimes the mud about their feet held them upright until they could brace up for another struggle.

The hired man was heard hooting long before the living ghosts reached the gate, and grim Aunt Judith was found there with a lantern. Of course she was worried half to death. As the bedraggled couple stood before her she held up the lantern and surveyed them.

"You went to carry old Mrs. Benfew a berry pie!" she finally said.

"Yes," was the demure reply from Hilda.

"And she threw a barrel of water over you and then rolled you in the mud!"

"No."

"And then this—this person happened along and she treated him in the same manner!"

"No, aunt. I got caught in the rain and took shelter in the old deserted house. He also got caught in the rain and did the same, and he has helped me home."

"And this—this person's name is?"

"Walter Allen, ma'am, and I was on my way to Farmer Brown's to become a summer boarder for a couple of weeks," answered the young man.

"To be near Hilda, of course! She left a letter lying around today that explains all. Well, sir, Farmer Brown is a respectable man, and he goes to bed at 9 o'clock, and here it is no hour and a half later. Come in, sir, and get out of those sopping clothes and get into bed, and you can go on after breakfast."

"And what about me, aunt?" plaintively asked the girl.

"I will see about your case in the morning, miss!"

But Aunt Judith was a bluffer. She gained two weeks, during which the young man was almost a boarder in her house, and then wrote to her brother-in-law in the city:

"You may be a good lawyer, John, and I may be an Argus eyed old maid, but Cupid has beaten both of us, and we might as well make the best of it."

Philosophic.

"My one hope is to die rich."

"Hah! I believe I would rather live poor."—Indianapolis Journal.

"IT SEEMED LIKE THROWING MONEY AWAY

Until I Tried Gin Pills."

Mr. P. Fitzgerald was completely disheartened. He had suffered so long with his Kidneys, and spent so much money on doctors without relief, that he had made up his mind he could not be cured.

Then, he chanced to read about the wonderful cures by Gin Pills, the great Kidney Remedy, and sent for a sample. The pills did him so much good that he immediately bought two full size boxes. And these two boxes of Gin Pills made him feel like another man.

But let Mr. Fitzgerald tell his own story of a really remarkable cure.

Provincial Asylum, Orillia
June 18th.

I have much pleasure in stating that the sample, which you sent me, led me to buy two boxes of Gin Pills from a local druggist. They are the best remedy for Uric Acid Trouble that I have ever tried. I must say that before using Gin Pills, I had undergone a long and expensive course of treatment by eminent specialists of Chicago. They did me no good—it seemed like throwing money away.

I still keep a box of Gin Pills on hand and take one occasionally. I am pleased to recommend them and bear testimony to their efficacy.

P. FITZGERALD.

After reading such a letter as this, you simply can't doubt the value of Gin Pills in cases of Kidney and Bladder Trouble. If you are a sufferer, write the National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. After you have seen for yourself just what Gin Pills will do, buy the full size box at your dealer's, and remember that Gin Pills are sold with a positive guarantee of a cure or money refunded.

A NEW GUN.

It Can Be Carried in the Pocket, and It Will Fire 3,120 Shots an Hour.

Ever since man began to kill each other, which was very soon after selfish interests began to clash, a good share of their leisure time has been devoted to the elevating pursuit of inventing instruments for that killing. From the time when the early prowler in the primeval forest discovered that by tying to the end of a stick the stone destined to crack the skull of his enemy he could make the crack more surely deadly his inventive genius, ego, as it is, of his high rank among the creatures, has been busy over this problem. How to strike with fatal effect upon his foe and with safety to himself has been his study, and he has given birth to many an idea tending more and more from age to age to enable him to do this work by mechanical contrivance.

It is curious that crudities still appear in the weapons which the geniuses of centuries have labored to perfect and that our eye should be opened at this late day to almost hideous imperfections in our most cherished killing machine—the rifle. Yet it is only a few years since the smoke of black powder was done away with and comparatively a matter of days since young Mr. Maxim produced his sound choking, flame suppressing device. And now comes news from Sweden that an inventor there has found means at last to stop the kick which has made sore shoulders from the time the first blunderbuss was discharged and has constructed a weapon that will drop men as fast that a single marksman may dispose of a regiment in an hour.

Eleven hundred and twenty-five shots to the hour from a gun that is carried in the hand and fired from the shoulder is a high record. If that gun is smokeless and kickless it is convenient to handle and but little trouble to operate. Swedish Mr. Sjogren has made a distinct subtraction from the demerits of the rifle from the standpoint of the user, for his new gun has made this record and has the new feature. And the weapon has already taken rank with the most approved and will doubtless become a part of the armament of many of the world's armies.—Technical World.

"The Limit's" Limit.

"Since the word 'limit' became popular slang I have heard many things called the limit, but not one of them was it," said the young woman. "It remained for me to run the real bona fide limit to earth. I found it last Monday. I called on a woman who I had heard wanted some one to come in twice a day and play the piano half an hour at luncheon and dinner. I agreed to come, for I naturally supposed the music was wanted as an accompaniment to her own meals or her children's meals or the meals of some other human beings. But that wasn't what she meant at all. I was taken up into a kind of luxurious heaven on the third floor and asked to play softly while half a dozen dogs of high degree lapped up their food. The dogs liked music, their mistress said, and enjoyed their meals more when they had it to eat by. Limit! Well, rather! I like dogs, and I like music, and I like money, but the combination formed a limit that I just couldn't face, so I gave up the job."—New York Sun.

A Hypothetical Estimate.

"But I know what I am talking about," argues the man with the dewlap side whiskers.

"You do?" shouts the man with the corrugated brow. "You do? Say, if you only knew half as much as I think you don't know you'd know twice as much as you do know!"—Chicago Post.

CLEANING OF THE ORCHARD

From Farm and Dairy.

Intelligent fall cleaning of the orchard and gardens is now recognized as a most important factor in successful fruit culture. After the rush of the shipping and storing of the fruit there is usually a week or two of fine weather when rubbish can be raked up and burned, and the necessary late plowing done. The value of careful fall cleaning lies chiefly in the fact that many of our most destructive insects and fungi are destroyed in the process. A few observations during the fall and winter will show how many insects pass the cold period of the year. The egg masses of the tent caterpillar, for example, will be found encircling the smaller branches. If these bracelets of eggs be removed whenever seen, much serious injury will be averted the following spring, for each bracelet of eggs destroyed means the removal of 200 to 300 caterpillars. The egg masses of the fall canker worm also may be found in small flat masses near the forks of the smaller branches and twigs.

The codling worm of the apple passes the winter in a cocoon under bark and boards and in crevices.

Birds destroy many of the cocoons concealed on the trunks, but it is always advisable to scrape off the scaly bark, especially that near the ground, and to cut off all dead and cracked limbs. Codling worms are often carried into fruit cellars and store houses in the autumn. In the spring such cellars should be cleaned out thoroughly and the debris burned before the moths escape to the orchard.

Many species of cutworms pass the winter under old boards, clods, or other protection. A thorough cleaning in late fall will reveal many of these cut worms. Poultry are valuable helpers at this time. If these are not available, a poisoned bran bait scattered over the soil will produce good results.

White grubs, when present in the soil, may be destroyed in large numbers by late fall plowing. Tarnished plant bugs, the various leaf-hoppers, squash bugs, the cucumber beetles, Colorado potato beetles, grape vine flea beetles, plum curculios and others pass the winter in or under vegetable trash, and a thorough cleaning often works wonders in ridding the garden of these undesirable guests.

A thorough cleaning of the orchard and garden in late fall will also destroy many of the fungi which remain on the ground in diseased leaves and fruit. It is a well-known fact that many injurious fungi produce winter spores, and though the leaves decay, the spores do not. In early spring these will produce other spores, which soon spread to the early leaves. The various mildews, cankers, leaf-spots, and rots and scab are reproduced in this manner. The diseased fruit, plants and leaves should be gathered together and burned. They should not be thrown on the manure pile, for then the spores will be able to survive the winter and reproduce the disease the following season. Moreover, many fungi persist in the leaves as delicate threads, which develop rapidly in the spring and produce spores.

If a cover or mulch is desired to lessen frost injury and prevent winter-killing, it can be applied after the cleaning has been done. If more care were taken in the annual fall cleaning of gardens and orchards, there would not be that urgent need for summer spraying to control the insects and fungous diseases. Another important factor in successful fall cleaning is to convince our neighbor that he also must clean his garden and orchard. Then what is left undone by the careful gardener will often be done by the winter birds. The chickadee, the nut-hatch, the golden-crowned knight, and the woodpeckers, are most valuable agents in the destruction of insects. All winter long they hunt diligently over every limb for hibernating insects and insect eggs.

REGULATION OF CREAM

From Farm and Dairy.

The thickness or density of cream depends upon two things, the centrifugal force used, and the regulation of the cream outlook. In the separation by centrifugal force, the milk is thrown to the outside of the bowl, because it is heavier than the butter fat, the latter working in towards the centre, and is known as cream; the nearer the centre of the bowl the thicker the cream, providing uniform feed and speed are maintained.

Most separators have what is known as a cream screw that has an opening in the centre. When a thick cream is desired the screw is turned in, which carries the opening nearer the centre of the bowl, giving you a thicker cream.

Separators have different devices for the removal of the cream, but in all cases the nearer the outlet is to the centre of the bowl the thicker will be the cream, provided the inlet of milk and speed are kept uniform.

The cause of the variation in tests, in most cases, is due to the variation of speed in running the separator. If the machine is run a little slowly or below speed the result is a lessening of the centrifugal force, consequently more milk will be retained in the so-called cream, which will test as low per cent. of butter fat. In addition to this the separator will not skim clean and the result will be that some fat will pass off into the skimmed milk.

The writer has on a number of occasions tested some samples of skimmed milk from different farms from separators that had been operated at a low rate of speed and found the fat content in the skim milk to average over 1 per cent., or one pound of butter fat in each 100 pounds of skim milk. Butter fat is too valuable a product to be wasted like this.—Prof. G. L. McKay.

Human Life Increased BY FOURTEEN YEARS

Longer life is due to better understanding of Nature's Laws and use of such medicines as Dr. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

During the last century the average life of man has increased by about four years. Insurance statistics prove this.

What is the reason?

People are learning to take better care of their health and to follow the laws of sanitation and hygiene.

The first law of health and the most important calls for "Daily movement of the bowels."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have helped to prolong the life of many because they have enabled them to follow this first law of health.

A torpid, sluggish condition of the liver and kidneys is certain to bring constipation of the bowels, clogging of the digestive and excretory systems, poisoning of the blood and give rise to the most dreadfully painful and fatal of diseases.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills purify the blood and cleanse the system as no other treatment can because of their unique and combined action on the filtering and excretory organs—the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mrs. R. Morrow, Ingersbridge, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation of the bowels and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They not only relieved the trouble but have entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer, and have improved my health in a general way."

"CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING"

From Farm and Dairy.

In a paper on "Co-operative Marketing," Mr. W. H. Reid, of Tennant, N.J., told of an organization in his state, only one and a half years old, which had been most successful. He cited an instance where the organization had prevented a crash in the market. On July 30th, the manager had 35 cars of potatoes on the track for sale. He knew from reports of the conditions in New York, that there was danger of breaking the market. To prevent this he told the agents of the organization in the various localities to ask the members to stop digging. He shipped 22 cars and held the remaining 13 for two days, when they were sold profitably and the market sustained. This organization has increased prices all around and has made the local buyers come up. In the year's work, nothwithstanding some mistakes, drawbacks and losses, the receipts increased wonderfully. Potatoes and apples are handled chiefly. These are distributed where the demand is, regardless of nearness to market.

Armour's Generosity.

The employes of the late P. D. Armour always referred to him as "the old man." This was not so much the result of a habit among workmen of calling their employer "the old man" as an eccentricity of the "old man" himself. When he wanted to give aid anonymously he said, "That's from the old man." Many gifts went out of his pocket under the signature of "The Old Man."

A young girl went to the business office of the great packing concern one day to report the illness of a friend who worked as a stenographer in the office. Mr. Armour happened to stand near and overheard the girl's request for an advance to her friend's salary with which to pay the doctor's bill. Thrusting his thumb into his vest pocket—that pocket which seemed a mint of greenbacks—he handed the girl a roll of bills.

"Take that to your friend," he said, then adding to relieve the girl's astonishment, "Tell her the old man sent it."

Before the girl could thank him he was gone, but just as she left the building he again appeared and, finding her gone, hurried hatless into the street.

"Here, here! I forgot something," he called.

The girl turned back, and without a word Mr. Armour pressed something into her hand. She looked down. It was a twenty dollar bill.

Mr. Armour had decided that his gift was not sufficient and hastened to increase it.

IN SAVAGE LANDS.

Some Natives Still in the Stone Age Says British Explorer.

After two years among the savages in Dutch New Guinea, Mr. Pratt, a British naturalist, and his two sons have returned to Samarang, Java, with strange experiences to tell. Mr. Pratt (says The Pall Mall Gazette) is a seasoned explorer of 55 years. His travels have extended over wide territories in China, Thibet, South America and Asia Minor. He had four years in the British and Dutch sections of New Guinea, and then took a vacation in Great Britain. Two years ago he came out with his two sons and landed at Doreh, in Geelvink Bay, where missionaries have been stationed for over 50 years. Behind Doreh stretch the Arfak Mountains, with two large lakes lying at a height of 8,000 feet above the sea. There the naturalists took up their quarters, in the midst of savage Papuans, whose characteristics they soon discovered were untrustworthiness and thirst for blood.

They found the savages far below the African natives, without knowledge or understanding of the most elementary virtues—even kindliness or thankfulness. They were of good physique and lived partly by agriculture, but their habits were loathsome. It was largely due to his ability to keep his temper, even under provocation, that Mr. Pratt was able to manage them. They fancied that the traveler must have supernatural powers to control his anger, and in addition to that they were notified by the Dutch authorities that any harm to the naturalists would meet with prompt vengeance. At night the tent of the explorers was guarded by a fierce watch-dog, of which the natives were much afraid. In the day time this dog always remained with one of the party left on guard, while the others always explored in company invariably.

For food they had tinned provisions, plantains, and potatoes, but so tough were their constitutions that this scanty range of diet did not affect them. Besides, the climate around the lakes was glorious. Two thousand feet higher up the mountains it was bitterly cold at night, but the natives could stand it without any clothing at all. At night they have a process of providing themselves with fire. They carry on scarcely any trade, and live mainly on plantains and potatoes, the latter having been introduced by missionaries in 1855. Perpetual warfare is waged among the tribes, for treachery is constant, and every death leads to blood vengeance. The naturalists were often goaded to near the danger point of shooting, but restrained themselves, and so won to some extent the confidence of the savages. Head hunting is a custom of the land, and not merely are villages, but also houses at war against houses. The result is that fear and treachery stalk like twin demons through the island. Women never go out except under armed masculine guard. They do the work in the fields with a man guarding them with his native weapons.

Submarine Tunnels.

In 1802 Napoleon seriously considered the proposal of a French engineer to effect submarine communication with England. The proposal was that midway between Calais and Dover an artificial island should be formed, on which should be built an international town.

This was to be connected with the main land on either side by two long channels. Somehow, like other schemes of the "Little Corsican" as regards this country, the matter never progressed beyond the proposal stage.

But it is probable that this very proposal gave birth to the many schemes that have since been under consideration for connecting England with the Continent.

The latest opinion of engineers upon this proposal is that the scheme presents no terrible difficulties as regards construction. For a long time the only obstacles in the way have been the enormous cost and the question of national policy.

A bolder and even more complicated scheme comes from a Frenchman. It is no less than to connect Africa with Europe at the Straits of Gibraltar.

The tunnel would be twenty-eight miles long, and the proposer has, at all events on paper, proved that it would not be an impossible engineering feat.—The Scout.

Why Horseshoes Are Lucky.

Why is an old horseshoe supposed to bring luck to the owner if hung in the hall or behind the door? Horseshoes were at one time nailed up as a protection against witches. Many houses in the West End of London had one of these emblems of superstition on the threshold, and in Monmouth street there were seventeen in 1813, and seven so late as 1855.

Lord Nelson had a horseshoe nailed to the mast of his ship Victory, and our forefathers loved to nail one on their house door.

There is a legend that the devil one day asked St. Dunstan—who was noted for his skill in shoeing horses—to shoe his "single hoof." Knowing who his customer was, Dunstan tied him tightly to the wall, and proceeded with his job, but purposely put the devil into so much pain that he roared for mercy. And it was not until he had promised that he would never again enter a place where he saw a horseshoe displayed that Dunstan would release his captive.

Breaking the Sabbath Gently.

Of Sabbath-breaking north of the Tweed, there is the story of the Scot and his wheelbarrow, which has been fathered upon Sir Archibald Geikie. Donald was hammering away at the bottom of his barrow when his wife came to the door.

"Mon," she said, "ye're making much clatter. What will the neebors say?"

"Never mind the neebors," said the busy one. "I maun get ma barra mendit."

"Oh, but Donal', it's vera wrang to wurk on Sawbath!" expostulated the good wife. "Ye ought to use screws."

One Consolation.

The man who gets a meager salary has the satisfaction of knowing that in case he is laid up by sickness he won't lose much.—Boston Transcript.

TOMMY'S "PERKS."

The Way Soldiers Add to Their Incomes.

"A bob a day and all found," is supposed to sum up the soldier's resources. Yet some of the most flourishing businesses in garrison towns are owned by ex-Tommies.

Each regiment employs nearly one hundred men as cooks, policemen, clerks, librarians, waiters in canteens, officers' and sergeants' messes, farriers, grooms, and so on, and such men receive an addition to their pay of from 3d. to 1s. 6d. a day, to say nothing of tips and sundry "pickings." Then there are the bandsmen, who, besides receiving from 5s. to 10s. for each outside engagement, often obtain private work in theatres, concert orchestras, etc.; and a Guards' band earns, on an average, £1,000 a week. Regimental tailors and carpenters have usually more private work than they have time to perform; the good marksmen may make as much as $15 or $20 at the regimental and district rifle meetings; and the amateur teacher, in isolated detachments, may have from ten to twenty pupils to attend to in his spare evenings, each paying him, perhaps, sixpence per week.

Although the regulations forbid soldiers to act as agents for local tradesmen or large firms, many non-commissioned officers reap substantial commission in this way. Again, when a move is contemplated, orderly-room clerks are enabled to send full particulars to contractors and tradesmen in the new garrison town, and these are early on the spot with samples to secure the regimental trade. For kindly offices in this direction one firm supplied an infantry quarter-master with free poultry and meat for a whole year; a brewery firm is said to have paid $260 to an orderly-room sergeant for useful information.

At stations like Gibraltar and Malta, quartermasters are able to choose all hawkers for supplying fruit, vegetables, etc., and wax fat on the commissions secretly given for their favor.

Two flourishing photographers in Yorkshire started in a small way in the army by taking snapshots of individuals on the "veldt," one reaping nearly $800; and there are, at least, three successful members of the variety profession—a singer, a dancer, and an acrobat and sword-manipulator—who developed their skill in the barrack-room for the nightly fee of one shilling! Conjuring, or teaching animals to do odd tricks, or working the regimental badges and colors in beads or wool, are other methods of employing spare evenings in out-of-the-way, monotonous garrison stations, and of adding to the income.

Residence in isolated frontier posts abroad affords more scope for profitable hobbies. The soldier often brings home to England specimens of the bird and butterfly world which command good prices. An infantry quartermaster-sergeant acquired a collection of rare beetles in India which were valued by naturalists at from $250 to $500, though he refused to sell; a private realised $350 from the sale of rare stamps, picked up in odd corners of the world; and an army schoolmaster in Northern India makes, on an average, from $10 to $15 per week by employing his camard on behalf of the home periodicals.

Wooden models of soldiers have been made that are said to be superior in detail and technique to anything of the kind in Germany, and have won the approval of royalty. The artistic skill of three Tommies secured them much extra cash for painting regimental emblems whilst serving, and posts on the London press on discharge. "Perks" are also secured for skill at decorative work, particularly at Christmas time, and when the sergeants' and officers' balls and dances are held, for designing regimental and Christmas and invitation cards, for work as theatre supers, and for managing race-games, sweepstakes, lotto (called "house"), etc., on board transports, two brothers in partnership realising in this way $500 between them on the voyage from this country to South Africa!

Quite Proper.

Mr. Brown—Did you know that the Smith brothers are leading double lives?

Mrs. Brown—Goodness, no! How shocking!

Mr. Brown—They can't very well help it. They are twins, you know.—New York American.

FIRE INSURANCE

The following legend taken from an enterprising Seedsman's Catalogue is not without a bearing on Fire Insurance :—

"Two years ago an Ontario Market Gardener saved four cents an ounce on the cost of half a pound of Cabbage Seed. In the fall he admitted that he was over $300 to the bad on the crop because the bargain seed had lacked vitality. Thirty-two cents saved—one hundred dollars lost. WAS IT WORTH WHILE?

GRAND RALLY

BOYS

WANTED

THE

EXAMINER

WE WONDER if it ever occurred to the boys of Peterborough that the selling of papers was a stepping-stone to a successful business career in future years.

DO they recognize the fact that this little business offers them an opportunity to

MAKE

100 Per Cent ?

or in other words, to double the money invested in selling the EXAMINER to transient buyers.

BOYS buy the EXAMINER at one cent each and sell it for two cents each ; or in the case of weekly patrons, they pay six cents per week and receive ten cents from the subscriber, thus making a profit of 62 2-3 per cent.

DO you know of any business in the city that pays such profits with as little chance for bad debts ?

IT only requires a Boy to HUSTLE, the same thing that is required when he gets into a bigger business world.

OF course we do not mean to say that the Boy, to become a successful business man, must be a newsboy, but we do say that the successful newsboy has gained an experience that is of much service to him in after years.

A NEWSBOY'S EXPERIENCE IN A LARGE CITY. Why can't a local Boy be benefitted proportionately ?This story is taken from the Saturday Post :

MONEY IN NEWSPAPER ROUTES.

Another boy was only thirteen when his father died, leaving two hundred dollars insurance, a widow and four younger children. The insurance money was loaned out to a neighbour at six per cent. as a sort of reserve fund, and while the widow did plain sewing, the boy carried newspapers morning and evening. After three months' experience with this work he borrowed twenty-five dollars and purchased the smallest newspaper route in town. Vigorous canvassing for new customers made that route so productive that in six months he paid back the loan. The lender offered another loan of fifty dollars, which the boy took, buying two more routes. These were covered by boys hired to do the work, however, because he felt that all his energy must go into the original route, so that he would at least be certain of good returns from that. Principles of management learned by this plan made him so successful that in less than five years he owned every newspaper route in his town. His mother's two hundred dollars was still intact, and his brothers and sisters going to school. A legacy of two hundred dollars fell to the family. This, with the original two hundred dollars and another hundred the boy had saved, was paid on a home costing twenty-eight hundred dollars, the balance to be cleared off at the rate of twenty-five dollars a month. Three furnished rooms were rented at a total of about twenty-two dollars monthly, and this money, it was agreed, should never be spent. Newspaper routes, odd jobs and the mother's contributions kept the family and paid the instalments. In four years the income from furnished rooms, put away in the bank, grew to more than one thousand dollars. The mortgage was finally cleared off, and the boy, now nearly twenty-one years old, started to get an education at the high school.

THERE are a number of Boys in Peterborough making four and five dollars per week, not necessarily all selling the Examiner, but some easily make three dollars per week selling the Examiner exclusively.

Boys! Be Boys of Business

Get in the game. It won't hurt you, but will give you a right start. You will have money of your own to save or buy useful needs with.

BOYS ! Take your spare time between four and six o'clock and see what success you will have between now and Christmas.

NEWSBOYS' BONANZA

Boys, figure this proposition out for yourselves. Be ambitious. Good newsboys are always taken care of and recommended for future positions.

PREPARE FOR CONVENTION.

Liberals Favor District Gatherings Before Provincial Rally.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The opinion among Liberals appears to be that ample time should be allowed for discussion previous to the holding of the proposed provincial Liberal convention. On this point Mr. Alexander Smith, barrister, Ottawa, in reply to requests for his views on the matter, said:

"There is nothing so useful as discussion. It is not what is done at a convention that counts; it is what is done before and after. There must be much discussion before a general convention is held, and platform work afterwards.

"In order to secure discussion before the general convention is called, I would suggest that a series of district meetings be held to aid in the development of political thought and the promotion of political activity."

Gathering Places.

Mr. Smith then suggested places for district meetings as follows:

At Port Arthur—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the districts of Thunder Bay and Rainy River.

At Sudbury—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the districts of Nipissing and Algoma.

At Chatham—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of Middlesex, Elgin, Lambton, Kent and Essex.

At Hamilton—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of Oxford, Norfolk, Brant, Haldimand, Welland, Lincoln, Wentworth and Halton.

At Guelph—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of Bruce, Huron, Perth, Wellington, Waterloo, Peel, Dufferin and Grey.

At Orillia—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of York, Ontario, Simcoe, Victoria, Muskoka, Parry Sound and Peterboro.

At Kingston—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Leeds, Grenville and Dundas.

At Ottawa—To be attended by delegates from all the ridings in the counties of Stormont, Glengarry, Prescott, Russell, Carleton, Lanark and Renfrew.

The local associations at these points would no doubt be pleased to arrange for railway rates, places of meeting, etc., and could speedily arrive at an understanding as to details for assembling the delegates probably to the number of two hundred or more from each riding.

In the meantime the various riding associations throughout the province would hold their annual gatherings and probably by December 1910 or 1911, the party would be more ready for holding a provincial convention than June next.

Emphatic Denial Of Charges

Mr. Leary Flatly Contradicts Witnesses Called by the Petitioner, and Swears That None of These Men Were Paid Money by Him On Election Day---James Jordan Was Asked by Mr. Moore, He Says, to Make an Affidavit.

AN AMUSING WITNESS

At this morning's session of the Peterborough election trial, Mr. R. H. Leary made an emphatic denial of the charges that have been made against him, flatly contradicting the witnesses who say they were paid money by him on election day. He was cross-examined at great length by Mr. Du Vernet, but his evidence was not in the least shaken.

Mr. Stratton was cross-examined by Mr. DuVernet at the beginning of this morning's session.

He had considerable experience in campaigning, he admitted, there was no formal organization. "I paid all legitimate expenses," said Mr. Stratton.

He did not know that Mr. Davidson had paid out any moneys. He was not working with Mr. Davidson or Mr. Leary on election day. He had not seen Mr. Leary there in the forenoon, but had seen him part of the time in the afternoon. Mr. Stratton went to the committee rooms between twenty minutes and half-past two in the afternoon. Mr. Leary was there then. About three or a little after he had asked for Mr. Leary and had been told he was out. Witness had returned to the committee rooms about four o'clock and remained until after [illegible] was asked for money on that street, by [illegible] three or four parties. One or two might have asked him up in the committee rooms. Witness had replied that he had none. Farrish, who had been employed as a detective by the Conservatives said that these men had been sent there to ask for money.

"How much did you pay Farrish?" asked Mr. Du Vernet.

"I did not pay him at all," replied Mr. Stratton, emphatically.

He did not know any of these parties who had asked him for money. He had told them to go to the Conservative rooms.

The first time he had seen Ashley was at the Examiner office. Witness had never employed anybody to see any of these people. Some people were brought to him. He thought Fieres brought some of these people. He could not remember the men who were brought in. It might have been more than twenty or less than twenty. Books who had been spoken to came in. Mr. Hall or Mr. Davidson might have been there some times, but it was the exception, not the rule for them to be there.

The interview with Gates and Ashley at Mr. Hall's office was gone into again, Mr. Stratton corroborating the evidence of the other witnesses in every particular.

"Ashley came to see me in my office," Mr. Stratton stated. Fieres brought him and introduced him. Mr. Stratton read the charge to him and he denied it. Pope was also brought in on another occasion, and the charge was also read over to him, with the same denial.

Asked about Mr. Elgin Myers, Mr. Stratton explained that he was acting as his private secretary at the time of the election, owing to the witness having to be away from his regular office.

There were from 150 to 200 people in the committee rooms during the afternoon, Mr. Stratton stated in answer to a question.

Mr. Stratton stated that he knew Alfred Kingscote. He did not think that Kingscote had brought anybody to him. He knew that he was working, but did not know that he was in charge of the Englishmen, as Mr. Du Vernet suggested.

To Mr. Watson, Mr. Stratton said that there was no reference by way of intimidation to any of the men that had been brought to see him. "There was no threat of expulsion or any kind before the election, on the day of the election, or after the election?"

"As far as I am concerned, no," answered Mr. Stratton.

Chas. A. Kelly was at the Liberal committee rooms on election day from 1.30 o'clock throughout the afternoon. He knew that Mr. Leary was out something about 3 o'clock. He did not know where he had been. He went away about half, three or twenty minutes to four. Mr. Leary had told the witness that he was going out in the country. To Monaghan, witness thought. Witness remembered looking at his watch a few minutes before 4 o'clock and it was about fifteen minutes before that when Mr. Leary left.

HAS CHARCOT, FRENCHMAN, REACHED THE SOUTH POLE?

Rich Scientist, Finely Equipped, Has Been In Antarctic a Year —Southern Pole Much Harder to Find Than North—Are No Eskimos or Dogs, Little Game and Terrible Obstacles to Daunt the Explorer.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 30.—Wouldn't it be great, about this time, if the French government should get a cablegram reading like this:

"Have discovered the South pole.
CHARCOT"

Never heard of Charcot, eh? Little wonder, with the air so full of Cook, Peary and Lieut. Shackleton.

Dr. Jean B. Charcot, is a rich French scientist who has been in antarctic wilds for over a year. He went into the ice-locked country with everything that money could buy to help him find the pole.

His ship was named the Pourquoi Pas, which is French for "why not?" The three-masted vessel was the most perfectly appointed yet for the hunt for the pole. He had motor sleds of his own invention to carry his supplies.

So the experts here naturally are thinking of Charcot nowadays, and there is more than a hope that he will be successful.

"The "farthest south" mark set by Lieut. Shackleton and the discovery and rediscovery of the north pole by Cook and Peary, all have drawn public interest to the antarctic. Is the south polar region like the north pole?

What will science find there?

Dr. Charcot, no matter how well he may be equipped, will find that the south pole will test the mettle of the best man.

"There are no intelligent Eskimos in the antarctic; no hardy dogs like the Eskimos have. There is little land that is not bleak and desolate. Walrus, narwhal, polar bear, and smaller game like eider duck, ptarmigan and hare, are scarce at the south pole.

In fact Dr. Charcot or any other explorer will find that Cook's and Peary's work in the north was like child's play beside some of the difficulties farther south.

As opposed to the leads of water, which baffle north polar travellers there is the huge, majestic ice barrier of the southern most ocean.

There is nothing like this ice wall in all the world. Sheer and sharp, it rises out of the ocean 300 feet high, its walls as smooth and as level as glass. The midnight sun, reflected against its sides, throws its sheen for hundreds of miles in the polar deep.

This ice wall is to the sea what the great wall of China used to be on land.

Lieut. Shackleton found that after evading this ice wall by a wide detour, his troubles had just begun. Around him, under the ice, slumbered volcanoes that added perils to the cold and fierce storms of the antarctic. There were big mountains, gnawed down by glaciers of the past, showing their vitals through crevasses, from which Shackleton and his party had narrow and thrilling escapes and which were the cause of the failure of the expedition.

Here, then, nature is doing to-day exactly what she did in the Glacial Epoch [illegible] of years ago. If the north pole is the top of the world, the south pole is the bottom.

Here, for all we know, we can see the young earth changing into the old.

The explorer argues that at the south pole he can carry himself back tens of thousands of years, to the days before there even was primitive man.

In general, then, barring climate, the south pole differs from the north pole as much as it would be possible; in the character of the ice—the one level, as Cook and Peary tell; the other mountainous, as Shackleton proves.

The land in the far north is not without signs of vegetable life near the pole, while in the south there is no life—nothing but the craters of volcanoes, quite extinct, some walled.

The weather is not so cold at the north pole—about 30 to 50 degrees below Fahrenheit. Peary and Cook say. At the south pole, however, Shackleton tells not only of extreme cold, but of biting storms which make progress almost impossible.

So, if the wires give the news that Dr. Jean B. Charcot has found the pole, we may know he has accomplished something that will mean as much to the world as have the deeds of Dr. Cook and Commander Peary.

AN OPERATION

Has Performed on Finger of Fred Jordan's Right Hand To-day.

Fred Jordan was once more in the Nicholls Hospital yesterday undergoing a slight operation in which a piece of bone in one of his fingers was taken out by Dr. Morgan. The blood poisoning in the right hand had become localized in that finger and necessitated the operation. The patient is doing well but can by no means yet dispense with the doctor's attentions.

THE SPRINGVILLE MYSTERY STILL REMAINS UNSOLVED

Coroner's Jury Last Night Could Not State the Cause of Death---Evidence of the Doctors Who Made the Post Mortem Was Heard---Not Much for Them to Work Upon.

The mystery at Springville is still unsolved.

The Coroner's Jury heard the evidence of Dr. Greer, who had made the post mortem on the body, at Springville last night, and found that they could not state how the deceased came to his death.

The post mortem revealed little new evidence. The body has been exposed so long that thre is little left to work on.

The third and last session of the Springville mystery inquest was held in the North Monaghan town hall last night. Only one witness was called, Dr. Greer, who read his report of the post mortem which was as follows:

Sept. 24th, 1909.

Post mortem examination held at the morgue of Nicholls Hospital at 4 p.m., Sept. 24th, 1909, on the remains of an unknown person.

The outer clothing was lined of medium quality and the underclothing was of coarse woollen texture.

The remains were in an advanced stage of decomposition, the soft parts had disappeared, except some small portions of skin and portions of the viscera. The muscular structures were represented by a putrid pultaceous mass.

There was no evidence of injury to the bones. There were some short grey hairs adherent to the skull. The teeth were all preserved and none were lacking.

The ligamentous structure about the joints were so far decomposed as to cause a separation of the bones.

The length and size of the bones would indicate that the deceased was a person of small structure and light build. The length of hair and formation of the pelvis would indicate male sex.

We are unable to to state the cause of death.

(Signed)
Newton Greer
J. H. Eastwood

Dr. Greer was then examined by Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, K.C., and told him that owing to the body being exposed decomposition would be much faster than if it was buried. The body, however, had been in the open for nearly a year. There was no doubt of skeleton being that of a man. There was a thickness on one leg which would indicate a fracture or a break in years past. The person was of small stature and in middle life, somewhere around 35 years. The doctor found half an eye glass in the box with the bones and it must have belonged to the deceased. The doctor then told of the clothing which was very badly discoloured and rotted so that it was hard to tell much about it. He judged the outer clothes to be brown, while the underclothes were of a light colour. In conclusion the doctor said there were none of the internal organs left to throw any light on the case. He had examined the bones closely for bullet marks but found none.

The jury retired and were out for about 15 minutes.

STRANGLED IN A TOWEL

Three Year Old Boy Found Dead by His Mother—Became Enmeshed in Roller Towel.

UNABLE TO GIVE ALARM

Examiner Special.

Galt, Oct. 1.—The little three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hastings, North Water street, strangled himself yesterday in the kitchen while his mother was working in the next room. He had been playing with the roller towel, and it is supposed, becoming enmeshed in it, was unable to extricate himself. The little fellow made no outcry, and his mother had no intimation of the accident until she had occasion to visit the kitchen, when she was horrified to find her son entangled in the towel and suspended in it. Drs. Wardlaw and Charlton were at once summoned and every known method of resuscitation was tried, but without effect. Life was apparently extinct when the mother made her discovery.

MORE EVIDENCE IN REBUTTAL OF THE CHARGES MADE

Mr. W. S. Davidson and Hon. Mr. Stratton Testify to Mr. Leary's Absence in North Monaghan at the Time Witnesses Have Said That He Was at the Committee Rooms---Are Positive as to the Time.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the protest trial was taken up with the hearing of evidence in rebuttal of the charges laid against Mr. R. H. Leary. Mr. W. S. Davidson and Hon. Mr. Stratton were heard during the afternoon and stated emphatically that Mr. Leary was not in the committee rooms at the time that witnesses have sworn they were paid and that no such thing as a row of men outside of the small room upstairs existed.

"I don't remember the names of persons wanting money, only Clancy," said Mr. Hall, in answer to Mr. Du Vernet. I told him there was no money going. When I was in the committee room, I told them there was no money going. Think Mr. Leary was there a while, while Clancy was present. About half-past four I was looking up places where parties voted. There were voters' lists in both the east and west rooms. I was in all the different rooms between four and five; I was in the main room up stairs, when Mr. Leary returned from North Monaghan. I think it was near five, because there was no further time for him to do anything before the poll. I think I drew up Pritchard's affidavit, and may have done the same for Banks or Ryder."

To Mr. Watson—"I heard a rumour that Gates had a number of Englishmen in charge. I wanted Gates to make his statement to Mr. Stratton. I had reason to believe that Gates was concerned in a blackmailing undertaking. I certainly did not press these parties to make declaration. I never asked either Gates or Ashley to make a declaration."

Walter S. Davidson.

"On election day I was at the committee rooms all day, from 8 a.m. till nearly six. I was only out to vote—early in the day. Was not out for luncheon at all. In the afternoon I was all over, principally up-stairs. During the afternoon there would be as many as 200 in the big room up-stairs. In the east room up stairs, I would be looking after the places of voters. There were lists in all the rooms, but those most convenient for reference were in the small rooms. There was a large stove in the large room—nearly opposite the lavatory door. Those in the room were sitting about chatting and smoking. There was no line of men eager to get into the small rooms. There was absolutely no such condition at any time during the afternoon. During the forenoon of that day Mr. Leary was about the committee rooms. He was getting and giving information about voters. I remember his being away; as I wanted him I asked Mr. Hall, and he said Mr. Leary was out and would soon be back, as he was in the course of about half an hour. Mr. Leary told me he had to go to North Monaghan, and had told his driver to be there at a quarter to four, and he said it was nearly that now, and he must go, and I went down to his conveyance with him. It was not more than half an hour after I inquired from Mr. Hall that Mr. Leary came back. He got back from North Monaghan, too. I am sure he was not there between a quarter to four and nearly five. I can't remember any particular persons going into the rooms. At that time I did not know Ashley. Alsept, Harland, Williams, and others. Don't remember seeing them till I saw them in the witness box. I have no knowledge directly, or indirectly of money being paid out. I did not hear any talk of there being money in the air. Any charge of bribery against me is absolutely false. The charge is false that I bribed any of the persons who said they got money. I do not know anything directly or indirectly of Mr. Leary or any

Havelock Man Charged With Extorting Money By Threats

A serious charge was preferred against George Parcells, of Havelock, in the county police court this morning before Magistrate Edmison, when he was charged with unlawfully extorting money and notes by threats and menaces, from Samuel Leason, contrary to section 452 of the criminal code.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, with Mr. Ghent, of Havelock, counsel for the complainant, conducted the prosecution and Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant. Mr. Wm. Mathieson, Justice of the Peace of Havelock, was on the bench with the magistrate. Mr. Kerr, on behalf of the accused, did not elect, and pleaded not guilty. For nearly an hour, the magistrate, the crown attorney and Mr. Ghent argued as to the correct wording of the information.

Samuel Leason, the complainant was called. He stated that he was a farmer living near Havelock. He knew the accused. He had not known him previous to the end of September, when he called at his place. He, on that day, said he came to make a settlement. Witness asked "what settlement?" The accused then accused him of seduction of watson's wife his daughter. Leason stated that he tried to reason with him but had wouldn't listen to him. He said he was going to Norwood to have him arrested. Witness wanted Parcells to go with him to Watson's to see what was the matter. Parcells replied "No, don't go near them or he will shoot you." Mr. Watson came along at the time. His father-in-law told him to go home. He would look after it. Parcells then turned to witness saying, "That man would shoot you only for me. He may shoot before night." He again said that he would give him only two minutes to settle or he would have him arrested before night. He said that he wanted two hundred dollars. The complainant told him that he couldn't give it to him. He again threatened him with arrest. He claimed that he had power of attorney from Watson. He suggested the payment of fifty dollars in cash, and three notes of fifty dollars each, payable as follows: The first in four months, the second one in eight month and the third one in twelve months. He started for the road, then he came back and Leason said he would settle. Witness' wife went over and saw Mr. and Mrs. Watson. When she returned Parcells went away. Mrs. Leason went to Havelock to see Mr. Ghent and Parcells came back in a few minutes again threatening him. Parcells refused to go to jail. Ghent's office. He pulled out three notes and told him to take them to Mr. Andrews. He would fill them out. He did go.

New Grain Route's Junction With C. P. R. May Be At Kendry

Springville, Oct. 1.—A party of engineers who are staking out a route for the Victoria Harbour Grain line reached this vicinity to-day and according to this survey, the new line will meet the main line of the C.P.R. at Kendry siding, 8 miles west of Peterborough. The surveyors state that they have found the route very satisfactory, no steep grades having been met and the general condition of the country being favourable for the proposed railway. It branches down from Omemee cutting across through Cavan and Manvers townships. The people in this vicinity are very well pleased with the faint prospect of securing competition. The surveyors expressed themselves favourable opinion of the route through here and that Springville will in all probability have a station and all the grain shipped in there would.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE SOUTH POLE

The South Pole is situated on land in the midst of a great continent, while the North Pole is in an ice-covered sea.

The South Pole is on a plateau 10,000 feet high, while the North Pole is at the sea level.

It is winter at the South Pole when it is summer at the North Pole.

It is night for six months at the South Pole, while it is day for six months at the North Pole.

There are no known inhabitants in SouthPolar regions, like the Eskimos in the Arctic regions.

Warm winds from the South Pole have led to the theory that there may be human beings in some hidden oasis.

There are no South Polar bears to take the place of the North Polar bears.

There are no large land mammals at the South Pole, as there are at the North. All the South Polar animals live by the sea.

None of the South Polar animals are found at the North Pole.

Seals are larger and more numerous at the South than at the North Pole, and quite different.

Gigantic penguins, weighing as much as 100 pounds, live in countless flocks at the South Pole and are unknown at the North Pole.

The most ferocious animal in Antarctic regions is the Killer whale, which is not found in northern waters.

The only vegetation near the South Pole consits of low forms of moss and lichen, while flowers and plants are abundant in the Arctic Circle.

The South Polar regions were once warmer than now, while the North Polar regions were formerly colder.

There are very high mountains near the South Pole, upward of 15,000 feet high, while the North Pole is on a flat region.

Glaciers at the South Pole are far larger than at the North. One South Polar glacier is as large as France.

There is an active volcano—Mount Erebus—near the South Pole and none near the North Pole.

There is no time of day at the South Pole, as all the meridians of longitude meet there. If you stood at the Pole and swirled your arm round it would pass through twenty-four hours in a moment.

The blood was enriched, colour improved, new flesh was added, and I got strong and well."

OLDEST WEDDING PACT.

An Interesting Contract Which Was Drawn Up Centuries Ago.

Out of the mass of so called "elephantine" papyrus in the Royal museum at Berlin on which a number of scholars have been at work several months have come some of the most curious finds the scientific world has been presented with in years.

One of these is the most ancient marriage contract in the world, according to Professor Leopold Wenger, an eminent Hellenist. Written in excellent classical Greek, from its context evidently composed about 311 B. C., the document begins, "In the seventh year of the reign of Alexander, the son of Alexander, in the fourteenth year of the satrapy of Ptolemaeus, in the month of Dios."

The contract sets forth that Herakleides has agreed to take as his wife Demetria of Kos, the lawful daughter of her father, Leptines, and of her mother, Philetia. Then it acknowledges the receipt of clothing and jewels, valued at a thousand drachmas, which Demetria has laid at his feet in recognition of the honor he is about to bestow upon her. Even the newly wedded couple's place of residence is given in the agreement. The rest of the contract deals with the possibility of the husband's unfaithfulness and provides for the regulation and settlement of any lapse in obligation. That Demetria should be untrue evidently was not contemplated, as no mention is made of such possibility.

In case the husband should forget his vows it is provided that each side shall appoint an arbitrator, and when the charge is proved the marriage is to be dissolved, the husband giving back the thousand drachmas' worth of clothes and jewels and paying, besides, a thousand drachmas in Alexandrine silver currency.

Six witnesses signed the contract, which is still in a state of nearly perfect preservation after nearly 2,200 years.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Revival of the Guideboard.

In many towns and counties now a white painted stone post gives in clear black letters at every fork in the roads a list of towns hardly less formidable than those on the train bulletins of a railroad terminal. At a glance the traveler may see his way along for fifty miles. Sometimes the automobile associations are themselves responsible for information disseminating guideboards of different construction, but equally useful. The necessity of providing a new class of travelers with a new sort of facts has been back of the movement for guideboard rehabilitation. The contrast in this respect makes it easy to distinguish the regions of horse drawn vehicles content with a next town direction and those places which have felt the era of the automobile. A lesson in local geography is carried in every such guideboard. Perhaps this revival of the guideboard is but a return to conditions that prevailed before the days of the railroad.—Boston Transcript.

Saint-Saens and Wagner.

Camille Saint-Saens has been unquestionably the foremost musician in France since the death of Gounod. Like so many other musicians, he began to play the piano when quite a child and was only seventeen when he composed his first symphony. He was a friend of Wagner, Liszt and Gounod, and apropos of his first meeting with Wagner as interesting story is told. Saint-Saens was sent to the house of the great German with a letter of introduction from a friend. On being shown into an anteroom to wait the arrival of his host he saw a part of the manuscript score of one of Wagner's operas lying on the piano. Sitting down at the instrument, Saint-Saens began to play the music, and so masterly was his rendering that Wagner, who was in the next room, rushed in and joyfully embraced him. M. Saint-Saens is still as brilliant a pianist as he is a composer.—London M. A. P.

Waterloo Battlefield.

The battlefield at Waterloo, writes an American tourist from Brussels, is rapidly being divested of all its interesting features. The houses which sheltered men who helped to make history there are being torn down, the roads and paths are being obliterated, and soon there will be nothing left to remind one of Napoleon's last stand but the great mound capped by the Waterloo lion. The museum, where all the battlefield trophies are on view, uniforms, arms, drawings and pictures, was never a pretentious institution, but no visitor failed to look with interest at the many exhibits behind the glass doors. This also is to be dismantled, and the articles which have been carefully kept for years will be distributed among the provincial museums of Belgium, where as individual exhibits they will lose much in value.

Automobiles in Nova Scotia.

Some Brockton people who have been making automobile tours in Nova Scotia have run up against some strange regulations of the provincial character which have tended to considerably abridge their convenience and comfort.

It appears that the Nova Scotia regulations forbid cars from using the highways in certain sections on the market day in each week, when the country folk flock into the town to do their trading. They discovered, too late for their convenience, that the market days do not occur on the same day of the week in each town, so that while they steered clear of that in one town they brought up with a bang against the bars in another town on the line of the routes they had planned.—Newburyport News.

Italy is now building four Dreadnoughts, which, it is said, will surpass any existing Dreadnought.

TRIUMPH OF THE BIBLE.

Nearly 6,000,000 Copies Were Issued Last Year.

In a few years the Bible, "the secret of England's greatness," as the late Queen Victoria once observed, will be printed in every language and dialect known throughout the world. Last year, according to the 106th report of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the languages in which either complete Bibles or parts of it were issued reached a total of 418. During the year six fresh translations were added to the society's lengthening list, and were reduced to written form, so as to become vehicles of the Gospel. Two of them belong to Asia—the borders of Spiti and Thibet; two to Africa—Southern Nigeria and the eastern edge of Rhodesia; and two to Oceania. "The waste of force in the mission field calls aloud for unity," said the bishops at the Lambeth Conference: This principle of union has found fresh opportunity for practice in the society's work in many directions abroad, and steps have also been taken to produce a unified standard Yiddish Bible. Again, the society have at least some embossed portion of Scripture now available for the blind in 31 different languages. Last year nearly 6,000,000 Bibles or portions thereof were issued.

The reports from distant parts of the world as to the results of this spreading a knowledge of the Scriptures are full of interest. Writing from Korea, Mr. J. R. Mott predicts that this will be the first nation in modern times to be Christianized if the Church will take advantage of the opportunity. The Protestant missions already number 85,000 communicants and catechumens, which suggests a Christian community of at least 250,000. A missionary writes that the greatest factor in the work has been the circulation and study of the Bible. Many striking stories are told by the colporteurs, whose adventures even in these days are often quite thrilling. Last year some of them were arrested as spies in Nicaragua, robbed in Burma, bitterly mocked by Social Democrats in Germany, driven out of the villages by priests in Peru, who burnt their books, stoned in the Philippines, and beaten by Moslems in Baluchistan. In the earthquake at Messina a colporteur, with his family, narrowly escaped death.

In the Transvaal, in one of the mines, the Scriptures were sold in 14 different languages during a single afternoon. As to the finances of the society the total receipts of the year amounted to £338,040, and the expenditure to £337,041, leaving a small balance of £999.

Reader and Writers.

The late George Meredith took up the work of literary adviser to the publishing firm of Chapman and Hall in 1860, at the age of thirty-two, in succession to John Forster, the biographer of Dickens. His decisions upon manuscripts submitted to him appear to have been generally quite sound from a literary point of view, though the standard he set up was somewhat severe, and he hardly took account enough of popular taste. For instance, in 1861, "East Lynne" was submitted to him, and he gave judgment as follows: "Opinion emphatically against it."

William Black's earliest efforts received recognition from him—"The author's mind evinces strong sense and poetic perceptions; he has a remarkably clear style, and a power of giving soft, pathetic touches, which I commend"—and after pointing out defects, Meredith suggests that Black decidedly is to be encouraged. The same year he read MS. poems by Edwin Arnold, and wrote: "I should say this man will do something." On novels by "Ouida" and Mrs. Lynn Linton, in the next year, the summary comment is "Decline." Thomas Hardy's first novel, "The Poor Man and the Lady," was submitted in 1868, but not accepted. Of the interview he had with Meredith at the time, Mr. Hardy says that he received much good advice—that Meredith did not follow himself.

More remarkable still is the dismissal of Samuel Butler's "Erewhon" with a "Will not do," while a monosyllabic "No" disposed of "Immaturity," by G. Bernard Shaw. Olive Schreiner's "Story of an African Farm" is regarded as one of Meredith's discoveries, but the MS. was in the first instance returned to the author for revision. "The Heavenly Twins," by Sarah Grand, was rejected with some recognition of the cleverness of the author; "The writer should be advised to put the MS. aside until she has got the art of driving a story." John Oliver Hobbes' first book, "Some Emotions and a Moral," also received scant justice.—Fortnightly Review.

Veterans of the Lords.

A remarkable political record is that of Lord Wemyss, who recently entered upon his ninety-second year. Not only is he the oldest member of the House of Lords—his immediate juniors are Lord Strathcona, who was born in 1820, the Duke of Grafton (1821), and Earl Nelson (1823)—but his lordship's career at Westminster has covered a period of close upon seventy years. It is many years ago now since, during a heated debate in the Upper House, his lordship, while emphasizing his words by waving one of his arms, inadvertently brought his fist down upon the tall hat of the gentleman sitting immediately in front of him. The owner of the hat happened to be the Prince of Wales—now King Edward.

Steamship Profits.

The profits of the big British steamship companies to the ordinary stockholders are small. To the insider they are big. Like the railroads there are companies which own certain privileges in connection with the boats which yield big returns. The holders of these are the ones who wax fat out of the business. In the summer a big express steamer will make in a crossing from New York $100,000, to a European port $200,000; and the slow boats from $30,000 to $40,000. A big sailing vessel from Liverpool to Australia on a trip of nine months made $110,000.

Lost Her Teeth.

At a marriage service in Budapest the bride was so overcome by emotion that, when about to give her assent, her false teeth dropped out.

September, 1908	14616.98

MORE EVIDENCE

of the others having used any money improperly. The first time I saw Gates was on the street, when he was pointed out to me. The next I saw of him was the night he came into the office, last week, Sept. 21st, I think. I was in the office that evening, and I knew that Gates was in Mr. Hall's office with him and Mr. Stratton. I was in the general office when Mr. Leary came in. Mr. Hall asked me to come in, and I found Howard, Gates, and Ashley. Mr. Hall said Gates had some proposition to make. The substance of Gates' proposal was that he was willing, for $400, to make an affidavit that he got no money at the Liberal committee rooms. He seemed to be ready to swear to anything, and was particularly anxious about the $400. Ashley was willing to do the same thing for $200. The proposal was not entertained and Gates said: "Come, Ashley, there's nothing here for us, I will see you fellows on election day with a bunch of Englishmen who will surprise you."

Up to that time there had been no mention of the charge. Gates said he would swear that he got two dollars in the committee room, and that I had given him $5 in my office, and Aspley would swear to getting $2.00 in the committee rooms. Neither of them was asked to make an affidavit. Gates included that in his proposition. I said that as far as I was concerned there was absolutely no truth in the charge and that I would not give ten cents for such an affidavit. Mr. Leary spoke to the same effect, and Mr. Hall said the proposal could not be entertained. I did not know at that time that Gates had been paid $50 by Mr. Burnham. Mr. Glover brought Ashley to the office, as the man who made the charge against myself and Mr. Leary. I told him that the charge was false, and he said there was no truth in the charge and I asked him if he were willing to make a statement to that effect. He asked 'What is there in it?' and I told him absolutely nothing for anybody to tell the truth. He said he was offered $50 by the other side. I told him I wouldn't give him fifty cents. There was no declaration drawn up. I never offered anybody anything for making an affidavit. There is no truth in the statement of Ashley that I paid him $5. Don't know of any of these men being asked to vote.

Never saw either Gates or Ashley to speak to them."

"I first saw Alsept in my office a couple of months ago. He was brought as the man who had made a charge that he had been paid money for his vote. I read the charge to him and asked him if there was any truth in it and he said there was not. I asked him if he had any objection to signing a declaration to that effect. A declaration was written out and read to Alsept, and he signed it in Mr. Goodwill's office. There was no discussion; he made no objection; there were no threats or promises of money made in respect of any of these affidavits. Mr. Stratton had nothing to do with these affidavits. These declarations were got so that we would know where he was at. If there were several persons who swore that Mr. Leary was at the committee room up to half-past four o'clock, they did not speak the truth. First saw Mark Harland in the witness box. There was no row of men waiting to go into the little room. Pritchard told the story that he had been taken down to the White House, and offered money to make a declaration that he had got money at the Liberal committee rooms. The money was on the table for him to take. He said that there was no truth in the charge that he had been given money. Banks told me that there was no truth in the charge as to getting money and he made a declaration. There was no money offered or pressure used to induce either of these men to sign a declaration. Sidney Pope made a declaration upon the same conditions. I never heard of any man being told that if he did not sign a paper he was liable to imprisonment. Never heard of any intimidation. Saw Butler in the Examiner. Darke brought him and said he was one of the men involved in a charge. I read the charge and asked him if there was any truth in it, and he said the... not. I told him that I was looking for evidence, and wanted to be sure. Didn't see him since till I saw him in the witness box. I never asked him to make a declaration. He seemed to be so candid that I did not ask him for a declaration. I saw Charles Williams on Chamberlain street. I read over the charge to him, and he said there was no truth in the charge. I had no doubt that he was telling me the truth. Mr. Glover heard the conversation. I neither asked him to make a declaration or see Mr. Stratton."

Cross-Examined.

Mr. Du Vernet cross-examined the witness at some length about the declaration.

Mr. Davidson testified that he did not think that there were over 100.

"You knew the importance of them?"

"I knew they would be handy."

"You knew that when you saw Butler?"

"Yes, sir."

"Butler swears that you asked him to sign a declaration."

"I did not ask him."

"You were anxious to get one from Williams?"

"I was not anxious after I had heard his story."

"You won't say that you did not want one from him?"

"No."

Mr. Davidson said that Mr. Glover had brought in some of the men.

"Did you offer Ashley $2 to make a declaration?"

"I certainly did not."

"Did Ashley offer to make one if paid for it?"

"I don't know that he did."

"You are not prepared to say whether or not he refused to make an affidavit?"

"I won't swear to that."

Mr. Davidson stated that he had seen quite a number about declarations, he thought between seventy-five and one hundred. Mr. Glover had brought in some and Mr. Hugh Darke had also brought in some. He had not prepared a declaration for Ashley.

The witness would not swear that there was more than one chair in the little room. He had seen Mr. Stratton at the committee rooms on election day, and thought that he was down stairs between 4 and 5 o'clock. Mr. Leary was looking after the vote in No. 2 Ward.

"Will you swear that Mr. Leary was away from the committee rooms for more than fifteen minutes between 2 and 4 o'clock?"

"No, I can't say that."

Mr. Stratton's Testimony.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was the next witness heard.

"You were the candidate at the last election, and were the member elected?"

"I was."

"Your majority was what?"

"333."

"I am calling you in regard to these charges now before the court," explained Mr. Watson.

"Were you in the committee rooms on election day?"

"Part of the time, yes."

"Were you there in the morning?"

"Yes, part of the time."

"In the afternoon?"

"I was."

"You know Mr. Leary well?"

"I do."

"He is a strong party man?"

"He is."

"Did you have knowledge that Mr. Leary was working for you as the party candidate?"

"I knew that he was supporting the Government, yes."

"You had seen him around the committee rooms and knew that he was supporting you? There is no doubt of that fact?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ask him to do anything for you?"

"No, sir; I never asked him to do anything."

"Were any requests made by you that he should assist you?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know of any organization meeting held at which committees were appointed?"

"Not that I am aware of. I think that the committee rooms were opened, the supporters met there and their services were accepted."

"You were well aware of the fact that Mr. Leary was working for you as well as he could?"

"Quite well aware of it."

"Did you ask him to do any particular thing for you?"

"No, sir."

"Any kind of work?"

"No, sir."

"For any purpose?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Stratton explained that nothing was done under his direction.

"When you were there in the morning, how many people were there?"

"I would say that there were not nearly so many as in the afternoon. There would be twenty-five or forty there."

"How many people were there in the afternoon?"

"I don't quite agree with some of the other witnesses; think there were 150 or 200 people up there most of the time."

"What would be the smallest number?"

"I would think 150."

"What time were you there in the afternoon?"

"I got back from twenty minutes to half-past two. I had been out to lunch."

"How long did you remain there?"

"Three quarters of an hour to an hour."

"Then you left?"

"Yes, sir."

"When you left there, about 3.15 o'clock, was Mr. Leary there?"

"No, sir."

"Where was he then?"

"Out somewhere."

"You left then? Where did you go?"

"I drove over to the Ashburnham polls and then up to the north ward poll and back to the committee rooms."

"What time did you get back?"

"A little before 4 o'clock."

"Was Mr. Leary there then?"

"He was not."

"Where was he?"

"I asked Mr. Hall and he said that he had gone out to North Monaghan."

"Do you know when he got back?"

"Just before the polls closed."

"How long before?"

"About ten minutes."

"You were there all the time after you came back?"

"Yes, between 4 and 5.30 o'clock."

"You knew from Mr. Leary himself, where he had been?"

"Yes. I saw him drive up to the door and I asked him where he had been, and he replied at May's School House, North Monaghan."

"When you were upstairs that afternoon, what rooms were you in?"

"All the rooms."

"That day, what was there in the corner room, in the way of furniture?"

"A table, and something piled up in one corner."

"Were there any chairs?"

"I think there were some chairs. If not they must have been taken out the day before election day, as I remember we sat in there half a dozen times during the campaign."

"Do you recollect sitting down in there on election day?"

"I don't think I sat down very much that day."

"Were you in that room?"

"Two or three times between four and five o'clock."

"Were you part of the time downstairs?"

"All the time except when I ran up for a second."

"How often did you run up?"

"Probably six or eight times."

No Row of People.

"During the day was there any such condition of a lot of people standing in a row in front of that room, as described here by previous witnesses?"

"Absolutely manufactured. It is not true."

"Were you in the west room?"

"I was."

"There were voters' lists in all the rooms?"

"Yes; there were voters' lists on the tables, and they got mixed up, so that it was necessary to consult the cards in the other rooms on which the lists had been pasted."

"Do you recollect seeing Mr. Leary there?"

"Yes."

"What was he doing?"

"He seemed to be doing the same as the rest of us. There did not seem to be a good organization. Voters had gone to the wrong polls and they were coming back to find out where they should vote."

"There was a congestion of inquirers?"

"There was."

"Where did you see Mr. Leary?"

"I saw him upstairs in the east room, in the west room in the large committee room, and in the room downstairs."

"It has been said by these six men that they got money there that afternoon from Mr. Leary; five of them getting $2 and one man $4. Have you any knowledge of that?"

"None whatever."

"Directly, or indirectly?"

"No, sir."

"Did you hear of any such thing as money going around?"

"There is always talk of money at election times. I never heard of a candidate losing yet that he was not bought out or something of that kind."

"There was no foundation for such a statement as far as you were concerned?"

"No, sir."

"These persons have stated that Mr. Leary was there at 4 o'clock, and afterwards, at all events up to 4.30 o'clock. Keeping that in mind what do you say as to whether or not Mr Leary was at the committee rooms at that time?"

"He was not. I asked Mr. Hall and he told me that he had gone to North Monaghan."

"You did not see him there between those hours?"

"I did not."

"Do you think you would have seen him had he been there then?"

"I am sure I would have."

"Mr. Leary is a man of sense and reason?"

"Yes, he is a good business man."

"These men say that they did not ask for money, but that they had heard inside the committee rooms that money was going out, that is going out from you and the Liberal party?"

"I saw none and heard of none."

"If any such rumour was afoot could you account for it?"

"Yes, by our opponents. They were manufacturing it, I guess."

"Did anybody ask you for money?"

"Yes, on the street and in the committee rooms?"

"Did any of these men ask you?"

"No, sir."

"Did you know them then?"

"No, sir."

"Who asked you for money?"

"I can't recollect now. Some working men."

"More than one?"

"Yes, three or four."

"Together?"

"No, separately."

"Did they get it or not?"

"They did not."

"When did you first see Ashley?"

"He was painting a safe in the Examiner office. I walked over and spoke to him. I did not know his name then, but I think he left his card when he went out and asked me to turn any work his way that I could."

"When was that?"

"A couple of months ago, after the particulars were filed."

"Did he say anything about the election?"

"He never mentioned it."

"When did you next see him?"

"At Mr. Hall's office on Sept. 21."

"When did you first see Gates?"

"At Mr. Hall's office on Sept. 21."

"Gates says that he was in the Examiner office the day after the election and saw you and Mr. Davidson, and that Mr. Davidson paid him $5 in your presence."

"Absolutely false?"

"Was he there?"

"He may have called in. I think I would have remembered his face, though."

"Mrs. Hall telephoned," said Mr. Stratton, "and said that he would like me to come over at 8 o'clock, that a party wanted to make a proposition, or some such expression."

"When I went over I found Ashley and Gates there with Mr. Hall. Gates had a proposition that, for $400 he would make any sort of declaration we wanted, or that would be useful, and that he would leave the country and go to Vancouver or Minneapolis. He said that Walter Davidson had paid him $5 for me, and that Mr. Leary had paid him $2.00 at the committee rooms. He also said that Ashley had got $2.00 from Mr. Leary, but that he would swear that he did not if he was given $200. Gates did most of the talking for the two. Mr. Hall told them that Mr. Davidson and Mr. Leary were in the outer office, and asked them if they had any objection to them hearing the statement. Gates said: 'None whatever, bring them in.' Gates then repeated his offer. Mr. Davidson said that he wouldn't give him 10c, and that the story was absolutely untrue. Mr. Leary also immediately said that there was no truth in the statement. Mr. Hall said, 'Gates, I am afraid that your proposition cannot be entertained.' Gates said, 'Come on, Ashley; we will meet you at the sessions with a bunch of Englishmen that will surprise you.'"

"That was all?"

"That was the end of it; they went out then."

Mr. Stratton stated that Alsept had come in to see him a couple of months ago, and had said that he got no money. Mr. Stratton had seen Sidney Pope during the summer and he said that he had not received anything; it was all bosh.

"As far as I am concerned there is no truth in all this series of charges," remarked Mr. Stratton.

This concluded Mr. Watson's examination and the court adjourned until this morning.

EMPHATIC DENIAL

Witness said there could not possibly be a row of people there as described.

To Mr. Du Vernet he said that there would be 150 people up there. He had not paid particular attention.

Witness had not gone into the east room. He was getting information for voters. Mr. Davidson was back and forth in the other room. Witness had seen Mr. Leary in the morning and in the afternoon. He saw him quite a long time before he left to go to North Monaghan.

Robert M. Leary.

I have lived all my life in Peterborough County. I have been in business and in the City Council and been president of the Agricultural Society, and have occupied positions of responsibility. Was at committee rooms on election day. I was doing all I could in the interests of Mr. Stratton. I never was asked by Mr. Stratton or any other candidate. I always entered into an election contest in the Liberal interests. Before half-past 10 I was visiting polls. I was in the committee rooms in the morning. "Six men swear that you paid them money at the rooms on polling day. Is that true?"

"It is not true. Arthur Morgan was in charge of my horse after my return from North Monaghan at 10.30. I was in the committee rooms from half-past one till three o'clock. I fix that time by reference to my watch and by my telling my men that I wanted to visit the polling divisions at three o'clock. I was at Babb's Lane. I saw Arthur McClellan there about fifteen minutes after three. I consulted my watch and about twenty-five or thirty minutes after three. I consulted my watch and told Morgan I wanted him on hand at a quarter to four. I was in the committee rooms, moving around among the crowd, attending to matters. I saw Mr. Davidson and Mr. Hall, whom I asked to look after No. 2, while I was in North Monaghan. I was talking to Mr. Hall a few minutes in the main committee rooms, and the east room. I went into the west room when I came in from the polls to answer a telephone message. I was there only a few minutes. Everybody used that corner room, because the best arrayed voters' lists were there. There was a table there and had been several chairs, but they attracted loungers, and I had removed all the chairs but one. There would be from 25 to 150 in the main room. Mr. R. R. Hall, Dickson Hall, Walter Davidson, and a man named Irwin. I left committee rooms at a quarter to four and went to Mary's School House. I got back from Monaghan at ten minutes to five. I was 15 or 20 minutes at Mary's. Never saw Ashley till I saw him September 21st, in Mr. Hall's office.

"Ashley says that at half-past four, he was one of a line of people trying to get into the small room, and that he went in and that you gave him $2. Is that true?"

"No, sir."

"Never was such an occurrence?"

"No such thing happened?"

"Never saw Gates till Sept. 21st?"

"Gates says he got money from you at 4 o'clock."

"No such thing as that took place with either person at that time and at no other time."

Witness related the incidents of the visit of Gates and Ashley at Mr. Hall's office, practically the same as related by Mr. Hall and Mr. Davidson.

Gates said he had never made a statement to Mr. Moore that I had given him money. For $400 he would deny that he had ever received any money, and Ashley would do the same for $200. When Gates went out he said "Good evening, gentlemen; we'll meet you at the sessions with a bunch of English evidence."

Both Gates and Ashley said that for the money mentioned they would swear that they had not received any money or had been promised money. Ashley never gave me a note. There was no row of men such as stated waiting to get into the little room. I was in that corner room twice in the fifteen minutes preceding my visit to North Monaghan.

The small room was principally used for giving information to voters. There were other with me when I was in the little room. The door was a spring door and would close of its own accord.

I never saw Arthur Alsept till he gave evidence. His story of what occurred at election day is not true. There was nothing of that kind. I did not take any money from my pocket and put it down any where that day."

"It would be the act of a mad man," remarked Mr. Watson.

"I never saw Mark Harland until I saw him in the witness box."

Witness was asked in reference to the several statements made of receiving $2 from him and declared that there was no truth in any of them nor had he ever seen any of the men who made these statements, except two or three of them afterwards. I don't know that the statements were true in respect of any of the other persons charged.

To Mr. Du Vernet.—Did not use profanity, when I was in livery business, I never used the expression, "my God."

Mr. Justice McMahon.—"He might have felt justified in using a milli damn."

I was asked in front of the committee rooms if there was any money going and I said there was none going. No one asked me for money up stairs. If Pritchard says he was alone with me in that room he says what is false, for I don't think I was ever in that room alone. I won't swear that I was never alone in that room with only one person. There was no card board box on the table. Never saw money in that little room. Never spent a dollar on that election. I never placed money on that table in the little room. I contradict the evidence of these men as to seeing me in that room. Kingscote never sent me a note pertaining to elections. There was a considerable number of persons in the east room with me. There might have been 25 men in that room. I only went into the east room to see where they voted. Was asked to go to Hall's office. Was in the outer office and heard Gates say that he had got money from me and that he would make an affidavit to that effect. I never got a dollar from any person at this election or any other, on the Saturday previous, nor on Monday or on no occasion did I put any money on a table to be taken by anybody. There were persons coming in and out that I never saw before or since. I never had any money transactions with any body in the east room or any other place in connection with the elections. I say this without any reservation. Never suggested that any persons should leave the country, never paid any money in connection with this case to any body.

To Mr. Watson.—There was no time when I was there, that the door of the east room was closed to anybody.

James Jordan

James Jordan, the next witness provided some amusement for every body in the court by his peculiar method of giving his testimony, particularly by his way of coupling the word, "whatsoever" with every reply.

To Mr. Watson, Jordan stated that he had seen Arthur Alsept at the Commercial Hotel corner, on the afternoon of election day and had nodded to him but had had no conversation with him.

"He says that you told him there was money going around?" asked Mr. Watson.

"There was no money going around, whatsoever. Not a ha' pence," replied the witness.

"But did you tell him that there was money going around?"

"I had no conversation with him whatsoever. Far from it," replied Jordan.

Mr. Du Vernet cross-examined the witness as to what time he got to the committee rooms.

"About four o'clock," was the reply. Jordan stating that the clock struck the hour as he was going in.

"Did you see Mr. Leary there?"

"Yes, he was there but I did not pay any attention to what he was doing, whatsoever."

"He says that he left at a quarter to four o'clock. Will you contradict him?"

"If Mr. Leary says he did leave then, he did, I wont contradict him?"

Far from it."

"Were you asked to take a declaration," asked Mr. Du Vernet.

"Yes, Mr. Moore asked me to come down and take an affidavit that I received money in Mr. Stratton's committee rooms."

"Did you get any money?"

"No, sir, I got none, whatsoever. If any body paid me to vote I would vote for the other party."

"I know Alsept," said the witness, "and I know one thing and that's not two and that is that he's not right in his head."

"I am an honest labouring man," witness explained to the bench.

"And I voted for the best man."

"Did you see any money around the committee rooms?"

"No, sir. Far from it."

"How far were you from it?"

Witness replied that he had got no money.

Court adjourned for luncheon at 1.10 o'clock.

BOOK MAKING.

By Harold Carter.

Hadley of the reform party, and Coppleheim, who represented the "interests," were the best of friends outside the walls of the state legislature. But the best of friends fall out in times of stress; particularly when there is the prospect of an even vote upon a bill to prohibit bookmaking. The session was well-nigh over, and, after many days of debate, it was expected that the bill would come up for the vote that afternoon. Wherefore they loafed disconsolately in the lobbies, along with as many representatives as either side could muster.

They eyed one another askance for several moments.

"Why shouldn't we pair and go to the ball game?" Coppleheim murmured.

"No sneaking back to vote," said Hadley, suspiciously.

"My dear fellow, what do you take me for?" said Coppleheim, in injured tones.

Half an hour later the friends entered the grounds together. They walked down arm in arm, they took adjacent seats.

The sun shone warmly, the excitement of the bookmaking bill had been forgotten in the contest for the pennant. Hadley relaxed into a condition of dreamy content.

"Coppleheim," he murmured, through half-shut eyes, "politics is no game for a man. I tell, you, Coppleheim, I wish I was out of it, with my own little farm in the country, leading a rustic life"——

He looked up with a start. Coppleheim was gone. Turning swiftly around, Hadley saw the treacherous representative sneaking deftly out of the stand.

He leaped to his feet and began to fight his way desperately through the throng. Angry shouts arose, he was thrust and jostled, and when at last he found his way clear from the grounds he was minus his hat, one eye was swollen from a blow, and his clothes were torn in a half dozen places. Fifty yards down the street he saw Coppleheim leap into a taxicab which drove swiftly away toward the capitol. If Coppleheim could gain its shelter before the vote came on, the gates would be closed on him; he saw the whole plot now. He looked around in desperation; the only other vehicle in sight was a butcher's cart, the horse hitched to a post near by.

Hadley unhitched the animal leaped upon the seat, and whipped out furiously. He heard shouts behind him and the roar of a gathering mob, but drove on at top speed heedless, so long as he could catch Coppleheim. He gained on him pressed him closely; the taxicab made a turn for a side street, and the vehicles collided, overturning upon the ground. Next moment the crowd had closed in, and Hadley and Coppleheim were pulled from beneath the debris.

"Arrest him," shouted Coppleheim, with only half simulated fury, shaking his fist at the captive Hadley. "He stole this good fellow's cart and rode me down, the drunken loafer. No, no, don't kill him here," he added, as the butcher, panting from the chase, squared up to Hadley. "Take him to the police station—I can't stop now, my wife is dangerously sick; I'll be round to give evidence."

"Stop him," cried Hadley, with sudden desperation. He stole my pocketbook with important papers and money. My name's Coppleheim—Representative Coppleheim — search him for it.

Coppleheim was overhauled and his own pocketbook discovered.

"Take him off," cried Hadley. "I'll be back to give evidence in half an hour—my house is on fire"——

"Not so quick," said a policeman sternly. "I'll take you both. We'll have to sift this matter." He snapped the irons deftly upon each of the representatives' wrists, and led them away, while the jeering populace followed behind.

"Tell me one thing," begged Hadley as they sat together in a cell half an hour later. "What was the vote on the bookmaking bill?"

"It's postponed till to-morrow," growled the doorkeeper.

Coppleheim looked at Hadley and Hadley looked at Coppleheim.

"Hadley," said Coppleheim sadly. "what was that you were saying about politics being no game for a man?"

MR. J. E. JONES WITH ST. JOHN'S CHOIR

Mr. James Edmund Jones, who has taken such a prominent part in the publication of the new "Book of Common Praise," paid a surprise visit to St. John's Choir at their practice last night. Sitting at the organ, he gave illustrations of how many of the new hymns should be sung, to the great pleasure of the choristers assembled. Mr. E. J. Devey after thanking Mr. Jones for his visit, expressed the wholehearted appreciation of St. John's Choir for the new hymnal, the whole of the chants and hymns used in St. John's on Sunday last, having been taken from it. It may here be noticed that Mr. Jones has issued an "Annotated Edition," of the new work, which is one of the most interesting publications published to any student of Hymnology. Handel's M.S.S. of three hymns, in facsimile, Bishop Heber's "Holy, Holy," and Marie Corelli's words to the twenty-third Psalm beautifully set to music by the editor appears with a multitude of valuable historical notes.

FOUND LIZARD

In Cellar of Mr. J. Smyth's Residence Bolivar Street.

What proved to be a rare species of lizard, put in an appearance in the cellar of Mr. J. Smyth's dwelling, 583 Bolivar street, about seven o'clock on Wednesday evening. Mr. Ray Smyth went down into the cellar and was somewhat startled to see a slimy-looking creature about six inches in length, creeping along the floor. Some other members of the family were on the scene, and the reptile was put in a bottle, and on Thursday was taken to the P.C.I. by one of the Collegiate boys.

The little creature is of a very dark colour, with sharp eyes and short legs and when moving has a slow creeping movement. It is supposed that the reptile made an entrance from the cellar door, as the floor of the cellar is cement.

"Gambling Is The Perversion Of Certain Natural Instincts"

Words Used by Rev. Dr. Cody of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, in the Course of His Address at St. Luke's Harvest Festival Last Night.

DENOUNCES THE "GAME"

"Gambling is the perversion of certain natural instincts in a man or a woman which in themselves are not wrong," said Rev. Dr. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, in the course of his excellent sermon on "Gambling, A National Menace," at the annual Harvest Festival of St. Luke's Church last evening. The reverend gentleman denounced gambling and betting in the strongest terms, urging that Christian bodies everywhere should pass resolutions asking that the laws in regard to race track betting and gambling be changed. At present, he remarked, the law was radically unsound. "We cannot over-estimate the magnitude of this evil," Canon Cody stated. He believed that a similar campaign should be waged against it as was being carried on against the liquor traffic. It was a national evil, nothing begetting more crime than it. According to statistics, Dr. Cody said that seventy-five per cent. of the embezzlements, forgeries and bankruptcies in the Dominion were the results of gambling.

Dr. Cody's remarks were most interesting. He is a fluent and eloquent speaker and his words cannot fail to make a deep impression. The service last evening was one of joyful thankfulness to Almighty God, for a bountiful harvest. Everywhere were evidences of the harvest in the shape of fruit, grain and flowers. The rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt was assisted in the service by Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's Church and Rev. Mr. Earle, rector of Omemee. Rev. E. A. Pearson, President of the Ministerial Association, read the first lesson and Ald. J. J. Turner, the second one.

The Sermon

Rev. Canon Cody based his sermon on the words found in the 23rd and 24th verses of the 19th chapter of St. John's Gospel, "Then the soldiers when they had crucified Jesus took His garments and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also His coat. Now the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. . . . They parted my raiment among them and for my vesture they did cast lots." The speaker thought that a day when a congregation was returning thanks for a good harvest was a most opportune time to consider a national evil, gambling. He began by picturing to his hearers, the scene surrounding the instance of gambling referred to in the verses of his text. The Saviour of the world upon the cross and cold, hard men gambling for His legacy. This evil was rife among the Jews of that day, although there was no identical text in the Bible prohibiting gambling, one read such sentences as "money is the root of all evil," "be kind, one to another," and "thou shalt not covet." The preacher continuing said that gambling was unearned gain at the cost of another. The magnitude of the evil could not be over estimated but the law was of little assistance in any efforts to wipe it out. It has been stated that gambling comes next to drunkenness in the curse it wrought upon society. It was not as openly repulsive as the drinking habit but to anyone who ever visited a race track or Monte Carlo it was as equally repulsive. People generally were ignorant of its rapid growth, it being difficult to keep line with legitimate and illegitimate speculation.

Betting Defined

Rev. Canon Cody defined betting as being a stake upon a chance for gain without labour. It was a determination to gain the ownership of a property by chance. It was the perversion of certain natural instincts. There were such instincts as the spirit of adventure, the love of freedom, the rightful desire for money, which in themselves were not wrong.

The eloquent divine went on to show how betting violated one's natural instincts. The first one he referred to was the stewardship of money. In betting one was wasting money given him by God. One-third of the human race was hungry and the progress of Christianity was retarded because money was being wasted. No, use of money was more anarchical than when expended in betting.

Secondly, it destroyed all proper view of rights to property. If one lost by the shaking of dice or the shuffling of cards, their rightful ownership was denied. The transference of property by chance did away with system. The speaker believed that gambling to a man of vigour was a sign of premature demoralisation. Taking money that he had not properly earned was degrading and would ultimately lead to utter moral deterioration. Gamblers have been heard to remark, said the speaker, that it was not merely for the money that they bet but for the exciting interest. "Eliminate the money element," he added, "and see how many would stay in the game."

"Thirdly, it was a violation of the fundamental law of work, and fourthly it violated in point of selfishness, the law of brotherly love.

Contrary to True Sport

Dr. Cody stated that the fifth violation of the evil of betting was against the true laws of sport. Everyone encouraged sport properly carried on. It was essential to the development of one physically. It made a boy manly, but nothing so lowers sport as betting. To an habitual bettor there was no real attraction in a game or a race. To him it is not sport but money getting. The best man was the one who played a game for the love of it, not for the stakes that had been put up.

Betting was a violation of the laws of common sense. Some gamblers made money but the majority lost. If a business man failed, he was assisted by his banker or his friends, but what banker, asked the preacher, would come to the assistance of a ruined gambler.

Lastly it violated the laws of strong character building. In gambling reason played no part. The best part of a man was set aside. Nothing was so conducive to the hardening of one's sympathies, to deception, to avarice and crime as general gambling, resulting invariably in a horrible death.

In conclusion the speaker dwelt upon active steps being taken to combat this evil in Canada. The supreme folly of it should be pointed out. He believed that equally as good results could be obtained as in the fight against the liquor traffic. Betting was unchivalrous and unchristian.

During the offertory the choir sang an anthem, with a solo by Miss Ruby Quatermaine.

HAS PAUL KRUGER'S OLD SADDLE PISTOL

John Harcourt Possesses Historic Weapon Used by Boer Leader.

Last spring Mr. John Harcourt, the genial G. T. R. ticket agent for the town, was a visitor to the big St. Louis exposition, and while there met a nephew of old Paul Kruger, the late South African president, famous by the Boer war. The young fellow's name, too, was Paul Kruger, and Mr. Harcourt spent some time with the old politician's relative. When parting Mr. Kruger promised to send Mr. Harcourt his uncle's 12 shot rapid fire, German horse-pistol, which weapon came duly to hand on Monday. It is a most curious gun.

The butt and barrel are detachable and when carried on horseback fits into one another in a close pocket, the barrel being used if needed, as merely a pistol, on the butt fastened on and the whole being utilized as a carbine. When so used, the weapon is discharged from the right hand, holding the magazine as a "pistol grip" and the left forefinger pulling the trigger. One pull starts 12 shots.

The whole weapon is beautifully made and highly polished. Many town people have admired the gun, which was carried through the war by the old ex-president.—Port Hope Times.

WEDDING BELLS

PAGE—LOGAN.

At the residence of Mr. Joseph Giles at "Fairview," North Monaghan, a very pretty wedding was celebrated when Miss Verna Page, eldest daughter of Mr. Edgar Page, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. John Logan, son of John S. Logan, Park street. The bride was prettily attired in a cream Princess gown, and carried a bouquet of white roses, and was supported by her father.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of St. Andrew's Church. The young couple were unattended.

After the ceremony the company sat down to a wedding breakfast.

The young couple will reside in Peterborough. The wedding presents were numerous and costly and testified to the esteem in which the young couple were held.

Only the intimate relatives were invited.

Jumped From Buggy Before Horse Bolted And Got Away

Several Young Warsaw People Had a Narrow Escape Coming From Stony Lake—Other News Items.

VISITORS TO THE VILLAGE

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Oct. 1.—An accident which might have easily resulted more seriously occurred to Miss M. Morgan and her nephew, Master Johnnie Morgan, while driving from Stony Lake to the village on Thursday last.

Everything was apparently going along quite smoothly until they had passed Mr. Allan Payne's sawmill when the horse suddenly became frightened, and, springing sideways, upset the vehicle, precipitating them on to the road side. Though the cover of the buggy was up, Miss Morgan succeeded in getting out with her nephew before the terrified animal sprang ahead.. The harness became tangled about the horse and was responsible for stopping the run about one quarter mile away. In addition to several severe bruises and a bad scare, Miss Morgan is none the worse for the experience.

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR OF "Y"

Mr. McLaughlin of New London, Conn., Has Accepted the Position—Other Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Mr. H. M. McLaughlin of New London, Conn., has been secured as the new Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., succeeding Mr. Collings. He is at present in Toronto, but yesterday paid a visit to Peterborough and is expected to return at any time and formally accept his position on the staff of the local Y.M.C.A. His last appointment was the position of assistant Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A. in Washington, D.C., and during the past season he has had an average of five classes a day and in three weeks taught 33 men to swim. These facts will convey an idea of Mr. McLaughlin's ability and under his direction the fall classes at the Y.M.C.A. should open with a large membership and excellent work should be accomplished. Further notice will be given in this respect after Mr. McLaughlin arrives in Peterborough.

The Matriculation Class has already a large enrollment and notice is herewith given that after this week no more students will be accepted. Those desirous of taking up the work should do so at once as every provision is being made to assure a thorough course of instruction.

On Monday next the bowlers will commence in earnest to get into condition for the Fall sports and as the schedule will be drawn up in a short time the boys will undoubtedly make things roll in the alleys. Bowling should flourish this winter as the alleys are in good shape and the different teams will make the game interesting.

The Best Food for Workers.

The best food for those who work with hand or brain is never high priced.

The best example of this is found in Quaker Oats. It stands at the top among foods that supply nourishment and vigor, without taxing the digestion, and yet it is the least expensive food one can eat.

The great food value and low cost make it an ideal food for families who want to get the greatest good from what they eat.

Laborers, factory or farm hands, fed plentifully on Quaker Oats will work better and with less fatigue than if fed on almost any other kind of food. All of these facts were proved and very interesting information about human foods was gathered by Professor Fisher of Yale University in 1908. 30
